ROUSING WELCOME WAS ACCORDED THE NEW YEAR

In New York, Chicago and Washington Crowds Swarmed the Theatres, Hotels and Cafes to Greet the Infant 1929—Celebrants With "Hip" Liquor in Chicago Were Not Disturbed by Prohibition Agents—They Intended to Allow the People to Have a Good Time

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(AP)—New York ushered the old year out tonight with all accustomed gaiety, the celebration seemingly little diminished by the actions of police and prohibition agents who started raiding speakeasies and night clubs at dusk in the restaurants (where there are no dances) and night clubs did a double business with all reservations made days ago and hundreds more at the entrance tonight.

There was no peace for a person seeking respite from the intrusion of the noisy crowd on, and from, the streets of New York on Fifth avenue and elsewhere the game the place of noise and the sound of rattles and other noise making devices.

At the Hotel Astor, in Times square, the throngs waiting for admission to the ballrooms and the dining rooms and the lobby overflowed out through the doors. It was estimated hundreds were turned away before 9 o'clock. Similar conditions prevailed at other places.

There was a touch of sadness in the talking at the Waldorf Astoria, to be torn down and replaced by a new skyscraper. The old red roofed hostelry was crowded to the doors by those anxious to throw one last New Year's party in its famous grand and other halls.

The first raid of police was made at dusk when they invaded the restaurant on West 135th st just outside the village and took 400 bottles of alleged liquors. Two women, the chorus girls and a waitress, were arrested.

Squads swung into action and raided seven places in the Times square section of midtown Manhattan before midnight. Arrests were made and liquor seized at all seven places.

MOMENTOUS UNDERTAKINGS CARRIED OVER TO NEW YEAR

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The Old Year, trudging down the long aisle of time to this terrestrial sphere, has human hands held out to him in salutation from places close to the ends of the world and the bottom of the globe from the more populous continents.

Near the top, at the magnetic pole, Major L. T. Burwash, Canadian government official, and arctic explorer.

Near the bottom, a few hundred miles from the south pole, are the explorers led by Commander Richard E. Byrd of the United States and Sir George Hubert Wilkins.

Major Burwash is alone except for his Eskimo companions to help him hail the New Year; Captain Wilkins has a small party of co-adventurers but Commander Byrd, with about 60 companions to swell the chorus, will raise a shout of greeting that will tumble among the icebergs like a landslide.

Byrd's crew is on the great Ross sea barrier 500 miles or so from the point which he plans to reach in due time by airplane. Wilkins is on the American side of Antarctica, about 1300 miles from Byrd and a bit farther from the pole.

There is nothing on which to base guesses as to the manner in which the parties of these three parties will greet the New Year, with what frozen liquor they will mark the moment of a year in which all hope to see the wide horizons of science and knowledge.

But to those dwellers with reservations in the confetti belt it may seem that there are some advantages in a New Year's party at either the north or south pole—the explorers will at least have no water glasses to pay.

MERRYMAKING GENERAL THROUGHOUT CHICAGO

New Year's revelers welcomed the visitor as the mercury started a drop that probably will carry it down to zero before Wednesday the weather bureau and the cold wave from the northwest arriving simultaneously. The weather, however, failed to chill a greeting extended by thousands of Chicago merrymakers who thronged every hotel, night club and cafe that provided a New Year's program. One downtown hotel charging $30 a person was sold out a week ago and the $20 and $25 places had more business than they could handle.

E. C. Yellowly, prohibition administrator here, announced that hip liquor was safe as far as his agents were concerned and the police said they intended to allow the people to have a good time.

Cafes and cabarets which are operating under temporary federal injunction because they were once held to have violated the prohibition laws by serving setups of cracked ice and bottled beverages put a new interpretation of the law into use.

The setups tonight took on a definition. When the patron ordered a beverage it was served in a glass with or without the ice as desired.

NEW YEAR'S EVE IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The national capital along with the rest of America turned out tonight to say adieu to the old year.

Even though its two chief figures—the president and the president to be were absent—the cosmopolitan population of Washington gave itself over to merry-making with its usual vim.

As the clocks ticked away the last few hours of 1928, crowds swarmed into the downtown streets to theatres, hotels, cafes to give a rousing welcome to the infant 1929. Others gathered a parties at their homes, clubs, hotels and other places. Watch services were arranged for the many churches in the city.

Despite the absence of Mr. Coolidge from the white house, a detachment of marine corps buglers was on hand to carry out the custom established two years ago of sounding the restful notes of taps from the roof of the executive mansion as the old year passed into history—then, a moment later, to change to the spirited notes to reveille, the soldier's awakening song, to speed the arrival of the new year.

Heretofore it has been customary for the president and the first lady of the land to invite the public to the north grounds of the white house lawn to take part in this usual observance of watchnight, but with both out of the city the special invitation was lacking. Elsewhere in Washington, however, the merriment ascended to its usual heights as the midnight hour approached.

Tomorrow the capital's official life accustomed to numerous elaborate receptions, will be confined to only two such affairs, Secretary Kellogg's breakfast for the diplomatic corps, and Secretary Wilbur's general reception at Continental Memorial hall.

The most important of these functions in former years, the president's reception at the white house, was cancelled by President Coolidge before he left for his mid-winter vacation in Georgia. The impression prevailed in some quarters that the affair was called off partly because the chief executive wished to spare Mrs. Coolidge the long fatiguing ordeal through which she would have passed.

HOOVER MAY ARRIVE AT HAMPTON ROADS SUNDAY

U. S. S. UTAH, Dec. 31—(AP)—The eve of the new year which will see him elevated to the presidency found Herbert Hoover resting quietly on board the battleship Utah as it ploughed its way northward toward the United States.

While the rest of the world was celebrating the arrival of 1929, the president-elect, homeward bound from a mission of good will to Latin America, arrange dto retire early to be among the few to sleep the old year out and the new year in.

The schedule of the Utah called for the big battleship being approximately 600 miles east of Santo Domingo in the West Indian group, at midnight.

Members of the Hoover party as well as the officers and crew of the dreadnaught spent New Year's eve quietly. Sailors massed on the quarterdeck to sing popular songs, while Mr. and Mrs. Hoover watched a motion picture program. They retired immediately after the showing of the films.

The motion picture program was given outdoors, the spectators sitting on the deck as the weather was tropical.

It is now thought that the battleship will arrive at Hampton Roads, Va., early Sunday morning and that the Hoover party will take a special train enabling them to arrive in Washington during the afternoon.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION IN THE SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The headquarters of Commander Evangeline Booth tonight placed their cards on the table and clarified for the Associated Press several obscure points regarding the attitude of her followers in connection with the forthcoming momentous meeting of the high council of the Salvation Army.

This meeting has been called to decide whether Miss Booth's brother, General Bramwell Booth, shall continue as commander-in-chief or if he shall be replaced and the constitution of the world-wide organization be changed.

Incidentally it was stated that Commander Eva has not received any word from her brother's home where he lies ill, as to when she can see him. When she reached London last week she asked permission to visit him, but was told that this could not be given until the doctors approved it.

"There is no split in the army but there is admittedly a decided difference of opinion anent future control of the organization. The two groups are headed respectively by Bramwell and Evangeline Booth."

The Evangeline Booth group claims that the general is physically unfit and should be replaced; that the present scheme whereby he is practically absolute as ruler of the army is wrong; that the constitution should be altered so that control of the organization would be taken out of the hands of one family and placed under control of an independent group.

Miss Booth's followers, who include the entire American section, think she is the logical successor to her brother. She herself is not a candidate for leadership but she would assuredly take the place if it were offered.

NO LIMIT ON WHISKEY PRESCRIPTIONS FOR FLU

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Physicians wishing to prescribe whiskey for patients suffering from influenza can exceed, if necessary their usual monthly allotment of 100 prescriptions under an announcement today by the prohibition bureau.

Fears had been expressed in some quarters that during the present epidemis there would be an insufficient amount of whiskey available for influenza sufferers. The law permits a physician to prescribe a pint of whiskey for a patient every ten days and allows the physician 100 such prescriptions a month.

LACK OF DISCIPLINE IN BOSTON CITY HOSPITAL

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—A special committee of the Boston city council appointed to investigate conditions at the Boston City hospital today made public a report in which it cited instances of lack of discipline, carelessness in the care of patients and mismanagement.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 31—(AP)—A spectacular blaze, witnessed by thousands of persons, burned the liner Paul Lecat to the water's edge before she could be removed from her dock to the outer port.

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Edwe Warren, a collector of Greek antiques who had made many purchases for American museums, is dead here. He was born in the United States but for the past 30 years had made his home in Lewes, Sussex.

WARSAW, Dec. 31—(AP)—The young Russian emigre, George Voitchekhovsky, who shot and wounded M. Lizareff, head of the soviet commercial mission, in the street here last May, was condemned to ten years of penal servitude. The sentence was the maximum for attempted murder.

MOB SEIZED NEGRO AND PROBABLY LYNCHED HIM

GUNNISON, Miss., Dec. 31—(AP)—Charley Shepherd, Negro, convict, was seized by a mob near Cleveland today shortly after he had surrendered to a woman planter and she and several men had started to take him to jail.

A posse of some 2,000 men, aided by National Guard officers, had been searching for the Negro who was accused of having killed J. D. Duvall, an employe of the state prison farm at Parchman and then kidnaped Duvall's 18 year old daughter. Hours after he was seized by the mob no definite word as to his fate had come, though there were numerous reports that he had been lynched. At Drew, a crowd came in from the hunt and said Shepherd had escaped from the mob, but most residents of that town took it to mean he had been lynched.

Shepherd hail been hunted since last Friday morning when Mrs. Duvall discovered that her husband had been stabbed and beaten to death and her daughter kidnaped and when the young woman stumbled into a prison camp Saturday morning with a story of mistreatment at Shepherd's hands the number of men seeking him increased, and authorities redoubled efforts to find him.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 31—(AP)—The telephone operator at Lombardy, Miss., told the Associated Press at 7 o'clock tonight that a mob of 1,000 men were burning Charley Shepherd, Negro alleged murderer-abductor at the stake two or three miles from town.

TRIBUTE TO BRAVERY OF SERGT. JOSEPH SPEL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—As a tribute to his bravery in seven World war battles and almost 30 years of army service, Staff Sergt. Joseph Spel was followed to his grave in Arlington National cemetery today by four generals and two line officers in whose ranks he had fought and who considered him a comrade.

The colors of the 18th Infantry, under which Spel had fought and which had been sent from regimental headquarters at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., were followed by high army officers who had been with the First division in France and who acted as honorary pallbearers.

They were Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, now chief of staff and commander of the division in the war; Maj. Gen. B. Frank Cheatham, quartermaster-general; Brig. Gen. Campbell King, assistant chief of staff for personnel; Brig. Gen. Frank Parker, assistant chief staff for operations and training; Col. Hjalmar Erickson retired, formerly commander of the First brigade, and Maj. A. M. Patch, formerly lieutenant-colonel of the 18th Infantry, of which Spel was sergeant of Company L during the war.

Had Spel lived a few weeks longer he would have been eligible to retirement after 30 years' service, but he died on Christmas eve in the post hospital at Fort Totten, N. Y.

AWAIT HOOVER'S VIEWS ON FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Enactment of farm relief legislation at this session of congress will require a positive, public declaration by Herbert Hoover for the McNary measure now before the senate in the opinion of congressional leaders.

Without definite word from the president-elect, it is the consensus at the capitol that one of the reasons for Mr. Hoover's change in plans and his return to Washington was to confer with President Coolidge and republican party leaders about this legislation and the related question of an extra session of congress at the outset of his administration. Mr. Hoover during the campaign promised to call an extra session if the farm problem is not disposed of at the present congress.

Little hope, however, for a declaration by the president-elect on the McNary measure is held out, although in some circles it is thought such a view might come through President Coolidge. The measure has received the endorsement of Mr. Coolidge's administration.

MONDAY WAS A GOOD DAY FOR KING GEORGE

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The large array of doctors again in consultation today at Buckingham palace over the condition of King George tended to keep public feeling in anxious suspense. There were six physicians, exclusive of the two ultra-violet ray experts.

The medical bulletin tonight, however, was on the whole, of a favorable character. It read: "The king had a good day. There is no change in the conditions noted this morning. Bacteriological examination shows that the extent and potency of the local infection are diminishing." In addition to the three regular doctors, it was signed by bacteriologist, Whitby, who made the latest and several earlier examinations of his majesty.

OBITUARY

William J. Hendry

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—William J Hendry, warden of the state prison in Charlestown, died today at his home in Charlestown where he had been ill for several months. He was 57 years old. Funeral services will be held at the home at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Through his association with several famous cases, particularly the Sacco-Vanzetti case, he was widely known. He officiated at the execution of the two radicals in 1927. Several other notorious criminals, among them Charles Ponzi, were in his custody as warden.

He was a native of Scotland and had been identified with prison work in Massachusetts since 1893. He was appointed deputy warden at Charlestown in 1915 and warden in 1923.

Dispute Over A Loan Resulted In Killing

Scene Was the Offices of a Bond and Mortgage Company in Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 31—(AP)—A dispute over a loan in the offices of the U. S. Bond and Mortgage company of Georgia, in Atlanta's largest office building, ended today with the death of B. T. Wilkinson, an insurance salesman, and the wounding of C. Graham Green, secretary-treasurer of the bond and mortgage company.

Wilkinson was dead when workers in the Hurt building forced their way into Green's private office. Green lay on the floor, wounded in the arm and side. In a statement to police Green said Wilkinson first shot him, and then turned the gun against his own heart. Wilkinson had three 22 calibre bullet wounds in his chest. Green is expected to recover.

Green, in a statement, said Wilkinson had talked with him about six months ago regarding a loan on property.

"He said the property had been appraised as being worth $6,000, and I told him that if our appraisers fixed such a valuation we would lend him $4,000" the statement read. Appraisal by the bond company fixed the property value at less than $6,000 Green said, and he offered to lend but $2,600.

"He (Wilkinson) immediately became threatening and told me that he was going to make it a personal matter and would kill me on sight" Green asserted, adding that he then did not see Wilkinson until at his office today. The dispute was reopened and then "Wilkinson arose from his chair and said 'I'm going to end the whole thing right here and now.'

"I grappled with him though there was a bullet in my arm and I wrestled him to the floor. There we fought for the gun. It was discharged several times. He finally fought himself free from me and stood up. Then he turned the pistol on himself and fired a shot into his own heart."

Wilkinson had been despondent for several weeks, his widow said.

PROPOSAL BY SOVIET RUSSIA FOR PEACE PACT

MOSCOW, Dec. 31—(AP)—The soviet government today proposed to Poland and Lithuania that pending ratification of the Kellogg renunciation of war pact by all the powers concerned, they agree to sign a protocol giving the pact immediate effect as between themselves.

The note which was handed to the Polish minister by M. Litvinoff, acting commissar for foreign affairs, was published in the Moscow Press today.

Pointing out that Poland and Soviet Russia signed the Kellogg pact and referring to the reservation made by the soviet government in signing that pact and the motive actuating it to adhere to the instrument, the note continues:

"Unfortunately the entrance into effect of the Paris pact is stipulated in Article III by ratification of the fourteen original signers. During the four months that have elapsed since the day of the signing of the pact not one of these fourteen states has given it ratification which circumstance arouses the fear that for a long time the pact may remain a document formally without binding power on anyone. Obviously earlier enforcement of the pact as between individual states is possible only by their signing a special supplementary obligation.

HARTFORD, Dec. 31—(AP)—Court records disclosed today that Mrs. Margaret E. Watkins has been released from the Hartford county jail and that the state expended slightly less than $20,000 to bring her husband, Roger W. Watkins, and his three co-conspirators to justice on the charge of defrauding the public and the state in pursuance of a cleverly manipulated stock swindle involving $500,000 and the names of some of Connecticut's most prominent citizens and officials.

One of the principal items in the cost sheet disclosed by the court records is that the Pinkerton detective agency received $8,013.77 for its investigation and assistance to the state's attorney's office, $3,508.71 of which was taxed as costs on the June term of the court and $4,505.06 of which was taxed to the September term of the court. The accounting firm of Hadfield, Rothwell & Soule, of Hartford, which did the accounting work in connection with the investigation, received $2,500 for its work between Sept. 20 and Oct. 21, with the Vermont Marble Co. of this city, and had left just before Christmas to bring his family to Peterborough. He was expected back to work immediately after the New Year.

He was employed as marble worker and cutter, and prior to coming here was connected with the head office of the company in Vermont.

The car was picked up on the fender of the speeding train and carried for half a mile along the track. A witness said the automobile was traveling about 15 miles an hour when the crash occurred. The engineer reported that he did not see the car until it was on the track.

The Call of the New Year

Quit you like men, be strong;
There's a burden to bear,
There's a grief to share;
There's a heart that breaks 'neath a load of care—
But fare you forth with a song.

Quit you like men, be strong;
There's a battle to fight,
There's a wrong to right,
There's a God who blesses the good with might—
So fare you forth with a song.

Quit you like men, be strong;
There's a work to do,
There's a world to make new;
There's a call for men who are brave and true—
On, on—with a song.

Quit you like men, be strong;
There's a year of grace,
There's a God to face,
There's another heat in the great world race.
Speed! speed with a song.

8 Dead In Grade Crossing Accident

All Were Instantly Killed When Auto Was Struck by Train Near Kingston, Ont.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 31—(AP)—Two families, one of six and the other of two persons, were instantly killed when their automobile was struck by a Canadian National railways train at a crossing at Cataraqui, near here.

The dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis and their four children and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rivet of Cornwall.

AUTO WAS CARRIED FOR HALF A MILE ALONG TRACK

TO CONSIDER CASE OF "MORAL MURDERER"

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 31—(AP)—The Stark county grand jury next Monday will be called to consider the case of Wilbur O. Heldman alleged "moral murderer" of his pretty 21 year old wife Margaret.

Heldman was bound over to the grand jury without bond today by Justice of the Peace Donald Smyth after a preliminary hearing at which the state presented its evidence against Heldman and read the 27 year old Lorain, Ohio, furnace salesman's story of how his wife took her own life after confessing to him that she killed Verard E. Fearn, Canton coal dealer.

Heldman brought his wife, dying from a bullet wound in her heart, to Sheriff Ed Gibson the night of Dec. 13. He said she shot herself when they had reached the outskirts of Canton after driving from their home at Lorain.

For the first time, Prosecutor Henry W. Harter Jr., made public the text of Heldman's statement to county authorities. Heldman, the statement said, told his wife that the authorities would send her to the electric chair, "for that is what you deserve," when she asked what would be done to her for slaying Fearn, while they were driving to Canton.

'28 BETTER BUSINESS YEAR IN NEW ENGLAND THAN '27

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Business conditions in New England during the closing months of 1928 reflected "a more satisfactory situation" than during the latter part of 1927, the Federal Reserve bank of Boston reported today in its monthly review of industrial and financial conditions in the New England district.

"Practically all lines of industry in New England have been reporting activity which was greater than that of the corresponding periods a year ago," the review said, "and it seems evident that New England business will enter the year 1929 at a rate of activity higher than a year ago."

A 15 FOOT FALL FROM TREE MAY PROVE FATAL

WALLINGFORD, Dec. 31—(AP)—Falling from the branches of a tree which he had climbed to lop off branches and falling 15 feet to the ground, may cost Nordell Post, 24, his life. He was taken to the New Haven hospital where it was found that he was suffering from a fractured spine and internal injuries. He is in a critical condition and is on the danger list.

WOUNDED WHILE DRIVING UNDER AMERICAN FLAG

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Peshawar northwest frontier province, India, tonight cabled that Mrs. Carol Isaacson was wounded while driving in an automobile under the American flag through the streets of Kabul, Afghanistan. She was on her way to seek shelter in a legation. The wound was slight and now is healing.

Declaring the republicans were about to "move farther in the direction of extreme high tariffs and more severe restrictions on international trade," Representative Cordell Hull, democrat, Tennessee, in a statement, called upon the members of the party in congress to meet this effort with a demand for a downward revision of duties.

BOLIVIA AND PARAGUAY IN AGREEMENT ON PROTOCOL

Announcement Made Last Night by the Special Committee of the Pan-American Conference—Representatives of Five Nations Are to Meet in an Endeavor to Adjust the Differences Between the Two Nations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31— (AP) — Agreement of Bolivia and Paraguay to the terms of a protocol for the settlement of their dispute was announced tonight at the close of a session of the special committee of the Pan-American conference.

The agreement between the two countries was reached three weeks after the outbreak of armed hostilities between the two countries at Fort Vanguardia on the frontier in territory disputed by the two countries.

Under the terms of the protocol, it was said by Dr. Orestes Ferrara of Cuba, representatives of five nations are to meet in an effort to adjust the differences between the two nations.

In the committee meeting, Dr. Eligio Ayala of Paraguay, and Dr. Eduardo Diez De Medina of Bolivia, were said to have agreed with little debate on the countries which are to form the conciliatory council.

It is understood the protocol provides that the countries to be represented on the council must be agreed upon by Bolivia and Paraguay. It then would be up to each of the countries on the council to select its own representatives.

What countries are in mind for the council was not disclosed but Senor Ferrara declared he would insist that the United States be a member. It was tacitly understood that the United States had been agreed upon as a member.

Signing of the protocol will take place in a short ceremony sometime tomorrow. Before that time a corps of state department secretaries will prepare a final draft of the pact. Both Paraguay and Bolivia representatives said they were pleased with the main points of the protocol.

Secretary Kellogg acted as chairman of the special committee, in the absence of Victor M. Maurtua of Peru, who is seriously ill with pneumonia. Besides Dr. Ferrara, other members of the committee were Manuel Foster of Chile, Charles Evans Hughes and S. Gurgel Do Amoral of Brazil.

It is expected that the action of the special committee will be reported to the conference at a plenary session tomorrow.

QUESTION MARK READY FOR ENDURANCE FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31—(AP)—Five army air men and the giant tri-motored Fokker monoplane dubbed the Question Mark were ready here tonight for a New Year's day start on an adventure that will supply the answer to whether man or motor will crack first under the strain of endurance flying.

At 7 a. m. tomorrow the Question Mark is scheduled to take off from the Metropolitan airport, prepared to remain aloft by means of refueling in the air until the three powerful Wright Whirlwind motors or the five men aboard reach the limit of endurance and force a landing.

Major Carl Spatz, flight commander, supervised the final inspection of the big plane and ordered the crew of four others who will fly with him to get a complete rest tonight.

The fliers were confidence that they would exceed the present record of 60 hours and 7 minutes for a refueling flight, held in Belgium, and thought it possible to remain in the air perhaps a week or more.

FAT PEOPLE MAY STAND TROPIC HEAT COMFORTABLY

NEW YORK, December 31— (AP) — Greater comfort of living in heat, possibly even for fat men, was forecast today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Discoveries which promise to aid in acclimating white races to tropic heat were outlined by Dr. L. V. Heilbrunn, of Woods Hole, Mass. He said that these experiments indicate that fat probably is the determining factor in adjustment of human beings to tropical temperatures.

To laymen a significant fact was that the nature of the fat, rather than amount, determines the ease of standing heat.

Experimenting with animals to discover why some stand tropic heat comfortably, while others are killed by such relatively hot weather as 20 degrees above zero, Dr. Heilbrunn said the differences are found in the melting point of fat in the two extremes.

INVESTIGATING CHARGES OF PAYROLL GRAFTING

CHICAGO, Dec. 31—(AP)—Special investigation of charges of payroll grafting in public offices of Chicago and Cook county and continued inquiry into organized crime, vice and gambling was sought today by State's Attorney John A. Swanson, in a petition for an extra grand jury.

Filing of the petition was one of the first important acts of the new state's attorney who took office this month after a victorious campaign based largely on a promise of "cleaning up the county."

It came in the wake of a request by the Citizens' association asking an investigation of the Chicago sanitary district pay rolls, alleged to have peen padded to the extent of several millions of dollars.

VIOLATOR OF LIQUOR LAW GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 31—(AP)—Because she four times had been convicted of selling liquor, Mrs. Etta Mae Miller today was sentenced in circuit court here to life imprisonment in the Detroit house of correction.

A jury composed of eight men and four women deliberated 13 minutes this afternoon and reported it found her an "habitual criminal" as defined by Michigan's new criminal code. Under the michigan's new code a life sentence was mandatory and Judge Charles B. Collingwood immediately pronounced it.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The navy department placed a million dollar order for airplane engines and spare parts with the Pratt & Whitney Co., of Hartford, Conn.

A total of 136 engines was ordered at a cost of $863,980.80, and spare parts to the value of $215,801.40, making a total of $1,079,782.20.

ROOSEVELT TAKES OATH AS GOVERNOR OF N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31—(AP)—Governor-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight took his first oath of office as governor of New York state. The oath, administered at 8:30 o'clock by Irving Lehman, associated judge of the court of appeals, becomes effective at midnight, when Governor Smith's fourth term as executive of the state officially ends.

COOLIDGE FAILED IN HUNT FOR WILD TURKEY

Meanwhile, preparations were being made for an early return to Washington, and a resumption of the duties of the executive office. The president has been enjoying his mid-winter vacation, but feels that with congress reconvening on Thursday he should be back in the national capital sometime the previous day.

The prospect of a wild turkey hunt led Mr. Coolidge to arise this morning before it was fairly light. The night had been spent on board the Coffin yacht, the Zapala, which was docked at the mainland hunting lodge and game preserves of his host and the mists still hung thicker over the marshlands when the president appeared.

Mrs. Coolidge herself was a member of the party which accompanied the chief executive into the woodlands of the game preserve and was as much disappointed as her husband when an hour's hunting failed to produce any game.

Returning to the hunting lodge, the party breakfasted and then reboarded the Zapala and cruised to St. Simons Island, where yesterday they attended church and inspected places of historic interest.

The occasion of today's visit was the dedication of what now is known as the "President Coolidge Oak," on Sea Island, which is seperated from St. Simons by a causeway built for several miles over the salt marshes.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR MRS. NORTHCOTT

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Dec. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott today pleaded guilty to the murder of Walter Collins, one of four boys alleged to have been tortured and slain on the Northcott chicken ranch near here, and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge O. K. Morton in superior court.

The woman, whose son Gordon Stewart Northcott, also is charged with the murders, assumed responsibility for all the killings and attempted to clear her son of any responsibility. She shifted the blame from her son to her husband, Cyrus Northcott, and her grandson, Sanford Clark, young Northcott's chief accuser.

The sentencing of Mrs. Northcott partly untangles the web which ensnared the woman and her son following the exposure of the four murders by Sanford Clark who told Los Angeles officers last September that Young Northcott mistreated the boys before they were put to death. Young Northcott, accused of the murder of Lewis and Nelson Winslow and an unidentified Mexican youth, will go to trial Wednesday here for the alleged slayings according to present court schedules.

SEARCH FOR ABDUCTORS OF 4-YEAR OLD BOY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 31—(AP)—An exhaustive search for an elderly man and a woman was conducted by police here today after a Columbus woman identified a snapshot of four-year old Melvin Horst, of Orrville, missing since Thursday, as the boy she saw in the company of an elderly couple on a street car Saturday.

Charles Horst, of Orrville, grandfather of the missing boy, accompanied by a detective and two deputy marshals came ta Columbus today to aid in the search here.

The Columbus woman who saw the elderly couple and the young boy aboard a street car at the Union station grew suspicious when she noticed the affection which the woman lavished on the boy with whom apparently she was unfamiliar. She attempted to engage the couple in conversation but they were reluctant to talk.

Credence is lent to the kidnaping theory in the belief that young Melvin, son of a laborer, might have been mistaken for the son of a wealthier neighbor.

JOHN COOLIDGE TO BE MAJOR ON GOV. TRUMBULL'S STAFF

HARTFORD, Dec. 31—(AP)—The 1929 legislature, just as soon as it completes its organization a week from Wednesday, will be asked to suspend its rules and rush through an amendment to the militia law that will make John Coolidge eligible to wear a military uniform and the title of major at the governor's ball that night. Governor Trumbull today revealed that he would ask [illegible] action on a proposal to amend [illegible] on his staff for a [illegible] the citizens' military [illegible] and, if the [illegible] exceed [illegible] slave.

STEADY INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS IS OUTLOOK FOR 1929

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMATIC, Dec. 31—The opening of the new year finds Willimantic making steady progress in industry. The larger industries such as the American Thread Company, Rossie Velvet, Holland Silk and Windham Silk companies have been operating on full schedules virtually year-round. Good business has likewise been enjoyed by the smaller concerns including the Vanderman Foundry company.

The community's newest industry, The Willimantic Silk, Inc., is now occupying practically all of No. 2 mill of the former Quidnick-Windham plant on Bridge street in the manufacture of broad silk. With the recent arrival of ten additional looms there are now 50 looms in operation. A warper, winding and quilling machine and a number of accessory machines are in operation. Some 50 hands are now being employed on day and night schedules, two shifts being employed daily.

The concern is following a policy of general growth and has already ordered new machinery to be erected on another floor of the mill. A third floor of the mill will be utilized in the near future by this concern.

The third and fourth floors of No. 1 mill have been entirely redecorated and negotiations are now being pressed with a manufacturer who plans the occupancy of the entire building of four floors. Still another manufacturer will meet with the new industries committee of the chamber of commerce this week to present a plan for taking over one of the three floors in No. 2 mill. These mills with excellent water power, adjoining railroad facilities and outbuildings were purchased by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company within the past year. The mills have been reconditioned in every way to present well-lighted manufacturing space. There still remain some 70,000 square feet of floor space available. This space is offered in whole or in sections at nominal rental with heat, light and power. The mills were formerly the Quidnick-Windham plant which went into bankruptcy during the great cotton depression. When the plant was put on the auction block it was purchased in the interest of the community by Messrs. Aime J. Martineau, William Clark, Ernest P. Chesbro and Samuel Chesbro, the latter subsequently disposing of the mills to the lighting company.

HOPE, COURAGE, CONFIDENCE FOR THE NEW YEAR —MAYOR GATES

Another milestone in our lives has come and another dal will see the opening of a new year. It may be that some, and perhaps all, of us look back on the year that is gone with regrets that we failed to do the best we could, but, after all, we probably did the right thing as it seemed to us then, and if we did we should not mourn over the mistakes of the past, beyond learning the lessons which our mistakes inevitably teach.

Someone, writing on this subject, said that looking back on the past with regret never got anyone anywhere, but that determined resolutions for the future, even when only partially lived up to, do materially help. It is of course true that none of us ever quite live up to our good resolutions, but is it not well to make those resolutions at the beginning of 1929, and try to be our best toward carrying them into effect?

Let us meet the ne wyear with hope and courage and confidence. Let us do the best that is in us for the welfare and prosperity, in every way, of our city and community. And above all else in our personal associations with one another let us remember that a kind heart and a cheerful and friendly disposition do a great deal to make life better and happier, not only for those around us, but also for ourselves.

It is my earnest wish that 1929 may be a year of happiness to all of you, and that it may bring health and prosperity to you and our city, and I sincerely wish you, one and all, a Happy New Year.

CHARLES GATES.
Mayor of the City of Willimantic.

NEW TRADE SCHOOL IS PROVING HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 31—Considered by many to be one of the most valuable assets secured for the town of Windham during the past year is the Willimantic State Trade school which opened last fall and is now in full operation with prospects of healthy growth. At the present time the one exception to the complete curriculum is the class in plumbing. There are 22 names on the waiting list for this class but difficulty has been encountered in securing a qualified instructor. Director O. R. Nyffeler is in hopes however of acquiring one in the near future. The day enrollment of about 80 students is about evenly divided between the classes of carpentry, masonry, including brick-laying, electrical, drafting and painting. The night classes which are held two nights a week with the privilege of attending an extra evening at a drafting class, has an enrollment of 103.

The school is located in the heart of the city in the former Turner mill at the corner of Valley and Bank streets. The mill which was more recently occupied by the Goyer company was purchased by the town from the Willimantic Industrial company for the nominal price of $38,000. Extensive alterations were made to the interior for its use as a trade school at an expense of about $15,000, this expense and the cost being paid by the town. Upon the completion of the work the building was turned over the state which provides the equipment, instructor's salaries, etc.

Elks' New Year Frolic.

The annual New Year's frolic of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, considered the outstanding social event of the year for the lodge was held with an attendance of over 300 members and their lady guests in the home beginning Monday evening and closing at an early morning hour today.

Every detail to make the occasion highly festive had been attended to in the careful preparations of the committee and the frolic went down on the records as the best for all-round merit and enjoyment. The merry-makers danced to music by a talented orchestra under direction of Ralph H. Gibson. A delightful luncheon with turkey sandwiches as the mainstay was served in the rathskeller. The evening was rich with entertainment, novelty stunts and other happy doings. Noise makers and novelties which were distributed served well to complete the picture of merriness with which the party ushered in the new year. There was but one halt in the hilarious proceedings when the 11 o'clock toast to departed members was given. Several of the ladies engaged in a special bowling match, a number of the better halves running up excellent scores. There was also card playing and a radio concert. The event was in charge of a committee composed of Aime J. Martineau, chairman; Ralph B. Gates, Roland B. Jordan, Ralph H. Gibson and Charles H. Palmer. Visiting brothers and their lady guests were greeted by Exalted Ruler and Mrs. Maurice S. Leonard.

Getting Ready for New Industry.

Tradesmen have been engaged for the past several days in preparing the former S. C. S. Fox company on Moulton Court for occupancy by the new Willimantic Metal Screen, Inc., which will manufacture a recently patented window screen invented by J. N. Trombley, formerly of Vermont. The industry is one of the new acquisitions of the city. One of the presses to be used in the work has arrived and a large specially built machine is expected to reach the mill early in January. For the present the first floor will be equipped with machinery but additional space will be taken as business expands.

Mr. Trombley, the inventor and his son, Keith Trombley, who is secretary of the corporation have taken up residence with their families in the former Moses house on the Pleasant Valley Road. The sales force of the concern has been allotted its territory and will start canvassing in the near future, while a group of salesmen who have had previous experience in the screen business are already in the field and have filed several lucrative orders that are to be filled as soon as production is started.

While riding on a small bicycle he had borrowed from his chum Walter, nine year old son of Mrs. Edith Taylor of 67 Park street, was struck and knocked down on Windham road about noon today by a Hudson touring car driven by Mrs. H. S. Utley of 289 Blue Hills avenue, Hartford. The machine was proceeding toward this city and Mrs. Utley stated that she was veering her car gradually to the left in order to pass the bicycle which she saw in the road near the foot of Quercus avenue. As her car reached the intersection the Taylor boy turned sharply to the left with the apparent intention of going into Quercus avenue. The front of the car struck the cycle and the boy was thrown. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in a truck driven by Arthur Keyler of Windham road. An examination showed that there were no fractures, the injuries consisting of bruises about the face and a slight concussion of the brain. Officer Roderick Lariviere investigated the accident and pending further developments Mrs. Utley was notified to appear in police court next Thursday morning. The bicycle which was damaged, was the property of William, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Kenney.

In most all lines of activity New Year's day will be observed as a legal holiday. All manufacturing plants, retail stores affiliated with the Merchants' bureau, banking institutions and schools will close. The Holland Silk and Rossie Velvet plants were also closed today. There will not be any deliveries by either city or rural carriers out of the post office although the delivery windows will be open from 7:30 to 10 a. m. Religious services will be held in the churches with the annual union watch night services at the Methodist church starting at 9 o'clock this evening. During the first hour there was community singing and selections by the Calvary Baptist church choir. Refreshments were served by the Epworth league during the social hour from 10 to 11 o'clock. The final hour of the old year was devoted to consecration and Rev. Frederick C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church delivered a New Year message.

New Year's day masses at St. Mary's church will be celebrated at 5:30, 7, 8, and 9:30 a. m., while at St. Joseph's church they will be at 5:30, 6:30, 8 and 9 o'clock.

The installation of newly elected and appointed officers of Radiant Chapter No. 12, O. E. S., was conducted in Masonic hall Saturday night by Mrs. Abbie Y. Bergmann of Hartford, associated grand matron of the state order. Mrs. Bergman was assisted by Mrs. Minnie Jones, of this city, Grand Adah, acting as marshal, Mrs. Lena Lewis of Hartford, past matron of Hartford chapter, as chaplin and Mrs. Charles H. Beebe of this city as organist.

The officers installed were: Worthy Matron, Miss Gladys Bradley; worthy patron, Edward F. Ellsworth; associate matron, Mrs. Edith M. Phelps; secretary, Mrs. Carrie Lyman; treasurer, Miss Sadie E. Curley; conductress, Miss Louise Thompson; associate conductress, Mrs. Eva Babcock; chaplain, Mrs. Minnie Abernethy; marshal, Mrs. Lily Fletcher; organist, Mrs. Clara Williams; Adah, Mrs. Edith Larkin; Ruth, Mrs. Gladys Mason; Esther, Miss Norman Rathbun; Martha, Mrs. Amelia Welck; Electa, Mrs. Gladys Whittier; warder, Mrs. Vivian Moseley and sentinel, Louis N. Moseley. Mrs. Mary Hallock was appointed chairman of the kitchen committee and Mrs. Louise Bugbee of the dining room committee. Past matron's and past patron's jewels were presented to the retiring worthy matron, Mrs. Viola Houston and the worthy patron, Edward F. Ellsworth. Miss Bradley, in behalf of the officers of 1928 presented an O. E. S. ring to the retiring matron. Out of town guests included Mrs. Ida B. Nixon of Middletown, grand chaplain; Mrs. Carolyn L. Kane of Deep River, grand Ruth; Mrs. Mary E. Stevens of Norwich, grand Martha; Mrs. Charlotte Hope of Uncasville, grand Electa; Mrs. Florence Howes of Springfield, deputy grand matron of Massachusetts and many matrons and patrons from surrounding towns.

JEWETT CITY

A GOOD BUSINESS YEAR IS ENDING FOR BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 31—The big mills and stores in the borough are busy today, with the annual stock-taking and inventories. Costs of manufacture and profits in trade, are being carefully considered. The depreciation items are receiving attention and costs of equipment and overhead are being charged off. For Jewett City figures and investigations are setting forth a year of good business. Markets for manufactured goods have been steady, while counter profits are reported today to have been in excess of 1927.

This borough in all its history never stood upon the threshold of a new year with brighter business prospects than on this first morning of 1929. Business is steady, with much of the textile work booming night and day.

Pay borough tax before Jan. 2nd and prevent being listed as a delinquent. U. E. Jodoin, collector.—adv.

Tulips Have Sprouted.

As a result of continued high temperatures, tulips planted in early fall, in beds in several parts of the borough and intended for spring blooming, are above ground an inch Jan. 1. Under ordinary conditions these fall planted bulks should be frozen in the ground and dormant.

FUNERAL.

Joseph St. Savoir.

Funeral services fr Joseph St. Savoir were held at St. Mary's church Monday morning. Rev. John D. Carey of Voluntown was celebrant of requiem mass, also read the committal service at the grave in St. Mary's cemetery in Lisbon. Mrs. Noel Garand sang for the waiting hymn, Still, Still, With Thee. She also sang Je S'ai Trouve. James Olsen, at the organ played Mendelssohn's funeral march. The bearers were William Howeson, Joseph Bourney, Noe and George Ritchotte. Hourigan Bros. were the funeral directors in charge.

WEDDING.

Maynard-Bakanowski.

Adrian Maynard and Mrs. Caroline Bakanowski were married at St. Mary's church Monday morning, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of the church. The witnesses were Louis J. Bakanowski, the bride's son and his wife. A breakfast was served later at the home of L. J. Bakanowski, in Norwich. Both the bride and groom are well and favorably known in the borough, where friends are extending New Year's felicitations and good wishes.

Gift for Superintendent.

Sunday morning at the session of the Congregational Sunday school, Dr. G. H. Jennings presented Supt. E. L. French, a fountain pen, as a gift from the school. Mr. French has served as superintendent for several years and retired at his own request. He has been deeply interested in the welfare of the school and has done all possible to promote its welfare. He expressed his appreciation for the gift, also for the friendly support he has received from the members of the school and announced himself ready to lend a helping hand now as at any time.

A new paper boy Frank Malek, has taken Bennie Nolle's route. On account of the sad circumstances no one knows every customer, consequently any one overlooked on this route may notify the Bulletin correspondents.

George Sparks and Mr. and Mrs. William J Robertson were in Saxonville, Mass., Sunday to attend the funeral of Leslie Buck. Mr. Sparks, Mrs. Robertson and Mr. Buck were children of the same family.

John Crothers, after eleven weeks of illness at home, was taken to the Backus hospital Monday, for observation and treatment. Neuritis in the arm has failed to respond to treatment satisfactorily, with the result that hospital care was deemed necessary.

CHAPLIN

CHAPPELL-STEVENS MARRIAGE AT BRIDE'S MOME

Eben G. Chappell and Mrs. Flora E. Stevens were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. Stevens, Thursday evening, Rev. Paul B. Sanger, pastor of the Congregational church performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Chappell will reside on a farm on Parish Hill.

FUNERAL.

Henry Eaton.

Henry Eaton, 79, was stricken with a shock about a week ago and failed rapidly until the end, Friday evening, about 7 o'clock, at the home of W. I. Copeland, where he was boarding. He had passed his whole life in town, with the exception of about nine years spent in the west. His funeral was attended Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church vestry. Rev. Paul B. Sanger, pastor of the Congregational church conducted the services. The bearers were Charles B. Russ, Wilfred E. Burdick, Clifford Burdick and Merritt Welch.

WESTMINSTER

HENRY GRAFF INJURED WHEN HORSE STUMBLED

Henry Graff of Westminster is in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, suffering from injuries received Christmas day. Mr. Graff was returning from a neighbor's and when near his home the horse he was riding stumbled in a frozen rut and catapulted Mr. Graff over his head, then fell on him. Mr. Graff was badly cut and bruised and his shoulder was dislocated. After telephoning three doctors, not one of whom could respond immediately, it was decided to rush Mr. Graff to the hospital. He is resting as well as could be expected.

Mrs. Agnes Wood motored to Goshen and called on relatives and friends Wednesday.

PENDLETON HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cottrell, sisters, the Misses Kathe and Cecile Palmer, and sons, Charles, Jr., and George, attended the ordination of the Rev. F. Barnard Chapman. They report a very impressive service. Under the heading of "Personals" The Bulletin reported a short time since that this reverend gentleman was the grandson of the Rev. D. F. Chapman so long a pastor here. There is no known relationship existing between the two. Rev. F. Barnard Chapman is the son of the Rev. Hamilton Chapman, born and raised here, and the grandson of Deacon Edgar F. Chapman, and a great-grandson of Deacon Reuben Chapman. Rev. D. F. Chapman did not belong to this family.

The deaths of Mrs. Thomas Palmer and Miss Amy Gallup, whose funerals were held Saturday and Monday of the past week, remove long-time residents of this place.

Mrs. Thomas Palmer reared a family of ten children, all of whom are living and doing good work in the world. Mrs. Palmer has been a helpless invalid for many years and has borne her great pain and suffering with fortitude. During all these years she has had the devoted care of her daughter, Mrs. Addie Sisson, and her son Frank. Mrs. Palmer is the mother of George Palmer of this place. There was a large attendance at the funeral and beautiful floral offerings.

Miss Amy Gallup, at 85, was as active as girl. She had been a constant attendant at the local church for many years, walking the distance of two and a half miles from her home to the church. For the past few years she has made her home with her niece, Mrs. Walter Congdon, of Sterling, and it was in her home that she passed away after an illness which had originated in a cold of less than a week. Miss Amy on Monday was laid to rest in the Gallup cemetery on the farm owned by the fifth generation of Benjamin Gallup. There were beautiful floral offerings.

Sunday school conducted Christmas exercises and tree at the parsonage Monday evening. Cake and coffee were served to the 35 present.

The 4-H club had a Christmas tree at the parsonage Wednesday evening.

There were Christmas trees in many homes. The school had a tree and exercises Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson are entertaining over the holidays Mrs. Johnson's sisters, Mrs. Arthur Frink of Jewett City and Mrs. George Pierce and children, Arlene, George Jr., and Harold Freeman of Bradford, R. I. Mr and Mrs. Johnson entertained a party of 15 at dinner Christmas day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer and son Marvin entertained a large family party on the holiday.

It is noted that Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. North (Amelia P. Palmer) are celebrating their 25th anniversary at this time. They were married on Christmas day, in 1903.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and sons were dinner guests of Mr. Cottrell's sister on Christmas.

Misses Kittie and Cecile Palmer were guests of Herbert Billings and sister Hallie the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rae and sons, Walter, Jack and Robin, are spending two weeks at their summer home here. They have installed a heating plant in addition to their fine old fireplace.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks are spending some time with Mrs. Brooks' sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milne, and Mrs. Marion Elwell in Dorchester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tennant were Christmas guests of Mrs. Tennant's parents in Pawtucket.

Henry D. Johnson and Charles H. Cottrell, who are members of the American Mechanics, attended the pre-holiday meeting of several thousand in Providence, where, at the request of their leader to contribute 15 or 25 cents for the benefit of the orphans of the order, met with a response running high in the hundreds of dollars.

TOLLAND

MISS HICKS GIVES ORGAN TO HONOR GRANDMOTHER

Those who attended the Federated church Sunday morning had the pleasure of hearing the new organ for the first time. The organ is the gift of Miss Elizabeth Hicks of Tolland and New York, given in honor of her grandmother, Maria Stearns Hicks, who sang in the choir of the Congregational church many years ago. The organ is an Estey with two manuals, pedals, and is an electric instrument. The program Sunday morning was goven by a member of the Estey organ staff, who gave an interpretation of some of the old Christmas carols. A rising vote of thanks was given Miss Hicks for her most generous gift.

The Christmas tree for the members of the Sunday school of the Federated church was held immediately after the church services. The young people gave a very fine program, after which a tree with presents and candy and oranges for all was enjoyed.

Sunday evening a fine service of worship was given. It consisted of "A Japanese Madonna" which was taken very effectively by Mrs. Persion Meacham, and the teacher's part by Mrs. Charles H. Daniels. There were about fifteen others in the cast, closing a fine Christmas program.

Mrs. Berry and daughter, Miss Erva Berry, are spending ten days in New Hampshire and Maine.

Miss Alice E. Hall, a senior at Storrs college, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ernest Hall.

Miss Thelma B. Price, a senior at the University of Vermont, is here for the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sumner Simpson and son, William S. Jr., of New York, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Simpson.

GRISWOLD

Friends of Mrs. Arthur Park are sorry to hear that she is a patient at Backus hospital.

Mrs. Samuel Norman is very comfortable after a serious operation in Hartford hospital.

R. A. Peckham, T. F. Edmond and nephews, Robert, John and Theodore Edmond, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. John O. Peckham in Sterling.

Woodward district pupils gave a fine Christmas program on Thursday, nearly all the children attending. The program was as follows: Song, by school, Santa Claus is Coming; Welcome, Dorothy Geer; Knowing, John Kata; song, Hushabye, Stella Adamovitch, Doris and Grace Fountain and Dorothy Geer; On Christmas Night, Stanley Minsky; The Scoop, Walter Kata and Stanley Rowell; recitation, Louis Fountain; Joy to the World, Harvey Grace, Doris Fountain and Dorothy Geer; Beginning, Harvey Fountain; song, school, Old Santa Claus is a Jolly Man; Christmas in the Heart, Robert Edmond; song, High in the Heavens, Lois Morgan and Marguerite Fountain; How Old is Santa Claus? Stella Adamovitch; Song a Song of Christmas, Louis Fountain and Theodore Edmond; No Stockings to Wear, Doris Fountain; Miss Prime, Lois Morgan; Letter from Santa, Marguerite Fountain; What Does It Mean? Theodore Edmond; Christmas Eve Stockings, Dorothy Geer, Harvey, Grace and Doris Fountain; So Very Small Grace Fountain, Santa Claus was John Edmond. There was a large tree, well decorated and laden with gifts for pupils and teacher. The teacher, Mrs. Idelle Babcock, served cake and candy at the close of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Campbell entrtained on the holiday Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Campbell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Campbell, William Reed and Miss Hill of Coventry, Conn.

ALL SHOULD HAVE PLENTY OF MILK

Bones and Teeth of Children and Adults Need Milk in the Diet

Two famous nutrition authorities emphasize the need of the human body for the calcium and phosphorus found in milk. Children and expectant or nursing mothers should have from three-quarters to one quart of milk a day, according to these authorities, and other adults should have from three-quarters of a pint to a pint of milk a day. These authorities point out that too little calcium in the diet retards bone growth, causes rickets, may result in bone deformities, produces poor quality of teeth and lowers vigor and vitality. Whole milk also is rich in phosphorus.

Unfortunately there are many people who do not like the taste of milk. For all such people, a delicious milk drink should be made.

One mother makes her children eager for milk by giving it to them in milk shakes. "They call one drink a chocolate froth," she says. "I take a level teaspoon of cocoa and 1½ teaspoons of sugar, mix in the bottom of a glass with a few drops of milk until it's smooth, add a drop or two of vanilla flavoring, fill the glass with milk and shake it with an ordinary tin shaker. The youngsters are crazy about it," she goes on to say. "They like it sometimes without the chocolate, just the vanilla and sugar."

Sugar is Nature's ideal flavor. "Help make children drink milk," says an eminent food scientist, "by adding chocolate and sugar." The Sugar Institute.

DANIELSON

NEW YEAR USHERED IN WITH DANCES AND PARTIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 31.—With some of the town's manufacturing plants closed today, others operated, but the New Year observance began to get into its stride early this evening with little to interfere with it from work of any kind. Aside from the public entertainment and diversions, some of these events not starting until midnight, there were many home parties, many groups who motored to nearby cities to join in New Year's eve festivities and various other forms of joyously welcoming the New Year. The prospect today was for a very quiet holiday in Danielson. Business will be almost completely suspended here on the first day of the year. For diversion there will be theatrical attractions and dances.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Sarah A. Woodson

This afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Sarah A. Woodson was held from the home in Brooklyn with funeral services at the Congregational church in that place at 2 o'clock. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church conducted the service, during which Mrs. Victor Smith sang Jesus, Lover of My Soul. The bearers were Eugene Williams, Andrew Taylor, Charles Geer, William Newport, Russell O'Neill and Warner Page. Burial was in the South cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the service.

New Year Observances

Though not approaching the Christmas observances, something will be done to make the New Year holiday notable in the public institutions in this territory. As at Christmas time, there is a large family at the county jail in Brooklyn just now, while about a score are making their home at the town farm near Dayville. It developed today that some generous people had made arrangements to buy New Year's dinners for some of the needy families of Danielson, as also was done at Christmas. Incidentally, the New Year's season here is being marked by the exchange of many pretty cards.

Coroner Halts Investigation

Any further action that Coroner Arthur G. Bill may contemplate in the case involving Anthony Simone will likely await the outcome of the injuries of Fernando Regis of Franklin street, who has been in dangerous condition at the Day Kimball hospital for the past four weeks. Up to the present time no more serious charge than that of reckless driving has been filed against Simone. On this charge he was fined $50 and costs, and appealed to the superior court. If Regis should fail to recover from his injuries, there is the prospect of a more serious charge being lodged against Simone. Simone was operator of a car that struck Regis on a Saturday night four weeks ago and so badly injured him that the young man's recovery has since been a matter of doubt.

Elsewhere in this paper today appear reviews of various phases of manufacturing, commercial and financial activities in the town of Killingly during 1928. As they point out, the year was an average good one. It shows less volume of manufacturing business than during the previous year, this being largely due to the closing of the Connecticut Mills and the Westfield Textile Co. plants, which remain idle as the new year opens. However, a great volume of business was done, prosperity was general and the outlook for 1929 appears to be accepted by the general public as encouraging.

In notices he sent out to members today, President E. B. Wilbur of the Chamber of Commerce, calling the first meeting of the year for the coming week, points out that there is much work to be done during the new year, and this suggests his previously expressed desire to build the town up industrially, as one of the features of this work.

Bay rum continues to go big as a beverage with some hard-boiled gentry who are bound to indulge, whatever the degree of risk. This drink is being purchased in small bottles from stores here that handle it as a legitimate article of trade. It is sold legally, and as the dealers cannot be prosecuted it represents a problem in enforcement very difficult to deal with, no way having yet been found to bring it under control.

Though scores of Danielson people are ill or on the verge of being ill, it is not a matter of record that there are many, if any cases, of influenza, in this community. Grip, however, has claimed many for its own, and the number of persons suffering with colds is much larger than is usual at this time of year. There are those who attribute this to the open winter, and who assert that winters with much snow are more healthy than winters that do not have it.

Many of the Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks were in Putnam this evening for the annual New Year's eve gathering at the lodge rooms. An elaborate program of entertainment was included in tonight's program, including eight acts of vaudeville. A supper was served during the early evening. The members watched the old year out and the New Year in.

The Flagg quartet will play New Year's afternoon at the annual reception and social of the Killingly Woman's club in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church. This New Year's reception has been a fixture for several years, and attracts a large percentage of the membership.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bitgood are spending New Year's in New Bedford with Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Coulter.

At a session of the town court this morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed sentences of 30 days each on two old-timers, no address, arrested Saturday night for having been intoxicated.

A midnight show at the Orpheum theatre tonight and a midnight dance at the state armory were attractions that jointly brought together hundreds of people, many from surrounding towns, to watch the old year out and the New Year in.

Various churches of the borough were represented tonight at the Watch Night service at the Nazarene church, this service lasting until after midnight.

Scores of the new 1929 motor vehicle registrations of Connecticut flashed on cars in Danielson today, and meanwhile other motorists were dashing out to Hartford or down to New London to get new registrations. The 1928 ones were outlawed at midnight tonight, and no driving under them will be permitted New Year's day or thereafter.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldei Lamothe are to spend New Year's with relatives in New Bedford.

The first meeting of the Chamber of Commerce for 1929 is to be held on Tuesday evening of next week. Members have received announcements of the fact.

Representatives of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. were engaged today in taking measurements of buildings in Danielson that are equipped for electric service, in accordance with a recently announced plan having to do with the announcement of a new energy rate.

Rev. William S. Beard of New York is expected to be in attendance next Thursday at the annual meeting of the Westfield Congregational church. Also expected is Rev. Sherrod Soule, D. D., of Hartford.

It appears that all warnings of the borough police against parking cars on the east sidewalk bordering School street between the school grounds and Potter street are futile, and that only arrests and court appearances will stop the practice.

Such a host of coupons have been placed in the big containers located at vantage points in the business section that late comers were crowding them in this afternoon.

Tonight community trees and other holiday electrical illuminations in Danielson and surrounding communities were all aglow, and added to the spirit of New Year.

There were evidences in Danielson as early as this afternoon that there is no shortage of holiday liquor for those who wanted to seek it out. What the quality might be appeared to be of little consequence.

As on Christmas day, the postal force here will have a holiday New Year's. No business will be transacted at the post office with the public, though the lobby will be open and mails will be distributed and despatched as usual. There will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers.

Up to the end of the year, the town of Killingly had escaped without spending a dollar for snow removal so far this winter, though this item of cost has in years gone by run into thousands of dollars during some winter seasons.

As during 1927, Edward McBride has an appointment to the capitol staff at Hartford during the session of the legislature that is to open the coming week.

The Bulletin wishes all of its readers a very happy and prosperous New Year.

PUTNAM

CRIMINAL COURT OPENS HERE ON WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 31.—Judge Newell Jennings will occupy the bench at Putnam Wednesday when the criminal term of Windham county superior court convenes here for the January session. According to the docket which is composed entirely of new cases there are no indications of any decline in crime as 1928 is tossed to the ages. Thirty-seven cases are entered upon the docket to hearings during the January session, the majority of which are for violation of the prohibition act, while the automobile is responsible for the second greatest number listed for trial.

Court will convene Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock and will be adjourned until the following morning at the same hour, because of the holiday.

City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner now co-operating with the state department of health to prevent any possible outbreak of influenza in this section of the state said this morning that he will distribute circulars containing literature instructing the public against the disease that is now raging throughout the nation. Mr. Gardner said he will distribute the circulars in places of public gatherings, schools and at doctors' offices. As stated in this morning's Bulletin, there is no symptoms of the disease present in the city, yet the health official believes all precautions should be taken to guard against any outbreak. The weekly report of the city health officer showed but two cases of measles existing, and both are said to be of a mild nature.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Emily P. W. Wilson.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Emily Paine Winslow Wilson from the home of her son, Leon T. Wilson, at 57 Laurel street. The services were conducted by the Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church, assisted by the Rev. Henry Hodges, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The bearers were Charles A. Paine of Worcester, Mass., a brother of the deceased, Ellery Bartlett of Eastford, Allen Kenyon of Woodstock Valley, Leon T. Wilson, Jr., and Augustus Wilson, all of Putnam. Burial was in the family plot in Grove Street cemetery.

Leon Joseph Amidon, son of Harland P. and Grace (Cruff) Amidon, died at his home in Thompson Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, at the age of four. The youth had been ill by a few days previous to his death. He was born in Thompson on March 4, 1924.

Double Wedding Ceremony.

A very pretty double wedding took place this morning at St. Mary's church when Miss Irene Kennette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Kennette of Smith street was united in marriage with Leonard Beausoliel, and Miss Marie E. Petrin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ovid Petrin of South Meadow street was joined in marriage with Euclid Beausoliel, sons of Mr. and Mrs. David Beausoliel of Sawyer district.

The service was conducted by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church. Each brother witnessed the other's ceremony. As the processional the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by the church organist, Miss Rose Metras. A nuptial high mass was celebrated by Father Bellerose, during which special music for the occasion was rendered by the 9.15 o'clock choir, under the direction of Joseph Belair.

The brides' wedding gowns were of white satin trimmed with duchesse lace and rhinestones, while each wore a tulle veil which was arranged in Juliet cap effect and caught at either side with rhinestones.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the grooms in Sawyer district which was largely attended by the many friends and relatives of the wedded couples.

PUTNAM HAS OUTLOOK FOR FORWARD STRIDES —MAYOR RICHARD

As the year 1928 is drawing to a close and we are about to enter upon the new year 1929 I wish to extend to the citizens of Putnam, members of the common council, heads of the city departments and personnel thereof and all city officials my best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

I wish at this time to express my thanks to the members of the common council and all city officials for the hearty cooperation given me in the administration of the city's affairs.

During the year, 1928, Putnam has forged ahead. Though progress has not been phenomenal, it has been staple with an outlook of making far greater strides in 1929.

Let us not tire in our efforts to forge ahead, though obtaining that which we would aim for, may seem a little remote.

I ask the citizens of Putnam for their cooperation in making the year 1929, one of progress and happiness.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT NEEDED.

In connection with the reviews of the accomplishments of civic organizations in this part of the state and The Bulletin's annual industrial, banking and building survey presented in this issue, Norwich and the other cities and towns must look forward with keen interest for betterment during 1929.

Industrial activities did not go to new records in this end of the state in 1928. There was marked improvement in some, but short time and decreased business in others, although it is worthy of note that in spite of this spotty situation production in many instances held up well and exceeded last year.

Norwich has reason to give its full support to the industrial expansion activities which the chamber of commerce is planning this year. Norwich has added new concerns, but it needs more. Concentration on industrial growth is needed. Not only is there need and room for new ones but attention should be given to those in our midst which would show greater growth under proper encouragement.

Windham county towns have been hard hit by textile depression and losses, but there exists a spirit of determination to overcome them which is most gratifying. Valuable replacements and developments have been made and with more in prospect the situation is far from discouraging.

High spots in building in the past year were in Jewett City and New London, the latter going to a new record for the past ten years.

Banking has been a heavy contributor to the survey's figures in both counties. Bigger business has generally featured both the national and savings banks and the trust companies.

As a business barometer the postoffice seldom fails. The substantial gain reported locally reflects general conditions, but the fact that business might be better and service improved through full patronage of the local office ought not to go unheeded.

The manufacturing advantages of eastern Connecticut cannot get too much emphasis. Water power, water transportation, cheap electricity, two railroad systems and good roads are real attractions for this part of the state and the outlook for 1929 is promising. Bigger and better must still be our motto.

MEXICO'S NEW ORDER.

The republic to the south of the Rio Grande got away from revolutionary activities under the regime of President Calles. It was anticipated that there would be a further extension under a second term for Obregon, but assassination put an end to that.

Nevertheless those who know Emilio Portes Gil see in the new president of Mexico a man who can be depended upon to maintain the type of government of his immediate predecessors and the order which he has recently given indicates that he may even exceed it.

President Portes Gil has ordered that henceforth all rebels who are captured with arms are not to be shot at sunrise following a drumhead court martial, but are to be given a full and fair trial. That is revolutionary for Mexico. It has long since been the practice to deal harshly with opponents. This applied to anyone whose removal was sought for political or revolutionary reasons. It has been the habit in Mexico in years past to let bullets rather than ballots govern. If we read the order of President Portes Gil right the order is to be reversed. It is to be law and order and the government itself will take the lead in encouraging it by insuring to all its opponents a full and fair trial. They will be dealt with according to the laws and not by summary executions.

This is a new order of things which is going to be watched by other nations quite as much as by the people of Mexico. It indicates a marked change on the part of a Mexican president. It is in keeping with examples which have been set by this and other countries and it is in line with the policy which this country has aided Nicaragua in carrying out. When the republics of the western hemisphere fully realize the importance and value of doing things by law rather than by force they will have contributed greatly to their own advancement. President Portes Gil makes an excellent impression by his order. It gives encouragement for further demonstrations of such sound reasoning.

THE LESSON OF WAR DEBTS.

No one needs to look any further than the disastrous effects of the World war, or any way for that matter, to be impressed by the importance of international peace and the need of other understanding that will prevent armed conflicts. Civilization should be able to rise above the methods of barbarians.

War debts are by no means the worst features resulting from international strife, but they stand as long reminders of such folly and urge the settlement of disputes in a manner that will prevent them.

This month the United States treasury has received from the British government over $92,000,000 in payment of principal and interest on the war debt. A little more than a quarter of that sum was for the reduction of principal, the remainder the interest on the debt which now stands at $4,453,000,000. It is almost a billion dollars which Great Britain has paid in interest and on the principal since the debt was funded, but of that amount only $147,000,000 has been on the principal. Thus the interest is almost as stupendous a proposition as the debt itself.

When we stop to think of this heavy burden and the time that will be required to discharge it, there is reason for giving greater attention to such methods as will prevent war. The British debt to this country is only a part of the financial burden resulting from the World war. Other countries are obliged to carry their part, but these burdens fall upon the victorious as well as the defeated. The United States and Great Britain were allies in the war and the debt of the latter arises from the money advanced by the United States for the prosecution of the war.

There are those who insist that these debts should be wiped out, that the United States should give receipted bills to the various nations and show itself big hearted. If that were done it would immediately remove the obligations under which some nations are staggering but it would also eliminate one of the restrictions on war. If war debts can be shaken off that easily there would be no hesitation in running deeply into debt. The knowledge that such debts must be paid lends discouragement rather than encouragement to war. War debts indirectly operate for peace.

GOOD ADVICE.

Because of the many cases of influenza, in its mild or serious form, throughout the country efforts are being made to educate the people in those sections where it has not become epidemic in the common methods of prevention.

Although the disease is not appearing in its severest form it is expected that there will be 15,000 deaths from it throughout the country. But that isn't all. Those who contract it and get over it must experience the unpleasant effects until they recover and there is no telling what the after effects may be. It is therefore a desirable thing to avoid it and at the same time by avoiding it to make it impossible to pass it along to others.

In recognition thereof health authorities, the Red Cross and doctors have offered advice that ought not to go unheeded. They are strong for prevention but they also tell what should be done when the first symptoms of the disease manifest themselves. Even though not in severe form, it is evident that colds which may develop influenza ought not to be neglected. Through early action and the resort to protective measures what might otherwise mean a siege of sickness may be checked in a few days, and certainly it is worthwhile to attend carefully to the little details for the sake of escaping great sickness.

Even though no one likes to give up every time an ache or pain develops, the advice of the health authorities should not be ignored. If it is worth getting when really sick it ought to be worth following for the sake of prevention. Through it a valuable service to others as well as self can be rendered.

THE CRUISER BILL.

This week congress resumes its session following the holiday recess. As at the time of adjournment the question of early action on the Kellogg peace pact and the cruiser bill is uppermost. There is strong demand for the approval of both, but there is also some opposition to the latter, chiefly on the ground that it would nullify the peace treaty if passed.

For the purpose of protesting against this bill there is to be a conference of those opposed at Washington next week. It is arranged with the idea of developing sufficient opposition to defeat the purpose of the unfortunate feature of this conference will be that it will hear only one side of the question. National defense will get little attention.

There isn't any question of the desirability of international peace and the treaty denouncing war, but might cannot be lost of the fact that no country that has signed the treaty has abandoned the right to defend itself against aggression. The United States seeks nothing more. It will continue to insist upon that right and it is simply making provision for the means of making such a defense in case it becomes necessary. We have never gone to war because of the size of our navy in the past and there is no thought of aggression in the construction of cruisers. The treaty isn't expected to interfere with the normal development of the navy and it will be a serious mistake if it is permitted to aid and abet the development of a policy of neglect relative to our first line of defense.

Let us by all means get the full benefit of the anti-war treaty, but don't let us be carried off our feet by the belief that it is going to do the impossible. We hope it will do all that is expected of it, but until that is given a reasonable trial we cannot afford to bask in the shade of decreasing preparedness.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now that we have reached the new year spring cannot be far away.

May it be a happy, healthy, and prosperous new year for every one.

The man on the corner says: Why not adopt the Golden Rule as the guide for the new year?

Probably you can sympathize with those who got too tired Christmas to make any New Year's resolutions.

It isn't so much the character of the new resolutions as it is the way in which you live up to them.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—Senator Bingham is taking his sub-chairmanship of the District of Columbia appropriations committee very seriously and has put in a large amount of the recess in making personal investigations of the needs and the conditions of the district. As a member of the appropriation committee of the senate, Mr. Bingham has just been appointed chairman of the sub-committee having in charge the recommendation of all appropriations necessary for carrying on the district. As the district is governed by congress, instead of by city officials, that means a big job, and Senator Bingham is tremendously interested in it. This week in company with the district commissioners, Mr. Bingham made an extensive trip around the city, looking over the proposed sites for new buildings, the paving of streets, removal of objectionable buildings, etc. Later he went to the penal institutions of the district, including the district workhouse, the reformatory and oth. similar institutions, as he desires to become familiar with the details of the city's needs, before measures concerning them come before congress.

The question of an extra session, and the make-up of the Hoover cabinet have been the two most absorbing matters discussed here this week. Apparently one man's guess is as good as another's in both cases. On the extra session, Speaker Longworth is against and Floor Leader Tilson for a spring session—and each has a long trail of followers; in the senate, Senator Borah stands firmly for the spring session, and Senator Capper, a strong farm bloc leader, is for no extra session, but the passage of a farm relief bill this winter. So is McNary, who framed the bill. And each faction believes their ideas represent those of President-elect Hoover.

Congressman John Q. Tilson still expects an extra session will be called in the spring, to take up farm relief and the matter of revision of tariff. Unquestionably, Colonel Tilson will be one of the first republican leaders to be summoned to meet Mr. Hoover on his return to the United States, for Tilson is known to be warmly in accord with the policies of Mr. Hoover, and moreover is his close personal friend. Colonel Tilson left for New Haven immediately at the close of the last session before the ten-day holiday recess, for, he has never outgrown being Santa Claus to his three children, even though now they are beyond the mythical Santa Claus age.

Christmas and birthdays count for much with the Tilson family and each birthday of the distinguished Connecticut leader is marked by a birthday cake from home with all the candles and again it is a distinct joy to Washington when that event occurs. Tilson would almost as soon lose his office as lose Christmas at home.

Washington is planning a big celebration for New Year's in which not only American customs but foreign customs will mark the day. As usual, the diplomatic corps gave Washington's Christmas a decidedly foreign touch by carrying out the customs of their home countries. Gaily decorated trees, the Christ Child in a manger and quaint customs were seen by passers-by at the splendid embassies and legations that cluster together up in Washington's most exclusive residential section.

The Chilean legation can be well taken as an example on how the Latin republics celebrate here. First comes a solemn feast, or attendance at an early church service to mark Christmas day, but it is on Christmas eve that the foreign world is at its best. The Star of Bethlehem shines over the Christ Child in the manger, but a tree and gifts form a large part of the day's doings. The minister from Panama clings to the traditional manger, and it is in a miniature stable over which shepherds and a brilliant star keep watch. The German embassy furnishes a merry old Kris Kringle, the British the yule log and other countries exemplify their special forms of keeping the Holy eve.

The Polish minister makes the lighting of the tree the special feature. It takes place on Christmas eve, with the first faint ray of the evening star. One of the children kneels at a window, peering out into the darkness, and when the first glimpse of the star can be distinguished, a glad shout goes up, and instantly the tree is ablaze with lights and glistening baubles.

In all diplomatic homes there are Christmas feasts; fish predominates as holding the place of honor a few carry out the American custom of serving turkey or goose, but except Great Britain, roasts of any sort seldom find a place on the Christmas table.

Christmas and New Year's share the glory of home country celebrations typical of the time-honored customs of each nation.

Members of the cabinet, for the most part have large houses here and they, too, observe the day with trees and gifts. Probably Secretary of Labor Davis takes the lead in this, for few others have five youngsters, of a "Christmas tree" age, as have the Davis family. Perhaps, too, the secretary has not forgotten the hardships of his own boyhood, and the splendid home ties that never failed, even through those hardships, when working in an iron mill, helping support the family, just over from "the other side." With scanty means and many mouths to fill, Christmas day was duly celebrated, but it was hard picking to supply the gifts. Maybe the secretary has not forgotten how much Christmas then meant to him, for he now sees to it that not only his own little children, but a lot of other children have the time of their lives when the tree is lighted.

There are five little Davis's, all bearing names beginning with the letter "J." In fact, they are known all over the city as "The Jays." They are James, Jane, Jean, June and Jewell. On holidays they can be seen going around five abreast, dressed in some fancy costume fitting the occasion, bearing gifts to their little neighbors. At night a huge tree brilliantly lighted stands in the sun parlor of the secretary's home, curtains drawn on full height, so the tree may send out good cheer to all who pass that way.

Another member of the cabinet who makes much of Christmas is Postmaster General New, who helps make a merry Christmas for all within hailing distance, and carries out and scatters on the ground big bags of grain for the myriad of birds that take shelter in the splendid trees and that make his suburban home one of the show places of Washington.

Unquestionably Chief Justice Taft takes the place of honor when it comes to family trees. He either has with him at his home here, or sends to his big group of grandchildren elsewhere gifts that go far toward making it a great celebration in the Taft family in all its ramifications.

And every American here celebrates in true American fashion, according to his own standards and opportunity. Coupled with the lighting of an enormous community tree by the president, is the singing of carols on the white house lawn, led by a trained choir of nearly 100, and in which a multitude join. And to all these things the noisy and characteristic whole-hearted celebrations of something like 200,000 Negro residents of the city and the capital of the nation can come pretty near to the right to lay claim of out-doing all other cities in its varied holiday program.

ELLEN GIVES UP.

Frederick Parthmore was unhappy with the unhappiness of frustration; discouraged with the discouragement of repeated failure, and soured with the sourness of wounded vanity. He was an altogether miserable young man.

It was not so much the fact that he had been unable to persuade Ellen Summers to marry him, although that was certainly bad enough. Ellen was the essence of all things desirable, to the mind of Frederick. But it was more than that. It was the distressing and amazing fact that he had not been able even to ask her to marry him!

As a conversationalist, Frederick told himself, he was by no means a dud. And why should he be? A promising young attorney certainly should know how to handle the words and phrases that were the tools of his craft. He was, by the same token, more or less accustomed to orderly thinking, and to directing a discourse into the channels where it belonged. Yet, time after time, he had dismally failed to propose to Ellen, simply because she would not let him say the necessary words.

Take that evening at the Pine Tree Inn, for example. Spring—moonlight—solitude. After a good dinner they sat on the veranda of the roadhouse in complete and soothing comfort. Moreover, they sat close together, in an old-fashioned porch swing hung low on its chains and piled deep with voluminous cushions.

For the better part of two hours Frederick persistently led the conversation up to the point of asking Ellen to marry him. He laid down verbal barrages, advanced under their cover, and was about to take to cold steel when he was routed by the withering machine-gun fire of the girl's tongue. Beaten, disorganized, crushed, he retired and tried another assault. This time he executed a wide flanking movement and advanced stealthily, only to be checked once more. Again, he tore into the attack with no subterfuge and no regard for the cost, and again he was defeated. No matter what he said, she could say more and say it faster. She could out-talk him three sentences to two on his best days.

The worst of it was, Frederick felt sure that if he once broke down her first line of defense and managed to keep her silent for thirty seconds the battle would be won. She could hardly keep from marrying him if he once asked her. She knew that, and being a perverse woman, who wanted to marry Frederick but didn't want to do it just yet, she accepted the only safe plan and kept him from asking her.

Things were becoming desperate. His work was suffering. Something must be done, and done quickly. After considering the problem from every angle he finally decided to try the telephone, hoping to get the proposal out before she had time to stop him.

"Hello," said Ellen's voice. At once Frederick's words tumbled out, literally falling over each other in the rush to get themselves said.

"Ellen this is Fred!" he cried. "Will you marry me? Will you? I've been trying to ask you for months!" A little ripple of laughter greeted him.

"I'm sorry, sir. You must have the wrong number." He banged the receiver back on the hook. He hadn't had the wrong number! That was Ellen, and she had tricked him—beaten him again!

Well, he'd call her up and find out what time he was to call for her that evening. This time she gave him no chance to speak first. She informed him that she had a toothache, and asked to be excused. He extended his sympathy, advised her to see his friend, Dr. Masters, in the morning, and hung up.

An evening spent in solitude yielded many plans, but none that gave even a faint promise of success. He was haggard and ill-tempered when he reached his office late the next morning.

After he had been there only a few minutes he remembered Ellen's toothache and decided to run down the hall to Dr. Masters' office to see if she had called. Dr. Masters' waiting room was empty, and with the familiarity of long acquaintance, Fred gently tapped on the door of the operating room, pushed it open, and glanced inside. Dr. Masters, standing by his chair, called a greeting, grinned and motioned toward his patient.

Frederick, following the doctor's gesture, uttered a sudden cry. While Dr. Masters stood amazed, the young attorney leaped into the room and rushed to the chair.

"Ellen!" he cried. "You've got to listen to me now! You've got to answer me. Will you marry me? Will you?"

Ellen looked up at him with tender eyes, pointed helplessly to the dentists's gag that blocked her mouth, shrugged her shoulders in an admission of defeat, and gently nodded her head.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why We Entered the War.

Mr. Editor: At this season of the year when "peace and good will toward men" is the principal theme, it seems to this writer to be entirely out of place for a correspondent to arouse strife or idle discussion over America's entry into the World war. In Page 4, Col 3, Dec. 29, the "Man Who Talks" writes 'One can hardly believe his eyes as he reads the statement by the Earl of Birkenhead making this fling at the American expeditionary force. There seems to be no adequate reason for the insult to be hurled in a public address at the boys who composed the American expeditionary force. If he (Earl Birkenhead) is correctly reported by the London papers this is what he said: 'When America came into the war, it was not in admiration for us, but because American nationals were being murdered by German submarines. That was the only reason'.

Not a word of disparagement is spoken against American soldiers or even the United States government, the Earl giving the reason why the United States entered the war, a reason which apparently angers the "Man Who Talks" as shown in his latest epistle.

This writer believes that the vast majority of right thinking Americans will freely concede that the American ambassador to Germany at that time, Hon. James W. Gerard, was a true American of high honor and thoroughly acquainted with affairs in the United States and Germany. Mr Gerard enjoyed the confidence of Americans for his absolute honesty and high efficiency in the conduct of the American embassy at Berlin. Now, Mr Editor, please read what Mr. Gerard says in his book entitled "My Four Years in Germany" Page 10 "We are in this war because we were forced into it, because Germany not only murdered our citizens on the high seas, but also filled our country with spies and sought to incite our people to civil war. We were given no opportunity to discuss or negotiate. If we had stayed out and the war had been drawn or won by Germany we should have been attacked."

I think this statement of Mr. Gerard would be sufficient to abolish useless and unprofitable discussion, which, in the long run, engenders strife.

JAME E RINGLAND

Lynchings Decrease.

Mr. Editor: I send you the following concerning lynchings for the past year as compiled by Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research. I find there were 9 persons lynched in 1928. This is 7 less than the number 16 for 1927, 21 less than the number 30 for 1926, 6 less than the number 17 for 1925 and 7 less than the number 16 for 1924. Six of the persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law one from jail and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails.

There were 24 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, 3 of these were in northern states and 21 in southern states. In 23 of the cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In one other instance armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Fourteen white men, 1 white woman and 25 negro men were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 9 persons lynched 8 were Negroes and 1 white (Mexican). The offenses charged were: Murder 2, rape 2, wound men in altercation 2, killing officers of the law 3.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, New Mexico 1, Texas 2.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 — Years Years ago, when he first visited the capitol building, the writer, who professes no knowledge of art, was much impressed by the wall frescos along one corridor of the basement of the senate wing.

The painted panels are crowded with American flora and fauna. Each bird and flower is produced by the painter with exquisite detail that seems to betoken a love of the work. No two panels are the sameffi no two flowers and no two birds alike, yet there are hundreds of both.

When an observer moves around a corner into another corridor the blank panels, painted in solemn tones and with only the decorative framework about them filled in, strike on the eye with something of a shock. Quite evidently, it was the purpose of the artist many years ago to emblazon all the walls with his living colors; but life was too short for the task.

Work of Artist Exile

Like the decorations in the old committee rooms that fill the basement floor of the senate wing, the wall frescos were the work of Constantino Brumidi, an Italian soldier and artist, who spent the last 25 years of his life lovingly lavishing his talent upon his gigantic task. He died in poverty and in 1880 congress appropriated $200 to pay his funeral expenses and also made a belated payment on his contract for the mighty fresco in the capitol dome to aid a destitute daughter in Italy.

Brumidi was a naturalized American as he toiled at the capitol. He came to this country in 1855 to escape vengeance of a minister of state in Rome. As a national guard captain he had refused to order his troops to fire "on the people," the records say, and languished 14 months in prison without charges or trial.

It was this dimly remembered incident of Italian history that brought about the half completed fresco work in the senate wing of the capitol. Brumidi was a marked man already in Rome.

It was to him the pope intrusted restoration of the Rafael frescos in the loggia of the Vatican.

The yellowing old records of the senate include a statement filed by the artist himself that the ceiling of the old agricultural committee room with their elaborate portraits and allegorical presentations of agricultural themes, form the "first specimen of the real fresco to be introduced into America."

Neptune In Strange Place

The artist carried far his idea of dedicating each committee room to its established purpose by the nature of its decorations.

It is a little startling nowadays to look up from the table of the powerful appropriations committee which deals in prosaic matters of dollars and cents and find Neptune and other sea flavored mythological figures filling the arched ceiling panels surrounded by scantily clad ladies riding sea monsters. This room originally was intended for the naval committee, however, and the adjoining room now also part of the appropriations mill and decked with Valley Forge and other army historical scenes of considerable note, was the military committee room.

YOUR HEALTH

COLDS, INFECTIONS, MAY BE PERMANENTLY DAMAGING

Because colds do not usually cause immediate death, they are commonly regarded as of little importance. It is rather unfortunate that colds are regarded so lightly because not only may they become the beginning of serious and fatal illness, but even when these consequences do not immediately follow, colds may do definite and permanent harm especially when they are of frequent occurrence.

It has been truly said that age depends not so much upon the years that pass over one's head as upon the number of colds that pass through one's head.

Colds are infections, with symptoms especially of the respiratory tract. They can and should be avoided. If colds are so common, it is because the majority of us are unfortunately indifferent about them.

The development of cold depends essentially upon two factors: First, contact with an infected individual or the disease germs; and secondly, body resistance.

To avoid colds, you should, therefore, avoid contact with persons who have colds. If this cannot be done, then make certain that your hands, which have come in contact with the infected person, are washed before you use them to carry food to your mouth. Avoid the unnecessary handshake. Avoid using things in common with the person who has a cold.

Body resistance the other factor in avoiding colds, means sane and hygienic living. This means avoidance of undue fatigue or anything that will lower vitality.

Doing your daily dozen" with plenty of fresh air, at least eight hours of sleep with windows open, plain food well chewed, avoidance of overeating and of constipation, the use of plenty of water, avoidance of the overheated room, and avoidance of all excesses—such a regime will go a long way in keeping you free from colds.

Though colds and cold weather go together, cold weather or low temperature is not the cause of colds. Exposure to low temperature will, however, reduce vitality and thus pave the way for the development of a cold. Adequate protection against cold, therefore, is an obvious requirement.

Keeping the feet warm and dry is equally important. Cold drafts, especially when the body is moist and fatigued always favor the development of a cold.

Resistance to colds may be developed by stimulating the skin to quick and effective reaction by cold shower baths. Unless such showers which should be brief in all events, are followed by a prompt warm glow of the skin, they are liable to do harm.

Nasal obstruction also favor the development of colds, and should be dealt with by a competent specialist.

If a cold has developed, stay at home. Clear the bowels. Go to bed and stay there until well again. All cases that develop chills with a rise of temperature above normal should at once be seen by a physician.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Two Disappointed Hunters.

Some folks cannot stand a loss,
Disappointment makes them cross.
—Peter Rabbit.

Reddy Fox was waiting, tense and eager, to see Peter Rabbit come bobbing around the corner of Farmer Brown's barn in the moonlight. He was all ready o spring instantly. But Peter didn't come. Reddy waited only a moment or two. Could it be that Hooty the Owl had caught Peter after all? Hurriedly, Reddy turned the corner of the barn. There perched on the top of the little house of Bowser the Hound, was a big bird. It was Hooty the Owl. But nowhere could Reddy see any sign of Peter Rabbit. It couldn't be that Hooty had swallowed Peter whole. Perhaps he had caught Peter and had dropped him on the other side of the little house of Bowser the Hound.

With all the hair along the shoulders and back of the neck standing on end, Reddy stalked stiffly forward until he was very near the little house of Bowser the Hound. He glared angrily up at Hooty the Owl. "Well," demanded Reddy, "did you get him?"

"What business is it of yours whether or not I got him?" hissed Hooty the Owl.

"It's just this much my business," retored Reddy. "It was I who got Peter Rabbit to come up here."

"That doesn't have anything to do with it," reorted Hooty the Owl. Peter Rabbit belongs to the one who catches him."

Reddy Fox grinned and it was a mean, tantalizing kind of krin. "Then he doesn't belong to you," he declared. "If you had caught him you wouldn't be sitting around waiting here."

Of course, this was true, and Hooty knew it was of no use to pretend it wasn't. "Well," said he as before. "It's no business of yours. If I didn't get him this time I'll get him some other time."

Meanwhile Reddy was looking everywhere for some sign of Peter Rabbit. Where he could have disappeared to was more than Reddy could understand. He couldn't see anything for Peter to have hidden under or behind. It was very mysterious. It was just as if Peter had been swallowed whole, which of course, was something that couldn't happen. Also, it was quite clear to Reddy that Hooty was just as much disappointed as was he himself. The thought came to him that it would be the silliest thing in all the Great World to quarrel over some one that neither one of them had caught. Reddy suddenly sat down and began to grin.

"All right, Hooty," said he. "I agree to that. Peter Rabbit certainly will be yours when you catch him. But you haven't caught and neither have I. We ought to work together. Yes, sir, that's what we ought to do. We ought to help each other, so that one or the other of us will be sure to get him. I don't mind telling you that I was sure of having Peter tonight. I was lying in wait for him and in a moment or two would have him, had you not come along. After he ran toward the barn I couldn't see what became of him. When he didn't appear from around the corner of the barn I thought you had caught him. What became of him?"

Hooty fixed his great, round, fierce yellow eyes on Reddy Fox. "I know what became of him," said he, "but I don't know why I should tell you."

"There's no reason why you should tell me, Brother Hooty," declared Reddy in his pleasantest way. "There is no reason at all. I am just naturally curious, that is all. I wonder if he could have popped into this little house you are sitting on."

"No," said Hooty, "he didn't do that. If you don't believe me, just look in there yourself."

"Did he dodge around the other side of the barn—" asked Reddy.

"No," said Hooty, "he didn't do that."

"Well, then, what did he do?" demanded Reddy.

"He just disappeared," said Hooty.

CHILD TRAINING

WHEN ACCUSATION DOES NOT PAY

PAULINE HERR THOMAS

Eleanor had been asking repeatedly for a little bell—"One like Miss Marx has in school, Mother. Ruth and I want it when we play school."

Mother had promised to get it whenever Eleanor was good, but had failedto do so just as often.

One day Mother and Auntie May were chatting in the kitchen, Mother's place at the sink overlooking next door back yard where Eleanor was playing in the sand box with Baby Louise. Of a sudden she saw Eleanor pick up something and come running indoors with it.

Her suspicions aroused, she said to Eleanor, "What have you there, dear?"

"Oh, Mother," said Eleanor, "see what I found in the street—a bell just like I wanted to play school! It's mine if I found it, isn't it, Mother?" she added, when she saw Mother's face and read the mistrust there and the possibility of refusal.

Now Auntie May had been drying dishes and she had seen all, too. Sensing that Mother was about to accuse Eleanor, she hastily made a decision.

"Why, let's see, Eleanor, dear," she said. "That is a nice little bell you found. I wonder whose it is, don't you? Some little girl will be s sorry to lose it, won't she?"

"But it's mine if I found it," began Eelanor again, persisting in her misrepresentation at the renewed fear of losing the prize.

"Well, of course, if you advertised first like big folk do and din't find the owner, then it would be yours," said Auntie May.

"What's 'advertised,' Auntie May?" asked Eleanor, intrigued in spite of herself.

"Well, one day I found a pretty watch on the street just like I had always wanted; but, I said to myself, 'Now someone has lost this pretty watch and maybe is crying for it, so I won't keep it. I'll ask the man who prints the newspaper "Mr Editor, please print in your paper that I have found a watch and that if anyone has lost it I shall be glad to return it." That's what you call advertising."

"Did anyone come for the watch Auntie May?"

"Yes, a dear little girl came with her mother and they were both so happy because I found it. Wouldn't you like to make the person happy who lost this nice little bell?"

"Yes, Auntie, but we must advertadver—"

"Well, of course, we can't advertise in the paper, but let's do the next best thing. Let's go to every house on the block until we find the owner."

So out they went! Eleanor insisted on trying Baby Louise's house first, at which Auntie May smiled to herself. Of course, Baby Louise gurgled happily over the bell and her mother thanked Eleanor warmly "for returning Baby Louise's bell to her."

After the incident had passed Mother agreed with Auntie that nothing would have been gained by accusing Eleanor, as it had been her first impulse to do.

You may have guessed that the next time Mother came from her shopping there was a bright, new bell for Eleanor.

IN DAY'S NEWS

"RIVER OF GOLD"

The little known Rio de Oro or "River of Gold" region of Sapnish Africa, where neither rivers nor gold exist, was brought into the news limelight recently by the capture and subsequent release of two French airmail pilots by tribesmen of that district. According to a bulletin of the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society, Rio de Oro consists of 400 miles of sandy waste along the northwestern coast of Africa between Capes Bojador and Blanco. It lies directly southwest of Morocco and is the westernmost part of the Sahara desert.

Rio de Oro is Misnomer

"The misnomer 'River of Gold' was received from Portuguese discoverers in 1442," the bulletin continues. "The Portuguese mistook a long indentation on the coast for the estuary of a river and, obtaining some gold dust from the natives, immediately called it 'Rio d'Ouro,' or 'River of Gold,' supposed to be a branch of the Nile river in that part of the continent. After its discovery old maps traced a river on a straight line from Rio de Oro across the Sahara to its confluence with the Nile, somewhere in Nubia. Thus a river was made to flow where no river existed. The Portuguese 'Rio d' Ouro' was changed to Rio de Oro when the Spanish took possession of the territory in 1885.

"Most of Rio de Oro is a sterile and rocky plateau about 1,000 feet high. Near the coast is grown esparto grass, of which paper, cordage and baskets are made. Further inland are oases. Nomad Berbers and Negroes eke a sparse living by raising cattle, sheep and camels. Its climate is dry but not unhealthful, although summer days in Rio de Oro not infrequently reach 120 degrees. Little known and little visited, it is still a land of mystery to the casual student of geography.

Fisheries of Commercial Importance

"The only Spanish colony in the territory is at Villa Cisneros. Here are the headquarters of the fishing industry, Rio de Oro's sole claim to commercial importance. Off its coast are found aslimsah, which weigh from 30 to 80 pounds each, tunny and other large and valuable fish. Cod are found in great numbers, although they do not compare in size and flavor with the cod of Newfoundland and the North sea.

"The fisheries are largely in the hands of Spanish and French fishermen from the Canary Islands, which lie northwest of Rio de Oro. Under these capable fishermen, the industry has progressed by leaps and bounds until it now forms a source of revenue for the Spanish government."

Stories That Recall Others

Forgot.

In one of the stores near the spot where Santa Claus was greeting happy little folk a small boy was crying stormily. Solicitous shoppers stopped to inquire as to the cause of his tears. The five year old between sobs answered: "I-I-I've forgot what I was going to tell Santa Claus I wanted for Christmas."

Not Dissolved.

Little Louise had never seen a fowl dressed. She happened to go into the kitchen where her mother was overlooking the Christmas turkey. There was a good deal of corn left in the turkey's craw, and when Louise saw it she said: "Look at the corn in this turkey's craw that has never dissolved."

One young woman patron of a rummage sale at Provincetown, Mass., recently returned home in great glee. "Wait and see what I found," she exclaimed to her mother as she unwrapped a package. "Just what we have been looking for in the antique shops for years. It's a mate to the candlestick you never could match. There! Isn't that a perfect match?" "It is indeed," mother agreed with a whimsical smile. In fact, it is the same candlestick. I sent it to the sale to get rid of it."

OBITUARY
Mrs. Minnie E. Hill

On Wednesday morning, Dec. 19, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Lewis, in Plainfield, occurred the death of Minnie E. (Handy) Hill. Mrs. Hill had been a partial invalid for a period of about two years and had been seriously ill for the past three months. During that time she remained at the home of her daughter.

Mrs. Hill was born in Packer 61 years ago, and most of her life was spent in Wauregan and Plainfield. She was a member of the Moosup chapter, No. 27, of the Eastern Star, and also belonged to the Central Rebekah lodge, No. 66. She was a member of the Wauregan Congregational church which she joined while living in that village.

Mrs. Hill was the wife of Charles Hill, who survives her. Other members of the family now living are one son, Walter Irving, of Plainfield, and one daughter, Mrs. Harold Lewis, also of Plainfield; four brothers and one sister, Richard A. Handy of Wilsonville, Conn., Linneaus Handy of Springfield, Mass., Elmer A. Handy of Taftville, William E. Handy of San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. Grace A. Montgomery, Central Village.

The funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Lewis, on Friday afternoon, Dec. 21, and burial was in Evergreen cemetery in Central Village. The bearers were Elmer Phillips, Milton Windsor, Harry Cooley, Eugene Currier, Alfred Ashley, Wilfred Lewis. Rev. W. C. Prentiss of the First Congregational church of Plainfield, conducted the service.

Norwich friends are gratified to learn of the advancement of John T. Gleason, son of Mrs. John Gleason, of 77 Seventh street, formerly with the National Biscuit Co. in Norwich, and for the past two years special agent for the company in Providence. Mr Gleason has been made manager of the Manchester, N. H., district for the company.

From Moosup, Rev. Charles S. Nightingale and family have moved to Charlton, Mass., where he is to be pastor of the church. Charlton is a small manufacturing village not far from Southbridge. Mr. Nightingale came to Moosup as pastor of the Baptist church [illegible] recently.

BANQUETS, SOCIALS AND DANCES WELCOME ARRIVAL OF NEW YEAR

The annual New Year's eve frolic and banquet of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, held at the Prospect House, Fitchville, was a decided success, members of the lodge and many guests attending. Special guests were Mayor and Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins and State Supreme Representative Thomas E. Troland of New London. There were 100 couples present.

The hall was beautifully decorated with laurel and streamers and the tables arranged in the shape of a horseshoe were bedecked with roses, carnations and candles. The masters of ceremony at the banquet were Harry Schwartz and Aaron Eifenbein. The menu was:

Pineapple and Cherry Cocktail
Baked Salmon Mashed Potatoes
Pickled Tongue Peas
Noodle Soup Mandles
Half Roast Chicken
Sweet Potatoes Rice Patties
Vegetables
Cookies Cigars
Demi Tasse

There were souvenirs for the ladies and plenty of noisemaking and merrymaking devices were in evidence.

An excellent programme of entertainment was given by the Dion entertainers of New London in cabaret style and the Misses Dempsky, Sullivan, Lorraine and Anna Stockdale of this city also entertained with piano and vocal selections. The Ideal Radio orchestra furnished music for dancing and during the reception.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY AT THE ELKS' HOME

Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks, welcomed the New Year at their home, Main street, by holding a New Year's eve party for the members and their lady friends. The hall was attractively decorated with evergreens, varied colored lights and on a large banner suspended over the stage was the greeting, "A Happy New Year." D'Atri's orchestra gave a fine concert programme from 8 to 9 and also furnished the music for dancing. An excellent supper was served at 10:30, and a delightful programme was presented by a Boston troupe of entertainers. The committee in charge of the successful affair comprised Richard P. Quinn, chairman; Walter E. Turner, secretary; Daniel J. Driscoll, Alexander Finlayson, Harry B. Ford, Philip L. Melady, Charles McIntyre and John E. Wilson.

NUMEROUS DANCES HELD ON NEW YEAR'S EVVE

Numerous public and private dances were held in Norwich and vicinity Monday evening to greet the arrival of the new year. There was a Legion public dance and supper at the Scotland road hall. Dancing was enjoyed from 9 in the evening until 2 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. A dance was also held at the armory under the auspices of Battery B. Music for the dancing, which started at 8:30 o'clock was provided by the Rhode Island Collegiates. A New Year's eve dance was held at the Dew-Drop cusino on the Norwich-Westerly road. Round and square dances were on the programme.

At the Palace theatre there was a midnight show with an augmented orchestra, vaudeville and other attractions.

PROVIDENCE ENTERTAINERS AT MOOSE CELEBRATION

Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., celebrated the arrival of the New Year with a supper and entertainment Monday evening at the Moose home, Laurel Hill avenue. The affair was attended by 300 members. An excellent chicken supper was served in New York style by Chef Hunter and staff, the menu being:

Celery Hearts Spiced Pickles
Roast Chicken
Mashed Potato Mashed Turnips
Creamed Onions
Ice Cream

The master of ceremonies was Bernard Wunderlich and Rudy Krohn was toastmaster. "Charlie Korn" acted as floorwalker and kept everything moving smoothly.

After the banquet a troupe of entertainers from Providence gave a delightful programme of entertainment from midnight to 3 o'clock in the morning. They were called upon repeatedly for encores.

DUWELL CLUB BANQUET WELCOMES NEW YEAR

The Duwell club welcomed the arrival of the new year with a banquet followed by a delightful entertainment programme. Shortly after 9 o'clock Monday evening the large number present enjoyed a roast turkey menu. The programme comprised a mystifying entertainment by Prof. N. Zinavage of Baltic, fire eater and magician. During the evening there were concert programmes by the Venetian Quartette, stringed instruments and by the Duwell orchestra. The grill committee comprised Edward Duro and John Williamson and the entertainment committee, Ellsworth Cramer, Linus Charnetski, John Bowker, Dominick Pedace and William Shanley.

CHAPLIN COUPLE OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

CHAPLIN, Dec. 31—Mr. and Mrs. Winslow B. Gallup, long residents of this place, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage New Year's day. The celebration will take place at the Congregational church vestry. They will receive relatives from 12 o'clock noon until 3 o'clock in the afternoon and refreshments will be served. After dinner addresses will follow. Rev. Paul S. Sanger will be the toastmaster. From 3 to 6 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Gallup will receive their numerous friends in town and from other towns.

Relatives and friends are expected from Hartford, Manchester, Putnam, Danielson, Plainfield, Scotland, Willimantic and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Gallup were married in Canterbury at the home of the bride in North Society, January 1, 1879 by Rev. Lucian Burleigh of Plainfield, a cousin of Mrs. Gallup.

Mr. and Mrs Gallup moved to a Chaplin farm in April of that year and resided there for 45 years. Mr. Gallup sold the farm in 1924 and purchased a home in the village, adjoining the town hall property where they have since lived.

Winslow B. Gallup was born in Canterbury, October 2, 1854. He received his education in the district schools and at Plainfield Academy. In July 1895 he united with the Congregational church in Chaplin, and for 30 years was a deacon of the church. For about 20 years he has been a member of the prudential committee and for many years has been identified with other organizations of the church.

Mr. Gallup is a staunch republican and represented the town in the legislature in 1899. He was for 20 years a member of the board of assessors, and for the last score of years has served on the board of relief. Mr. Gallup traces his ancestry back to Captain John Gallup, who came to this country in 1630, in the ship Elizabeth and John. Mr. Gallup has been the Chaplin correspondent of The Norwich Bulletin for more than a quarter of a century.

Mrs. Chaplin, who before her marriage, was Mary E. Bradford, was born in Canterbury, Sept. 3, 1855, a daughter of John and Jane (Congdon) Bradford, and traces her ancestry back to Governor Bradford who came to the new world in the Mayflower. She received her education in the district school in North Society and at Plainfield Academy.

Previous to her marriage she taught school for several years in the North Society, Gay Head, Frost and Hyde street districts in Canterbury. Mrs. Gallup united with the Congregational church in Chaplin at the time Mr. Gallup united with the church in July 1893. She has since been a loyal worker in all the church organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallup became acquainted while attending the Plainfield academy in 1873-74. They are members of the Plainfield Academy Alumni association and have attended every gathering of the association.

WON'T SUPPORT WIFE, IS SENT TO JAIL

Frank Ritacco, 23, who has been living in Westerly, charged with non-support, was presented in the city court Monday morning, and on his absolute refusal to support his wife was sentenced to serve three months in jail. Ritacco was married about three months ago and since then has only given his wife $25. His wife has been living with relatives in this city, and he has been living in Westerly.

LIQUOR CASES ARE CONTINUED TO JAN. 5

The cases of Thomas Smith, 28, Italian, of Cove street, and George Lee, colored, of Forest street, were continued to Jan. 5 in the city court Monday morning at the request of counsel. They were arrested Saturday night after their respective places were raided by local police. They are charged with violation of the liquor law and are out on bonds of $1,000 each. An alleged actual sale was secured at each place.

SHOULD APPLY EFFORT IN PROGRESSIVE LINES —MAYOR ROBBINS

The first efforts to establish a community in this locality date back to the year 1659. After 270 years of normal healthy growth, Norwich is at the threshhold of a new year. What has been achieved by our citizens in the years gone toward making this city comfortable and profitable to live in accumulates at the dawn of 1929 in the form of stable improvements, experience and courage. The past supplies the foundation upon which we stand to meet the future, as well as it furnishes an example and inspiration for even greater accomplishment.

By virtue of its rich physical and moral heritage, Norwich welcomes another year as the medium through which civic betterment may be furthered and its traditions upheld.

Motion is necessary to sustain existence in all living things but action does not necessarily result in progress. Norwich must do more than maintain itself if it will keep pace with fleeting time. The present age is an exacting one upon municipalities. A city advances or declines according to the thoroughness with which it supplies modern demands. United effort is more essential than ever to achieve anything substantial.

The new year beckons us on.

The confidence we have together with the opportunity now present should prove sufficient to stimulate energetic application along progressive lines.

My best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year are extended to all.

LEE R. ROBBINS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE AT BALTIC M. E. CHURCH

The Quest for the Desert was the topic of the message given by Rev. Harvey H. Conklin at the watch night service held Monday night at the Baltic Methodist Episcopal church. Taking his text from Mark; 6-31, Rev. Mr. Conklin said in part;

Mankind after the day's toil longs for a quiet place where he can rest. Fatigue is a safety device to keep nature within its limits. It warns us long before we are completely exhausted. Nature always has had its friendly allies when needed, and we assume, when spiritual fatigue warns, that the quest for the quiet place will not be left unsatisfied. Tradition made resolutions, but why not insist upon reality?

Intuition teaches that the quiet place is needed not only after fatigue has signaled, but when joy captivates intelligence. Such experiences are so often ignored that life's potentialities are subverted. The glow and the glory of the present so completely disarranges purpose that the future is a mockish assurity.

Jesus understood that His disciples had come to a place, in their experience, where a quiet retrospective was needed. He arose in the emergency, and said, "Come, apart to a desert place and rest awhile." I am sure that He has the same interest in the people of this generation. He says to those who have heart aches, back aches, and to those who find the day long and weary, and to those who find the day's toil hard, "Come, apart to a desert place and rest awhile."

The day's toil has been long. Another day's work summons us to our task before the aches, the strains and blisters of yesterday's toil have healed. The clock summons us to our task when our bodies and minds sigh for relaxation. Industry to meet competition rushes on, and man, almost a part of the machine which he operates, must rush to meet the ravishing demands of a savage competition. You, who toil in the mill, as most of you do, with its noise and with its ceaseless roar of machinery, doing the same thing over and over again, following the thread until it is woven in the cloth, sigh and long for rest. So it is today's toil begins where yesterday's left off, and tomorrow's begins where today's ends.

Thus on through life we pass; some bearing great loads and some small loads, each bearing his burden not conscious that he is bearing the burden of his own cross. Those who feel the strain, the weariness and heartbreaken of living are invited to cast their burdens upon the Great Burden Bearer. The consciousness of His presence lessens the strain and lightens the burden.

The disciples had gone out two by two on their first missionary tour, and like delighted children were telling their Master how successful they had been. In Luke we have a more detailed report concerning this missionary tour. Christ said to them, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." We understand this to mean the fall of the "Kingdom of Darkness," and its personnal weakens and falls before the spiritual onset of Christ's successful disciples. In the same sense of the word we may call the whole inner life of Jesus a continuous discomfiture of the Kingdom of Darkness. He also gave His disciples to understand that they were not deceived, for He was with them. This is not an isolated vision, but a spiritual intuition of the God-man, before whom even the secrets of the world of spirits are discovered and lay open.

At the very climax of the spiritual acceleration, the Master said, "Come apart into a desert place and rest awhile." He suggests, get away from self-seeking and pride. Rejoice, rather in the fact that you are worthy of this great work.

Can you imagine such an experience? The disciples at the very apex of their aspirations. The evidence of their achievement fresh in their memories. The clamoring multitude insisting that their Master do the very thing which was their soul ambition. It was clear that they had gone about doing good.

Is it not this where so many fail? So completely overcome by the good accomplished, that the best is not recognized in the presence of the good, or still a greater tragedy is the lack of courage to leave the glory of the good and explore the uncertain in quest of the best. The mountain climber cannot stride from summit to summit, but must descend into the valley before he can ascend to the highest peak. It is the valley experience that is most feared.

The desert place is where there is not much vegetation, some rocks and plenty of sand. A place that is unattractive and uninviting, such a place as where John the Baptist began his ministry. A place similar to where Moses fled; the pathway of the Israelite refugees, whose lacerations inflicted by the cruel Egyptians awaken Moses to his sense of duty until the ground upon which he stood became holy ground. Similar to the place where Jacob slept the first night, after robbing Esau of his birth-right, and in a dream saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven, and angels descending and ascending. He declared, upon awakening, "God is in this place." Hezekiah, king of Israel, while on his sick bed, seeking solitude turned his face to the wall away from the noise and cares of the kingdom and prayed. Oh, that this age might find a desert place in the midst of this busy age to which it might go and meet the Master.

It is not a New Year's resolution that is needed, but the consciousness of reality. A place made holy because we have discovered the depth of our spiritual life, and our depth urges us to our task until we are conscious that we stand upon holy ground.

We talk about the Holy land, a place a trifle larger then the state of New Hampshire. There are larger and more attractive lakes in New England then the Sea of Galilee, and our Connecticut river is far larger then the great Jordan. The Shetucket river is wider and three times deeper then Jordan. Our hills and fertile valleys are just as beautiful and productive as the hills and valleys of the Holy Land. We know that it was not the land with its beautiful hills, its fertile valleys, its magnificent rivers and seas that gave the Holy Land its name, but it was the presence of Christ that made the land holy.

It is His presence here this evening that makes this a sanctified place. He says to us, "come away from the noise and strife of your every day life and commune with me. "Come!" live again with those sacred memories which have strengthened the soul and lengthened possibility. "Come!" live again with those experiences which have been the leven of Christian life. Come, for He is not parsimonious; He has turned the desert place in many a life into a sanctuary.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO SPEND MILLIONS

The New Haven railroad proposes to spend a total of $3,497,812.50 for new equipment, according to the terms of an application made to the interstate commerce commission, which has just granted the carrier permission to assume obligation and liability in the form of $2,610,000 of equipment trust certificates.

The largest item of proposed expenditure for new rolling stock is one of $2,195,580 for 1,591 steel underframe box cars, each costing $1,380. Next in importance is an item of $875,280 for the purchase of 20 multiple unit steel passenger train motor cars, each of which will cost $43,764.

Other items are 95 steel underframe caboose cars, each $2,380 a total of $226,100; 25 steel underframe flanger cars at $2,500 per car, $62,500; 25 steel underframe milk cars at $2,616.10 per car, $65,402.50; and 10 steel transformers at $7,305, $73,050. The New England Car company as vender, will procure the equipment from the builders and enter into an agreement with the Second National Bank of New Haven, as trustee, and the applicant creating the New Haven railroad equipment trust of 1928 and will sell and deliver the equipment to the trustee. The agreement will provide for the lease of the equipment by the trustee to the road and the issue by the trustee of trust certificates of an aggregate par value not exceeding $2,610,000.

The trust certificates will be dated Dec. 15, 1928, will mature in 30 equal semi-annual installments of $87,000 June 15 and Dec. 15 in each of the years from 1929 to 1943, inclusive, will be in the denomination of $1,000, payable to bearer or registrable as to principal and will have dividend warrants attached entitled the holder to dividends at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually June 15 and Dec. 15 in each year.

The lease of equipment between the trustee and the road will be dated Dec. 15, 1928, and will provide that the lessee shall pay to the lessor (A) as advance rental such amount or amounts as may be necessary to meet that portion of the cost of the trust equipment not provided for by the proceeds of the certificates, (B) all necessary and reasonable expenses of the trust and lease, (C) any and all taxes, assessments, and governmental charges upon the income or property of the trust, (D) the dividend warrants, when they become payable, and (E) $87,000 June 15 and Dec. 15 in each of the years from 1929 to 1943, inclusive. Title to the trust equipment will remain in the trustee until all obligations under the lease have been fully performed, whereupon it will be transferred to the railroad.

The New Haven proposes to acquire the trust certificates at par and accrued dividends and hold them in its treasury until market conditions are more favorable. The certificates then will be sold, subject to approval of the interstate commerce commission, under competitive bidding.

DUWELLS WERE MOST ACTIVE CLUB IN ATHLETICS DURING THE YEAR

An inventory of the accomplishments of the Duwell Athletic association for the year of 1928 from both a community standpoint and that of athletic achievement reveals one of the most successful seasons that the organization has enjoyed since it was re-organized in 1924. The respect held for the budding organization in circles outside of the city and state is evidenced through the fact that since the state A. A. U. scandal early in the year it has been one of the few bodies in Connecticut recognized by the National body of the A. A. U. as purely legitemate from an amateur standpoint. In view of this point the Duwells have been the only ones in the state allowed to conduct amateur boxing under A. A. U. sanction.

While amateur boxing has been the principal avenue of revenue for the Duwell club the organization has accomplished considerable in other branches of sport as well as community welfare. The outstanding events of the past year were the third annual road race on Memorial day.

JOE JACKSON

the Junior Twilight league, the motor boat race on the Thames on September 22 community barrel burning on Thanksgiving night and the fourth annual Christmas party at the Palace theater on December 23. The success of each of these five events is a matter of history but the prestege gained here and elsewhere through these successes is gradually elevating the Duwell A. A. to the level of other prominent organizations of its kind in the east.

The annual road race on Memorial day, which incidentally was won by Cyril Hill of Newark, New Jersey, brought to Norwich a field of 78 athletes, the cream of American long distance runners. Included in the field of starters were athletes from 27 different cities in five states, Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Jersey.

The Junior Twilight league, the second of the more prominent projects sponsored by the Duwell club was composed of six teams. Each team was backed by a responsible organization and afforded the younger blood of the city and vicinity an opportunity to take part in well dicated competition. The organizations represented in the league were the Rotary club, Y. M. C. A., Elks, Duwell A. A., Taftville American Legion adn Jewett City American Legion. The net receipts of the league were used to take the winning team, Taftville Legionaires, to New York city where they were the guests of the New York Yankees.

Although entirely new to the local organization, motor boating was taken up during the latter part of September and eventually a race was staged on the Thames. Nearly fifteen boats from New London, Groton, New Haven, Hartford, Westerly and Norwich took part in the 35 mile run between Norwich and Southwest Light, off Ocean Beach, and return, negotiating the distance with small speed boats driven by outboard motors.

Community barrell burning another project that was new to the Duwells attracted considerable attention on Thanksgiving night, hundreds of people turning out in the various sections of the city to witness the burning of over 200 barrels that were strung up on the site overlooking the Shetucket, known as Edwards Hill. The final and probably most notable of the Duwell activities was the Christmas party at the Palace theater on December 23. On this occasion about 100 children together with several hundred adults jammed the theater and were rewarded with a well balanced program of entertainment as well as a personal visit from Santa Claus. Each of the children were presented with gifts in the nature of candy, fruit and cookies.

As was previously mentioned the Duwells staged a number of boxing shows, both indoors and outdoors with remarkable success. With the exception of one show, the final one, each was a financial success bringing to the Duwells money with which to finance their other projects. The Duwell bouts brought to Norwich some of the best boxers in the east and afforded considerable sport to followers of that particular branch. The total number of shows were eight.

In addition to sponsoring various projects the Duwells took active part in competition in various parts of the state. The distance team composed of boys in the vicinity ran in Portchester, Norwich, Westerly, South Manchester, New Britain, New Haven, Hartford, Storrs college and East Portchester. Track teams were entered in the police field meet at New Haven and the state meet at New Britain. Although the local boys did not win prizes in all of their attempts they did very well, gaining experience that will be of considerable value to them in competition the coming year. Joseph Jackson, a member of the local track team managed to cling to the 100 yard dash championship that he won two years ago.

The Duwells landed another state championship in the boxing field through the efforts of Jimmy Quinn, Greeneville featherweight. Quinn after winning the title at New Haven late in March was brought to Boston, Mass., where he competed in trials for the Olympic team. As far as is known he was the first Norwich boy ever to try out for the highest honors in American amateur competition.

The athletic field in the East Side known as the Duwell field was maintained throughout the season at what might be considered an enormous expense.

With one year hardly out of the way, the Duwells have begun to plan for 1929. During the coming year it is expected that they well accomplish even more than they did in the past 12 months.

COLLEGE TEAMS ABOUT EVEN FOR TODAY'S BIG CLASSIC

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 31—(AP)—On the eve of football classic between Georgia Tech's powerful aggregation and California's dangerous eleven, the pendulum of betting odds, which has hovered persistently on the side of the westerners, wavered between even money and slight odds for the southerners.

The southward trend of the favoring odds was explained by close followers of the climaxing contest of the gridiron season as having been brought about by the insistence on the part of eastern and southern football scriveners that the Golden Tornado will sweep in its customary fury and gather in all the touchdowns and other point collecting devices to deposit them on its end of the greensward.

Coach Clarence "Nibs" Price has thrown all possible emphasis in his statement that the Golden Bears caught "even a tornado from the south." He declared that his team to a man is ready and fit for the contest. This followed whisperings that his two practice sessions a day had sapped the vitality of his gridsters.

The Georgia Tech mentor, Bill Alexander, likewise minced no words in voicing his opinion regarding the condition of his aggregation and their determination to continue the south's good record in the way of tournament victories. He said that California weather would have little or no effect on his players.

There was no practice for either eleven today. Officials of the tournament of roses predicted that the few remaining tickets for the game would be taken long before the opening whistle sounded tomorrow

BOSTON COUNCIL TABLES BRAVES' APPLICATION

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The Boston city council, meeting in executive session this afternoon, voted unanimously to table until a later date an application filed by the Boston National league baseball club for permission to play in this city on Sundays.

The filing of the application was a result of the recent acceptance by the city council of the state law permitting professional Sunday sports, passed by referendum at the state election.

While the city council was engaged in consideration of the Braves' application this afternoon, the Boston finance commission was in executive session, questioning witnesses in an effort to bring out the facts behind a statement made last week by Charles F. Adams, vice-president of the Braves and Adams, after the city council had delayed twice in taking action on the Sunday sports measure, issued a statement in which he intimated that an unnamed city councilor had solicited a bribe for early action in the measure. Summoned before the finance commission to amplify his charge he at first denied the authority of the commission to question him but later was ordered by the supreme court to submit to examination. He will be heard on Wednesday.

HARVARD TO ANNOUNCE COACHING PLANS THIS MONTH

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Assurances that the Harvard varsity football coaching problem would be settled by January 11, the date of the Harvard club's dinner to the football team, were contained in the announcements sent out today by the committee in charge of the affair.

"An important announcement will be made by the athletic commission relative to the plans for coaching next fall," the advance notices promised.

This indicated to persons close to Harvard athletics that Athletic Director W. J. Bingham would definitely state whether or not Arnold Horween was willing to return as head coach.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH WHIRLWINDS WEDNESDAY

At the Plainfield Community house on Wednesday evening the Plainfield Pros clash with the Boston Whirlwinds for the second time this season. In the first encounter earlier in the season the Pros hung a defeat on the Whirlwinds in one of the fastest games of the current season. The Boston outfit which has never lost a series to the Plainfield club is out to even the count for the season on Wednesday evening. Fans who have seen these two clubs in action against each other know that some mighty good basketball will be played at the Plainfield floor tomorrow night.

TWO FOOTBALL GAMES IN BOSTON SECTION TODAY

BOSTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The west coast is not the only place in America where football will be played on New Year's day.

Two games have been scheduled in the vicinity of Boston, one between the Salem school and the Beverely high alumni at Salem and the other at nearby Quincy, where the Weymouth A. C. eleven was slated to meet a team of all star semi-professional players selected by a Quincy newspaper.

BEING GROOMED TO TAKE PART IN CHECKER TOURNEY

Jabez Bailey, Fitchville's most ardent devotee of the checker board, is being groomed by Jack Sweeney and others to participate in the annual Eastern Connecticut Checker tourney. The Fitchville contingent is banking heavily on Mr. Bailey to bring the title to the home town. To date Mr. Bailey has defeated decisively all the Fitchville checker hounds with the exception of Pat Sullivan whom he held to a draw. The odds favor Mr. Bailey to win from Sullivan in the next try.

AGGIES COURT LEADER WILL NOT PLAY A GAME

STORRS, Dec. 31—(AP)—Connecticut Aggies basketball team will have to finish the season out without the services of their leader, Captain Henry Schildgren, as today in practice he dislocated his shoulder. The shoulder injury is one that has bothered the star of the Aggies hoop squad and marked the third time this year that he has suffered the same trouble. Schildgren was elected captain of this year's basketball team at the finish of last season, when he was regarded as one of the best guards in New England basketball circles.

Several years ago a live tiger caught in northern Manchuria brought $100; now it will bring over $2,000.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Their games are played on city property where no charge can be made.

Buddy Myer, Washington Senator infielder, broke his nose six times while playing basketball for Mississippi A. and M. college.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Nineteen-twenty-eight, taking the long count last night gives way to a new year that promises a lot of light and fancy footwork all along the line of sports activity.

Some of it will be on the gridiron, where Georgia Tech steps out tomorrow in an effort to halt the California rush. The fleet Paavo Nurmi will add an artistic touch later. So will Jack Sharkey and Stribling, and possibly Jack Dempsey, although the Manassa Mauler's footwork is not what it used to be.

Big Bill Tilden still can cover a lot of court, if the U. S. L. T. A. will let him and Bobby Jones will roam over considerable territory with the features of his 1929 campaign booked for New York and California links.

Rogers Hornsby will do his cavorting around the infield for the Chicago Cubs for a change, and the manifestations of footwork in the new Pyle bunion derby will be on exhibition all the way from New York to somewhere in the far west.

Except for a few sorties here and there, such as a golf invasion of England and a tennis jaunt to France even if there isn't much prospect of success, Uncle Sam's athletic talent will spend most of its time on home soil in 1929. Nurmi, Paulino, Heeney, Lacoste, Cochet and a few others will add the international touch here and there but the prospect generally in sports for the New Year resembles an old home week.

Baseball—A big drive on the Yankee fortress, led by the Athletics, Browns and Tigers, as well as another hot pennant fight in the National league, with the Giants and Cubs fortified by Hornsby, as the likely pre-season choices.

Boxing—Another and final comeback by the old sock artist, Jack Dempsey, in a New York climax to the heavyweight show that has its first act in Miami Beach, with Stribling and Sharkey as the principals.

Golf—Bobby Jones against the field again, whether in the national open on the outskirts of New York or in the national amateur, to be played for the first time in California.

Hockey—A possible repetition of the old baseball drama, an All-New York world's series on the ice, if the Rangers and Americans keep up their present fast pace.

Football—Red Cagle, Dutch Clark and a ock of other stars back next fall for a few final flourishes in a season that will be a record-breaker for intersectional interest. California-Penn, Stanford-Army, Yale-Georgia, Washington-Chicago, Southern California-Notre Dame and Army-Illinois are a few of the outstanding events on the gridiron slate.

Polo—Nothing much to do for Tommy Hitchcock's new big four except rest on the laurels they won so sensationally in 1928 and await further challenges to their supremacy.

Tennis—Another year of security for the French in Davis cup and men's tennis, as well as for Helen Wills in women's competition. Also another comeback scene for Big Bill Tilden, if and when he negotiates peace with the rulers of the game.

Rowing—California and Washington out to maintain the far-western domination of the river at Poughkeepsie, with Wisconsin again a western threat under the coaching of "Mike" Murphy; Yale and Ed Leader organizing to make it eight out of nine from old John Harvard at New London.

BASEBALL — Second successive clean sweep of world's series by New York Yankees, giving Babe Ruth & Company eight straight over National league opposition furnished by Pirates and Cardinals; Ruth fell short of home run record but hit 54 during season and three in last game of world's series; most valuable player prizes awarded to Jim Bottomley of Cards and Mickey Cochrane of Athletics; Rogers Hornsby traded by Braves to Chicago Cubs, Bill McKechnie replaced by Bill Southworth as manager of National league champion Cards and Walter Johnson recalled to manage Washington, Bucky Harris going to Detroit as successor to George Moriarty.

BOXING—Gene Tunney's retirement and marriage, after knocking out Tom Heeney in last title fight; Dempsey's retirement, which may be interrupted for another shot at some opposing chin in 1929; minimum of championship activity, but passing of feather crown from Tony Canzoneri to Andre Routis, defeat of Jimmy McLarnin by Sammy Mandell in lightweight title bout, and of Ace Hudkins by Mickey Walker in defense of middleweight honors; upset of Risko, Hansen and others.

FOOTBALL—New record crowd of 122,000 at Soldier Field, Chicago, for Navy-Notre Dame game; Georgia Tech, Boston College and Detroit only major teams neither defeated nor tied in season otherwise filled with upsets; big intersectional victories scored by Stanford, Oregon State and Southern California for Far West; race for All-American backfield honors won by Dutch Clark of Colorado College, Red Cagle of the Army, Chuck Carroll of Washington and Ken Strong of New York university, the high individual scorer of year with 161 points.

GOLF—Bobby Jones wins national amateur fourth time in five years, beside leading U. S. Walker Cup team to 11-1 victory over British; Walter Hagen captures British Open for third time and Glenna Collett, although beaten abroad, wins American women's crown for third time; Leo Diegel upsets Hagen in P. G. A. after four in row.

POLO—New United States Big Four, revamped several times and led by Tommy Hitchcock, wins championship of Americas by beating Argentina in two out of three matches; Devereux Milburn retires.

ROWING—California's eight sweeps college seas at home, winning at Poughkeepsie over 1927 champions of Columbia, prior to crowning triumph in Olympics; U. S. wins Olympic regatta; Yale turns tables on Harvard at New London; Bobby Pearce, Australia, Olympic sculling champion, and Joe Wright, Jr., Canada, winner of Diamond Sculls.

SWIMMING—Johnny Weissmuller remains king of men sprint swimmers, at home as well as in Olympics, but supremacy of Martha Norelius among women free-style stars challenged by Albina Osipowich, Olympic 100-meter champion, and Eleanor Garratti, national 100-meter winner; U. S. captures Olympic team honors.

TENNIS—France retains Davis cup, beating United States, 4-1, in challenge round in which Bill Tilden won only match, from Lacoste, after being suspended from team over playerwriter row and restored temporarily for final play; Henri Cochet wins U. S. singles title for France third straight year; Helen Wills supreme again in women's ranks; Lott and Hennessey spring sensation to keep U. S. doubles from foreign threats.

Death Took Heavy Toll Of Sports Figures In '28

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan 1—(AP)—The world of sports lost some of the most conspicuous and colorful figures of its history in 1928 as death took a particularly heavy toll in the ranks of boxing, baseball and auto-racing.

The diamond mourned the passing of the famous Ee-yah Hughey Jennings, as well as Albert J. Reach, one of the game's pioneers. Joe Lannin, Jack Dunn and Urban Shocker. Kid Lavigne, former world's lightweight champion, passed on, while the knights of the racing wheel lost a famous quartet—Frank Lockhart, Dave Lewis, Norman Batten and Earl Devore, all in dramatic fashion.

Lockhart died in his famous Stutz Black Hawk as it catapulted into the ocean after roaring at 200 miles an hour along the sands at Daytona Beach. Lewis committed suicide in a lonely cabin near Los Angeles, while Batten and Devore went down with the victims of the Vestris disaster.

Baseball lost one of its most unusual characters in Jennings, a great shortstop with the famous old Orioles; manager of a three-time winner at Detroit, and later side to his old-time team-mate, John McGraw, with the New York Giants. He was 56 years old when he died at Scranton early in the year, but Reach, a noted player before Jennings was born, died at the age of 87.

Jack Dunn, famous as the discoverer of Babe Ruth and other stars, piloted seven International league pennant winners at Baltimore, during which time he sold to the majors some of the highest priced players in the game. Ruth went to the Boston Red Sox for comparatively little, but Bob Grove was sold by Dunn to the Athletics for $100,000.

Baseball, during the year, also lost Frank Wilson, the umpire, as well as such old time figures as Claude Rossman, Marr Phillips and Tom Lovett, who pitched one of the first no-hit games in the big leagues.

In addition to Lavigne, boxing witnessed the death of several young boxers as a direct result of ring accidents early in the year. Fred Bowen, Chicago student, died after a sparring match with Les Marriner, of Illinois, who turned pro as a heavyweight. All amateur boxing in Connecticut was suspended after the death of Horace Aliff, 17-year-old youth in an accident at Meriden. A double knockout in a match at Los Angeles resulted in the death of Michael Carnakis, 20, and a narrow escape for his opponent, Philip Bromley, who was unconscious for nearly two hours after the untoward end of their bout.

Track and field sports lost a famous figure in Alvin Kraenzlin, famous 25 years ago at the University of Pennsylvania as an all-round athlete and Olympic champion. Pooch Donovan, veteran Harvard trainer, died after being taken ill during the last Olympics in Amsterdam.

Football, in college and school ranks, took a toll of about a score of youthful lives during its season.

Bristol, Naugatuck and Norwich High School Leaders

Bristol High, Norwich Free Academy and Naugatuck High were the major sport champions of Connecticut in 1928. Bristol High emerged the winner of the Yale basketball tournament, symbolic of Connecticut greatness and N. F. A. and Naugy won their titles without any such arrangement. The Academy, with 19 victories and but one defeat, was without hardly a dissenting vote, conceded the title in the state while Naugatuck, which won ten games and lost none, likewise, was given he palm in football.

Thomas Monaghan, Earle E. Brigham and Peter J. Foley were the successful coaches, respectively.

The runners-up in the various sports were Naugatuck in basketball, which did not enter the Yale tourney but went to Chicago for the national tourney, as did Bristol only to have the former team go farther in that tournament than Monaghan's boys: Deep River and Hillhouse High of New Haven in baseball, the former with only one defeat, that by the Academy, although afterwards she played weak teams and Hillhouse playing a strong schedule, but losing three times, including one to the Academy, 9 to 1; in football Harding High of Bridgeport, lost only once, 3 to 0 to Torrington, which team Naugatuck defeated.

The only other sport that most schools compete in having a title was track with Hartford Public high the king and a number of second-placers.

TWO GAMES AT Y GYM TODAY

The Y Seniors, undefeated in six starts to date and numbering among their victims two teams of the much-advertised New London City league, engage in two feature clashes this afternoon and evening here at the Y gym.

With a preliminary game starting at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the local five tackles the All-Heller five of Willimantic, composed of five brothers, former Windham High graduates and now either at college or prep school. In the evening at 8 o'clock, in the featured attraction for the annual New Year's open night, the Yers will face the All-Manchester five, comprising some of the fastest court talent in the state.

These two games should give the Demarest charges a thorough test. If they can hurdle these two games the locals will be heavy favorites to take the state Y basketball title for among the Nutmeg associations there are few better clubs than the Hellers or All-Manchester.

The "brother-act" from Willimantic will take the floor with Max, now with Williston academy, and Sam of Harvard law school at forwards, Abe, or "Red" also of Harvard law school, at center and captaining the team and Harry of Columbia, and last but not least, Harry of Brown, where he has starred in football and basketball for two seasons. For reserve material this team carries Morton Tinker and Eddie Nichols, former Windham High stars.

For the past two years the Hellers have played here during the holidays, meeting first the Academy varsity and then the Academy Independents, largely recruited from the Red and White team. However, in this game, they will be getting a club more their equal.

The Hellers have played quite a few games in the last two weeks, playing up through Massachusetts and now for the end of their annual tour they are back to their native haunts. Tonight in Willimantic they meet the Majors, included among the Hellers' games this season is one with the Philadelphia Royal Colored Giants, the Willimantic boys losing by a close margin. Today's games will probably be their last as the boys will return to their respective schools shortly.

In the evening game the Y gets an opponent that every year plays games with Taftville Crescents. Danielson Town Team and others of that calibre. There will be no admission to this evening's game.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CHOOSE COTTONSEED PRODUCTS ON BASIS OF PROTEIN PRICE

In region where much corn, stover, fodder, timothy, or other carbohydrate feed is used, it is important to use some feed that it high in protein, such as cottonseed meal, say the United States department of agriculture. Cottonseed meal stimulates the appetite of fattening cattle and causes them to consume more feed and likewise to make greater gains.

Another reason why cottonseed meal is highly prized for feeding cattle is that it puts on a glossy finish, which makes them sell better than cattle having harsh, rough coats. There is also a tendency for cattle receiving cottonseed meal to put on a smooth, even covering of firm flesh. For stock cattle weighing 500 to 700 pounds, from 1 to 2 pounds of the meal is enough to balance properly most roughage rations. Fattening cattle may get as high as 7 pounds a day for from 90 to 120 days, or longer if silage and other roughage is given also.

Cottonseed products—meal, cake, hulls—vary in price, grade, and protein content. Some feeders prefer to buy the lower grade products because they are lower in price. They are usually deceiving themselves, however, says the department. Lower grades are usually priced only a little lower than the higher grade products. Since these feeds are purchased for their protein, the grade which supplies a pound of protein at the least cost should be used. Usually the analysis of cottonseed meal offered for sale is given on the tag. Sometimes it is given on the tag. Sometimes it is given in terms of nitrogen or of ammonia, but in either event it is very easy to ascertain the protein content and to figure the price per pound of protein in the various grades avalaible.

FOWL TUBERCULOSIS DESERVES MORE PUBLIC ATTENTION

Tuberculosis of poultry, though not so dangerous in many respects as the bovine form, needs greater attention by flock owners and by the public if the spread is to be checked, says Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture.

"Avian tuberculosis," he says, "is easily transmitted to swine, and a large per cent of retentions of hogs in packing houses on account of tuberculosis is the result of the avian type of the disease.

"This poultry malady is most prevalent in the middle west.

"There is more hog tuberculosis today because of fowl tuberculosis than formerly, but the avian germ is much less virulent than the bovine germ and is frequently confined to the glands of the neck in hogs.

"The veterinarians who are going from farm to farm in the work of tuberculin testing of cattle are making observation of poultry flocks. When tuberculosis is found they explain to the owners the ways by which the disease can be controlled and eradicated."

The bureau of animal industry is ready to cooperate in any way possible in this campaign, says Dr. Mohler, who emphasizes the importance of continued publicity.

HOME-GROWN LEGUME HAYS CUT MILK PRODUCTION COST

If dairymen would grow and feed more protein in the form of legume hays their feed bills would be reduced materially, says J. R. Dawson, of the bureau of dairy industry, United States department of agriculture. An abundance of home-grown legume hay, he says, is the basis for an economical ration for the dairy cow.

"The superior feeding quality of legumes was recognized nearly 2,000 years ago," he says. "As early as the first century Columella, an early Roman agricultural writer, stated that the best forage plants 'are alfalfa, fenugreek, and the vetches. Alfalfa may be placed in the foremost rank of such plants; for when once sown it lasts 10 years, fattans lean cattle, and has an salutary action on sick cattle.'

"Inspite of the fact that Columella had the right idea centuries ago and that his recommendations have been uniformly confirmed and reconfirmed by all careful hay investigations since that time, only 41 per cent of the hay grown in the United States at present is legume hay. Furthermore in the North Central and North Atlantic states, which contain 66 per cent of all the dairy cows in the country, the farmers grow 2 tons of nonlegume hay to 1 of legume hay."

Legumes hays are not only far superior to nonlegumes in palatability, but furnish more milk-making nutrients at cheaper cost. They are also far superior in the quality of their protein and in the content of lime, two essential nutrients for high-producing dairy cows. When there is a deficiency of protein in the ration, as is the case where farm-grown cereal grains and nolegume roughages are fed exclusively, additional protein usually must be purchased in the form of high-protein concentrates such as linseed meal and cottonseed meal. In this case the cost of 100 pounds of digestible protein is usually higher than a like amount raised on the farm in the form of legume hay.

When linseed meal is worth $47.75 a ton, 100 pounds of crude digestible protein will cost $7.85, whereas in the form of alfalfa hay at $13 a ton the same amount of protein would cost but $5.65. Timothy hay is low in protein that at $11 a ton, 100 pounds of crude protein would cost $16.85.

HINTS FOR THE FARM

The dormant season is the best time to spray trees to control the destructive San Jose scale. Absence of foliage makes more thorough spraying possible and there is les danger of spray injury in winter than in summer.

Ice cut in even, rectangular cakes permits economical handling and packing in the ice house, and if the first line is made straight the rest of the process is easy. Place stakes at each end and align a 14-foot straight edge with the stakes and run the cutting toe or hand plow along the edge

POETRY

Welcome New Year

In winter's cold, 'neath sparkling stars
In the dark dead of night
The old year at the midnight hour
Takes his reluctant flight,
While on the world's far-reaching stage
Steps forth the infant year,
And slow and silent passes then
The old year, sad and sere.

For one short year thy reign shall last,
Heir to an unseen realm.
Oh! may no adverse blows of Fate
Thy infant steps o'erwhelm.
And then, at length, in later days
Lord grant it may be willed
That every promise of thy youth
Be gloriously fulfilled.

No stress of unkind fortune roar
Thy still uncharted reign;
Nor blighting droughts nor scorching winds
When summer comes again;
When fields are green, and bright the sun
Shines o'er the harvest field,
May every grain Dame Nature grows
Bring forth abundant yield.

Nor tempests rage, nor cyclones wreck
The busy haunts of men;
Serene and cloudless be thy path
Until the end and then
May peace reign o'er this troubled world—
Peace on the land and sea—
With outstretched hand and greetings kind,
New Year, we welcome thee.

—Robert Douglas, in Successful Farming

Dirge for the Year

Orphan hours, the year is dead,
Come and sigh, come and weep!
Merry hours, smile instead,
For the year is but asleep.
See, it smiles as it is sleeping,
Mocking your untimely weeping.

As an earthquake rocks a corse
In its coffin in the clay,
So white Winter, that rough nurse
Rocks the dead-cold year today;
Solemn hours! wail aloud
For your mother in her shroud.

As the wild air stirs and sways
The tree-hung cradle of a child,
So the breath of these rude days
Rocks the year:—be calm and mild.
Trembling hours; she will arise
With new love within her eyes.

January gray is here,
Like a sexton by her grave;
February bears the bier;
March with grief doth howl and rave,
And April weeps—but, O, ye hours,
Follow with May's fairest flowers.

—Percy Dysshe Shelley.

Accomplishments of Past Year Point Way to New Effort in Cities and Towns of Eastern Connecticut—Chamber of Commerce and Other Civic Organizations Have Brought Citizens Into Support of Plans For Community Advancement.

Taking courage and new determination from the record of the past twelve months, the leaders of business, civic and social organizations in Norwich, New London, Danielson, Putnam and Willimantic view the new year as offering a new challenge and new opportunities for progress and advancement. This challenge they propose to accept and to realize upon each opportunity offered.

These leaders set down the record of a year past in which each of their respective communities can point to evidences of a forward-looking spirit that has written a story of achievement in the twelve months and will be the inspiration for increasing community effort in the year which we are entering.

Record of Year Shows Norwich Moving Forward

One year ago at this holiday season, the chamber of commerce was undertaking the completion of an industrial survey of Norwich. This study was made not merely for the purpose of accumulating all of the industrial facts and data about the city that might be used to advantage in selling the city to prospective manufacturers, but also with a view to studying the liabilities and ascertaining the greatest needs of the community, so that the chamber might have a program to work on based upon the scientific investigation of engineers.

While it is true that the survey in its original form spoke in very plain terms about certain unfavorable conditions in Norwich and thereby became more or less unpopular, nevertheless it is a fact that it has already more than served its purpose in bringing about a correction of several of these conditions.

One of the major recommendations called for the revaluation of property. The chamber of commerce took the necessary steps to bring about the reassessment and revaluation of all taxable property in Norwich. The matter was brought before a town meeting and a resolution providing for $28,000 to complete the work was voted.

Another major recommendation called for increasing the hotel facilities. Accordingly, the chamber undertook the study of this recommendation and later in the year the Norwich Inn project culminated. Norwich is to have a seventy-room inn on the Norwich Golf club property, modern in every respect, operated by one of the best hotel chains in New England and with attractions that will advertise Norwich far and wide as a result of the chamber's part in fostering this movement.

Other matters which were equally important and recommended in the Babson survey included the revision of the city charter, the adoption of a more modern building and plumbing code and many others. Committees appointed at a city meeting are already progressing on the matter of the city charter and the other recommendations made in the survey are to be a part of the program of the chamber during the coming year.

Therefore, it must be conceded that one of the major projects on the chamber's program for 1927-1928, that of the industrial survey has led to the completion of two projects—the revaluation of all taxabel property and the Norwich inn.

At the same time last year when the industrial survey was in process another major project of the chamber came under the head of publicity. This program as outlined, called for the publication of 10,000 booklets descriptive of Norwich. It also recommended the installation of road signs in and about the city to guide tourists, and the Norwich Progress Exposition as a means to more adequate selling of the city to itself. During the course of the year all three of these very definite objectives were successfully completed. 10,000 booklets have been published and they have received very favorable comment all over the country.

The Norwich Progress Exposition scored the greatest success of any exposition ever held in this city and through the cooperatinon of Mayor Robbins, the correction of the road sign need was made possible.

In addition to the matters mentioned above, the chamber committees have served equally well in the work of the credit bureau and merchants bureau, reports of which are contained elsewhere in this issue.

Several membership dinners were held during the course of the year, all of which were well attended.

The publication of the Norwich Progress magazine, which started in September, 1927, was continued during the current year, thus keeping the members posted on activities of the organization.

A monthly business survey was made of conditions in the city and reported to the state chamber, in cooperatinon with all other Connecticut cities.

A very complete and difficult program was worked out during the year through the legislative committee, on which action was taken on seven legislative bills and two refrenda.

The solicitations committee has given careful consideration to a multitude of schemes for raising money and selling of program advertising. Many thousands of dollars have been saved the Norwich merchants through the activity of this committee. Most of the projects acted upon never came to the knowledge of the members. However, there is hardly a week goes by that they do not effectively stop solicitations which are considered unwarranted by the committee.

JOSEPH C. WORTH
President

A committee on aviation has been giving some thought to the development of an air port in the vicinity of Norwich. Their final report has not been completed.

Under the head of industrial expansion, the Norwich chamber will undoubtedly find its greatest field for effort during the coming year. Many prospects have been investigated during the current year, a large portion of which turned out to be undesirable. Those that were desirable have not found the facilities available meeting their needs. It is an easy matter for any community to secure new industries when special inducements are offered, such as free taxes, bonuses, or when funds are raised by local community and invested in the business of the new industry. Such industrial projects are usually short lived and are of no particular benefit to the community, except to provide a temporary payroll.

A pertinent statement was recently made by the U. S. chamber of commerce that the greatest industrial growth in cities of America has been made from within rather than from without; that is, by industrial expansion within a community or starting a local concern, backed by local men with local capital. It was also stated that there are 8,193 fewer industries in the United States in 1927 than there were in 1922.

In Norwich we have industries that are expanding and that before long are going to require additional space and more satisfactory working conditions. There is very little space available at the present time that is desirable for manufacturing. This fact plus a shortage of skilled labor and a shortage of available sites makes for an acute problem in industrial growth.

It would therefore seem that the first move to be undertaken in industrial promotion would involve a program of development that will assure attractive and adequate manufacturing sites for industries to locate in. We will then be in much better position to make bids in New York and other cities for industries which are anxious to find better locations.

Not long ago the Uncas Finishing company started up with a capital of $100,000 to bleach, dye and print cotton cloth, also cotton and rayon cloth. This concern employs 40 people.

The Pasqualini Silk Co., employing 22 people, engaged in the manufacture of silk, started in December 1927.

The Connecticut Braided Cordage Co., Inc., purchased the plant of Adams & Manning on May 1st and are engaged in the manufacture of twine, cordage, rope, etc.

The Wear-Well Slipper Co., started last fall and now employs about 50.

The Van Tassell Leather Finding Co. have started operations in the plant of the Ulmer Leather company.

The J. B. Martin Co. report the completion of the best year in the last five.

The American Thermos Bottle company are doing a much large business than ever before, and report a recent expansion of their plant.

All of thse favorable reports tend to indicate that while Norwich may not be progressing as rapidly as desired, at least it is not suffering a serious depression similar to many eastern localities.

Six new industries and two expansions are somewhat concrete achievements for Norwich.

Definite plans are now underway to create an industrial fund that will be available for investment in real estate holdings or factories that may be erected to meet the manufacturer's specifications. It is believed in this way that additional growth may be attained.

Over 400 members have made this year's program possible through their membership dues and subscriptions. The directors believe that a program many times the value of the investment has accrued thereby. Within the next few weeks an opportunity will be given to the citizens of Norwich to show their approval of this program and it is confilently believed that they will continue their support.

Quite often I hear the remark: "What do I get out of the Chamber of Commerce?" and I appreciate the fact that few individual members get any direct benefits. However, I believe the question should be: "What can I do for my community through the medium of the Chamber of Commerce?" and when one looks at it from this standpoint, there is no other organization that provides the opportunity for serving one's community as a whole without respect to creed, line of business or political faith, as the Chamber of Commerce.

The record of the year 1928 in the Norwich Chamber of Commerce was an enviable one. I sincerely trust that we may continue to back up the Chamber so that 1929 may exceed our greatest expectations.

JOSEPH C. WORTH
President, Norwich Chamber of Commerce

Willimantic Exchange Club Sees City Advancing

The Willimantic Exchange club can look backward over the year with some degree of satisfaction knowing that the emblem of the club will be carried forward with its lustre more brilliant and the spirit of unity more strongly defined because of the part we have had in helping to make our city more desirable for us who live here and more attractive to strangers. Of course this feeling of satisfaction is marred by the definite knowledge of failure in some directions, but the new year brings new opportunities and renewed spirit.

Contrasting our city today with what it was a generation ago, we can-

IN MANUFACTURING, BANKING AND BUILDING IN NEW LONDON AND WINDHAM COUNTIES

Figures For 1928 Increased $49,194,380 Over Business of Preceding Year—New London County Showed $945,724,126 and Windham County, $322,402,626—Mills and Factories Had Varied Twelve Months in Norwich, New London, Danielson, Willimantic, Putnam and Adjacent Territory—Building Work Expenditures Somewhat Ahead of Last Year—Great Banking Increase Overcomes Declines In Manufacturing Lines

This becomes apparent when the business total for New London and Windham counties in manufacturing, building, jobbing and banking lines is shown to be approximately $1,268,126,752, according to figures assembled by The Bulletin.

New London county gave $945,724,126 as compared with $912,407,529 in 1927, while Windham county contributed $322,402,626 in comparison with $306,524,843 in 1927.

Wages disbursed through the manufacturing industries were $26,352,032 which was a decrease from the 1927 figure of $28,348,399, while the total volume of manufacturing fell to $179,987,695 in 1928 as compared with $185,350,027 in the year before. In New London county the wages from manufacturing industries in 1928 totalled approximately $17,543,346 and in Windham county $8,808,686. These figures were $18,988,762 and $9,359,637 respectively in 1927.

In building lines the year gave a total of $5,952,245 which was more than the 1927 figure of $5,180,938. Towards the total in the year just past New London county gave $5,196,285 and Windham county $755,960. In the previous year the former county had shown $4,027,583 and the latter $1,153,355 in building operations.

Banking business in the two counties continued its upward trend, showing $1,048,030,057 for the 1928 total in which New London county had $800,209,421 and Windham county $247,820,636. For the preceding year general banking total had been $994,896,345, with New London county giving $767,762,951 and Windham county $227,133,394 towards the grand total.

Smaller Manufacturing Revealed In Norwich

Increases in some lines and decreases in others made a varied year in 1928 among Norwich manufacturers and the net result was a smaller total in employment and wage disbursements than in 1927. The figures for 1928 showed 6,443 employed in the mills and manufacturing industries, total wages of $7,412,517 and total value of manufactured product of $26,705,971. In the preceding year there had been 6,827 employed, total wages of $8,053,052 and total product of $26,209,790.

In the textile lines, which comprise so large a part of the industrial life of the community, there were 1,825 employes in the cotton mills, wages of $1,602,761 and product of $5,118,350 as compared with 2,111 employes in 1927 with $1,991,011 in wages and $4,773,897 in product in 927. Woolen mills also recorded a somewhat slackened business, but gave employment to 1,066 hands with wages of $1,186,150 and product of $4,188,251 in contrast to employing 1,065 in 1927 with wages of $1,353,573 and product value of $4,145,064. Silk and velvet mills had a better year than the preceding 12 months, giving employment to 1,209, wages of $1,481,168 and product of $7,355,798, which had been 1,024 employes, $1,308,986 in wages and $6,194,069 in product in the year before.

Manufacturers in the paper line had a better year, but leather products showed smaller business volume, these two lines combined giving employment to 766, with wages of $363,603 and product of $2,250,190. In the year before the employes had been 750, wages $461,096 and product value $2,084,076.

In foundry and iron work the year was not up to the preceding one, but there were 180 employes, with wages of $287,000 and product of $546,000, as compared with 215 employes, $352,000 wages and $685,000 in product in 1927. Metal goods manufacturers maintained about the same business volume as in 1927, having 136 employes, $173,000 in wages and $680,000 in product, as against 121 employes, $185,000 in wages and $713,000 in product in 1927. Firearms and cutlery lines were generally lower than the year before, showing 320 employes, $431,250 in wages and $776,650 in product as compared with 396 employes, $544,627 in wages and $1,089,500 in product in 1927. In miscellaneous lines of manufacture there was employment for 1,487, with wages of $1,887,585 and product of $5,790,832 in contrast to the 1927 figures of 1,545 employes, $1,356,259 in wages and $6,522,184 in product.

Willimantic Manufacturing Year About Average

Willimantic's year in manufacturing in the past 12 months was not so different from the year before, but there was some decrease in the general result. The mills and manufacturing industries of the city gave employment to 2,163, disbursed $2,460,986 in wages and turned out products estimated at $8,281,040. In the preceding year they had afforded employment to 2,245, paid out $2,577,437 in wages and produced product value of $8,246,750.

Silk mills had a somewhat better year than in 1927, employing 358, with wages of $519,125 and product of $2,245,000 as against the 1927 figure of 350 employes, $508,000 in wages and $2,160,000 in product. Machinery and iron work was at about the same level as in the year before, showing 124 employes, $150,200 in wages and $421,040 in product, as compared with 136 employes, $150,890 in wages and $382,546 in product in 1927. In miscellaneous lines there was diminished business, showing 1,681 employes, $1,761,661 in wages and $5,565,000 in product, which was 1,759 employes in 1927 with $1,888,547 in wages and $5,703,204 in product.

Lessened Business In New London Manufacturing

Periods of comparative inactivity for some of the larger manufacturing industries in New London resulted in making 1928 a year that showed smaller figures than 1927, this appearing on the statistics of 3,654 employes, $1,248,829 in wages and $12,793,796 in product value as compared with 4,389 employes, $5,114,620 in wages and $15,202,875 in product value in 1927.

Machinery and marine work experienced slackened business which gave employment of 1,121, with wages of $1,571,655 and product of $3,118,300 in contrast to 1,670 employes, $2,225,000 in wages and $4,684,875 in product in 1927. Boiler and iron work showed smaller business activity, employing 25 with wages of $34,000 and product of $101,000 as compared with 40 employes, $50,250 in wages and $125,000 in product in the year before. Metal and iron work showed little difference in the two years, having 355 employes, $465,000 in wages and $1,272,000 in product in 1928 which compared with 370 employes, $485,000 in wages and $1,406,000 in product in 1927. In miscellaneous lines there was employment for 528 with wages of $591,174 and product of $1,338,496 as compared with the 1927 figures of 630 employes, $617,000 in wages and $1,662,000 in product in the preceding year.

Danielson Industries Had Generally Good Year

Taken as a whole, Danielson and all of the town of Killingly came through 1928 in a very satisfactory manner industrially. A severe loss to Danielson, however, was the closing soon after the first of the year of the big plant of the Connecticut Mills company. This concern is now manufacturing tire fabric at Albany-Decatur, Ala., having closed and partly dismantled its plants at Danielson, at Fall River and at East Taunton, Mass. In February last it put all of the houses it constructed at Connecticut Village, a section of Danielson that it built up into one of the best residential sections about a manufacturing plant in southern New England, on the market and they were snapped up by eager buyers. As 1928 came to a close the mill company owned only The Gables, housing about a dozen families, and a few other large apartments on Morin avenue. The mill stands idle, only a few office workers being on duty there.

In the heyday of its prosperity, and especially from 1914 to 1920, this concern paid out millions of dollars in wages and at times during the war, with day and night forces working, as many as 700 people were employed there, many of them earning wages never before or since paid in cotton textile plants in this part of the country.

An offset to the loss of the Connecticut Mills has been the growth during 1928 of Powdrell and Alexander's business. This concern, manufacturing curtains, is operating five mills in Killingly, two of them in Danielson, one each at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville. This concern has developed wonderfully well, has grown apace, and now gives employment to more than 1,000 people. Throughout the year some departments of some of its mills have run day and night, turning out millions of yards of curtain fabric. The company, bleaches all materials it produces, manufactures the curtains here in Danielson and disposes of its product direct to the trade throughout the United States through its own sales organization.

In securing the figures herewith The Bulletin is indebted to the custodians of the accounts, and thanks them for their prompt and obliging responses. Except in a few instances there was a ready response from those approached for information, but where estimates had to be made, they were carefully figured.

The greater part of the figures were based upon amounts actually taken from the books of the business houses. The promise to disclose no business secrets will explain why in a number of instances it has been necessary to assemble several lines into one sum. The immense figures reached must be a surprise to all as it is to The Bulletin, and the residents of the cities and towns of the two counties can well feel a pardonable pride in the magnitude of their business interests as here shown.

Program of Year Has Included Dairy, Crops, Poultry, Horticulture and Farm Management—Alfalfa, Clover and Pasture Improvement Have Been Stressed In Crops Program—80 Poultrymen In Grow Healthy Chick Campaign—Apple Growers Take Up New England Seven Program.

Throughout New London county in the past year the County Farm and Home bureau has continued to function with helpful aid and advice to the farmers in the field, the housewives in the homes and with the juniors in the 4-H club work, making a record of commendable achievement which was shown when the annual meeting was held in December with President E. L. Waterman of Lebanon presiding.

County Agent Walter T. Clark and County Club Agent Randolph W. Whaples will continue to be the directing executives in their departments for the coming year and Miss Ruth Russell, who came to the farm bureau in December, will be the home demonstration agent. At the annual meeting in December, William W. Service of Preston, who had been treasurer of the bureau for several years, was elected president and officers associated with him will be F. M. Abel, Lebanon, first vice-president; Mrs. H. R. Whitman, Waterford, second vice-president; A. H. Davis, Waterford, secretary; and Miss Margery Brewster, Griswold, treasurer.

Another year of work has been completed by the New London County Farm and Home Bureau. It has been a very satisfactory year and something has been accomplished. Many of the results accomplished can be shown in a report of the nature we have to make but there are other results which cannot be measured in any tangible way.

The ultimate goal of all extension work is to make farm life more profitable financially which thus makes life more livable and enjoyable. If the farm is not making a profit, conveniences in the home cannot be obtained. It is, therefore, with this in mind that an agricultural program is selected which is economically sound and within the reach of all farmers of the county.

During the past year regular programs have been carried on in the following major projects: Dairy, crops, poultry, horticulture and farm management. The minor projects have had no regular program of work but nevertheless have received attention where called for or where needed.

The dairy program as accepted in 1928 is a long time program; it cannot be completed in one year. We have had during the past year considerable tuberculin testing in some areas in the county. Our dairy program has been concentrated in these areas. As a result of testing an increased interest in raising their own replacements has been noticed due to the high cost of buying tested replacements. On all farms, however, this is not sound. The test has also increased interest in sanitation and considerable effort has been put on this phase of the dairy program.

Forty barn ventilators are known to have been built. The Herd Improvement association is playing an important part in our dairy program as it is giving the farmers a source of purebred bulls at farmers' prices.

The poultry program was carried on the same as last year with a few minor changes. This program also emphasized sanitation and management. The eight point program of the Grow Healthy Chick campaign which has been carried on for the past three years certainly is well known among New London county poultrymen. It is thought that some know more about this program than about the Farm Bureau organization. It has been emphasized so much. Even though we have gone a considerable ways with this program there is room for much more to be done. There were eighty poultrymen who signed up for 106,000 chicks the past year. This is the best year of the three. The mortality was as follows:

		Mortality	Pct.
Following all eight points	39,864	4403	11.05
Following all points except clean chix	17,163	3151	18.2
Following all points except clean land	8,515	1730	20.4
Following all points except clean land and chix	10,246	2711	26.626

Alfalfa, clover, pasture improvement have been the three things stressed in the crops program. These three items are basic for good farming and good dairying. Of course all of these three mean an increased use of lime, super-phosphate. As near as can be figured the lime consumed in the county increased 500 tons and the super-phosphate 100 tons.

Pasture improvement is a new phase of the crops program and the farmers are taking a hold of it very nicely. They realize this to be a means of lowering their production cost and with the least amount of effort. In Lebanon and Franklin fourteen farmers are treating pastures for the first time. How will he done with this project.

For years apple growers have been trying many varieties of apples in their orchards. Some of the varieties did well but others did not. If these wonder varieties did not sell well or if some popular varieties did not do well where should they be grown? This question came up for discussion in regard to the farm in question.

The use of super-phosphate has been quite materially increased. Much of this has been with the use of stable manure either in the stable or as the manure is carted to the field. This has enabled about 25 farmers to grow corn without commercial fertilizer where they formerly used it. This cut the cost as all they used was stable manure and super-phosphate.

An increased interest has been noticed in treating pastures with limestone and super-phosphate. There was some interest in this last year but it has been much increased due largely to the pasture field day at the pasture trials conducted by the Storrs experiment station. During this past summer and fall about 20 farmers have cleared pasture land with the idea in mind to apply lime and super-phosphate next spring if they have not already done so this fall.

Farm Crops

The greater portion of the money spent on farm crops was given to the alfalfa and clover work. At a meeting of the crops committee held in February last year the committee voted unanimously to make this the major project in field crops. A program was presented which had been gone over with the county agents in conference and later with the crops specialist adapting it to this county. The committee seemed to feel that the twilight meetings which we have held during the two previous years was a good means of interesting people in alfalfa and clover. Seven of these meetings were held in various parts of the county and were very well attended, there being a much better attendance than there was in the year before. One of the best meetings we held was at the farm of N. G. Lewis and Son in North Stonington who had an excellent clover field.

The preparation of this field was reported in the annual report of 1927. The field was at one time a pasture and the type of soil being a water layed gravel and sandy loam. Mr. Lewis had great difficulty in keeping any cattle on it as the feed that it produced had to be supplemented by soil and crops. He applied two and one-half tons of lime to the acre and 500 pounds of super-phosphate. It happened, however, that the lime that he bought was not sufficient to go over the piece with the above application so that three of the seventeen acres were left without lime. It was a very contrasting difference in the crops growing on this field at the time of the meeting. The yield received from the lime acreage was two and one-half tons while on the unlimed acreage he received only three-quarters of a ton, from the three acres. This is an extreme case and it certainly did convince the farmers attending that lime is worthwhile and we expect that there will be an increase in the amount of lime used in that vicinity. There were 45 present so that a good number saw what Mr. Lewis has accomplished.

At the meeting of the crops committee it was decided not to advise new growers of alfalfa too strongly to sow 100 per cent alfalfa but to mix their alfalfa seed with their general grass seeding and use a formula recommended by the extension service. This has made a very marked increase in the amount of alfalfa seed used as a great many farms where lime was used during the past year, three or four pounds of alfalfa seed with seven pounds of clover and some timothy. This is the way some of our better alfalfa growers have started with the crop and it does not increase the danger of loss if the alfalfa should fail.

In April a seeding and land preparation demonstration was conducted at the farm of Mitchell Dairies, managed by Roland Allyn. The field was a 17-acre field and the operations from preparing to seeding were shown, also the method of inoculating with soil and with a commercial culture. Several methods were shown in covering seed and in preparing the seed bed. Mr. Allyn happened to have a very good assortment of machinery for doing this. As a result of the effort extended on the alfalfa and clover work during the past two or three years and the literature that was sent out, the exchange managers and local dealers reported considerable increase in the amount of alfalfa and clover seed used by the farmers of the county during the past year. This information also has increased the number of farmers who are making a practice of cutting their hay early although the past year was such a bad one due to so much rainy weather this did not work out as well as we had expected, but at no time have we noticed as many farmers who were ready to cut their hay by the 10th of June as there were this year. This was largely due to the harvesting demonstration which was conducted at Mr. Whitman's farm in 1927 and by watching several others during that year who had done the same thing as Mr. Whitman had done and decided that the results were good enough to accept.

In the soils discussion of this report mention has been made of pasture work started in this county. There have been farmers who have started pasture improvement during the past year besides permanent pasture improvement. Some farms have plowed their pastures and are planting sweet clover and there are about a dozen who are now growing sweet clover to a limited extent and intend to increase this acreage to a larger one. It seems to us that the matter of pasture improvement is one of the most important ones that we can stress, especially on farms where the pasture is on fairly heavy soils. Considerable effort has been expended this year in the towns of Lebanon and Franklin in interesting farmers in pasture improvement. This has been done by farm visits by either the county agent or specialist. These two towns are very good dairy towns and they also have acres of good heavy pasture land which would respond very well to a permanent pasture treatment. On lighter soils sweet clover is being advocated to be sown with oats and blue grass. We have one farmer who is preparing for spring. He has the land plowed, lime applied and acid-phosphate applied. Some of these men who are starting sweet clover were certainly convinced by attending the sweet clover tour

The outlook for continuing similar programs as during the past year is very good. There will be no radical change in the programs for the coming year as they are all long time programs.

We have struck upon something economically sound in New London county agriculture when programs like Grow Healthy Chick campaign, lime, clover and alfalfa, herd management and larger farm sales were accepted.

A very important thing in this whole work, however, is to develop a county consciousness among the farmers in the county. It has been noticed where this has been developed the county agricultural program makes much better and more effective progress than where it is not.

The following suggestive programs will be developed next year:

Soils

Increase use of lime and acid phosphate.

Crops

Pasture improvement—1, permanent improvement. 2, temporary (sweet clover).

Fruit

Standardizing varieties — New England Seven—a, planting; b, grafting.

Better quality—a, spraying; b, pruning.

Better marketing—a, grading; b, packing.

Vegetables

Vegetable management—1, control diseases and insects; 2, proper cultivation; 3, timeliness.

Marketing—1, better grading; 2, better packing.

Dairy

Poultry

Sanitation and management—Grow Healthy Chick program— a, without signers; b, timely information sent; c, no questionnaires.

Flock management—a, poultry calenders; b, reports.

Rural engineering—No definite program.

Agricultural Economics

Farm management—1, more sales program—a, survey town of Franklin; b, summarize and follow-up findings; c, work with herd improvement association; d, work with poultrymen.

County Agent

Officers of the Bureau

The officers who have worked in cooperation with the county agent in the past year were the following:

President, E. L. Waterman, Lebanon; first vice president, H. J. Larkham, Norwich; second vice president, Mrs. N. R. Whitman, Waterford; secretary, Arthur Davis, Waterford; treasurer, W. W. Service, Preston.

Executive Committee—The officers and Milton Beckwith, Yantic; Mrs. H. M. Woods, Stonington; Mrs. H. N. Leland, Waterford; Miss Margery Brewster, Griswold.

Directors—Bozrah, Mrs. A. H. Beebe, Roy Lathrop; Colchester, Ben Neleber; East Lyme, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Scott; Franklin, Mrs. George Kalm, Milton Beckwith; Griswold, Miss Margery Brewster, G. T. Armstrong; Groton, Mr. Phillips; Lebanon, Mrs. C. H. Foster, F. N. Abell; Ledyard, Mrs. B. T. Avery, Joseph Clark; Lisbon, Mrs. F. L. Kanahan, James Graham; Lyme, Mrs. H. S. Strong, William Marvin; Montville, Miss Mary Haack, Donald MacDonald; North Stonington, John D. Avery, Mrs. C. L. Gray; Norwich, Mrs. William Weaver, C. P. Bushnell; Preston, Mrs. J. E. Kennedy, John Hollowell; Salem, Mrs. Louis Chapman, I. D. Gifford; Sprague, Mrs. William S. Lee, William Babbitt; Stonington, Mrs. E. M. Woods, Harold Critcherson; Voluntown, Mrs. Ben Gallup, Walter Tanner; Waterford, Mrs. H. H. Leland, O. R. Dimmock.

The four project committees were as follows:

Dairy—Fred M. Abell, Lebanon; William Babbitt, Sprague; Albert Backwith, Franklin; William Lathrop, Norwich; Thomas Wood, Waterford; C. B. York, Stonington; C. T. Armstrong, Griswold; J. D. Avery, North Stonington; G. G. Grant, Montville; Irving Crouch, Groton.

Alfalfa and clover—Michael Tynda, Colchester; Milton Beckwith, Franklin; Elmer Geer, Lebanon, Hugh Whitman, Waterford; Avery Gallup, Norwich; A. E. Shedd, Preston; George Norman, Griswold; George LaCroix, Sprague; Roland D. Allyn, Salem; Arthur Beebe, East Lyme.

Fruit—E. W. Jones, Goshen; Clifford Chipman, Waterford; A. W. Lillibridge, Norwich; E. W. Craham, Lebanon; Milton Beckwith, Franklin; George Wheeler, Stonington; George S. Goldie, Salem; Walter Scott, East Lyme; Charles Bliss, North Stonington; Simon Brewster, Griswold.

Poultry—F. L. Kanahan, Lisbon; E. A. Hoxie, Lebanon; Arthur Fellows, Norwich; E. J. Larkham, Norwichtown.

Each member of these committees acted as local leaders in the respective projects in their communities.

Besides the members of these committees there were individuals in various communities who assisted materially in promoting projects. They were L. B. Peckham of Norwich, vegetable growers; R. J. Whitham, Groton, vegetable growers; Ripley Parks, North Stonington, forestry; A. W. Lillibridge, Norwich Town, forestry; George LaCroix, Baltic, farm management; Russell Waldo, Lebanon, farm management; Harry Lewis, North Stonington, crops; Harold Critcherson, Stonington, crops; and many others who aided the town directors or these committees. The local exchange managers also assisted in the development of the clover, alfalfa and lime programs.

Work In Definite Lines

In making his detailed report, County Agent Clark says:

It has ever been the policy of the farm bureau to select a program which would be for the general benefit of a large number of the farmers of the county and also have it economically sound. It also has seemed better policy to confine our endeavor to a few definite lines of work rather than try to cover the whole field. It was with this in mind that it was decided to continue the grow healthy chick program, clover and alfalfa program and the New England seven, etc. All of these programs are sound as they answer a definite need among the farmers as a whole and are not out of the reach financially or practically of the great majority of farms in the county.

The bulletin, "Five Year Trends in Connecticut Agriculture", published by the department of economics at Connecticut Agricultural college was a large factor in determining the programme of work for the county; also surveys taken the previous year. The T. B. test was a factor in determining and selecting the dairy programme as was also the present price of dairy cows.

Project Activities and Results

The following report is made of what was done in the various projects:

Soils

The major part of our soils program was the base on which to promote alfalfa and clover production which was about all that was done in crops work. This being the case it seemed wise to concentrate on building soil conditions up so that it was receptive to clover and alfalfa growing. The essentials for this are lime and super-phosphate. The exchange managers and local dealers were interviewed for the purpose of interesting them in the increased use of lime and super-phosphate and as a result about 2,000 tons of lime were known to have been used. This was an increase of 500 tons over last year. The super-phosphate was increased about 100 tons over last year.

At the meeting of the crops committee in February it was recommended that an effort be made to increase the amount of lime now used both on legume fields and pastures. As can be seen above this has been done, although not to the extent desired.

Ninety-two cards were returned from an alfalfa inquiry letter sent out in March and seventy-two soil samples were taken and tested before June 1st. A goodly amount of extension work was done on those soil sampling trips as many other questions came up for discussion in regard to the farm in question.

BOYS AND GIRLS OF COUNTY MAKE FINE RECORD IN 4-H CLUB WORK

In 23 Communities With 225 Boys and 229 Girls In Clubs—Led State In Number Attending Junior Short Course—Girls' Food Demonstration Team and Boys' Team on Posture Won State Championships.

The 4-H club work, heart, health, hand and head, has been carried on in New London county as a department of the county farm bureau with 32 clubs operating and enthusiastic interest shown by the juniors in many communities, according to the annual report of Randolph W. Whaples, county club agent.

In his report he mentions the following local leaderes to whom the 4-H club work in the county is greatly indebted: Miss Florence Rockwood, Franklin Thimble Wearers, North Franklin; Mrs. Irving Hurlbutt, Jolly Cookies and So-ers, Gales Ferry; Mrs. T. A. Day, Happy Workers, Salem; Mrs. Louis Chapman, Happy Workers, Salem; Mrs. N. S. Strong, Busy Bees, North Plain; Miss Julia Rodman, Nimble Workers, North Franklin; Miss Annie Gillett, Goshen Canning club, Leonard Bridge; Miss Margery Brewster, Pachaug Kitchen Bees, Pachaug; Miss Cynthia Crary, Do-Well Cooking club, Preston; Mrs. C. J. Hogan, Butterfly Sewing club, Waterford; Mrs. Elace Dart, Cochegan club, Montville; Mrs. Henry King, Farm View club, Norwich Town; Miss Helen Ryan, Busy Bees, Lebanon; Mrs. F. B. Williams, Happy Milk Drinkers, Franklin; Mrs. Revere Beebe, Happy Health Workers, Franklin; Mrs. Mary Peckham, Sunshine club, Voluntown; Miss F. McIntosh, Sodom Health club Lebanon; Miss Idella Young, Busy Bee Workers, Glasgo; Bernard Crandall, Wehava Poultry club, North Franklin; Albert Lillibridge, Scotland Road club, Norwich Town; W. W. Service, Progressive Poultry club, Preston; H. J. Willson, Red and White Poultry club, Stonington; Walter Tanner, Sunshine Poultry club, Voluntown; Raymond Allen, Cut-Cut-Ca-Dacket club, Hanover; George Good, Out-to-Win Dairy club, Waterford.

Mr. Whaples also makes the following acknowledgments of assistance given in the work of the year:

"County Agent Walter T. Clark has been of invaluable assistance as a source of information and advice. The extension specialists have all done their share in carrying on club work and their assistance has been of great value in the work.

RANDOLPH W. WHAPLES
County Club Agent

"The Pachaug and North Stonington granges have been helpful in carrying on work in those towns. They furnished seeds for garden club work, offered attractive premiums and appointed committees to visit the gardens. Other granges, churches and clubs have been very willing to let us use their buildings for meetings and gatherings and also achievement programs.

"The Norwich Y. M. C. A. furnished life guards and first aid equipment at our county field day.

"The Yantic Grain company offered a beautiful silver loving cup for the club putting on the best educational poultry exhibit at the county fair.

"The local press has always cooperated with our work and made it possible to reach many boys and girls whom we would be unable to reach otherwise. Our relations with other organizations have been very beneficial to 4-H club work in this county."

Special Lines of Work

In his annual report Mr. Whaples states that stress was placed upon dairy and poultry projects, with attention also given to sheep, garden projects and agriculture, while the homemaking program, which was worked out with Miss Elsie Trabue, assistant state club leader, placed the stress upon food club work in preference to clothing club work due to the lack of available time from clothing specialists. It has been much more difficult, however, to organize food clubs than clothing clubs, due to lack of suitable facilities for food club work, together with a decided preference by the girls for clothing club work. For that reason it has been necessary to divert from the program to supply the wants of girls who could not carry on food club work. Health clubs and more sewing clubs have been organized to fill this desire of the girls.

Home Gardens.

Thoroughly convinced that the home garden project served a desire of many boys and girls, so far as club work is concerned, we carried on the project in three towns, Griswold, Voluntown and North Stonington. The Pachaug and North Stonington Grange Fair associations furnished certified seed potatoes and Boston Marrow squash seed to every youngster in the above three towns who would take, plant, care for and exhibit the results from them. Several boys and girls in these towns bought health garden and flower garden collections which were furnished by the state extension service at cost. During the season members of the granges in these towns visited the projects and judged them. Both fair association offered very attractive premiums.

Three squash seeds were given to each youngster who wanted them. The object of this was to see who could raise the greatest total weight of squash from three seeds. While this particular project was not as successful as the previous year, I believe, the boys and girls did very well considering the adverse weather conditions during the summer.

The certified seed potatoes were given out in two pound lots. The object being the same as with the squash to see who could raise the greatest amount of potatoes from two pounds of certified seed. We were very careful to stress the advantages of certified seed over uncertified.

The winner o this contest, Olive Fletcher of Voluntown, raised 107½ pounds of potatoes from two pounds of seed. The average yield of the contestants was about one bushel from the two pounds of seed.

The number exhibiting at the two fairs convinced me of the interest in the projects. We enrolled 135 in the project and had 103 exhibitors. Some of the boys and girls were unable to exhibit because of the lack of transportation facilities for their products.

Both the fair associations were well pleased with the showing made by the youngsters and will, no doubt, be anxious to have the same project carried on next year.

Forestry.

A very small amount of time was spent on forestry We thought there might be a possibility of starting a forestry club among the boys of the Mohegan Boy Scout group of Montville. The time did not seem ripe for this, however, so the idea was abandoned for the present at least.

Dairy.

Dairy is one of the agricultural projects we are stressing in this county. We are handicapped, however, due to the lack of a high percent of tuberculin tested herds. We have three dairy clubs with a membership of 35 boys. These clubs are located in Lebanon, Waterford and Norwich Town.

The Lebanon Dairy club set for its goal every member to own a purebred by November, 1928. While this club has not as yet reached its goal they have increased the number of purebreds from five to 19 which I consider a healthy increase. This club has had 15 of its members on dairy judging trips during the year and had five boys in the state judging contest. They showed 13 animals at the county fair and four at the state fair. This club has exchanged visits with the Woodstock Dairy club of Windham county. They sent five members to Junior Short course; one of their members, Don Cummings, has been outstanding in state activities during the year. He was elected president of all the 4-H clubs in the state, judge of the senate at Junior Short course, selected as one of the four outstanding boys in the state at the Junior Short course campfire service and selected to attend Camp Vail at Springfield.

Don was also runner-up to the grand champion dairy judge of the state, a real 4-H club boy and one any county would be proud of. It has been the efforts of Don Cummings more than those of the local leader that have kept the Lebanon Dairy club up and doing things.

The Out-to-Win Dairy club of Waterford has recently completed its first year's work. This club is under the leadership of George Wood, one of the few old dairy club boys in the county. The club sent four boys on dairy judging trips during the year. They showed seven animals at the county fair and placed one boy, Willis Copeland, on the state dairy judging team. Three members from this club attended Junior Short Course, the club paying full expenses with money made selling refreshments at the annual Farm Bureau picnic.

Willis Copeland, in his first year of 4-H club work, has been the outstanding boy in the club. Willis owns five animals, keeps records on them, has remodeled his barn, raised 180 chicks, kept records on 12 old hens, exhibited poultry, judged dairy on county trips, county fair, state fair, Eastern States Exposition and Memphis, Tenn. Willis is one of the few boys in the state ever to make the state team in his first year of club work.

The Scotland Road Dairy club of Norwich Town has not as yet completed a year's work. Albert Lillibridge, a farm bureau director, is their local leader. This club has only six boys. They have been very active since they were organized. All six have been on dairy judging trips and all six own animals and are keeping records on them. They sent two boys to Junior Short Course. This club in conjunction with the Farm View Sewing club ran a small community fair last fall. They exhibited dairy, poultry and clothing; put on an entertainment and realized $45 to be used for State Club Round-up and Junior Short Course this year.

Sheep.

Our first sheep club in the county has been organized within the past year; the Awide Awake club of Pendleton Hill, Voluntown. This club has just started on a definite program and while they haven't accomplished a great deal as yet I look to see them come forward this year.

Poultry.

Poultry club work has been stressed more than any of the other agricultural projects. This project seems well adapted to this county and for that reason we have pushed it.

At the present time we have seven poultry clubs with a membership of 74 boys and girls. We also have 28 boys scattered over the county who are doing poultry club work.

Our poultry clubs are as follows: Red and White Poultry club of Stonington, Cut-Cut-Ca-Dacket club of Hanover, Wehava Poultry club of Lebanon, Sunshine Poultry club of Voluntown, Progressive Poultry club of Preston, Norwich Junior Poultry club of Norwich, Mohegan Poultry club Montville.

Many boys in these clubs attended the county poultry judging contest held in December, 1927. The four high boys were sent to the state contest held at Durham at which time the team to represent this state at Madison Square Gadren was selected.

Twenty-seven boys and girls from these clubs attended Junior Short course; most of them took the poultry course and did creditable work in it.

Two of our poultry club boys were selected to attend Camp Vail at Springfield; they were John Benker and Herbert Lowe of the Norwich Junior Poultry club.

Our poultry club boys have put on several demonstrations; one "Grade Those Eggs" by John Benker and Herbert Lowe placing second in the state contest and winning the county contest. These boys put that demonstration on at various places five times.

We have 47 boys and girls enrolled in the state Junior laying contest. They did very well and managed to stay well up near the top in per cent of reports received in on time.

Russell Fenner of Mystic, a 12-year-old boy, won the contest with an average production of 231.30 eggs per bird. Incidentally this is the highest record ever made in the contest. Russell gets five beautiful Rhode Island Red pullets for this little achievement.

Other boys whose flocks have been consistently high are Donald McGrath of Bozrahville, Raymond Allen of Hanover, Hollis Cummings of Leonard Bridge and Michael Bracyk of Montville.

Many of our boys have some ornational exhibition birds. Donald Chappell of Stonington has been a consistent winner wherever he has shown his White Rocks. His birds placed first and fourth at the Washington, D. C., show. Don also won the Campbell Grain company cup for the second consecutive year for having the largest and best exhibit at North Stonington fair. "Don" is a freshman at Connecticut Agricultural college now and is helping to pay his expenses with poultry.

Harold Kneeland of Lebanon has some fine single comb White Leghorns; Harold won the Tiona cup at the county fair and has been a consistent winner wherever he has shown.

I look to see poultry club work in this county increase and have hopes of 150 youngsters in this project by next spring.

Food.

This is the home-making project we tried to stress during the year, but due to lack of cooking facilities it has not been developed as much as we had hoped for. We have, nevertheless, been able to carry on the work in the following towns: Goshen Hill, Voluntown, Griswold, Montville and Preston.

We have three food preparation clubs with a membership of 41 girls. The clubs are the Sunshine Cooking club of Voluntown under the leadership of Mrs. Mary Peckham. This club did fairly good work but nothing outstanding. The Pachaug Kitchen Bees of Griswold under the leadership of Miss Margery Brewster and the Do-Well Cooking club of Preston with Cynthia Crary as leader. This was the outstanding cooking club of the three. Three of its members went to Junior short course. Its demonstration team made up of Winifred Burdick and Lois Woodmansee won the state championship and as a result are entitled to scholarships to junior short course next year; these same two girls were first and fifth in the bread judging contest. This club sold refreshments at our annual club field day and to

4-H Club Program Recommended for 1929

The outlook for 4-H club work in New London county is very bright at the present time, says Randolph W. Whaples, county club agent. Judging from reports given by men and women at our recent annual farm and home bureau meeting, I am convinced that we have succeeded in enlisting the interest and support of our rural people and feel confident that club work will prosper as long as we have the interest of these people. At the present time we have 32 clubs, with prospects for more. People are realizing the value of the work and what is more important fathers and mothers of children are realizing the value of the work.

Our program for the coming year will be about the same as it was for last year, that is, the organizing of dairy and poultry clubs wherever we deem it advisable.

We plan to organize food clubs wherever there a a desire for them and facilities to carry on the work. With another worker on the state staff, we hope to be able to form all the girls' clubs that we have requests for.

Our plans also call for a limited organization of health and garden clubs as well as some club work with sheep, bees, etc., where there is a genuine desire for such.

HIGH FIGURES REACHED IN YEAR IN BANKING IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

Banking business in New London and Windham counties in 1928 indicated normally healthy business conditions, with increases shown by both the national and the savings banks. The fact that citizens in the different communities have been consistently able to add to their deposits in savings banks is taken to substantiate the belief that the year has been a fairly good one for the average individual who is inclined towards thrift and financial provision for the future.

Total transactions of New London and Windham county banks in 1928 were $1,048,030,057, which exceeded the 1927 figure of $994,896,345.

When the twelve months of 1928 were closed the total of deposits in the savings banks of these two counties was $97,628,596, as compared with $90,970,722 at the end of 1927. In the total of the past year the New London county savings banks have $80,123,989, and the Windham county banks $17,504,607. In the preceding year the New London county banks had $75,650,105 and the Windham county banks had $15,320,617.

Bank Consolidation Was Effected In Norwich

Outside of the financial aspects of the business, the past year in banking in Norwich has been significant for the number of changes which have taken place in the heads of several of these financial institutions and the fact of the consolidation of the Uncas and the Merchants National banks under the name of the Uncas-Merchants National bank.

Plans for the merger of the Merchants bank, which was organized 93 years ago, and the Uncas bank, which had been in business for 78 years, were worked out in the early part of the year and the consolidated bank began business on the first of October, officered by those who had been in executive capacity in the two merger banks The Uncas-Merchants bank will use the building of the Uncas bank on Shetucket street, which is being remodeled to accommodate the expanding needs of the new financial institution. For the present the bank is located in temporary quarters on Shetucket street. Its officers are Henry F. Powers, president; Charles D. Greenman, vice president and cashier; Herbert F. Dawley, vice president; Dwight L. Underwood, assistant cashier; W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., assistant cashier. The merger bank has capital stock of $200,000, surplus of $100,000 and began business with $1,300,494.94 in total deposits, $55,910.67 due to banks, and total resources of $1,729,517, the consolidation of the two banks accomplishing a strong financial situation for the merger bank and enabling it to render a better and more complete service to its customers.

Business in national banking lines has continued at normal volume and financial needs in commercial manufacturing lines have been well taken care of by the Norwich banks. One of its largest years is reported by the Thames National bank of which Arthur M. Brown is president and Nathan A. Gibbs cashier.

The Bankers Trust company, of which Angus Parks hold the presidency and John R. Tarrant is secretary-treasurer, likewise had a prosperous year which enabled it to declare an extra dividend to its stockholders. Savings deposits increased from $588,463 in 2,108 accounts to $688,039.16 in 2,276 accounts. The bank's Christmas fund also recorded a substantial increase, being about 30 per cent more than last year. About $62,000 was distributed to over 1,000 members, which was a gain of about 300 members.

Two Norwich savings bank have had the sad experience of losing their presidents by death. In the first week of January occurred the death of Charles E. Chandler, who had for a number of years been president of the Chelsea Savings bank. Henry G. Peck, who had been first vice president, was elected president later in the month. Oliver L. Johnson and Grosvenor Ely were elected first and second vice presidents respectively, and James C. Macpherson was elected third vice president.

The Dime Savings bank also lost its president by death when Reuben S. Bartlett, who had been president since March, 1925, died on April 27, 1928. B. P. Bishop, who had been first vice president, was elected president in May, 1928, and the bank suffered another loss of an officer, when William B. Young, first vice president, died on Aug. 5, 1928. Walter F. Lester was elected first vice president to succeed Mr. Young.

The Norwich Savings society, which is the one bank in Norwich which pays its dividends quarterly and of which Charles R. Butts is president and Guy B. Dolbeare treasurer, has experienced a good business year, with an increase of deposits from $21,743,419.68 in 22,771 accounts to $22,521,698.68 in 22,584 accounts.

The Chelsea Savings bank has continued to record increasing business, showing that savings deposits have increased from $15,080,262.30 in 19,499 accounts to $15,757,474.58 in 19,620 accounts. At Christmas time this year the bank distributed about $100,000 in Christmas club checks to over 2,000 club members, this being an increase of about $20,000 over the distribution of a year ago.

The Dime Savings bank, which was in its second year in its new banking house on Broadway, had an increasing business, although not quite so large as the year before, but the gain was substantial. Savings deposits increased from $4,841,988.06 in 8,107 accounts to $5,360,480.33 in 8,274 accounts.

Growth In Year In New London Banking

The year of 1928 has witnessed a continued growth of New London banking institutions and some changes in bank personnel. It has been a fairly good year from the business point of view although the larger industries have not been one hundred per cent employed. The New London Ship & Engine company has been running with a skeleton organization and a good part of the year and the Bloom Silk company and Corticelli Silk company have not been as active as formerly, and while the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company was not active during the early part of the year, it has received much better business during the latter part. New London's greatest industries, the United States government forces located here through the submarine base and the coast guard, and the Connecticut college are other sources of increased business for retail merchants. On the whole the year has been probably as good or better than the preceding year.

New London has received a great deal of unpleasant advertising during the past year because of its much heralded drive against delinquent taxpayers. No one objects to the collection of taxes which are due but many are realizing that the methods used are peculiar and that the reaction is most unfavorable to the city. Industries looking for new locations would not be likely to enthuse much over New London as a possible place for location. The ultimate result will undoubtedly be a reaction which will be beneficial. The highly advertised "enormous amount of uncollected taxes" upon analysis proves to have been to a large extent a collection of old accounts for taxes against personal property which has long since disappeared; which has been carried on the books of the city for many years, and which would have been charged off long ago if the financial direction of the city had been in competent hands For example, up to recently the city was carrying as taxes receivable a large amount levied against two steamers belonging to a railroad company and which were located here during the war. The case was settled in the courts against the city many years ago but this item had not been charged off until recently.

In banking personnel the death of William Belcher, president of the Savings Bank of New London for a number of years, and for many years president of the New London City National bank, was a distinct loss. Mr. Belcher had had a long and active career in banking in New London and was held in high regard. His successor as president of the Savings Bank of New London was Belton A. Copp of Groton, who is also president of the National Whaling bank of New London while his successor at the New London City National bank was L. Tracy Sheffield, president and treasurer of the New England Collapsible Tube company. Mr Sheffield has made a wonderful success of his business and will be a very efficient bank president E. C. Hammond of Waterford was elected a director to succeed Mr. Belcher.

During the year death has claimed several directors of other banking institutions including James Bathgate, director of the Union Bank and Trust company; John C. Geary, vice president and director of the Winthrop Trust company, who left an estate of more than a million dollars and who was one of New London's leading citizens; Ralph H. Meicer, director of the National Bank of Commerce. The vacancy in the board at the Union Bank & Trust company caused by the death of Mr. Bathgate was filled by the election of C. K. Hubbard of Lyme, Conn., and at the Winthrop Trust company by the election of Viggo E. Bird as vice president and F. W. Bryce, president of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries company, as director. Because of ill health Simon L. Ewald resigned as a director of the National Bank of Commerce

The Savings Bank of New London has increased its deposits by nearly one million dollars and the Mariners Savings bank by over $600,000 during the past year, while the commercial banks show a greater average in deposits than a year ago.

The New London Building and Loan association has continued to grow and now has assets in excess of $600,000.

During the past few months the Palmer Brothers company has been reorganized and its stock offered for sale to the public. This company has had a long and successful career and is now headed by one of the younger generation of the Palmer family.

The great hope of New London is that during the coming year the destiny of New London as a seaport may be fulfilled by its having become the terminus of one or more of the ocean steamship lines. It is certain that this hope will be realized in time and it is probable that the coming year may see it a reality. New London went through one golden age from 1700-1755 when a very large commerce was carried on with the West Indies and with the Mediterranean ports. From 1817-1850 came the second golden age when New London was the second port in importance in the whaling industry. Since whaling went out there have been numerous revivals of the shipbuilding industry each of which was followed by a reaction. Today New London is probably on the verge of another golden era through the development of ocean steamship lines and its citizens will be found ready to embrace the opportunity which it seems likely will be offered in the near future.

Banks In Danielson Show Growing Business

Every bank in Danielson—the Windham County National, the Brooklyn Savings, the Danielson Trust Co.—has strengthened its position during 1928. Despite the fact that the year did not rate a pre-eminent year generally businesswise, all of these banks did a splendid business. It has been more or less of revelation as to the strong under-current of financial strength in the territory for which Danielson is the banking center. Contemplating this, one realizes that a vast amount of business is transacted every day in a year, as for more than a decade past, all of Danielson's banks have shown a substantial increase in resources, and all have built up their reserves.

Keen competition among the bankers of Danielson for the business of the territory is one of the things that is constantly increasing the resources of the institution. They go after business with an intensity noted in few other communities in Connecticut, and they can go after it with confidence for their splendid positions financially permit them to do this.

Each bank is represented by an outside man. These men range about the territory for miles around. They produce a very considerable amount of new business every week, keep in touch with depositors who have accounts in their institutions and perform many services relative to banking for these depositors that is really greatly appreciated. All of this is done with dignity and with every care and safeguard that should surround good banking practice. As a result of this special effort for business hundreds of people living miles from Danielson are kept in close touch with local banking institutions, give them business and are impressed with the interest shown by the banks in them. It has proved a highly satisfactory arrangement both for the depositors and for the banks. It is incidentally a modern phase of banking and a highly successful one.

As 1928 drew to a close the total resources of Danielson's banks was in excess of $12,500,000. Of this amount $5,440,00 is accredited to the Brooklyn Savings Bank. The Danielson Turst company, doing both a commercial and savings business, had assets of $2,875,000 as the year was closing, this bank being the junior of the three here, and the Windham County National Bank showed $4,200,000. The total resources represent a heavy gain over the figures at the end of 1927.

As in other recent years, much of the gain made by the banks has been in savings departments. Thousands of depositors have acquired the habit of saving something every week, even though it be but a small sum. It has been noted that a great many depositors first acquired the saving habit during the World war, when the doctrine of prudence with one's money was preached so constantly. Finding great satisfaction in the saving practice, numbers who have persevered now have substantial sums to their credit.

The Christmas club plan, also made much of by Danielson's banks, has been a means of permanently increasing resources. It has been established by years of observation that from one-quarter to one-third of the money paid out to Christmas club members comes back to the banks for deposit in savings accounts. This proves true year after year. A Christmas club check many times represents the beginning of a savings account.

The Killingly Trust company, closely affiliated with the Windham County National bank, and housed in the same building, operates largely for the handling of trusts and estates. Its resources, added to those of the other banking institutions in Danielson, gives a total of assets close to $12,000,000.

Danielson bankers at the close of 1928 expressed their complete confidence in making further gains during 1929; in fact, some of them look for the new year to be even better than the past year.

Deserving of mention, as indicating the alertness of Danielson bankers, is the fine spirit of co-operation that they show in their dealings with Danielson's business interests. They are always to be depended upon to do their share in making a success of any undertaking of the chamber of commerce for community sales events or other such affairs that tend to bring Danielson into the public eye.

Mellon Calls 1928 Year Of Progress For The U. S

By Andrew W. Mellon

(U. S. Secretary of the Treasury)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—During 1928 the country has made steady progress.

Early in the year the volume of business began to show marked improvement over the closing months of 1927 and this improvement has continued. It has been evident in manufacturing, in steel production, carloadings, automobile production, building contracts and sales of goods to consumers

All this is evidence also that buying power has been sustained and that, on the whole, satisfactory employment conditions have prevailed.

Prices in basic industries have not been unduly high and have remained fairly stable, nor does there seem to be any immediate danger of excessive demand sending prices to such high levels as to make a slump in activity and consequently in prices inevitable

In the industrial world, conditions seem to be on an even keel; and it is much better to have them so, with a slight upward tendency, as at present.

In the financial world, there is sufficient money available for all legitimate undertakings. A considerable amount of gold has been exported during the last year, but it has not seriously impaired our credit resources while, at the same time, it has helped to establish the gold standard more firmly in Europe and to stabilize foreign currencies with resulting benefits to our import and export trade

In so far as the government is concerned, the finances are in a sound condition. The debt has been reduced to manageble proportions; the revenues are ample for our needs; and during the past year there has been another reduction of taxes, the full benefit of which will be more generally felt during the coming year.

NORWICH POST OFFICE BUSINESS SHOWS SUBSTANTIAL GAIN IN YEAR

But More Local Mailing by Merchants Would Bring Larger Receipts—Two Additional Clerks Added—C. O. D. Business Grows—Burglar Proof Safe and Other Equipment Improvements.

There has been a substantial increase of business in the Norwich post office business during the calendar year 1928, but not as large an increase in receipts in proportion to the business as there should be. The reason for this is seen in the fact that merchants do not patronize their own office. A large amount of advertising matter for the local merchants is made up in the large cities, the merchants paying the postage which is expended at the place of mailing so that the Norwich post office receives no credit for this. As the amount of expenditures in each office is largely governed by the receipts, the local office suffers by the diversion of revenues to other offices and it is difficult to convince the post office department that more assistance is needed in the Norwich office.

After many months of effort, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey induced the department to send inspectors to make a full investigation of the needs of the Norwich office After a stay of several days, the inspectors were convinced that more employes were needed to handle the mails on schedule time and two additional clerks were recommended, together with a liberal allowance for auxiliary clerk hire. Some relief was also allowed the carrier division, so that the night collections were made by substitutes, thus giving some of the outlying districts an earlier delivery.

The receipts grow larger each year, but slowly. The C. O. D. business shows greatest growth, being much heavier than in previous years, and reveals that a small part the buying that is done out of town.

In the postal savings division the business is transacted as the interest of 2 per cent offers no inducements when the savings banks of the city pay more than twice that amount.

Necessary repairs have been made to the building during the year. The terra cotta balustrade around the roof has been put in first class shape. New equipment has been provided, such as up to date bag racks and large canvass hampers on wheels to handle quantities of mail The new three-ton burglar proof safe has been installed in one of the vaults and insures the safety of stamp supplies.

BUSY BUILDING YEAR SHOWN IN TWO EASTERN CONNECTICUT COUNTIES

Church, School, Hospital, Institutional and Mill Buildings Included in New Construction—Total of $5,952,245 in New London and Windham Counties Exceeded Previous Year's Figures—New London County Had $5,196,285 and Windham County $755,960—Many New Dwellings in Cities.

There was continued activity in good volume in building and contracting lines in New London and Windham counties in 1928 which resulted in estimated expenditures that exceeded the figures for 1927 as the 1928 total was $5,952,245, as compared with $5,180,938 in 1927. Church, school, hospital and institutional buildings were included in the construction of the year in various parts of the two eastern Connecticut counties and the cities maintained their usual progress in the erection of new dwelling houses.

For New London county the building total was $5,196,285 compared with $4,027,583 in the preceding year. In the town of Norwich there were somewhat smaller figures than a year ago as the total was $1,017,633 as compared with $1,626,343 in 1927. New London went ahead of the preceding year on a showing of $2,188,652 in 1928, which exceeded the figure of $1,801,240 for 1927. In other parts of the county the 1928 figure of $1,990,000 compared with $600,000 for 1927.

In Windham county the building figures for 1928, viz; $755,960 showed a decrease from 1927 when the total was estimated at $1,153,355. Towards this general result Willimantic contributed $55,960 which was a decrease from the 1927 figure of $303,355, and Putnam was likewise on the decreasing side, showing $200,000 as compared with $400,000 in 1927. Building work in other parts of the county was estimated at $500,000 for 1928 as compared with $450,000 in 1927.

Building activity was sustained in Norwich during 1928 in diversified lines but without the volume of expenditure which had characterized the year before when the estimated total ran to $1,626,343 in city and town. For 1928 the estimated expenditure was over half a million dollars less, being placed at approximately $1,017,633 on the building permits issued in the city and town.

The number of permits was 396, which was four more than in 1927, but the only building construction of more than usual magnitude was that of the new Masonic temple, at an approximate cost of $250,000, a handsome brick, concrete and steel building, 93x143 feet and approximately 52 feet high.

In industrial and commercial lines there was the erection of a two-story and basement brick and concrete addition, 173x83 feet, for the American Thermos Bottle company, a small brick building for the J. B. Martin company, the two-story brick athletic building for the Norwich Free Academy, the new Metropolitan Chain Stores building, 50x120, two stories high, with a 50x20 two-story section, and two brick city barn buildings, one of them being 62x40, two stories, with a one-story extension, 36x42, and the other being 24x102, one story high.

Many New Dwellings.

The number of new dwellings erected considerably exceeded the preceding year, being 97 as compared with 79 in 1927. Of the new dwellings 53 were in the city limits and 44 in the town limits.

Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton issued 286 building permits in the city which was 7 more than in 1927 and Town Clerk Harold S. Burt issued 110 permits which was 14 more than a year ago.

Varied Building In City.

Fire Marshal Stanton issued 42 permits for estimated expenditures of $31,469 in the first quarter in the city, 65 permits for $99,250 in the second quarter, 89 permits for $443,426 in the third quarter, and 79 permits for $174,418 in the fourth quarter of the year.

New frame dwellings	49
New brick, stucco dwellings	4
New frame garages	81
New brick, stone garages	4
New Masonic temple	1
New frame mercantile	4
New brick mercantile	3
New brick industrial	6
New frame sheds, shops, etc.	18
Alterations, frame	96
Alterations, brick	20
Total	286

Values represented in different types of construction in the city were divided as follows:

	No. Permits	Amt.
Frame dwellings	49	$198,675
Brick, stucco dwellings	4	22,450
Frame sheds, shops, etc.	18	2,480
Frame, mercantile	4	7,475
Frame garages	81	20,941
Brick and stone garages	4	5,545
Brick mill and mercantile	10	439,835
Alterations, frame	96	38,444
Alterations, brick	20	62,658
Totals	286	$798,503

Town Building Permits.

Through the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt there were 110 building permits issued, which was 14 more than in 1927 and the classification and values showed as follows:

	No. Permits	Amt.
Frame dwellings	44	$197,000
Frame garages	33	7,815
Frame sheds, etc.	12	4,235
Frame mercantile	2	4,000
Alterations, frame	19	6,280
Totals	110	$219,130

Construction work at the Norwich State hospital which represented close to $600,000 in the erection of two new wards in the 1927 records, accounted pretty largely for the large figures in Norwich that year and the absence of that work in 1928 decreased the totals correspondingly for the year just closed.

Summary, City and Town.

The summary for the city and town is as follows for 1928:

	No. Permits	Amt
New dwellings	97	$418,125
New garages	118	34,101
Frame sheds, shops, etc.	30	6,715
Frame, mercantile	6	11,475
Brick mill, mercantile	10	439,835
Alterations, frame	115	44,724
Alterations, brick	20	62,658
Totals	396	$1,017,633

Small Building Year Shown In Willimantic

The bottom literally dropped out of building activities in Willimantic during 1928, reaching a low level that has not been experienced in the community in many years. A conservative estimate of the cost of building during the year, as taken from the approximated costs shown in the building permits issued by Acting Fire Chief and Building Inspector Michael J. English brings the total to only $55,960. There were 63 permits issued, 29 of them for garages, 17 for alterations and additions, 11 for miscellaneous (sheds, poultry houses, etc.), and six for new dwellings. For the first time in some years no building operations appear under the heading of new mercantile houses or stores. A comparison is shown in this year's building expenditures of less than $56,000 when the figure is placed against those of 1927 which were $303,355; 1926, $212,010 and the banner year, 1925, $637,970.

It is recalled, however that the 1927 total received a substantial boost with a permit for an $180,000 addition to the Windham Street Model school and another of $30,000 to construct the Hall block on Main street, now occupied by the W. T. Grant company.

The low figure of building costs estimates does not necessarily indicate, however, that the hammer and trowel have been entirely idle in the city during the year. Much interior work, which does not require a permit, has been done. About $15,000 has been expended in the modification of the former Turner mill on Valley street for use by the Willimantic State Trade school. It is estimated that about $50,000 worth of equipment will eventually be installed in the school which is now under successful operation with an enrollment of 80 pupils in the regular day classes and 193 night school students. Extensive interior alterations were also made to the former Quidnick-Windham mills on Bridge street. These large mills were purchased during the year by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, and have been made ready for the reception of new industries. No. 2 mill is now occupied by the Willimantic Silk Fre.

Many interior alterations have also been made to the retail stores and Willimantic now boasts of smart appearing shops that are second to none for any city of corresponding size.

With the erection of six new dwelling houses, representing eight tenements, and built at a cost of $24,500 during 1928, Willimantic now has a housing capacity of 1,965 dwellings containing 2,351 tenements. As in the previous two years the tendency in 1928 was for residences of the bungalow or cottage type.

A new high mark was reached in the building cost of new garages, all of which were private in nature. There were 29 of these garages built at a total cost of $12,910 and providing 59 stalls. Incidentally in 1927 there were 34 garages containing 79 stalls built at a cost of only $11,650 while in 1926 there were 28 garages with a capacity of 77 stalls representing an expenditure of $12,035. The average cost per stall for 1928 approved by the building inspector was about $209. The outstanding item under alterations and additions was a permit for a $5,000 expenditure to modernize the front and interior of the Lehrman block on Main street. This block containing two stores on the ground floor was faced with decorative brick topped with an ornamental coping and the entrances were remodelled with marble and tile, giving the structure a most attractive appearance.

Building Summary

Jewett City Has Had Greatest Building Year

A check up on the building activity in Jewett City, both completed and in process of construction, in the past year, includes an item of capital invested equalled only by the building costs of close to 40 years ago when the Aspinook plant was constructed in the borough. During the year 1928, E. E. Gilbert, contractor and builder, has been given the contracts for practically the entire list of the borough's extensive new construction operations.

Conservative figures secured from building costs and tax rate approximations fix the amount of Jewett City's new buildings at $525,000, these figures being entirely exclusive of the new mill at the plant of the Ashland Cotton Co., which, with the main mill building, housings and modern machinery, will foot up to over one million dollars.

Outstanding among the new textile improvements this year, where private capital has not been stinted, nor detail spared that the ends attained might be of the best, are to be seen the following:

The new boiler house and 250 foot chimney at the Aspinook plant. This house was built to take over and supplant the original building, and to modern construction, economic efficiency in operation, and in capacity to handle the many demands for enormous steam supply, it stands as the last word in modern boiler house construction. Two great 600 horse power boilers, with their long batteries of fuel doors, are stoked automatically. Big elevated bunkers overhead take in coal by the car load, from whence the fuel is handled by power, thus eliminating the one time hand and shovel job by the most modern conveniences known.

Specifying further, there is to be seen the grand new St Mary's school and convent, which was built after the most modern designs at a cost of over $150,000. The school is a magnificent 12-room building, 204 feet long and 43 feet wide, in which the hall is to be 95 feet in length by 54 feet in width. The assembly hall will seat 600 pupils. The new convent is a marvel for beauty of construction, being of colonial architecture. It was designed by Boston architects. The remodelling of the original building was done by Gillotte Bros. The cornerstone of the new school was laid with fitting ceremonies, on Sunday, Nov. 4, 1928. Its site is on the west side of North Main street, nearly opposite the practically new St. Mary's church and David Hale Fanning park.

The Jewett City hotel, now owned by Charles Morrissey, is now no more, the building having been erected by the Ira F. Lewis. Mr. Morrissey has this year expended $35,000 in up-to-date improvements, which have included the addition of a dozen new rooms, used exclusively to take care of the increased demand for guest's quarters of modern hotel construction. The hotel front is all new and has been brought out to the highway, with grades and street levels all in accordance with the latest survey.

Joseph Malek has made one of the finest improvements to the borough's main thoroughfare, that has been accomplished in the last decade. At a cost of $25,000 he has rehabilitated and transformed the one time James O. Sweet property into a modern apartment house, with hotel and regular municipal residential flat accommodations. A fine restaurant and two stores are on the lower floor, fronting on Main street.

The new residences of John A. Hourigan on East Main street; Edward F. Blake on Slater avenue, and Mrs. Annie Faber's on the residential section of Ashland street, were built at a collective figure in excess of $20,000. The new homes, all built from the latest improved plans, are of modern construction throughout, and are classed among the finer properties of the borough.

Dr. F. E. Rainville has improved his property on Tracy avenue by the addition and enlargement of several apartments. The outside effect of shingle and cement finish presents many attractive features.

Lemuel Green has built himself a fine new residence on the East Main street highlands at the corner of Palmer avenue. This new home is situated on one of the most desirable sites within the borough limits.

Mike Boduch and Edward Grozynski, two Polish men, with characteristic enterprise, and the desire to own their homes, have bought land on the Preston road. This situation is just outside the borough limits and here as the result of thrift and honest toil, two fine new homes have been built. H. Luker, having purchased the Aaron Green property on North Main street, has enlarged the main building. Extensive plans of remodelling have changed the property into a modern bakery.

MODEL SCHOOL ADDITION, WILLIMANTIC
(Part of Willimantic State Normal School Plant)

WINDHAM STREET MODEL SCHOOL ADDITION MADE IN WILLIMANTIC

The Windham Street Model school addition in the city of Willimantic was opened for use in the fall of 1928. It was built and equipped at a cost of about $300,000, one third of this cost being borne by the town of Windham and the remaining two-thirds by the borough. While a regular staff of teachers is maintained, the plant also acts as a training school for the Willimantic State Normal school of which it is a unit. The addition makes of the Model school one of the most attractive and complete grade schools in Windham county. The addition includes a spacious gymnasium, auditorium, eight standard grade rooms, offices, lavatories, etc. Its modern architectural design includes fireproof construction improved lighting and ventilation facilities and several other noteworthy improvements. The building of the addition relieved a severely crowded condition that existed at the school and which necessitated the holding of classes in the normal school and in a room at the town building for several terms.

Building In New London Exceeded Previous Years

Greater expenditures in building lines in New London in 1928 than in 1927 and a greater number of permits issued through the office of William Gunn, Jr., building inspector. The total estimated expenditures were $2,188,652 and the number of permits 566 as compared with expenditures of $1,801,240 and 549 permits in 1927.

The erection of new dwellings comprised more than half the total in expenditures as the total number was 134 at $1,189,400, exceeding the year before when there were 123 dwellings at $1,172,900. Another class in which the year just closed exceeded the previous twelve months was in new garages. There were 179 private and 10 public garages erected at a cost of $201,665, but in the year before there had been 174 garages at an estimated figure of $117,900.

Two family houses	23	239,000
Three family houses	6	86,000
Four family houses	3	82,000

Alterations, residential	152	134,582
Alterations, non-resi.	50	134,295
Lodge building	1	70,000
Total		$2,188,652

Two of the special pieces of construction during the year were the Elks' new home on Washington street and the Nanine Lawrence Pond house which is the student nurses' dormitory at Lawrence-Memorial hospitals.

The new home of the New London Elks provides complete and commodious quarters for this active organization and the new nurses' dormitory is the culmination of five years of effort on the part of the women's auxiliary of the hospital.

The new Nanine Lawrence Pond house, which was opened for public inspection on Dec. 14 and is named after the president of the auxiliary, has been erected at a construction cost of about $150,000 with about $50,000 more for equipment and furnishings. It stands facing Ocean avenue and is a four story, with ground floor, building of heavy steel and brick construction, with granite base and outside walls of rainstruck brick and limestone trim. All floors are of solid concrete and the partitions of gypsum block, fireproof.

The ground floor contains, at the west end, a recreation room, 24x43 feet, with toilet room and cloak room adjacent. A trunk room, a large reference library and a small laundry room are also at this end of the building. At the east end on this floor are two classrooms, one 24 feet square and the other 24x29, which can be thrown together by pushing back the sliding doors. Also here are the chemical laboratory, diet laboratory and an office. Fire proof stairways lead to the floor above.

On the first floor, entrance is into the lobby, behind which is the lounge, with a sun parlor beyond. There are waiting rooms for visitors, a room for the joint use of the supervisors, the house matron's room and 16 rooms for the use of supervisors, four private baths and two general toilet rooms.

Access to the second floor is by either of two sets of stairways or an electric elevator. This floor and the floors above each contain 25 rooms and each one of the 105 rooms in the building has been furnished by persons who have provided the furnishings either as downright gifts or as memorials. The senior class of nurses is located on the second floor, the second class on the third floor and the first class on the fourth floor. Each floor has a special breakfast room with kitchenette attached.

Provides Accommodation For 50 Mothers and 50 Infants, With Six Members of The Staff—Seaside Sanatorium Plans For New Main Building When McCook Land Is Acquired.

One of the state institutions in New London county which has had its facilities for helpful work greatly improved by a new building addition in the past year is the State Farm for Women which is located in Niantic in the town of East Lyme.

The new building is a mothers' and babies' hospital for which the legislature of 1927-1929 granted an appropriation of $110,000 for the building and equipment. It is designed to accommodate 50 mothers and 50 infants and six members of the staff.

The building is an L-shaped structure, two stories and a half, with frontage of 132.8 feet, the shorter side of the L being 80.8 feet, and is located so that it faces Bride lake, a body of water covering about 65 acres, situated in the center of the institution grounds. The building is of brick, with foundation of field stone taken from the institution grounds. It is fire resisting throughout.

In the basement are the kitchen, laundry, two garages, storage, refrigerator room, heating plant, coal storage, showers, etc.

The first floor provides nurseries for infants, doctor's and nurses' quarters, dining rooms, recreation room, isolation rooms for new admissions and cases of illness.

The second floor contains inmates' bed rooms (single) wards for confinement cases, delivery room, operating room, and quarters for additional staff.

The present population of the new building is 45 mothers and 70 infants. On account of the increased number of infants, it has been impossible to accommodate all the mothers in this building, although there are 56 mothers altogether in the population at the farm. It will be seen that the building is already taxed beyond capacity but, at the present time, those in charge are not seeking to remedy this by enlarging the building. The care of of infants to the whole population (160 women) is excessive.

New $175,000 Building Planned For Seaside

One of the state institutions in New London county for which plans have been made for the erection of a new main building is the Seaside tuberculosis sanatorium at Crescent Beach, Niantic. When this can be built, however, is problematical as erection of the building hinges upon the acquirement of additional land for the sanatorium grounds and this is being fought in the courts by the Eliza A. McCook estate heirs. Their attorney has declared that he will take the case to the supreme court of the state and to the United States supreme court in order to prevent the condemnation proceedings by which the state is endeavoring to acquire the McCook land. Five years have passed since the state took the first steps towards making this addition to the Seaside tract.

Plans for the new building have already been prepared and turned over to the state tuberculosis commission and the department of finance and control. The proposed building has an estimated cost of $175,000 and is to be one-story, fireproof throughout, with two wings extending out and facing Long Island sound and the beach from the central administration building. The capacity is to be 100 children, 50 boys in one wing and 50 girls in the other. The building is so designed as to get the benefit of all sunlight possible and at the same time protect the patients from the north winds. The entire fronts of both wings are all glass and can be opened to allow the nurses to roll the beds out onto the tile terraces in front.

The dining rooms, kitchens, staff quarters, reception and social rooms are in the central section. Sun porches are planned for the ends of each wing, protruding far enough to protect the open terraces from the wind. The right wing of the proposed building would lie on the McCook property.

The present sanatorium building stands back of the left wing of the proposed building and is a wooden building which was formerly the White Beach hotel and was bought by the state in 1916 at a cost of $12,000. It was opened in December, 1918, and for several years has run at full capacity—fifty-nine boys and girls. There is a waiting list of over fifty children, and there are some others now at Undercliff sanatorium at Meriden who should be at Seaside to receive proper treatment. The building is considered dangerous as a fire trap by state officials and inadequate for proper care of the patients.

A tortoise can live to be 350 years old, but no elephant was ever known to live beyond 130 years.

Construction of the new Brooklyn Savings bank building, not yet completed, was the outstanding feature of building activity in Danielson during 1928. This fine new structure, to be ready for occupancy in late February or about March 1, rates as one of the finest of its kind in any southern New England town the size of Danielson.

It is in colonial style, in brick and Vermont marble, and represents a development in banking architecture that already is attracting the attention of architects. Construction operations started in the early spring. The great amount of detail work in the building and the care with which it is being constructed accounts for the long period that will have elapsed between the time building was begun and the time when it is completed and turned over to the bank officials and opened for business. Its cost is in excess of $100,000. Work on the interior finish, which work is now under way, involves the use of a great deal of marble, mahogany and other fine woods. The appointments of the bank will be modern in every particular, and the completed building will bespeak the strength and great prosperity that the Brooklyn Savings bank has enjoyed through the more than half century that has elapsed since its organization back in 1872. This bank removed from Brooklyn to Danielson in 1913, and its resources have since shown a remarkable increase.

The Eastern Connecticut Power company also has contributed to the improvement of Danielson's business section this year by purchasing the Young property of D. Blumenthal and transforming it, at much expense, into its Danielson district headquarters. Its site is at the northwest corner of Main and Academy streets, directly across the street from the new Brooklyn Savings bank. This building, formerly one of the fine residences of Danielson, also is done in colonial style. Its interior provides a display and sales room for electrical devices, commodious general office quarters and smaller offices for the manager and department heads on the first floor space. The second floor provides a conference room, a community room, other offices and a kitchen equipped with electrical appointments that immediately suggest to the housewife what science has done to lighten her burdens and to make what she has to do more of a pastime than a task.

LaBelle & Page, contractors and builders, are owners of the large frame and metal sheathed structure built early the past year on Railroad street, about opposite Oak street. This structure has permitted the concern to establish a woodworking plant, and permits of the storage of large quantities of building materials of various kinds that the firm handles. The building is located close to a siding of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad, so that arriving cars can be quickly and conveniently unloaded and their contents transferred to the building mentioned.

A number of dwellings have been constructed in Danielson the past year, and various buildings remodeled.

A prospect of the year and one that seemed imminent at times was that of Danielson getting a new hotel. The prospect was that the Atawaugan hotel, a landmark here, would be demolished and replaced by a modern hotel. The negotiations forecasting this failed. Again the past fall Boston interests took an option on the hotel and planned to tear it down and place a modern business block on the site. This arrangement also collapsed Dec. 15, the Boston people sacrificing their option money.

Many thousands of dollars were spent during 1928 by the Putnam Theatre corporation in remodeling the interior of the Orpheum theatre. A complete transformation was undertaken and accomplished, and the house is now one of the most handsomely appointed of any theatre in any town of Danielson's status in New England. The interior was entirely redecorated, a new heating system, new seats, new stage equipment installed. The front of the house also was modernized and rearranged, a feature being the installation of a rest room for women patrons and a smoking room for the men. Rich, new drapings and carpeting add to the beauty of the theatre, and a new pipe organ gives additional class to the house.

There was great activity in another line of building—the construction of modern state highways—on trunk lines radiating from Danielson during 1928. More than a mile of concrete was completed in Attawaugan on the Danielson-Putnam route and a steel and concrete bride built over the Assawaga river as part of this operation. In Danielson a new route was opened on to the Providence road. For this improvement the state purchased the necessary right of way. The newly completed road, leaving Main street at Hutchins street, runs eastward a distance of about two miles to link up with that part of the Providence trunk line opened about four years ago. This cutoff relieves the heavy travel through narrow Reynolds street.

not fail to note the increased number of homes, the greatly improved condition of the streets, and the street lighting, the gratifying increase in the size of our schools with the up-to-date buildings and equipment which our town has provided. In fact, throughout the city the brighter and cleaner appearance of the houses and grounds should give us as citizens a feeling of tempered pride and thankfulness. We realize that the standard of living has become such that conditions once accepted in a matter of fact way, years ago, would not now be tolerated, which should encourage us to continue the good work.

The position taken by our chamber of commerce in foreseeing the needs of our city by organizing a city planning committee is a long step forward. The fact that the chamber of commerce has a full-time paid secretary looking out for the interests of the city is in keeping with the best methods.

A move to co-ordinate or consolidate the several charitable organizations in our city would be a move in the right direction. The wise charity is not the indiscriminate giving which degrades the receiver, but the giving of money, food, clothing or counsel that will enable the recipient to stand on his own feet and face the future with some degree of confidence. Our welfare bureau should be sustained and improved and the relief requested of our city and town governments should be made through one headquarters and one office—that of the welfare bureau.

We may well be thankful that we have escaped the storms, tornadoes, floods, fires, droughts, etc., that have afflicted other localities, and we would do well to realize and affirm that we live in one of the most favored parts of our great country.

Wherever the name of Willimantic is known it should bring to mind a thriving city of eastern Connecticut, the gateway to the historic territory of Coventry, Mansfield, Windham, Scotland, Lebanon; a city which can offer the home seeker advantages not to be found in other and larger places; a city whose people are sympathetic, hospitable, genuine and law-abiding; a city whose people are proud of their heritage and strong in the belief that only by common and united action can the dream of the future be brought to an actuality.

President Willimantic Exchange Club.

Norwich Merchants Bureau Has Had Varied Activities

The activities of the Norwich Merchants bureau have been many and varied during the season now closing. Early in January a program was adopted and a budget of $3,600 raised to carry it into effect. During the year the objective was fulfilled. The merchants bureau now has a total of 185 members, 42 of whom are active and interested in the credit bureau. The program for the year is briefly described below.

The retail credit bureau has practically doubled its activities during the course of the current year. At the close of 1927 about 25 members were interested in this part of the chamber's program. After consolidating with the Merchants bureau during the campaign in January a new interest was evidenced and a total of 42 members are now both rendering and obtaining credit information on approximately 18,000 accounts. The files have been completely renovated, information brought up to date, and the service is now being handled with much more rapidity. The schedule of calls handled during recent months is as follows: January, 148; February, 218; March, 247; April, 218; May, 215; June, 212; July, 148; August, 149; Sept., 210; Oct., 218 and November, 195.

ABNER SCHWARTZ

Another service of particular value to users of the bureau has been a series of collection letters (four in number). Members are using them with marked effect in connection with accounts long past due. The series are prepared on letter-heads of the retail credit bureau and are given free to users of the bureau. Cooperative advs. have been run in the newspapers encouraging better credit relations between customers and stores. These advs. have appeared periodically on the tenth of each month for a period of four months. This arrangement has been possible through a special subscription made by the Norwich Bulletin and Evening Record to the special activities fund in the chamber which was partly apportioned for use in the credit bureau by the directors of the chamber.

The credit bureau carries on an exchange of information with other credit bureaus throughout the country through the medium of its membership in the National Retail Credit association. A surprising number of toll calls are transmitted between Hartford, New London, Bridgeport, New Haven, Worcester, Springfield, Providence and the Norwich operator. Likewise quite often the Norwich operator obtains information about new residents of Norwich from the cities which they come from. The toll charges on the private credit bureau telephone quite frequently amount to $20 for one month. All information handled by this department is in code and confidential. No one but the operator ever has access to the files.

Two Dollar days, two Suburban days and the spring and fall opening events comprise the program of special sales events during the year. The success of these promotions is attested to by the unusual crowds which are always seen on the streets during their progress. Unusual and attractive bargains are featured by the many stores participating and a general satisfaction results in the minds of the public as well as the merchants. The fall opening program was paticularly unique this year, when about thirty automobiles were furnished by the dealers in Norwich to provide conveyance for the various models introduced by the merchants and representing the different modes of fashion for the fall season.

A quiet and effective advertising campaign which endeavored to bring the house to house peddler problem fairly before the minds of the Norwich housewives, was in process during the spring months. A series of eight advs were run in the local papers. This arrangement was made possible by a special contribution made by the Norwich Bulletin and Record to the chamber special activity fund, amounting to $500. The directors in turn allocated $200 of this amount for the use of the merchants bureau and $100 for the credit bureau. This unusual and most acceptable subscription was secured through Ex-President James L. Case, during the campaign of the chamber last fall.

Nearly 200 salespeople and over 60 merchants and business men attended the sessions of the Better Business Institute held under the auspices of the merchants bureau during the week of Oct. 15-19 inclusive.

The summer closing hours were carried out as usual through the cooperation of many merchants. Some variations and opinions were quite evident in connection with the holiday closing. A committee has been appointed to make a study of the various holidays throughout the year and adopt a program for the approval of the merchants. It is hoped that this plan will be followed by the majority.

While it is true that the merchants bureau has had a very active and successful year, nevertheless there are many matters which need to be taken up as we face the new year. Definite provision should be made for decorating the business section in line with the policy adopted in other cities. This year the Christmas tree in Franklin Square was somewhat of a cooperative arrangement. The tree was arranged for by the merchants' bureau. It was erected and placed through the courtesy of the city officials. The gas and electric department contributed the labor necessary to put the light on the tree and furnished the current. The wires and lights belong to the chamber of commerce.

A closer cooperation and understanding between merchants relating to policies in advertising might be made effective through the adoption of an advertising code or agreement. A further study of the credit situation and definite steps to increase the use of this department should be made. These matters, along with the continuation of the sales events, fall and spring openings and other activities will undoubtedly form the program for the merchants' bureau during 1929.

A budget of $3,500 has been adopted. The merchants will be asked to subscribe on a pro rata basis as they did last year. The record of the year's accomplishments should justify a continuation of this support. Your president is most grateful for the cooperation of the members and the citizens at large in Norwich during the year.

ABNER SCHWARTZ
General Chairman, Merchants Bureau

Norwich Rotary Ready For Community Service

Rotary is only one of thousands of American organizations, but unlike most of them it is always in the open, and the sound of its meeting is always allover the hotel and frequently heard out in the street. But underneath all this apparent lightness or levity, Rotary tells itself there are little community jobs it can do. There is a boy or a public work which can be helped along and it is done without any expectation of getting the Nobel prize or a foreign decoration.

EDWARD W. JEWETT
President

In its own little way, the Norwich Rotary club does what it can. Our resources are somewhat limited but someday it is hoped that the Dr. John S. Blackmar Boys' Fund will have grown to such an extent that the income will enable us to extend our work to wider fields.

This year Rotary International is stressing "Vocational Service" which is just another name for "Business Methods" the underlying principle of which is the Golden Rule. All business would be much better and more pleasant if we all practiced that old rule.

Business conditions in general this past year have been good. The prospects for this coming year seem even better and the Norwich Rotary club desires to express through the courtesy of the Norwich Bulletin to the citizens of Norwich and vicinity its very sincere wish for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

EDWARD W. JEWETT,
President Norwich Rotary Club.

Business Women's Club Had Progressive Year

The year of 1928 is finished and the Business and Professional Women's club is almost two years old. In looking back over the events of this year's history of the club, we as members have the feeling that it has been a season of definite progress.

Many valuable contacts and lasting friendships have been made with individuals and with other organizations and institutions through their representatives who have come to us as speakers from time to time.

It was with great interest and pleasure that we heard Rev. Alexander H. Abbott talk on "Psychology and Religion," and Principal Henry A. Tirrell on "Play for Adults." We learned about the revaluation of property from Arthur M. Brown and the inn project from Robert W. Perkins. Miss Irma Hutzler gave an instructive talk about social service work and Mrs. Albert H. Chase told us about our own local social agency, the United Workers. Walter H. Pilcher brought a most cordial invitation from the Chamber of Commerce to furnish judges for the merchants' window displays at the spring opening in March. This invitation we most heartily accepted. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell gave us a much greater insight into the history and needs of tuberculosis sanatoria than most of us had ever had before. We learned about salesmanship and service from Mrs. S. W. Scvin and the 1928 nurse from Mrs. Ruth Raymond of the Backus hospital.

Each speaker brought us something in which we as business and professional people were especially interested. But of greater worth than that is that sense of friendliness and good will which we have been made to feel more deeply than ever because of these many pleasant contacts.

Some of our meetings have been purely social—times of relaxation and fun. We played together at Pinehurst with Miss Betsey Mitchell, we picnicked at Oswegatchie with Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, we frolicked at Light House Inn and played pinochle at the home of Mrs. Higgins on Sachem terrace.

But we have done other things which we feel mark progress. We gave a Little Sister party last February to a group of girls ranging from ten to sixteen years of age. During the summer we provided vacations for seven children, five of these being in the fresh air group who came from New York. Through the generosity and public spirit of one of our members, Miss Jane Bill, the club was able to rent the the Broadway theatre for the Armistice day meeting held there. Last spring we became federated with the state and national organizations of

MISS LUCY B. ABBOTT
President

Business and Professional Women's clubs and later we joined the local Chamber of Commerce. We joined with the other women's organizations in the political meeting held in the town hall in September and have gone on record as endorsers of the resolutions of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact.

While the club has been going forward in its activities, we have at the same time lost some of our enthusiastic and valuable members. Dr. Kathryn Bryan who has moved to Cadillac, Michigan, and Mrs. Arthur Harvey Lathrop, whose death we all keenly felt, as well as several others who have left town, are a definite loss to our organization. With regret and sorrow for the loss of these members but with hope and confidence in those who come into our club, as new members, we look forward to another progressive and happy New Year.

LUCY B. ABBOTT,
President Business and Professional Women's Club.

Woman's City Club Adds To Its Civic Activities

The purpose for which the Woman's City club was organized was "To apply the united influence of woman to the civic, educational and social problems of the city and town of Norwich." As we look back we feel the thrill of the adventure and its success. As we look forward may we not forget the purpose.

This year we added to our civic activities the Christmas pageant for children. We feel sure that the 800 children and the older friends from all quarters of the town who enjoyed Cinderella—the Jester, Santa Claus and last but not least the hanging of their toys on the tree to be distributed later through the United Workers, considered it one of the outstanding events of the year. One to be repeated.

There are 14 departments in the club through which the 550 odd women members have the opportunity to express themselves; art, dramatics, literature and current events, parliamentary law, music, sanitation, parks and trees, Americanism, education, girls' work, home economics, garden and child study.

Through the efforts of the various chairmen splendid outstanding people are brought to us to lecture. Many of these meetings are open to men. We hope they will avail themselves more often of the opportunities offered.

MARION LEE BISHOP,
President Woman's City Club.

Lionism Applies The Golden Rule In Life

There is no agency so powerful as that of Friendship and Good Fellowship in the transmission of ideas and ideals in the community. The Lions club prides itself on being such an agency, for Lionism is the Golden Rule in actual fire, resulting in community development and advancement—the strong helping the weak. The lions' code of ethics illustrates this:

1. To show my faith in the worthiness of my vocation by industrious application to the end that I may merit a reputation for quality of service.
2. To remember that in building up my business it is not necessary to tear down another's.
3. Whenever there is a doubt as to the rights or ethics of my position or action towards my fellowmen, to resolve such doubt against myself.
4. To hold friendship as an end and not as a means. To hold that true friendship exists not on account of the service performed by one to another, but accepts service in the spirit in which it is given.
5. Always to bear in mind my obligations as a citizen to my nation, my state, and my community, and to give them my unswerving loyalty in word, act and deed. To give them freely of my time, labor and means.
6. To aid my fellow men by giving my sympathy to those in distress, my aid to the weak, and my substance to the needy.
7. To be careful with my criticism and liberal with my praise; to build up and not destroy.

During the year 1928 the Lions club of Norwich has attempted to live up to this code of ethics and has taken care of the poor and needy with medical and surgical aid, has given financial aid to worthy cases, and has been well represented in every civic and community enterprise. Two events which have

KLEIN SEES GOOD OUTLOOK IN 1929 FOR DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN TRADE

By Dr. Julius Klein

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The year 1928 closed with domestic business larger than ever before and foreign trade in exceptional volume with every indication that industry and trade will maintain the high levels of recent months.

The automotive and construction industries continued throughout 1928 to be the back-log of America's prosperity. Automobile production has been larger than in any earlier year and construction contracts have shown a substantial growth. The activity of these industries has resulted in a greatly increased demand for many related products such as steel, lumber, cement and refined petroleum.

The output of farm crops during 1928 was about five per cent larger than in the preceding year and there was an even greater increase in industrial production. The expanding activity of industry and trade reduced to a minimum the unemployment which was noted in the early part of the year.

Wholesale prices have shown comparatively little change, and there has been no considerable accumulation of stocks of commodities.

The heavy flow of gold in the first half of 1928 resulted in a considerable change in the money situation. Partly as a result of this reduction in our gold stock, but more largely as a consequence of the extraordinary activity of the stock exchanges, rates for call money and for stock-exchange time loans advanced sharply.

Bank credit for commercial purposes, however, has continued in ample supply at rates only slightly higher than a year ago, while open market rates for commercial paper have shown a slightly greater advance.

Our total exports of merchandise increased about 3 per cent over 1927 and exceeded five billion dollars in the year just past, the highest since 1920. Practically all of this growth was due to larger shipments of finished manufactures—automobiles, machinery, refined petroleum and metal products.

Imports were slightly smaller in value than in the immediately preceding years, due largely to a decline in the prices of a number of important raw materials. As a result of the expansion in exports and the decline in imports, our "favorable" balance of trade for merchandise exceeded $900,000,000—the largest since 1924.

In July sixty years ago, Norwich was agog with excitement and anticipation over the excursion to be made to the city by the famous 7th regiment of the city of New York, the crack military organization of the country. They came, they saw and were conquered by the hospitality of the Norwich citizens, which culminated in a grand military ball, or promenade, as it was called in the stately phrase for such a social event in the 60's.

In recognition of their reception here the regiment presented the city a handsome memorial drawn up in the most flowery phrase of the day This is enclosed in an elaborately carved frame, decorated in gold, and is now to be seen on the wall in the main floor corridor of the court house. Underneath the script is a picture of Williams park, showing the regiment drawn up for parade. The memorial declares that it is in appreciation of the "welcome and hospitality of the entire community" and that the "city of Norwich will ever be "synonymous to our vocabulary with all that is generous and hospitable."

Contemporary writers of the period declare that never was there such a display of manly chivalry and womanly loveliness as was to be seen at the ball which was given in an immense pavilion of canvass erected on what was then known as Williams park and is now known as Chelsea parade. It is this promenade scene which makes the picture for The Bulletin's annual calendar, which is distributed with this issue of the paper, printed in colors from the original sketch in a New York newspaper which has been supplied to The Bulletin from the library of William H. Shields, who has for years found a special interest in collecting Norwich historical material.

An Editorial Welcome.

The New York infantry regiment made its visit here on Friday, July 10, 1868, coming from New York to the city by boat, the steamer City of Lawrence, of the old Norwich and New York line, a palatial steamer for its day, the name of which will be readily recalled by many of the present day.

In The Bulletin of that morning an editorial welcome to the visiting citizen soldiers was expressed as follows:

The Reception of The Seventh.

Norwich today extends welcome to a regiment of citizen troops which is eminent alike for its proficiency in military exercises, for the high standing and qualities of its members, and for its honorable record in defense of an imperilled country. At the call for troops in 1861 it was among the very first to hasten to the defense of the threatened capital. Its march from Annapolis to Washington, with the 8th Massachusetts, forms one of the most thrilling episodes of that period of our history. Its roll of honor shows 918 names of its members who served as privates or officers in the army or navy during the war, and its memorial record bears the brief obituaries of one-tenth of this number. The war over, the 7th, having proved itself no carpet regiment, resumes its high standing in the national guard of the Empire State. Both as the representative of that state, and as in itself a noble example of what is soldierly and gentlemanly, we welcome it to Norwich."

Arrangement For Reception.

The visit of the well known regiment was an event which aroused state-wide interest and brought visitors to the city even from the western part of Connecticut by special excursion trains and the most complete plans were made for the comfort and entertainment of the city's guests for the day.

"The famous Seventh New York regiment, the crack regiment of the country, will arrive in this city by the steamer City of Lawrence this morning. Since the announcement that the Seventh would visit Norwich, nothing since the centennial celebration has created such interest and enthusiasm in this vicinity. Not only in the neighboring towns but in the cities of the state the people have been eager to learn of the progress of the arrangements and of whatever concerned the excursion. The trains yesterday brought large numbers of visitors and today thousands will arrive from city and country. The Hartford, Providence and Fishkill road will run excursion cars to accommodate those desirous of visiting Norwich today from that part of the state.

"Many of the buildings on Main and other streets were decorated yesterday, while others have made preparations to hang out their banners this morning. It is expected that in accordance with the request made places of business will be closed this forenoon."

Handling The Traffic.

Traffic was a word which was doubtless hardly known to the men of that day in the sense we understand it now, but it was necessary to make some provision so that the course of the parade should not be interrupted. For that reason the following police orders were promulgated by the chief of police:

The chief of police has issued orders as follows:

Three officers and five men will be detailed to accompany the regiment on the line of march. Four men will be stationed on Shetucket street while the regimental line is being formed. Four men will precede the regiment about 20 rods on its march, stopping at each crosswalk to prevent carriages from crossing, remaining until the head of the regiment has passed and resuming their positions. Two men will be detailed at the park to close Williams avenue against the passage of teams. Two or more men will be detailed for duty about the park. The men will appear in full dress. The detail will take position with the chief after the regiment has countermarched on Main street.

Reception Committee.

The newspaper account concludes with the announcement of the reception committee as follows by Mayor Lorenzo Blackstone:

"A meeting of the committee on reception was held at the council chamber last evening. The following special committee was appointed to receive the regiment: Mayor Blackstone, Gen. Wm. Williams, James Lloyd Greene, Col. C. A. Converse, Col. David Young, Samuel C. Osgood, Col. J. J. McCord, Col. John E. Ward, Gardiner Greene, I. M. Buckingham, Wareham Williams, L. H. Chester, Capt. A. D. Smith, Capt. A. D. McCall, Gurdon P. Cottrell, Jedediah Huntington, 3d, John W. Murphy, George W. Hunting, Edwin S. Ely, Capt. S. T. C. Merwin.

"The committee will meet at the council chamber at half past eight o'clock and proceed to the boat at nine o'clock."

Caught City Napping.

A thirteen gun salute was in the plans to greet the regiment upon its arrival at the dock in the morning, but the boat came in about two hours and a half ahead of time, catching the salute committee napping. Let the chronicler of that day tell his own racy story which he wrote for Bulletin readers on the morning of the 11th of July:

The Visit of the 7th Regiment.

The 7th regiment of the New York state national guard, Col. Emmons Clark, commanding, arrived at the dock in this city in the neighborhood of 5 o'clock on Friday morning on the steamer City of Lawrence. They were in number 550—including the band and drum corps—being about one-half the regiment. The programme hour for the arival was 7.30, but as the boat made its appearance on the Thames two hours and more ahead of time, the cheering of the boys and the music of the band waked up the sleepy citizens on the river bank and made the salute committee open their eyes and soon the cannon gave out the merry greetings to the visitors.

As soon as the boat was fastened to the dock the regiment made a surprising display of tactics, not according to Upton, and known by the unmilitary word of "swarmery." They were all over town at once, in express wagons, milk wagons, lumber wagons, afoot and on horseback, in boats on the river, and in whatever way swarming has been reduced to a science. As the hilarious groups wandered through the streets in perfect freedom from reception committees, singing, laughing, smoking, chattering, shouting and perhaps just glancing at the "early birds" of girls (to see if any of them would agitate a handkerchief in return), the staid and solid citizens who keep reasonable hours in the morning rubbed their eyes and peeped through the blinds and said: "Bless us, they got the start of us," and fell to dressing in a tearing hurry. The boys saw the town pretty extensively before 8 1-2 o'clock, at which time they were all on hand at the boat for roll call, and ready for the formal welcome of the reception.

Shortly after, Mayor Blackstone, with the special committee of reception, proceeded to the boat, and the officers of the regiment having assembled in the saloon, the mayor, in behalf of the citizens of Norwich and the committee of reception, bade the regiment welcome to the Rose of New England.

Mayor Blackstone's Welcome.

"Col. Clark, officers and members of the 7th regiment: In behalf of the citizens of this place it is my pleasant duty to welcome you here cordially and heartily. The reputation of the regiment is national. It is the universal admission that it is the model regiment of citizen soldiers in the country. We remember that it was the 7th which, when news of the first outbreak of treason was conveyed to the north, sprang to arms to defend the government. With such a reputation I need not tell you how proudly we acknowledge the honor you have conferred upon us by this visit. I desire to thank you on behalf of the citizens for selecting Norwich over other and larger places where more extended facilities might have made your reception one of greater splendor, but let me assure you you would have been received with no warmer hearts than are here today."

Colonel Clark Replies.

"Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the committee of the citizens of Norwich: In behalf of the regiment which I have the honor to command I thank you for the kindly sentiments so happily expressed and for this cordial welcome. When the members of this regiment had decided to take a holiday and were deliberating as to the proper place in which to spend it, your beautiful city was suggested among others, and was selected by acclamation. For be it known that the fame and good name of the city of Norwich are familiar to the young men of the Empire City. They have heard of its beautiful scenery and its commercial prosperity, of its wealth, of the intelligence and accomplishments of its people. They have heard that its men are hospitable and its women beautiful. They know something of its history, that it was one of the pioneer towns of the new world, that it performed its whole duty a century since in the grand old Revolution which rescued this fair land from foreign oppression and gave to it the inestimable blessings of freedom. And they have heard and do know that in the last great struggle to preserve that precious legacy—the union of the states—Norwich was among the first to rally round the flag and send its sons to the battlefield.

"All this and more they have heard and know. And now they have come themselves to see the beauty and greatness of one of Connecticut's most charming cities.

"Be assured that the young men whom you see before you are not all strangers to the land of "Steady Habits." Many have visited you on business or for pleasure. Many by birth and marriage have near and dear associations with Yankeeland. I doubtless speak for others as well as myself when I say that if there is anything of which I am truly proud it is that my ancestors were natives of New England.

"My admiration for New England—for its institutions, for its learning, for its patriotism, for its energy, for everything that is good, great and admirable—is so intense and heartfelt that I am in danger of wearying you.

"In conclusion, allow me again, in behalf of this regiment, in behalf of the great city which we are proud to call our home and of the great state which we ever delight to honor and defend, to thank you for this kind reception."

These little formalities over, mutual introductions followed and the flow of informal welcome and response went on till the time came for the regiment to fall into line. Shortly after 9 o'clock the regiment formed on Shetucket street. The members appeared in their full-dress uniforms—or rather the uniform of the days before the war, reassumed—with gray coat and white pants. They looked as neat and trim as if just out of a laundry.

A large crowd of spectators lined the streets, a continuous stream of country wagons having been for an hour or two pouring into the city, with delegates from all the neighboring towns. After forming in line, the column moved up Shetucket street and through Main to Franklin square, where the escort companies, B and C, of the 3rd regiment, C. N. G., Capts. Smith and McCall, awaited them. The line of march was then taken up through Main street to the toll bridge, countermarching to Franklin, through Franklin, Broad, Broadway, Union, Main and Washington, to Williams park.

The route of march was thronged and crowds of people accompanied the regiment, attracted by the magnificent marching and fine appearance and by the music of the band. Many of the stores and private residences along the route were decorated with flags, streamers, etc. The streets on the Plain were in the best of order and the sidewalks and grounds had been reduced to a glorified state of niceness seldom seen outside the romances of the day. Old Norwich had on her best holiday dress and the visitors evidently entered into a beatific state of enjoyment befitting the glorious weather and the beauties of the scenery.

Arrived on the park, the escort skirmished around and cleared the grounds while the 7th regiment engaged in battalion drill. With the evolutions, of course, everybody was delighted. The military visitors—and there were many from Hartford and other places—looked at them with a professional eye and appeared to be as greatly edified at the civilians.

The drill and review by the mayor were over shortly after 1 o'clock and the regiment stacked arms and made an orderly advance on the tent, where a collation handsomely arranged on six long tables fell an easy prey to them. Plates were laid for over one thousand guests. The tables were covered with paper spreads made for the accasion in long rolls and trimmed off the day before. The tent was neatly decorated with flags, shields et. The waiters, consisting mostly of substantial Norwich citizens, were active and attentive, and everything was lovely.

After the collation, the boys shook their repast down with several rounds of cheers and Mayor Blackstone then introduced General Williams, saying that he was one of the veterans of 1812. He was received with cheers, and responded with a brief address welcoming the visitors to Norwich at the headwaters of the Thames on whose banks the new naval depot was to be, the defense of New York as well as Connecticut. He trusted the friendly relations existing might prove our mutual defense in war. The colonel proposed three cheers for Mayor Blackstone who responded with a brief address. B. W. Tompkins, a former member of the regiment, Daniel P. Tyler of Windham county (who was announced as a relative of General Putnam and who made an exceedingly humorous speech), Col. Bernard, Adjutant Fitzgerald, Col. Clark, Major Manning, another hero of the war of 1812, and Col. C. A. Converse, also addressed the regiment, all of whom were received heartily. The members had, by the time the speech-making was closed, distributed themselves about the park and squads were strolling about the city, forming new friendships and looking up old ones. A game of baseball was started between nine of the 7th and six of the citizens. Only five innings were played and the result was not announced.

Dress Parade

At 5 o'clock dress parade came off. It was witnessed by a crowd of some thousands. The regiment then marched to the boat where the arms were deposited and the men then scattered themselves about the city.

The reception was all that could have been expected. The day was pleasant, though at times uncomfortably warm. The police arrangements were admirable and the several committees performed their duty to the satisfaction of all. Nothing occurred to mar the occasion, and the programme was carried out with complete success. The regiment was enthusiastic in its expressions of pleasure and satisfaction at the manner in which the reception was managed. All pronounced the excursion one of the most enjoyable in which they had ever participated.

Brilliant Ball Scene

The promenade concert and the ball in the evening was a highly successful affair. Aside from the New York visitors the occasion was graced by the presence of gentlemen and ladies from all parts of the state. The big pavilion was brilliantly illuminated by a number of large chandeliers improvised for the occasion, and its tasteful decorations appeared to even greater advantage than by daylight. There was ample room for dancing, the dimensions of the ten being 210 by 80 feet and the floor space about 180 by 60. The commodious stage occupied one end of this spacious saloon and was reserved for the splendid band of the regiment and for the most highly ornamental male spectators. This, with the space set off for the dressing rooms, still left room for all the sets formed and many more. There were a great many fine toilettes and the observing mind had an excellent opportunity to rumminate upon the distinctive beauties and advantages of short dresses and trails. A painful contemplation of the wreck of some of the latter doubtless suggested their disadvantages.

The appearance of the promenade was very brilliant, the military uniforms and the gay toilettes worn by the ladies blending in harmonious contrast, and the visitors appeared to "blend" socially to a very satisfactory degree. The dancing was kept up till 12 o'clock precisely, when the lively galop ceased and "Home Sweet Home" noted the hour of retiring. The guests forthwith formed into line, gave several parting rounds of cheers and betook themselves leisurely to the City of Lawrence, which cast off from the dock at about 1 o'clock. So ended a day which the citizens of Norwich hope was as agreeable to their visitors as to themselves.

What New York Said

"So closed the local account of the great day when the New York citizen soldiers and the citizens of Norwich fraternized in so cordial a spirit.

To complete the picture it remains to give the impression which the New York visitors received from their excursion to the Rose of New England. This is given in the following from a New York newspaper which chronicled the event:

Friday, July 10th, was a grand gala day to the citizens of Norwich, Conn., in consequence of a visit paid them by the famous 7th Regiment of New York city. Probably no excursion in which the regiment has yet participated has been a more decided success than its eastern trip. The soldiers were received with the most complete and extensive arrangements expressive of a generous and sincere cordiality, and with a manifest disposition on the part of their hosts to secure for them the greatest amount of pleasure in the shortest time. The regiment proceeded to Norwich on board the elegant steamer City of Lawrence, and whiled away the hours of the sail with dancing, music, lively gossip and various speculations on the manner of their reception by the hospitable Norwichians. The arrival of the regiment at the steamboat's wharf was announced by a salute of thirteen guns, and in a few moments crowds of men, women and children were seen pouring into sight from every direction.

After landing, the soldiers marched through the principal streets of the city, and then repaired to Williams park, where they went through the manual of arms and performed various military evolutions, with a precision and grace that elicited the warmest approbation of the delighted citizens. The regiment was then formally received, in a felicitous address by Mayor Blackstone, who, on concluding his remarks, introduced General Williams, a veteran of the War of 1812, by whom brief remarks, descriptive of the historical associations of the city, were made, amidst the most profound silence.

After some of the choicest selections from the musical repertoire of the regiment, the visitors, escorted by the reception committee, and the invited guests, marched to a most sumptuous banquet, arranged under the direct management of Colonel Converse, an old and highly-esteemed citizen. Toasts followed the disposal of the solid portion of the feast, and pleasant responses were made by the municipal authorities, the officers of the regiment and several veterans of 1812.

The festivities of the day were brought to an end with a grand ball given in honor of the visitors, within a huge canvass pavilion, kindly donated for the occasion by the city of Boston. At this entertainment there was an array of beauty, both of persons and costumes, but rarely excelled. The young ladies of the city turned out in a goodly battalion, and with their richest toilettes, while the soldiers looked the embodiment of all that is noble and attractive. The pavilion was brilliantly lighted, and ornamented with descriptions of welcome mottoes and the national and state colors, and the ladies and gentlemen who did the honors of the occasion acquitted themselves with becoming grace.

Dancing was kept up until midnight when all music ceased, a sudden flurry seemed to take possession of all the participants, and each one commenced a farewell handshaking with his fellow. By one o'clock the entire regiment had embarked on the steamboat, and after expressions of mutual satisfaction and respect, the boat steamed off for the homeward trip—reaching this city at 11 o'clock, when the regiment proceeded to the armory and was dismissed.

so doing earned enough to send the three members and the club leader to junior short course

While food preparation clubs are hard to organize I have hopes of organizing at least three more in the near future.

Besides the food preparation clubs we had four food preservation clubs: Cochegan Canning club of Montville under the leadership of Miss Elace Dart; Do-Well Canning club under the leadership of Miss Cynthia Crary; Pachaug Canning club under Miss Margery Brewster; and the Goshen Hill Canning club with Miss Annie Gillett in charge.

These clubs did very good work and exhibited much of it at various fairs. Every club had a canning demonstration team; 24 of the 38 girls enrolled completed their projects. The girls canned 862 1-2 quarts of fruit and vegetables during the year. Some of the girls who did very good work were Mary Maynard and Elace Dart of the Cochegan club of Montville; Winifred Burdick, Lois Woodmansee, Florence Pendleton, Laura and Bertha Pierce of the Do-Well club of Preston.

Nutrition

Our nutrition work consists of three health clubs; Happy Health Workers of North Franklin; Sodom Health club of North Franklin and Happy Milk Drinkers of North Franklin.

These clubs are the only health clubs we have; they carried out regular programs, each member made one or more new health habits during the year. We kept a normal weight chart on each boy and girl. They had several health talks from Miss Lisbeth Macdonald during the year. While all three clubs did good work the Happy Health Workers under the leadership of Mrs. Revere Beebe did outstanding work. They organized an initiation team and used it several times, every member made a health book with rhymes to go with various foods in it. They put on a health play on four different occasions. They put it on for stunt night at Junior Short Course and by so doing many of this clubs members who had no idea what Junior Short Course was like received a little insight into it. This club had two health demonstration teams; one on posture and one on care of face and teeth. The team on posture made up of Nathaniel Manning and Tony Carboni won the state championship and with it scholarships to Junior Short Course in 1929. The other team made up of Mary Manning and Jennie Idzkowski placed third in the state contest. I am sure these three clubs enjoyed their club work and received some benefit from it.

Clothing

We have had ten clothing clubs during the past year. They consisted of two third year clubs, one second year club and seven first year clubs. They are as follows: Franklin Thimble Wearers of North Franklin, Happy Workers of Salem, Jolly Cookies and So-ers of Gales Ferry, Nimble Workers of North Franklin, Busy Girls club of Franklin, Busy Bees of Lebanon, Busy Bees of North Plains, Busy Bee Workers of Giasgo, Butterfly Sewing club of Waterford, Far View club of Norwich Town, Social Sophomore of Colchester.

While all these clubs have done creditable work I consider the work of the Nimble Workers as the best of the group. This club is in its first year and under an exceptionally capable leader, Miss Julia Rodman. Miss Rodman was one of the two girls from this state to be selected, because of her outstanding work as member of the Franklin Thimble Wearers, to go to the National Club Encampment at Washington. She came back greatly inspired and as a result has swept her club to the front rank among the clothing clubs in this county.

The Nimble Workers have thirteen members; every one completed, everyone made a new health habit; every one has been recommended for Achievement Certificates; they exhibited at state fair, county fair, Pachaug Grange fair and North Stonington Grange fair; they held the best achievement program of the year in this county; they had a demonstration team; sent two members to Junior Short Course and most of their members to county club field day. There is no doubt that this club will go far in 4-H club work and my only wish is that we had more clubs like this one and more local leaders like Miss Julia Rodman.

While the Nimble Workers are our best the Busy Girls club of Franklin under the leadership of Mrs. George Brush, the Franklin Thimble Wearers under Miss Florence Rockwood and the Butterfly Sewing club of Waterford with Mrs. C. J. Hogan in the lead are very good clubs.

The outlook for next year is very bright with prospects for more clubs as soon as suitable leaders are found.

Beekeeping

There are two bee club boys in the county. These boys had very good results the past year. They both exhibited at various fairs and were successful in winning many premiums.

Community Activities

This county sent 67 boys, girls and leaders to Junior Short Course in 1928. We had more boys and girls there than any other county in the state. This is by far the largest group ever to go from this county.

The first county 4-H club Field day ever held in the state was held at Preston in July. There were over 300 boys and girls and their parents present. Demonstrations in clothing, canning and poultry were put on in the morning. In the afternoon athletic events were run off. The youngsters enjoyed the waters of Amos Lake and while doing so were carefully protected by life guards furnished by the Norwich Y. M. C. A. I considered the field day a hugh success and hope to have another next year.

State, county and local fairs received an unusually large number of entries from 4-H club boys and girls this year; one fair alone having over 400 entries.

Home Gardens—Clubs 3, number of boys 75, number of girls 60, completing boys 60, completing girls 43, number acres grown, about 10; total yield, about 130; exhibitors 103, exhibits, about 200.

Clothing—Clubs 10, number enrolled 104, number dresses made 81, number undergarments 76, number hats made 8, number demonstrations 7, articles made to beautify rooms 4, number bedrooms improved 22.

which was held in Hartford county about the first of November.

It seems to us that the crops work in this county should be carried on much in the same lines of work as has been carried on during the past two or three years. We have only scratched the surface in this and it is a very important problem economically and practically and it is something that about every farmer in the county can apply if he cares to.

Horticulture

At a meeting of the fruit committee in January the program of the New England Seven was put up to them and accepted. A series of three letters in regard to the program was sent out to the fruit mailing list and a questionaire card included in one of the letters to be returned. Only about 18 returned cards who said they would enter the top grafting contest. There were four top grafting demonstrations conducted in the county: one in Griswold, one in North Stonington, one in East Lyme and one in Norwich Town. Scions were supplied to 12 men who had signed up for the contest. These were obtained from fruit growers in the county and were of the New England Seven varieties which are Baldwin, MacIntosh, Greenings, Wealthy, Northern Spy, Gravensteins and Delicious. In September the fruit specialist and county agent visited these men who had entered in the contest to check over the results. However, we found that there were none who had enough points to qualify for prizes.

Last December and this past November six grading and packing demonstrations were conducted in the county in cooperation with the fruit specialist and the state bureau of markets. As a result of these demonstrations there seems to be quite a tendency to apple growers to use the ring pack method which was demonstrated at these meetings. They said that they are getting more for their fruit than they had from using the jumble pack method.

In the spraying programs which were out this year to apple growers it was advocated that a dry mix should be used instead of lime sulphur in the late summer spray. This has been adapted by some of the larger growers but has not as yet been accepted by the smaller growers.

Two of the three spray rings which were organized some five years ago operated again this year. The Griswold spray ring, however, did not function, as they could not get anyone to take the manager's position. The Norwich and Groton spray rings have been running since they were organized and are very efficient, although they do not do as good work as a spray outfit on a farm could do, due to the fact that they do not always get to the farm orchards at the right time that the spray should be applied.

In March a fruit meeting was held at the Buckingham Memorial. These annual fruit meetings seem to take well with the growers and will probably be conducted during the coming year.

Vegetables

A large part of the vegetable work in the county during the past year has been conducted with the Norwich Vegetable Growers' association and a few growers around New London and Westerly. Interesting discussions of problems were held at these meetings and considerable value was obtained from them. During the summer four twilight meetings were held at the farms of various growers in the county. These twilight metings seem to be very popular with the vegetable growers. They get together at about 6 o'clock in the evening and stay until after dark. At the last meeting which was held in September, a vegetable grading and packing demonstration was conducted by a representative from the state bureau of markets. Formerly all bunched vegetables that were sold in both New London and Norwich were put up five in a bunch. It was voted at this meeting to put four in a bunch during the next season and also to use the bushel box for the marketing of tomatoes. This was not generally accepted however, but some of the large growers will adopt this method of marketing that crop

During the growing season a series of 20 cards were sent out to the vegetable mailing list. On these cards current recommendations for the preservation of various vegetable crops were recommended. The vegetable specialists made many very valuable contacts this year among the vegetable growers in regard to vegetable management.

Forestry

We have had no regular organized forestry program during the past year. Most of the forestry work has been left to the forestry specialist who has been in the county on several occasions for farm visits, demonstrations and meetings. During December two thinning demonstrations were held but were poorly attended. The forestry work is rather hard to get over, as it is a long-time proposition, and it is hard for an averaged farmer to see the worth while of it. The towns which have done the most forestry work are Ledyard, North Stonington, Montville and Ledyard. The work in these towns has been practically all thinning, with the exception of a few forestry plantings, although these are small in area. It so happens that we have a nursery located at the state hospital which is conducted by the experiment station, and it gives the local farmers a convenient way of getting their pine planting stock. Most of the areas planted are under two acres and so do not make a very good showing, and also we are not trying to push this to any great extent, as we believe that the care of the present forest is more essential than trying to set a new one.

Rodents

This work has been in co-operation with the rodent specialist of the biological survey located at Amherst Mass., and also in co-operation with the fruit specialist and has been confined practically to the control of mice damage among orchard trees. The rodent specialist has also done some demonstration work in the controlling of deer damage, principally by the use of decoys and scented material to frighten the deer. However, they have not been very successful as yet.

Dairy

The dairy program for New London county has not been changed very much from the past two or three years. Due to the fact that considerable tuberculine testing has been done during the past year it was thought best to concentrate the dairy program where the testing work has been active. This included the towns of Waterford, Lebanon, Franklin and Norwich. Those towns are very nearly free towns at the present time and if the test continues to spread throughout the county the work will be spread with it. As a result of the testing work there has been considerable interest in barn ventilation and securing replacements for cattle lost in the test. During the past year there has been about 35 barn ventilation systems installed according to plans and advice given by the specialist and county agent. These are home made systems that work and cost much less than systems sold on the market.

The matter of replacements is certainly a problem hard to solve. In some districts a large number of cattle were taken out and had to be replaced in order to keep up their incomes and also in order to keep up their milk contracts. However, in many cases these contracts were relieved for a short period. Many of the dairymen who formerly, before the test, had bought and sold cattle in order to keep up their milk production decided to raise their own young stock and grow their own replacements. This makes a sounder dairy business than before. As a result of this considerable help has been given in selecting dairy bulls to head the herd and in selecting females from which to save heifer calves.

Another step which some of the more progressive leaders are taking up is testing their herd for contagious abortion. The number doing this, however, is small, there being only five in the county. However, more are planning to do this as soon as it is convenient for them to do so.

The advice given in regard to replacement in most cases has been to buy young stock or heifers to freshen within six months from purchasing. The herds that have done this are in a very healthy condition at the present time and are in a position to make a start for the breeding purposes such as selling purebred males and females.

In the county we reorganized a herd improvement association for another year. This was done in March and it started out with five new members making a total of 23 in all and with the same tester, Harold Diehl. According to the numbers the association has been of considerable value to them in keeping track of their herd production and in culling their herds.

Another feature which we are adding to this in cooperation with the farm management is to get as many as possible of the herd improvement farmers to keep farm accounts. During the past year nine of these members kept farm accounts and these will be summarized with the report of the herd improvement association for individual farms.

Poultry

The poultry program has been one of the more important pieces of work carried on in New London county.

Due to the increased amount of poultry kept on general farms as well as increase in commercial flocks it offers more problems each year. These problems are principally sanitation in growing young stock and in keeping the laying flock clean.

The Grow Healthy Chicks program inaugurated two years ago was therefore adapted again this year. Signers were obtained who signed up for 106,000 chicks to follow the eight-point programme or as nearly as possible to it. A very noticeable increase in the use of summer shelters for young stock has been noticed in traveling about the country. Many of these are on places never before visited by the agent or specialist and it therefore would seem that it would be quite a task to estimate how widespread the poultry program is. It also has been noticed that there were many other practices advocated by the poultry program that were being adopted by poultrymen who have had no direct contact with the Farm Bureau or extension service.

In spite of the fact that we have had a definite program in chick sanitation during the past three years, there has been a large number of calls for farm visits where trouble was being experienced with poultry diseases. These diseases have been principally the result of Coccidiosis during the early part of the growing period. The diseases are such as; paralysis, enteritis, and the unknown disease. It has been noticeable however that the farms where these diseases have occurred were ones which were not following the Grow Healthy Chick program or had followed the program but had not used clean land or had not cleaned the brooder coops often enough.

Other time has been spent on miscellaneous poultry work such as plans for remodelling barns and other buildings, feeding and management problems. It is hoped that this program will be continued as it is one of the best we have been able to get yet although there can be some modifications which would make the program more effective.

Rural Engineering.

Water systems, sewage disposal, drainage and remodeling have been the four items which have been worked on in this project. It has been largely individual work with people desiring information on these subjects.

A demonstration was given at William Campbell's cider mill, on how to get water at the kitchen sink by using a simple force pump. Formerly Mrs. Campbell carried from an out door well, all water consumed in the house but now it can be pumped at the sink and it is understood that the outfit is very satisfactory although it only cost $12.50 to put the whole job in exclusive of labor.

In this same locality the farmers are anxious to get an electric line through there and a meeting was held there to discuss the possibility. It was finally decided that the cost would be about prohibitive unless they all subscribed which was impossible.

Agricultural Economics.

Farm management has been the important item of this project and it has consisted of farm accounts and a program of work for the Lebanon and Baltic Young Farmers' club.

There were thirty-five farm account books distributed and started during the past year, twenty of these completed their records for the year.

The goal which is being sought in farm management work is to have as many farms as possible increase their farm incomes by increasing their lines of business to two or more. This is the point being stressed in several ways at the meetings of the Young Farmers' clubs.

The Lebanon Young Farmers' club has been now going for three years and has some very good progress along the line of diversity. Some special farm account records have been kept by a few of the poultrymen of the county for the purpose of getting more definite information in regard to the poultry business. There also has been time spent with the members of the Herd Improvement association. There were nine who kept and completed their farm books last year and four more were started this past fall.

Marketing.

The farm bureau office has cooperated with the various cooperative associations now in existance which are the Connecticut Milk Producers' association, New England Milk Producers association, Eastern States Farmers exchange, Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers' association, the local exchanges in Norwich, Preston, Waterford, Yantic, Lebanon, Jewett City and North Stonington.

One new exchange has been organized by request although it did not seem necessary, there being an exchange near which could serve their needs. This was at Voluntown among the Finnish people there. It seems to us that Jewett City exchange could just as well serve them but the Finnish people wish to have one of their own as it served also as a means of social gatherings.

A county lime and fertilizer pool was fostered. The exchange managers appointed A. R. Shedd as buyer.

NEW HIGHWAY BRIDGE ACROSS POQUETANUCK COVE

EASTERN CONNECTICUT TOWNS HAD ROADS AND BRIDGES BUILT IN 1928

State Highway Department Expended $1,522,410—Improved Over 31 Miles of Roads and Built Eight Bridges—Largest Was Over Poquetanuck Cove On Military Highway.

Construction of a number of new bridges and in highway work in New London and Windham counties in 1928 represented a total expenditure of $1,522,410.54 which exceeded the expenditures in 1927 in the same territory when the sum of $1,332,468 was the total.

The work covered about 31 miles of which 4.8 miles was in New London county, 10.63 miles in Windham and the balance in Windham and Tolland counties.

An unusual number of bridges was in the work of the year under the direction of Division Engineer John Smith whose headquarters are in Norwich.

Of special interest to this section has been the construction of the new highway bridge over Poquetanuck cove on the Military highway between Norwich and Groton. This is a steel and concrete bridge 580 feet long, with seven 74 foot spans supported on six piers and two abutments. The roadway is 28 feet in the clear and the bridge has a clearance of 11 feet above mean sea level.

New Era Seen Dawning In City of Willimantic

Coincident with the closing of the 10 year the Willimantic chamber of commerce is approaching the final month of the fiscal year, a year that will complete the record of a reorganized and re-energized chamber of commerce. Organized in 1887 the Willimantic Business Men's association, board of trade and subsequently the chamber of commerce, is antedated by only one other such civic organization in Connecticut—that of New Haven. However, it was not until this year that a paid executive was secured to take charge of a definite program.

Approaching the new year the Willimantic chamber of commerce looks backward with a feeling that a new era dawned for this city with the re-energizing of its largest civic organization, the chamber of commerce. Backed by a city fully determined to place Windham county in the forefront in every phase of human endeavor, the chamber of commerce approaches the conclusion of a first year's set program with a feeling of success and achievements.

The officers of the local chamber have become so completely sold on the city of Willimantic and to them have come many strangers, tourists and others seeking information of this district. They have found a staff equipped to give courteous greeting, provide the information and direct them.

The year of work and activities now ending contains milestones of progress in the development of an awakened community spirit, an advancement of this community to a point of prestige, and the accomplishment of many worth while projects for the city as a whole. The citizens of Willimantic have come to realize that in their chamber of commerce they have a worthy representative of the people on the job all the time, every day of the year, ready, willing and anxious to work for the good of Willimantic and its citizens.

A vast amount of work has been of a general community scope. Much of the outstanding work of the chamber has been accomplished through cooperation with existing agencies, such as the city and town governments and other organizations. Particular stress has been laid upon the helping of established industries and the securing of added payrolls. The year's work has resulted in one new industry, Willimantic Silk Inc., starting several looms. Portions of three floors of the former Quidnick-Windham mill building No. 2 are now being occupied, and the lights for the night operatives have looked good to the townspeople. Another new industry, Willimantic Metal Screen Inc., will start operations about January 15th., another result of an awakened chamber of commerce. Other industries are on the prospect list and the work will be continued in 1929.

A major activity, recently inaugurated and to get under way early in 1929, is a study of twenty or more major problems of this city. A planning commission has been formed. Members include the mayor the first selectman, the president of the Woman's club, Rotary and Exchange clubs, the chamber of commerce and a representative at large. This commission is appointing committee chairmen for the committees on study of problems. Each committee will comprise five persons, all representatives of the four service clubs of the city. These committees will investigate, study, collate and present their investigations with recommendations. These will be available to all the clubs participating, the city and town governments, with copies always on file at the chamber of commerce offices.

In addition to offices the chamber has maintained a tourists information bureau, a library of city directories, has secured a registration of those seeking work, and will during 1929 prepare a very complete mailing list for use by members of the merchants' bureau of the chamber.

Cooperation has been the big word in chamber of commerce activities during 1928. This has been put into active service as it relates to many subjects. Cooperation with the city officials resulted in a clean-up campaign; an improvement in the local railroad passenger station; with the state highway commission in having on file the state road map and the weekly statement of conditions of roads under construction and repair; and cooperation with many other agencies. An industrial folder, 10,000 copies, has been printed and is being distributed. In addition the officials of the chamber, with members, are continually seeking to encourage additional industries. Diversified industries are desired and are being sought.

It is difficult to place a value on the work done by the Willimantic chamber of commerce or to really define where this value begins and ends. The Willimantic chamber of commerce has succeeded only through the energy, devotion and teamwork of its members along lines and for objects that have commanded the intelligent support of a large part of the community.

The Willimantic chamber of commerce has not, during the past year, always been spectacular; neither could it supply its members with new sensations daily. It has not been able to perform miracles, but rather, during 1928, it has depended almost entirely upon public sentiment to bring about measures that have and will react for the good of the community as a whole. The chamber has been aided in such a program if a large measure by the cooperation of the men of the Fourth Estate—the newspaper fraternity.

The year 1928 has been a great year for Willimantic and if the same spirit of helpfulness and cooperation continues during the coming twelve months I am sure that 1929 will be acclaimed one of the banner years in the history of this community.

FRANK P. FENTON,
President, Willimantic Chamber of Commerce.

Gives Added Impetus To Danielson Trade

Danielson has had an active chamber of commerce during 1928. Under the presidency of Moses H. Barthiaume it has done considerable to boost the community's trade and its friendly relations with the people of all the surrounding territory.

To help trade it has brought together upwards of half a hundred business men to make possible the arrangement of Dollar days that have been the means of bringing hundreds of out of town buyers to Danielson. It has obtained the same sort of cooperative arrangement for the Christmas shopping season, and with success.

The chamber has given consideration to various matters of general interest during the year. Among other things its committees sought with diligence to interest the government in locating a U. S. Veterans' hospital here. It has exercised its efforts with the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company and with the postoffice department for more adequate mail facilities.

It has given attention to matters pertaining to aviation and the providing of a flying field and with an arrangement for marking the roof of some suitable building with the name Danielson as a guide to aviators.

The chamber of commerce has been a body whose services might be asked at any time in the interest of the people of the town as a whole.

In December E. B. Wilbur was elected president for 1929. President Wilbur, on accepting office, pledged his earnest effort to find some new industry or industries to add to those that Danielson already possesses, and he has the assurance of members that they will work diligently with him to that end.

Willimantic Merchants Experienced Active Year

The year 1928 has been one of activity for the members of the Merchants' Bureau of the chamber of commerce, with several worth-while projects having been handled in a co-operative manner by the merchants of this city. Starting early in the year with a spring opening the merchants have had event after event until the culmination was reached during the Yuletide season with the colorful decorating of the main business district.

The springtime opening caused nearly one hundred merchants to present the most attractive windows ever offered for inspection. A three-day affair, it brought to the business center the largest number of people to mass themselves in the business center since the day that former President Theodore Roosevelt visited Willimantic. The window decorations were marvelous and the effect of that attempt has been manifest throughout the year in better window trims.

Later on the merchants cooperated and staged an Opportunity Days sales event of three days. Through announcements placed before a large number throughout the Willimantic shopping districts by the medium of newspapers, large crowds participated in this event and another success was chalked up for the Willimantic merchants.

Another credit mark for the Willimantic merchandisers has been the activity extended in behalf of an enlargement of the industrial section of this city. Several of the merchants have worked diligently in the efforts made this year to bring new payrolls to Willimantic. Their efforts have been largely instrumental in the starting of a new silk mill, already employing a goodly number of hands and with prospects bright for a very large increase in the coming year. A second concern, a screen manufacturing company, will start operations within a month.

The culminating activity for the year has been the superb decorating of the business center for the Christmas holidays. Without a doubt Willimantic prepared the most colorful and beautiful Christmas decorations of any city in the entire state.

The merchants' committee in charge arranged for the placing of two Christmas trees, back-to-back, at each White Way lighting standard. These were intertwined with 40 vari-colored electric lights on each set of trees. The result was a regular fairyland scene. In addition there were five community trees of larger size placed at the five entrance points to the city. These were likewise electrically lighted. To add to the festive scene the Elks had two large trees similarly lighted, so that the central business district of the entire city was a glittering array of trees and lights bespeaking the spirit of Christmas and bringing joy to all who visited the shopping center.

chairman of the merchants during the 1927-28 year, retired November 1st., and a resolution citing his indefatigable and energetic work, has been spread upon the records of the local merchants. He has been succeeded by James H. Hurley, one of the prominent local merchants of long standing, whose leadership is expected to continue the good things expectantly anticipated by Willimantic merchants.

With a continuance of good business, with established manufacturing plants indicated for 1929 and with additional pay-rolls coming to Willimantic, added to the plans of the local merchants for an enlarged shopping field, the outlook for increased business for Willimantic merchants in 1929 is very bright and encouraging.

1928 has been a good year for Willimantic merchants. 1929 is anticipated as a better year. Coordinated work of a cooperating group of merchants under wise leadership and with a united front being presented will bring such a condition to pass.

EARL J. ARNOLD,

Willimantic Headed For Bigger And Better Things

The accomplishments of the year just closing seem to more than justify the start made in 1927 toward a better community spirit, and Willimantic has apparently turned the corner and is now definitely headed toward bigger and better things.

Our people seem at last to recognize the strategical location of their city as the capitol of a large agricultural empire and throughout the year a determined, and I feel, a successful effort has been made through the chamber of commerce and the service clubs to understand the problems of our neighbors. This show of willingness to help our neighbors is serving well to arouse a friendly spirit toward us among these same people.

Both the Rotary and Exchange clubs have shown an increasing interest in humanitarian work, as shown by their contributions, financial and otherwise, to the Newington Home for Crippled Children, the Welfare Bureau and St. Joseph's hospital. The real meaning of service is being impressed upon us all more strongly as time goes on.

With such fine progress made during 1928 on the firm foundation begun in 1927, Willimantic should look forward to the coming year with a great deal of anticipation. The opportunity of a Bigger and Better Willimantic through the exemplification of service lies open before us and to obtain our goal we need but continue our whole-hearted and revitalized cooperation. We must all "pull" together for the common good.

RAYMOND A. PARKER,
President Willimantic Rotary club

Willimantic Fortunate In Its School Facilities

There is no limit to our faith in childhood. Fearlessly we plan and build beyond the span of one generation. In every field of human endeavor we accumulate knowledge, develop skills, launch new investigations into the great unknown, and enter into all sorts of entangling human relationships, firm in the belief that these undertakings will not stop when this adult world of ours shall have finished its labors.

Billions of dollars of American wealth rest on no other foundation except this faith, that children are going to learn all the useful knowledge, acquire all the necessary skills, and develop all the desirable traits of character that have entered into our civilization. This is the faith that makes it profitable to subdue wilderneses, to tunnel mountains, to establish highways over and under expanses of water, to build of enduring granite, to adopt written constitutions, and to speculate in real estate. This is the faith which enables us to borrow money for the many developments which no one generation could afford. But this is likewise the faith that is without foundation if children fail to learn, or if the teachers of children fail to measure up to the terrible responsibility of their high calling.

Never were schools confronted with such a challenge, for never did a people risk so much to the outcome of teaching they are called upon to guide most of the affairs of the eighth day of creation. In this momentous work they should be forgiven for a few fads and frills, since whole museums can be filled with the mistakes of nature. Rather, they should not be forgiven if, having accepted this service upon which the business man builds his confidence, they fail to discover the new needs that are revealed along the unstable edge of a changing world.

Accordingly, schools can never be good enough, except in the minds of those who cannot learn. Each gain in knowledge inflicts new labors of teaching; each increase in wealth entails greater educational protection against the vandalism of ignorance. In the financial affairs of every community schools must always be considered as unfinished business. But the better must grow from what now is, therefore it is fitting, from time to time, to make an inventory of our good fortune in order that we may be encouraged by the progress of the times and discover the real use of pressing forward toward a receding goal that can never be reached.

There is no indication that the citizens of the town of Windham are likely to develop an unhealthy satisfaction with things as they are, but even a casual review of school progress during the last fifteen years reveals a very large share of that good fortune which accompanies unselfish citizenship and good financial management.

Our schools are fortunate because of the common sense of our taxpayers. They have demanded large value for every dollar expended, but they have not expected something for nothing. School costs have increased because more children are taught, more things are considered worth teaching, and the buying power of the dollar has diminished; yet there has been no postponement of necessary things, and no requested appropriation for school purposes has ever been denied.

Our schools are fortunate because they have been placed in charge of men of large business capacity. They have demanded progress, but have not been carried away by enthusiasm for new things, nor have they squandered public money on well advertised but doubtful experiments. The school committee has been honest in presenting, and thrifty in spending its budget. It has never exceeded any appropriation entrusted to its control but has returned the town treasury over $20,000 of unexpended balances during the last ten years.

Our schools are fortunate because superior facilities have been provided at a remarkably low price. The new high school building, new Natchaug building and addition, new grounds and building at Windham street, new state trade school, the spacious new site for the Oaks school and the new recreation field on Hayden street—these represent the astonishing developments of the last fifteen years, yet they have entailed a capital outlay of less than half a million dollars. No other town in Connecticut has secured such complete school accommodations for so small an expenditure of money.

Our schools are ofrtunate because they are able to offer a wide range of educational opportunities at a low current expense. Kindergartens, elementary and high schools, with superior equipment and experienced teachers; complete health inspection; specialized courses in college preparation, business training, agriculture, home economics, drafting and all building trades; a local state normal school;—all these opportunities within the limits of one small town, and at a net expense of less than six mills on the true value of local property have been made possible because of favorable location and co-operative effort.

Our schools are fortunate because they have been kept out of politics. Teachers are selected because of their proved ability to teach children, not because of their place of residence or influence of their parents. No political party has ever used its power to divert a single dollar of school appropriation to party advantage. To have this power, but not to use it, indicates a type of political leadership which all communities desire but few attain.

Our schools are fortunate because of our permanent force of superior teachers. Larger communities no longer deprive us of our best instructors at the close of each school year. The average term of service has been increased to six years in the high school and to nine years in the grades. Our teachers expend their energy in the teaching of children rather than in seeking of new positions. Their interest is in their work. They labor beyond the rewards of salary and study beyond the requirements of the legal teaching certificate. This zealous service cannot be explained by the figures of our salary schedule; but the splendid response of children, and the help, sympathy and appreciation of parents have increased the value of this community's dollar.

Our schools are fortunate because of the good behavior and serious purpose of our children. There are few cases of truancy and a very large percent of perfect attendance. There are no serious problems of discipline. Nearly all children are working up to their mental capacity. The high school honor roll is larger than ever before. Our graduates are making a success of college, normal school, and business life. In strength of character and seriousness of purpose they have never been surpassed—not even by those who remember most favorably the good old days.

Our schools are fortunate because of their intelligent and fair-minded patrons. The idle gossip and petty criticism which pervert the attitudes of children are becoming things of the past. The work of teachers is being regarded as skilled professional service, not as the distribution of personal favors. Our teachers, accordingly, work with peace of mind and a zeal for service which make life worth living. No other improvement in school situations has cost so little and yielded such a large return in benefits to childhood.

As we review this cumulation of good fortune it becomes increasingly evident that community prosperity results, not from heroic efforts of a few, but from the agreement of many minds directed toward a worthy purpose. The most agreeable feature of our progress has been the absence of controversy; not one of our achievements represents the advanced thinking of a few, or the spectacular triumph of one group over another. Our schools are a common cause for which we have learned to work together. Therefore, we may face the future with confidence, for we are organized to do business.

E. A. CASE
School Superintendent, Willimantic

London's great epidemics of plague in the 17th century took off the poor; the wealthy and influential left the city, leaving the poor people unemployed and uncared for.

TOWN OF GROTON HAS NEW FITCH HIGH SCHOOL UNDER CONSTRUCTION

A new high school building for the town of Groton, to be known as the Robert E. Fitch high school, and to be erected and equipped at an approximate total cost of $200,000, is now in construction. A special town meeting in February made an appropriation of $140,000, the general construction contract was signed on Aug. 1, and work was begun soon afterward, and it is the expectation to have the building completed in the spring. The school site adjoins the Groton town hall plot at Poquonnoc Bridge.

The building is to be strictly fireproof, two stories in height, the first floor being several feet above the ground level, with a basement under the rear to contain the boiler and fuel rooms, storage, etc.

The entire interior of the building will be finished according to the most modern practice of school building, all the interior trim being of metal with enamel finish. The floors throughout the building will be heavy battleship linoleum cemented to the reinforced concrete under floor. All stairs will be of metal construction throughout with stair treads of linoleum.

The exterior of the building is of red tapestry brick with substantial trim. The building will be equipped throughout with the most modern system of electric lighting, a clock system with program bells, telephones and fire alarm system.

All the equipment in the building will be of the very latest type, including movable seats and desks for the class rooms.

The name for the school comes from a provision in the will of Charles P. Fitch of Groton who left a bequest to the town for the construction of the school. It is estimated this bequest will amount to more than $45,000 through the appreciation of securities which were formerly estimated at $60,000.

The building committee consists of Dr. Charles G. Barnum, Miss Betsey B. Larrabee, Charles A. Marquardt and Alvah B. Cone of Groton, Dr. L. M. Allyn and Charles W. Gildersleeve of Mystic, and Mrs. Lois B. Shandeor of Norank.

Undefeated Putnam Eleven Wins Eastern Conn. Grid Title

Unmarred Record Against Strong Conn. and Mass. Teams Places Putnam Team on High Pedestal—Shann, Cody and Sherman are the Outstanding Stars in the Putnam Backfield—Team Has Several Narrow Escapes in Closing Minutes of Games.

The gridiron warriors of Putnam high school, now sitting on top of the football domain of Eastern Connecticut, by reason of the unmarred slate of 1928, are planning to repeat their record again next year, despite the fact that a number of their mainstays of the past season will be taken from the ranks by graduation in June. The champions of Eastern Connecticut will be piloted next season by Carolus Tourtellotte, already a veteran of four seasons and a brilliant member of the undefeated eleven. Tourtellotte will be shifted into the backfield to replace Capt. Bill Shann, who will leave in September to seek gridiron fame with Harvard or Yale. Capt. Tourtellotte will be an able successor. He possesses a beautiful physical frame, hardened by four years of high school athletic activities, in addition to a pair of fast limbs, which ably match his bodily prowess.

Coach Lauriston F. Noyes, the grand old daddy of the champions, chuckles to himself, when approached for inside "info" regarding the 1929 prospects. When informed of the elevens that are eagerly awaiting an opportunity to knock the Putnam gridders off the mythical football throne he answers, "We'll wait and see." Coach Noyes is very modest and throughout the season when his team early defied the teams of larger schools and began to establish the hitherto unrivalled record, he eluded the writers from many of the leading newspapers of Eastern Connecticut and southern Massachusetts.

An outward sign of his extreme modesty towards his faithful gridiron servants came when he refused to contest Norwich Free Academy's claim to the title on Thanksgiving day morning. "In your mind, does their record equal ours?" the coach asked the Bulletin. This brief statement led all fans east of the Connecticut river to concede the title to the Putnam warriors, without further contests. A title game would have been staged between the Putnam champs and the Rose City boys, had it not been for the existence of a rule in both institutions forbidding post season games.

A brief review of the season, refreshes one' memory of the stirring moments that took place in every contest. On several occasions it looked exceedingly dark for dear old Putnam, they going the entire three periods scoreless and coming through in the last eight minutes to claim victory.

The opener was with Willimantic and was played at Putnam. The Noyes coached eleven rushed out on the field amid the cheers of an enthusiastic throng of Putnam rooters and crushed the Willimantic line twice for touchdowns, the "Two Horsemen," " Bill Shann and Walt Cody who worked hand in hand throughout the season, crossing the scoring stripe one time each. The slow pacing Thread boys were helpless during the whole tilt and received a shut out for the first time in three years. This game was revenge for the severe trouncing inflicted upon the less fortunate Putnam aggregation of five years ago, when they suffered a defeat of 101 to 0 at the hands of Willimantic.

The crave for victory instilled in them by the reason of the Windham tussle the Putnamites continued their march of triumph by inflicting an 18-0 trouncing upon the strapping Northbridge contingent of Whitinsville, champs of southern Massachusetts in 1926.

Two successive shutouts caused Putnam to follow up with another at Chapman Tech, when they rolled up a 13-0 score over the Nutmegs to the delight of the large assembled group of Putnam fans. Again Capt. Shann and Ex-Capt. Cody came to the fore, each making a goal while "Tubby" Russ Sherman kicked the placement, for the extra.

The fourth conquest came when Putnam knocked Bartlett High school of Webster off the southern Massachusetts throne, inflicting an 18-6 trimming upon the Finnegan driven "bone-crushers," as styled by the Webster admirers.

The Orange men of Plainfield were the next to invade the Putnam borders and succeeded in holding Putnam scoreless until Shann tore through tackle and darted down the carpet of green for a touchdown and succeeded in placing the pigskin between the posts, for a seventh point, all of which was accounted for in the last two minutes of play.

Then came Tourtellotte Memorial to try their luck for the first time in the history of Putnam high's football. They went away with a 38-6 lacing. This proved to be a merry tilt for Capt. Shann, his co-star Cody and also was sugar for wirey Charley Bove.

Bartlett high school of Webster was again easy prey for the on-rushing, clean-sweeping Putnam lineup, when it hung up another 18-6 encounter to add to their already growing list of victories.

East Douglas was the newest member of the schedule, they playing their first contest with the triumphant Putnamers. It will be remembered that Worcester sports writers furnished plenty of worry for Coach Noyes when stories of the press reached fair Putname that East Douglas had turned out the greatest team in the history of "pigskinning" and were until their match with Putnam undfeated. Again Shann, Bove, Sherman and Cody turned the tables by skipping the light fantastic several times for a 27-0 win, and repeated the same score the following week on the same team.

Putnam returned to Northbridge on Nov. 17, and played one of the most exciting contests of the year. The half whistle found both teams fighting desperately, yet were scoreless. The remaining minutes of play found the Putnam group in the lead by 32 points and the gallant Northbridge eleven on their 50-yard line striving for a touchdown when the end snatched their opportunity.

This game left only the smashing Killinians of Killingly high school, Danelson, standing in Putnam's way for championship. The ancient rivals met at Goodyear on Thanksgiving morning. Something was wrong in the Putnam frontier. Shann was helpless. Cody was on the sidelines with an injured leg. Bove was dismayed by the absence of an early score, which was expected. Reynolds had slipped considerably and was showing little form. Russ Sherman proved not so good in Cody's place. The Putnam line was only showing half of their pre season 'stuff.' Coach Noyes was walking up and down the sidelines, perhaps with a prayer to the gods of victory on his lips. The Killingly rooters were cheering their team on, the field ringing with the din of their shouts. Everything was dark for the Shann piloted eleven. The half came with both teams barely holding their own. The remaining periods opened with the full Putnam high line up inspired by their faithful coach and were off to victory. Dr. Noyes had worked a miracle over the punctured Cody and he was back to repeat. Forward passes, many of them, brought the ball to the six-yard line. The Killonians weakened and Shann crashed through the "stonewall" for the first touchdown. He did it a second time and starred again when he gracefully launched the ball through the goal post for the 13th point. Putnam was then a champion, undisputed. Will they do it again? "We'll wait and see" — Coach Noyes' statement.

Two Twilight Leagues Operate In City During the Summer While Semi-Pro Teams Play Week-End Ball—Other Sporting Activities Have Only Fair Success—Amateur Boxing Draws Good Crowds—Golf Club Has Successful Season.

In looking back over the past year there are a few events among the various sporting activities of Norwich that stand out but for the majority of the year there was little out of the ordinary. The year 1928 could hardly be called a banner year in sports either from a standpoint of intense sporting interest or from a financial one. The winning of the state high school baseball title by the Norwich Free Academy, the bringing of the state amateur featherweight title to Norwich by Jimmy Quinn, and the winning of the R. I. state lightweight title by Al Koziol were the three outstanding achievements in the realm of sports in Norwich.

Baseball

This sport had only an average season with the interest of the town centered on the Academy baseball team early in the season, this interest later being divided between the Industrial league and the Junior league. The Industrial league proved entertaining for the fans and the title went to the U. S. Finishing Co. after a hectic race in which the Richmond Radiator team, champions of 1927, were nosed out. The league games drew large crowds and the financial returns were fairly satisfactory. The Junior league also created considerable interest and the inaugurating of this league by the Duwell club is worthy of commendation. In this league the youngsters played some real brilliant baseball, the title finally going to the Taftville American Legion team after a close race with the Rotary club team. As a reward the youngsters were given a trip to New York, where they were the guests of the Yankees at a big league game.

Riverview fell far below the standard of baseball played during the regime of Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox. Last year only the smaller teams of the eastern part of the state were played. Taftville, under James H. Troland had an average season, as did the J. B. Martin team. The series between these two clubs at the end of the season was one bright spot in an otherwise drab season. Several smaller teams operated during the season but accomplished little of material interest.

Boxing

Professional boxing in Norwich was pretty much of a flop while the amateurs went big during the first few months of the year but then fell off after the close of the outdoor season. The one professional show fell flat and the promoters took a bad financial licking although the show itself was a good one. The Pastime A. C., outlawed by the now defunct Connecticut A. A. U., conducted a number of outlaw shows which provided plenty of action and drew fairly good crowds for several months during the winter.

The Duwell club, however, was the only organization to break well ahead of the game on the financial end. This club was the only club in the state to conduct amateur boxing under a National A. A. U. sanction, after the Connecticut association had been suspended. Their bouts drew from 1,200 to 1,500 fans to the state armory each night and when the bouts were taken to the open air they also carried the crowds with them. The only indoor show of the fall season, that in November, did not draw at all and the club took a financial setback. The outstanding bout of the amateur season was the Koziol-Kop fracas at Duwell field in which Koziol dropped Kop in the first round to win a suit of clothes. The next bout of importance was the Farmer Steve-Talbot shindig at the Pastime show.

Basketball

The city title went to the Academy team, which staged a brilliant late-season spurt to defeat both the C. F. C. (twice) and the Taftville Crescents. The Central Fellowship Council of the Central Baptist church, or C. F. C. team, had a good season, meeting strong amateur teams of Connecticut and Rhode Island but their schedule was too long and in the latter part the players were "burned out."

The first Intermediate basketball tournament for Eastern Connecticut teams, averaging about 16 years, was held at the Y. M. C. A. here with the Willimantic Y Emps the victors over the Norwich Emps in the final game. Teams from Woodstock to Old Lyme competed in this one-day affair.

The Plainfield Pros was the outstanding semi-pro team in Eastern Connecticut again this year. They met teams from all over New England and gained a strong reputation in basketball circles in the New England states. The Taftville Crescents and Danielson Towners also had good teams but they could not compare with the Pros.

New London had its usual city league, which produced some fast basketball, the title going to the Socony team. Windham high of Willimantic was Eastern Connecticut's high school champ, while Chapman Tech took the honors in the Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island Interscolastic league for the sixth time in seven years. This league was again composed of three teams the past season, but the newly formed conference, which was built early in the year but went into effect in September, will see five teams this coming season.

Tennis

The only noteworthy event in tennis outside the winning of the interscholastic title by the Norwich Free Academy team was the Eastern Connecticut championship play. The title went to George L. Titus of New York who beat the 1927 champion, Joseph W. Thurston of Hartford, in the finals. Titus, with James E. Roantree, won the Eastern Connecticut doubles title.

Golf

The golfing season was an active one in Norwich, the Norwich Golf club experiencing the most successful season of its history. The Norwich golf team captured the Eastern Connecticut team title through its series of matches, losing but one match during the season. In the club championship play, Dave Morton was crowned club champion through his victory over Edward G. McKay in the finals.

The real event of the season was the invitation tournament which was won by William K. Lanman of Cleveland, Ohio, who by virtue of his win now has two legs on the Noyes trophy which is emblematic of the title. Lanman in the finals won from Sam Wilcox in a close match. Massie Miller, pro at the Norwich Golf club, personally experienced a good season, winning several matches and setting several records on Eastern Connecticut courses. Massie is now in Miami waiting for the tournament season before returning to the club this spring.

Local High School Team Wins 19 and Loses One Game in Quest of Title Against Best Teams in State—Jarvis and Greene Prove Most Brilliant Pitchers in History of School —Football Team Has Fairly Good Record—Basketball and Tennis Teams Win Eastern Conn. Titles.

Led for another year by a state championship baseball team, Academy sports during 1928 turned in successful records. In the three sports considered major by the average fan, baseball, football and basketball, Wildcat teams won 36 and lost 15 during their regular schedules. The baseball team, coached by Earle E. Brigham and captained by Moorris Goldblatt catcher, won 19 games and lost but one during its regular playing schedule, establishing a clear claim to the Connecticut title for the second consecutive year. In football, the team, coached by Courtland C. Whitney, and captained by Aime C. LaCroix, halfback, won six games and lost three, while the basketball team, also coached by Courtland C. Whitney and captained by James Kelly, won 11 games and lost 11.

Other sports, track, tennis and cross-country, were for the most part successful, although drawing but little attention from the fans. However, some good performances were turned in by these teams, especially the tennis and track teams. The tennis team for the sixth straight season won the championship of eastern Connecticut. Matthew J. Sheridan did a good job with the inexperienced track squad.

Outstanding events of the year were the baseball team's victories over Bulkeley (twice), Harding high of Bridgeport, Hillhouse high of New Haven, and the winning of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league championship for the fourth consecutive year, the football team's victories over Bulkeley, ancient rival, 18 to 0, and Stonington, which later became champion of the newly formed conference, 24 to 0; the basketball team's late season spurt, by which the city title was won for the first time by the Red and White, the C. F. C. falling in two straight games, also victories over Crosby high of Waterbury, which later defeated Naugatuck high, one of the leading teams of the East, and an overwhelming decision over the best that Bulkeley could offer, under the name of the Bulkeley Independents.

The grand old rivalry with Bulkeley high school of New London continued to grow and prosper during the year. This year was the Academy's beyond all doubt as the 10 to 9, (11 innings) and 6 to 0 victories in baseball and an 18 to 0 margin in football, not to mention the basketball triumph, will testify. Nit in many years has the Red and White shown such superiority over its Orange and Black foe from the Whaling City.

BASEBALL

In running up 19 victories against a solitary defeat in the regular playing schedule the powerful Wildcat team clearly proved its claim to the championship of Connecticut high schools with victories over such teams as Hillhouse High of New Haven, Warren Harding High of Bridgeport, Weaver and Bulkeley of Hartford, Wilby and Crosby of Waterbury, New Britain, Deep River, Bulkeley (twice), together with an 8 to 3 victory over Stonington, only conquerors of the Red and White in the state. Stonington won, 3 to 2, in ten innings.

The 1928 baseball team, generally conceded as one of the greatest in Academy sport annals, scored 179 points in 20 games against 56 for opponents. In a post-season game at New York city, the Academy lost 2 to 1 to Morris High. This game was arranged as part of a celebration given the team by Charles F. Noyes, prominent alumnus and was played at Catholic Protectory Oval.

Lloyd Jarvis, the brilliant pitcher-outfielder of Academy teams for the past four years, led the team in hitting with a mark of .432 while Johnny Greene, the other half of this famous game-winning act, also a pitcher-outfielder, was second with .407. Both boys played the entire 20 games. Anso Tombari, who batted but 19 times, was the technical leader. Nine of the 11 rewarded as first-stringers, hit over .300, and the team average was .332.

There will be few to doubt the validity of the Academy's claim to the baseball state title in 1928 and for the success of the campaign much credit should go to Earle E. Brigham, coach, who since he has taken over the reins at the local school, has brought baseball from the mire to the top of the scholastic heap. At the present time the Academy, with a record of 56 victories and only six defeats in the past three seasons against the leading teams of Connecticut and strong teams from surrounding states, is ranked as well among the leaders not only in this immediate section but also in the New England states. Space will not permit singling out the players on the championship team for individual praise but it can be said that every boy did his share and the following were the lettermen:

Attendance figures were smashed to smithereens during the campaign. New bleachers at the field were not sufficient to seat the crowds during the majority of the games and for the Bulkeley, Harding and Hillhouse games the throngs on the sidelines were among the largest ever seen at the field.

John Marks, '29, was elected captain of the 1929 team. Marks is a veteran of two years, playing in the outfield in 1926 and alternating at third and the pinch-hitting role during the past season.

FOOTBALL

Victories ove Bulkeley and Stonington in the last two games of the season helped make local fans forget some heart-breaking events in the campaign. Through the lack of a drop kicker, the team lost two games by one point, both 7 to 6 scores, to Warren Harding of Bridgeport and Winchester High, the latter one of the objective games of the year, second in traditions to Bulkeley. The other game lost in the nine-game schedule was to Hartford Public High, 13 to 0.

Jack Marks, fullback, was the outstanding player of the year, scoring 66 points to lead the scorers in the newly formed Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic conference. He was mentioned on several all-state choices.

Courtland C. Whitney was the coach and, although the absence of an "extra-point man" turned the season from a decidedly brilliant one into just one that can be classed as good, still the former Academy athlete had his team certainly up to scratch in other departments. That the team was in condition can be seen by the few injuries during the year and also by the fact that the eleven starting men in two games played without substitution.

Attendance was better than the previous year with the Bulkeley game, the final of the year, being witnessed by over 5,000.

Chester (Chet) Berghinzo, end, was elected captain. He has seen two years on the squad. In 1927 as a sub, although being picked for All-State honors by a prominent coach. Jack Mead of Harding and in 1928 as a regular, when he was named on The Bulletin's All-Eastern Connecticut team and, with Jack Marks, was rated as among the best in the state.

BASKETBALL

Winning the last seven games in a spurt that closely resembled championship basketball, the Academy basketball team pulled a very bad season from the fire and turned it into an even break. Those seven victories enabled the team to finish with eleven victories and eleven defeats.

From an Academy standpoint the whole season was in those final games. After rather indifferent, sometimes decidedly miserable basketball the Red and White found itself in a game at Plainfield and then proceeded to mow down Crosby of Waterbury, Rockville, Coast Guard Cadet Jr. Varsity, C. F. C. (twice) and the Taftville Crescents.

Courtland C. Whitney coached his first basketball team and did a good job, finding the winning combination in Lloyd Jarvis, Lester Pingree, forwards, Joseph Viau, center and Capt. Jim Kelley and Capt.-elect Aime (Buck) LaCroix at the guards. They were the only lettermen of the campaign and LaCroix is the only one remaining for the coming campaign.

All home games were played at the Y. M. C. A. gym, there being no gym at the school. The crowds were large at practically all of the games, on some occasions standing room being at a premium. The outstanding player of the team was Les Pingree, who played both center and forward and was the only Wildcat perfoarmer to make The Bulletin's first team.

YANKS BEST IN BASEBALL; SWEPT SERIES SECOND TIME

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—For the second season in a row baseball furnished a big parade for the New York Yankees. The world champions slipped at times along the course to lose the American league lead but they came back to fight off stiff opposition from the Philadelphia Athletics and in the world series were quite themselves again. As a result of the Yankees' unprecedented world series victory in four straight gams for the second time in world series succession, the National league now not only has to give some thought to plans for capturing a world series but must make arrangements first to win a game.

In contrast to the runaway race of the Yankees in 1927, the contest this year was stern and earnest right into the stretch. The rejuvenated Philadelphia Athletics made a fight of the pennant hunt and were stopped only because they could not win from the champions. The A's lost their important games with New York and the pennant went with them.

Several Managerial Changes for 1929

Changes in the personnel of teams in both leagues have suggested possibilities of a changed complexion in the baseball situation in 1929. Two American league clubs will be under new management, although one is not a new manager, but only in a new job. The National league, too, has two new managers, one coming from the minors and the other from the executive offices.

Bucky Harris has moved from Washington to Detroit to manage the Tigers, being succeeded by Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" and former idol of capital fans. George Moriarty, former Detroit manager, has gone back to umpiring in the American league. Johnson managed Newark in the International league last season, much of the time from a sick bed.

Billy Southworth was promoted from Rochester to manage the Cardinals. Bill McKechnie piloted the St. Louis aggregation to a league championship, but his players never got started in the world series. The demotion of McKechnie recalled the treating of Rogers Hornsby after the Cards had won the pennant and world series in 1926.

Hornsby followed his recent schedule of a move a year by being traded by the Boston Braves, a club he managed at the close of the season, to the Chicago Cubs. In spite of his lack of success as manager of the Braves, Rogers had a great individual season, leading the National league in batting for the seventh time. President Emil Fuchs will assume the management of the Boston club assisted by John Evers, great star of another day. The experiment will be one of the most interesting of the next season.

Hornsby Deal Tops Year's Transactions

The other president-manager in the National league, Wilbert Robinson, held his own against attacks and will continue to fill his dual role for at least another year.

Russell Blackburne, who succeeded Ray Schalk as manager of the Chicago White Sox during the season, will have a chance to see what he can do with a start made under his management. Schalk not only left the club but the league, moving to New York to assist Manager McGraw with the Giants.

The trade of Hornsby was the most important player transaction of the year. The hard-hitting Hornsby may bat the Cubs into a pennant. The Chicago club was represented as lacking the punch. Hornsby has it.

Pittsburgh, long without a capable left-handed pitcher, got one in Jess Petty, but had to give Brooklyn Glenn Wright, who has been a great shortstop and may be again.

American league clubs did little trading after the season, but one important change sent George Uhle, a capable right-handed pitcher, from Cleveland to Detroit in exchange for Shortstop Jackie Tavener and Pitcher Kenneth Holloway.

Although Hornsby won the National league batting championship by a margin of 17 points from Paul Waner, the 1927 leader, the race in the American league was not decided until all the returns were in and an official check made. Leon (Goose) Goslin nosed out Harry Manush finally by one point. Hornsby's average was .387. Goslin finished with a mark of .379.

Babe Ruth continued his reign as king of the home run hitters, although his season's total fell six short of the record-breaking 60 of 1927. The home run honors of the National league fell jointly to Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals and Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs. They cracked out 31 apiece.

Gordon Cochrane, Athletic catcher, was awarded the most valuable player prize in the American, while the National league distinction went to Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first sacker, with Fred Lindstrom, Giants' third baseman, the runner-up.

Baseball will go along with only nine players, a suggestion by President Heydler that an extra man be added to the hitting for pitchers falling on deaf American league ears.

The two major leagues were in accord on a plan to open and close later in the next baseball year. The 1929 season will get under way April 16 and be brought to a close October 6, with a possibility that the world series may be extended into mid-October. The 1928 season opened April 11 and closed September 30.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—Instead of the old-fashioned melodrama sport dom put on a variety show for 1928 that has been packed with debates, upsets and international tangles.

For quick shifts, short turns and energy the year has broken all records from the winter overture of a world's hockey championship wrested from Canada by the New York Rangers, on through a summer featured by Gene Tunney's retirement and Olympic shocks for Uncle Sam, down to the final scenes featuring the crippled New York Yankees, the flashy gridiron show and the act of keeping Big Bill Tilden under suspension after one of the most sensational of all 1928 controversies.

From January to December the show moves in kaleidoscopic review, whether one cares to focus upon the peculiar individual feats of Bobby Jones, Helen Wills, Ray Barbuti, Percy Williams and Red Cagle or upon the equally impressive team accomplishments of such aggregations as the world's champion New York Yankees, the doubles team of Lott and Hennessey in tennis, the California crew in waters from the Pacific coast to Holland, the Stanford football team on the new Big Four of United States polo.

It takes only mention of these individuals or teams to quicken the recollection of fine performances, packed with excitement. Bobby Jones, losing his bid for the national open golf crown by a single stroke, margin to Johnny Farrell came back to smother the British threat of Phil Perkins as the great Georgian won the amateur title for the fourth time in five years. Meanwhile Walter Hagen added to the American monopoly of honors on the links with his third triumph in the British open tournament since 1922.

France still holds the Davis cup and the U. S. singles trophy also reposes on a Paris shelf for the third straight time, through the victory of Henri Cochet at Forest Hills but Helen Wills swept through all women's opposition at home and abroad for the second year in a row. In addition Lott and Hennessey, the youthful Yankee tennis team, hung up one of the year's great performances when they captured the U. S. doubles crown by polishing off the best teams Australia and France could put on the field.

With the national single cons picuous throughout the year, the field of Olympic rivalry at Amsterdam had its full share of interest as well as keen disappointment for America. Ray Barbuti turned in the only Yankee flat race victory as Lord Burghley, Percy Williams of Canada, Nurmi, Ritola, Lowe and others monopolized the spotlight.

The United States lost prestige on the track and in other Olympic sports but the American swimmers again splashed in front and the California crew proved itself the best in the world after an unbroken stretch of triumph on the waters of America and Europe.

Baseball history was made by Babe Ruth and the rest of the New York Yankees in sweeping through their second straight world's series at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals without a setback. After repulsing the great charge of the Athletics in the closing stages of the American league race, the Yankees fell upon the Cardinals with an attack that reached its big climax as Ruth hit three home runs in the final game of a lop-sided series for the big crown.

At about the same time, the youthful charge of the new polo Big Four struck the invading Argentine forces and scattered them in a whirlwind finish that keeps the United States supreme in the colorful galloping game. Hopping Harriman and Guest are the new stars associated with the dashing Tommy Hitchcock in the polo regime succeeding that dominated so long by the stalwart figure of Devereux Milburn.

Record crowds turned out for the big football and baseball spectacles of 1928. At historic Soldier Field in Chicago, where the biggest of all boxing crowds assembled for the 1927 Dempsey-Tunney fight, 122,000 spectators attended the Navy-Notre Dame game in October. The Yankee stadium in New York not only housed the greatest baseball jam of all time, 85,265, for the September double-header between the Athletics and Yankees, but held record eastern football crowds of 86,000 of the Army against Notre Dame and Stanford.

The far west enjoyed one of its big, subsequently for the gridiron attack, past years with Helen Wills roaming far and wide for tennis triumphs, California's great crew sweeping all seas, Stanford's brilliant track team carrying off the intercollegiate title and the football teams of Stanford, Oregon State and Southern California scoring notable intersectional victories.

Paddock and Tilden played leading roles in the main arguments of the year giving the ruling bodies of their sports plenty to worry about in their efforts to find solutions for the perplexing amateur problems. Paddock's Olympic come-back failed but Tilden turned in one of the spectacular achievements of the year in the Davis cup finals where he rose to great heights to beat his old Nemesis, Rene Lacoste, after his sudden banishment and equally sudden restoration to the American team.

Despite a flock of form reversals, especially on the gridiron, it was a great year for champions, as Jones, Miss Wills, Tunney, Mickey Walker, the Yankees, French Davis cup team, Houser, Douglas Lowe and others repeated previous triumphs or kept their crowns, not overlook a few great come-backs, such as those of Walter Hagen and Miss Collett in golf and Rogers Honrsby, batting king of the National league for the seventh time in nine years.

WESTERLY

TO SELECT EQUIPMENT FOR NEW FIRE STATION

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 31—Of the building committee of Westerly fire district now engaged in completing a central fire headquarters building on Union street to replace the building destroyed in the fire of April 30th 1927 and consisting of Clifford W. Campbell, chairman, Louis J. Rossi, secretary, George E. Egger, Robert Bonner, George McKenzie, Columbus Pasetti, engineers, Walter C. Hiscox, Frank A. Sullivan and George A. Dolan, the sub-committee on location of site, Messrs. Campbell, Hiscox, and Dolan, was made a committee at a recent meeting on the purchase of furniture to equip the new building. Furniture and fixtures were discussed at the committee meetings and Westerly furniture dealers were consulted. With their cooperation, C. W. Campbell and Walter C. Hiscox left Westerly this morning on the New England express for Boston to visit the dealers and make selections of the necessary furniture and furnishings.

The formal opening and dedication of the fire station will depend upon the arrival and placing of the furniture. The fire apparatus Ahrens-Fox 1000 gallon motor pumper, Seagrave 500 gallon motor pumper, Alert Hook and Ladder truck and Maxwell motor hose cart have been occupying the first floor of the station since December first.

Watch Night Services.

The Peoples' Mission on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, held watch night services Monday beginning at 10 p. m. and lasting until midnight. A light lunch was served at 11 o'clock. The speakers were Rev. LeRoy Perry, Rev. Joseph H. Herold and Miss Jennie Eldred and there was special music. The United Theatre on Canal street held a special New Year's program beginning shortly before midnight and taking vaudeville numbers from a New London theatre.

WEDDING.
Koelb-Ilsley.

Relatives and friends from Westerly and vicinity attended the wedding at the National Baptist church in Washington, D. C. Friday when at 4.30 o'clock Miss Priscilla H. Ilsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben L. Ilsley, became the bride of Rev. Howard E. Koelb of Amesbury, Mass.

The maid of honor was Miss Marjorie Mothershead and the bridesmaid Miss Jane Crawford.

The best man, brother of the groom, was C. Milton Koelb, the ushers were Eldred G. Dickinson, Ralph Koelb, Norman Padelford and Oswald Tark. Mrs. Emily G. Dickson was the organist and Mrs. Ralph Koelb sang a solo. The bride wore white crepe satin trimmed with old lace. She wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was in a gown of beige yellow roses. NEARLY 50 STOCK ISSUES AT PEAK PRICES IN CLOSING SESSION OF YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(AP)—The bull party rode out the year 1928 firmly in the saddle on the stock market today, in the same wild fashion that it has pilloried throughout the major portion of the record-breaking 12 months of speculation.

Nearly 50 issues were rushed up to new peak prices for the year, a long list of gains running from 3 to 21 points. The Associated Press average of 30 industrials was carried up 2.30 points equaling its high record at 258.33 established Nov. 30, in contrast to the year low of 175.84. Total sales aggregated 4,881,400 shares. The volume of business delayed the ticker more than half an hour at the close and most floor traders were kept too busy during the final hour to participate in the confetti-throwing and Christmas party which is an annual event on the floor toward the close of the last session of the year.

Call money held at 12 per cent throughout the day, the highest level of the year and for seven preceding years, but the fact that it has been kept from going higher during the heavy year-end demand for funds gave the bulls something to celebrate. Banks called $50,000,000 in loans, but the high rate quickly attracted adequate replacement funds. The unusually high rates for time money, which, as indicating no real easy money early in 1929, have caused some uneasiness, showed little or no easing tendencies.

Funds are expected to flow back to New York on Wednesday and cause some easing of the situation. Although brokers are looking for a heavy reinvestment demand for stocks resulting from the large Jan. 1 interest and dividend payments, several commission houses continued to warn their customers that commitments should be extended with caution, as the trend of the new year is not yet clearly indicated.

The day's news included a further advance in the export price of copper and a $9,000,000 order for locomotives placed by the New York Central with the American Locomotive Co., one of the largest railway equipment orders in the past two years.

Copper, merchandising, automotive and utility shares were prominent in the day's upturn. An extreme advance of 23 points was recorded by Abraham and Straus, which touched 1142, a record price. By-Products Coke was also a strong point, shooting up nearly 17 points to a new peak at 122, and closing at 117. Buying of the latter was stimulated by merger and stock split-up rumors.

The automotive shares kept forward as the annual pre-automobile show movement in this group began in earnest. General Motors again crossed the 200-mark with a spurt of nearly 8 points, while Willys-Overland common touched a new high at 33 on heavy buying. Chrysler also made progress in a heavy turnover.

In the coppers Kennecott mounted 4 points to a new peak. Anaconda, Nevada Consolidated and others also broke into new high ground. Among the utilities, Public Service of New Jersey, Commonwealth Power and Columbia Gas sold at new high levels.

Rails reaching new peaks including Pennsylvania, New Haven and Chesapeake and Ohio. A few oils also touched new tops, among them Atlantic Refining, Standard of New York and Prairie.

American Machine and Foundry, Bethlehem Steel, Columbia Carbon, International Telephone, National Supply, and St. Joseph Lead rose 3 to nearly 12 points to record new high prices for the year.

General Electric was heavy until the final transactions, when it was quickly lifted about 6 points from its low level to the day's new peak. Radio and Montgomery Ward overcame early heaviness around midday, but Radio again sagged toward the close.

National Dellas Hess, which has risen sensationally recently, fell back nearly 16 points on heavy realizing, while Allis Chalmers also a recent strong point, Eisenlohr, Timken Roller Bearing, Union Tank Car and United Fruit lost 2 to 5 points each.

The commodity markets were generally steady, although wheat eased on lack of export demand. Corn gained on covering stimulated by reports of good takings abroad.

Foreign exchanges particularly sterling were heavy as funds were attracted from abroad by the high interest rates here.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 31—(AP)—Flaring-up of prices in the corn market today contrasted with a downturn of wheat values to a new bottom level for the year. Traders who were short of corn to fill December contracts were obliged to step lively in eleventh-hour purchasing, but managed to avoid forcing the market to any abnormal height, despite settlement of accounts today that involved as much as 7,273,000 bu. of corn.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled 1-4c to 1 3-4c net higher, with wheat finishing irregular 1 1-4c down to 1-8c advance, oats varying from 1-8c decline to an equal gain, and provisions at 10c setback to a rise of a dime.

Corn prices began early today to show an upward trend. Adjustment of open trades known to amount to millions of bushels in the December delivery of corn soon became the dominating feature, and the adjustment process was given impetus by word that a large part of the corn handed over in the end-of-the-month wind-up of dealings here was being taken by shipping interests, and was thus destined for immediate commercial use elsewhere. Under such circumstances, little heed for at least the time being was paid to announcement that today's receipts of corn here were of liberal volume, 519 cars.

Predictions of a cold wave likely to increase the movement of corn away from farms was also given but scant notice. A gain of 972,800 bu. today in the corn visible supply total was likewise virtually ignored. Other bearish news included indications that country offerings of corn to arrive in Chicago were somewhat larger, and that Northern Argentina reported showers beneficial to the growing crop there. Nevertheless, highest prices of the day in the corn market were reached during the late dealings, with only a fractional setback at the last.

Despite corn market strength which tended at times to check declines in wheat, all deliveries of wheat went down today to a new-low-price record for the 1928 crop. World shipments of wheat, 20,391,000 bu. for the last week, were nearly double the figures of a new year, and talk was current that the United States is now practically certain to carry over a large proportion of the world's excess wheat surplus. North American export sales of wheat today totaled about 800,000 bu. but were mostly Canadian. Oats today kept within narrow limits, shorts buying and cash houses selling.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to an upturn in the value of hogs.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(AP)—The bond market ended the year quietly and with prices showing easing tendencies in direct contrast to the strength and buoyancy displayed at the beginning of 1928. A few convertibles advanced on buying encouraged by rising stock prices and there was some demand for secondary rails and utilities, but the general list continued dull.

The Associated Press combined average of 10 first grade rails, 10 secondary rails, 10 public utilities and 10 industrials advanced slightly to 96.83, which compares with an average of 97.42 a month ago and 99.72 a year ago, and indicates about the extent of the decline in prices during a year in which public interest turned definitely to stocks.

The most active issues of the day were International Telephone & Telegraph convertible 4 1-2s, which made a net gain of 1 3-4 points on buying encouraged by the demand for utility stocks, Public Service of New Jessey 4 1-2s had a smaller turnover, but moved to a new high at 103. The issue broke to 179 1-2 and then recovered to 181 3-4, closing with a net gain of 4 3-4 points for the day.

Coppers responded to buying prompted by advancing copper prices and the buoyancy of copper stocks. Anaconda Copper 7s moved up 5 points to a new top at 191 and Tennessee Copper 6s gained about 2 points.

The general list was irregular. A few oils, such as Barnsdall 6s and Transcontinental Oil 6 1-2s, shared demand with Dodge Brothers 6s, General Motor Acceptance 6s, Lorillard debenture 5s 1-2s, Pressed Steel Car 5s and a few others.

ity and of excellent quality, has run steadily throughout the year. At times the full capacity day and night schedule that has gone on for several years was regularly maintained during 1928. The Assawaga Woolen company plant at Dayville, where about 250 are employed had a good year, though work was slack there for a time. Killingly Worsted at Elmville also helped importantly in its contribution to Killingly's prosperity the past year. This also is true of the Aerogris Products company plant at Upper Killingly where another textile plant that of Davis and Brown, has been alternately busy and idle during the year. An unwelcome note struck in October was an announcement of a reduction in wages in some of the cotton manufacturing plants in Killingly. This, however, caused no labor disturbance, employes realizing that the general situation for the cotton textile field is such that the employers were forced to make the reduction, much as they desired to maintain the old scale.

A new industry established here in 1928 was that of the Anderson Mill supply company. This concern, headed by Walter Anderson, a former warden of the borough, has done very well during its first year of activity, and its business so expanded that it had to abandon its original quarters on North Main street and take more commodious ones in the Barnett block at Depot square.

The majority of small enterprises doing business in Killingly went along very well during 1928. Some of them had an exceptionally good year. All were kept busy. Men in the building trades found plenty of employment through the greater part of the year, and were rushed from the time good weather set in last spring until cold weather came the past fall.

In the merchandising field in Danielson business was average good with some firms, and not so good with others. An outstanding feature of the year's retail merchandising business in Danielson, as in surrounding territory, was the development of the chain grocery store business. Several of the great chains are now represented in Danielson, all of them doing well and all reporting constantly increasing business.

A change that should be noted as marking 1928 in the merchandising field was the closing of the Quinebaug company store, on the West Side after more than a half century of business. This was a general store—a department store in effect. In connection with it a grist mill was operated. Its transactions during its history ran into millions of dollars. A great deal of its trade came from the hundreds of operatives in the Quinebaug mills, but hundreds of other people were patrons, many of them coming from miles around.

Prosperity In Putnam Reported For Past Year

PUTNAM, Dec. 31—Prosperity generally reigned in the city of Putnam during the year 1928 as far as business conditions and financial statements are concerned. In the manufacturing channels production marks according to statements obtained from the officials in the city's plants, indicate Putnam has equalled marks of othe. Connecticut cities, according to population. Though Putnam has not seen the birth of any new industries during the year 1928, it has watched a substantial expansion of the present plants and the employment of more hands in many of the factories.

Supt. Leonard H. Mellor of the National Rhea company in a Bulletin interview this week stated that business conditions attained greater heights during the year passed than in any previous year of this plant's existence. Mr. Mellor also said that the Putnam plant hopes to expand its affiliations during the coming year with one of the most favorable outlooks yet seen in the textile world.

The Bloom Silk company, under the management of Supt. Francis Metcalf, has increased its output of ladies' silk dress goods. The Bloom plant is housed in the large stone structure formerly known as the Ballou mill of the Nightingale-Morse Co. The Bloom company from time to time has extended its employment list by the addition of new machinery in the manufacture of its product.

The Putnam Woolen company is another of Putnam's textile plants which has experienced a fair year during the past 12 months. This mill has suffered no great loss of time and continues to maintain a steady working schedule. The outlook for the coming year's work is good, according to a statement from Silas M. Wheelock, owner of the mill.

The Putnam foundry, the city's only iron-working plant, has witnessed one of the best years in its history. The manufacturers of heaters and other iron products employ scores of skilled laborers who have suffered no loss of time through industrial upsets of 1928.

The latest addition to Putnam's business directory is the Richards dairy on Smith street. The new plant is of the most modern design and is housed in a brick building. The owner Benjamin Richards, is employing the Pasteur methods of purifying milk, which is rated as a guard to the city's health conditions.

Agriculturalists in the farming regions adjacent to Putnam report that 1928 has been a favorable year for the growing and marketing of crops. The Windham Farmers' association, which has its headquarters in this city, has experienced a most fruitful year. During the year the organization, under the supervision of County Agent Raymond Wing, has instituted a home economics branch and has devoted much time to organizing 4-H clubs throughout the country.

The months of 1928 were paths to greater goals to be reached, according to reports of the city's two civic organizations, the Putnam chamber of commerce and the Putnam Rotary club, organizations composed of business men striving to make this community a better and more prosperous one to live in, besides offering more encouraging opportunities to induce those outside of the city to seek locations here. Although these two organizations feel assured that Putnam experienced a much better year during 1928 than in any other during the past decade, they are ever seeking to bring about better industrial, social and civic conditions that will restore the city to its level of 10 years ago when it was recognized as one of the leading cities under the 10,000 population mark in the state.

The chamber of commerce is now under the guidance of President Walter N. King, owner and publisher of a Putnam newspaper and a newcomer with modern ideas as to community advancement. The Rotary club is piloted by President James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church, a man who is highly devoted to Putnam's accomplishments. Both these leaders feel that the city is certain to attain a higher level in every line during the coming year of 1929 and will overcome the many serious handicaps to which it has been subjected during the past 10 years.

Another outward expression of Putnam's steadily increasing progress in the business world is the report of E. L. Beebe, manager of the local telephone exchange. Mr. Beebe's statement indicates the local exchange has gained 100 stations during the past year and is the largest gain in business recorded during the past five years in this district.

The company is now working on several cable extension projects in this city to provide additional facilities for new service. The 1929 program for this area is also very large and will provide this section with every facility for extensions in all directions.

a few weeks ago resulting in the killing of a mad dog and two of its victims, announced today that the state department of animals will not issue a quarantine on all dogs in Putnam, as they have in surrounding towns and communities where mad dogs have roamed and bitten other members of the canine family.

The early ice harvest was threatened again today by the return of mild weather, supplanting the cold snap of the past two days. At noon today the ponds in the city contained a light skim of water on the ice surface. During Saturday and Sunday the ice froze to a substantial thickness and the presence of the low thermometer readings gave hope for an immediate harvest of the ice. It will be remembered that last year the open winter caused a considerable depression in the amount of ice cut and local dealers had hardly enough to last them through the summer season.

Although water appeared on the ponds today, it was said by those living in the vicinity of the ponds that little danger existed, because of skaters venturing on the water bodies since the ice is several inches in thickness.

"Slabtown," generally known as the Grove street section of the city has been branded as the loitering place for contented members of the skunk family, who are gradually becoming more domesticated and bold and are venturing the residential section of the city to obtain the means of existence. During the past few days a certain member of this branch of the animal kingdom has been terrorizing Grove street women and men as well by his acts of preying about in cellars and refusing to leave upon receipt of formal request.

This morning there came a report out of Slattown to the effect that a leading member of the Windham county bar association was taken to task after he (the lawyer) had threatened to throw him out of the cellar. When informing The Bulletin of the affair, the counsel said that he first detected the presence of the animal in his house, by the queer odors issuing from the cellar door. An investigation caused him to summon help from some nearby neighbors who formed in a posse and came to the rescue, but refused to forcefully evict the unwelcome guest from the house, when it attempted to resist. Before more help arrived, it was discovered that the animal had left of his own accord to torment other residents of the street. As far as could be learned none of the members of the posse or the lawyer had suffered any ce sequences.

Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville said this morning that the bankrupt stock of Wentworth and Holt is to be placed on the block at an early date and will be disposed of by public auction. The store was formerly conducted on South Main street by Percy A. Wentworth, who filed voluntary bankrupt petitions about a month ago.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and family of South Main street, Mrs. T.C. Bradford, Ralph Bradford and Miss Marjorie C. Bradford of South Main street will spend Tuesday in Chaplin, where they will attend the golden wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow B. Gallup of that town. Mrs. Gallup is the sister of the late Thomas C. Bradford of this city.

An accident of a minor nature occurred Sunday evening shortly after eight o'clock in Bugbee's square when a Buick coach operated by Francis Moore of 30 Newell street, Hartford, collided with a Nash touring car operated by Alphonse Petanaud of Middletown, when the latter failed to follow a route he had signified he was intending to take. Miss Marion Bowen, a passenger in the Hartford car was slightly shaken up by the jolt received when the vehicles crashed, but sustained no severe injuries. The accident was checked up by Sergt. Geo. Izard of the local police, who ordered the wreckages cleared from the highway.

The 1929 number plates of various New England states appeared on cars in the city this morning. The bright maroon and white markers, which will be the motor vehicle department's insignia for the ensuing year attracted considerable attention in the business section today, as did the first showings of markers from other states. All motorists must display their new registration plates January 1, or put their vehicles up, since no extentions are granted by the motor vehicle department.

HENRY MILLER, WASH. D.C.

Governor R. C. Dillon, of New Mexico, who declares that he will not wear the traditional dress suit at his inaugural less than a month and a half off. The cowboy Governor of New Mexico declares that a dress suit is "an outfit" that he wouldn't care to wear even at his forthcoming inaugural, unless he has to. The Governor states that two years ago he wore a dress suit and since that time it has layed idle in his ranch home.

Bulletin Newsboy of SeventyYears Ago

father, William W. Colt, on Fairmount street, West Side. The address was a great success for me financially. James Colt was a first lieutenant in the 14th Connecticut Volunteers at the battle of Antietam and was wounded there and promoted to major and afterwards brevetted brigadier general. And Henry P. Goddard, who was the city editor and circulation manager of the Norwich Morning Bulletin in 1859, 1860 and 1861, was a captain in the 14th Connecticut Volunteers; and in the spring of 1860 reported the address of Abraham Lincoln at the town hall for the Morning Bulletin, and I sold Abraham Lincoln a copy of that Bulletin on his way to take the railroad train at the Norwich and Worcester depot about 6 o'clock in the morning.

Isaac H. Bromley, the editor of the Norwich Morning Bulletin, on Dec. 15, 1858 and for some years after, was provost marshal of Norwich division, and captain of the 18th Connecticut Volunteers from July 26, 1862 to March 31, 1863, and afterwards managing editor of the New York Tribune, and died when 65 years of age. The city editor of The Bulletin was a busy man during the Civil war, with the war meetings at Breed hall, Apollo hall, Uncas hall, and Franklin square; and the publishers were busy with getting out extras. On Battle Sunday, April 12, 1861, with the fall of Fort Sumter, I had the first 500 copies that were printed, and sold them all at the bottom of the stairs going up to The Bulletin rooms on Franklin square, in a very few minutes. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Fitch, editors of The Bulletin during Civil war days, were able men and got out the best paper in Connecticut at the time.

I was so well pleased with my New Year's address of January 1, 1860, that Homer Bliss, one of the owners and editors of The Bulletin, wrote for me another address about Jan. 1, 1863.

U. S. Judge Nathaniel Shipman, an honored son of honorable Norwich ancestors, said in an address that I remember well: "We loved the town when we were boys; we love it now when we are men, and we want to say so."

POLICE ARREST FOUR IN LIQUOR RAIDS

Four persons were arrested Monday night by the local police in two liquor raids. The accused are John Zawieja, Polish, 48, No 33 St. Regis avenue, Victoria Beydel Furo, Polish, 37, No. 33 St. Regis avenue, Stanley Wulenda, Polish, 45, No. 356 North Main street and Nellie Wulenda, Polish, 49 of the same address. About a half gallon of alleged liquor was seized at the Walenda place and a quantity of wine and alleged "hooch" was found in the St. Regis avenue place. All were held in bonds of $1,000 each for their appearance in the city court this (Tuesday) morning. The police squad comprised Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officers John Quinn, Clifford Crary and Patrick Shahan.

Breeding hens need outdoor exercise and sunlight. If they are confined because of bad weather, it is a good plan to include 2 per cent of cod liver oil in their mash.

STAFFORDVILLE

At the Methodist church Christmas day Clifford Taylor Belcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belcher of Stafford-ville, and Miss Elizabeth Helen Kurimai, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kurimai of Tolland, were united in marriage by Rev. Clayton Ernest Richard. The best man was George Meyer of Staffordville and the bridesmaid was Miss Grace Kurimai of Tolland, sister of the bride. The wedding march was played by Miss Bertha Belcher, cousin of the groom. The bride wore a pink georgette gown and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore old rose crepe and carried pink roses. Only members of the two families were present. After the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Tolland, after which Mr. and Mrs. Belcher left for a honeymoon through the state. On their return they will reside with the groom's parents in this place for the present.

HOLIDAY HOSPITALITY TENDERED MANY GUESTS

Courtland E. Colver and daughters, Misses Helen and Margaret Colver, of the Submarine base, Mrs. Wallace V. Norcross and Eugene LaFontaine of the Allyn's Point section and Miss Emma Beth Bennett of the village, were in Norwich Friday evening to hear The Messiah sung at Slater hall, by the Norwich Choral society. Several from this vicinity were members of the chorus.

At the Community M. E. church, Rev. Jerome Greer spoke Sunday morning from Joshua 3:4, his theme being, The Untried Path. A trio, Miss Grace A. Chapman, D. R. Povey and C. E. Colver sang That Glorious Song of Old, for the morning anthem and O Little Town of Bethlehem, at the offertory.

Banners for attendance at the Church school session were secured by the classes taught by Dudley C. Perkins and Mrs. Avery Main and those for offering were awarded the men's class and Miss Gertrude D. Allen's.

Nelson Parker was leader of the Epworth league evening meeting with the topic, Back to the Home Church.

Mrs. Robert Townsend, of Fairhaven, Mass., who visited relatives here for a few days over the holiday, was accompanied home Thursday by her mother, Mrs. Charles F. Bartlett, for a visit. Her sisters, Mrs. R. Irving, Hurlbutt and Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt, with the latter's children, Harold, Ruth and Gene Hurlbutt, motored to Fairhaven with them and returned home Friday.

The son born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Crandall, in the village came as a Christmas eve gift.

Mrs. George M. Brown and daughters, Virginia and Barbara Bushnell of West Haven, visited Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Richard S. Parker and her brother and sister in law's, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller of Boston, who are visiting relatives at their former home in the village, were guests at dinner, Monday of Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester, in Norwich.

Miss Ruth Greer returned to Boston Saturday to resume her studies at the New England Conservatory of Music, after a visit over the Christmas recess with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer.

Mr and Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt entertained Mrs. Hurlbutt's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pearce and children, Alice and Henry, Jr., from Wakefield, R. I., for a visit over the holiday.

Jay Stoddard Pierce and his brother, Jack Pierce of Allyn's Point, returned home Friday after a week's visit to their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Diederich in Ridgefield, N. J.

Mrs. William K. Wright of Sterling was a guest over the holiday at the home of Mr. Wright's parents, Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Palmore and son, Sexton, of Hartford, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker.

BOLTON

MR. AND MRS. F. L. LOOMIS MARRIED SIXTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Loomis celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at their home Saturday. Their daughter, Mrs. Bertha Carpenter, of South Manchester, their son, Clinton Loomis, and family o. Hartford were present at the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Loomis were married in 1868 by Rev. William E. D. Moore of the Congregational church. After the reception they went to Portland, N. Y., to the home of Mr. Loomis' sister. Mr. and Mrs. Loomis are greatly interested in the town and the people whom they have known. Both voted at the recent national election. Although they are unable to get out often, they have a radio and that helps to keep them informed of the news of the day. It was reported recently that Mr. Loomis danced the "breakdown" to an old-time melody over the radio.

The Methodist church school held Christmas exercises Saturday night at the church. A play was given entitled Twelve O'Clock Before Christmas. Every child was presented a gift and candy from the school. Mr. and Mrs. Milton W. Haling furnished oranges for the children. Rev. Mr. Tourtelotte presented each family a photo of himself and wife.

Miss Catherine Gertrude Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lee, and Thomas William Skinner, son of Thomas Skinner, are to be married next week. Both parties are of Bolton. They are to make their home in Belknap, the north part of Bolton.

George O. Rose and sister, Elizabeth Rose, spent Christmas in Hartford with their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Strong had as their guest for Christmas their son, Ernest F. Strong, of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Eaton spent Christmas in Manchester with the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Loomis.

During 1928 there were 7 deaths, 6 births, and 9 marriages in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Lee had as their guests over Christmas Mr. and Mrs. John VonDeck.

Helen Aston of New York, Miss Eva Jones of Hartford and Mrs. Howard Hart and children of Cromwell spent Thursday with their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. Kneeland Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Yates spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Albert N. Skinner.

There is to be a card party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bentley for the benefit of the Community hall.

COLCHESTER

MISS MARKOFF, NORWICH, BRIDE OF NEW LONDON MAN

Miss Sarah Markoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Markoff of Norwich, and Perry Shaffner, of New London, were united in marriage, Sunday afternoon at Dember's hotel, on Elmwood heights. Rabbi J. N. Levine of the local synagogue performed the ceremony. Isador Shaffner, brother of the groom was best man. The bride was attired in a white chiffon velvet. After the ceremony, a dinner was served at the hotel to over 100 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Shaffner are on a honeymoon trip to Bermuda and upon their return will reside in New London, where the groom conducts a furniture business.

United To Give Cantata.

Over 100 were in attendance Sunday evening when members of the choirs of the Colchester and Westchester Congregational churches presented the Christmas cantata, "The Song of the Star." As the heating system at the Congregational church is in need of repair, the cantata was presented at the Baptist church which the Baptist society kindly offered for the evening. Those taking part in the cantata were: Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Stebbins, A. L. Stebbins, Jr., W. E. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Seyms, Mrs. H. H. Tompkins, E. H. Norton, Rev. A. W. Canney, Misses Janet Pendleton, Allison R. Bailey, Eunice Seyms, Clarice Brown, Hattie Belle Brown. Due to illness Mrs. Cyrus E. Pendleton and Miss Ruth H. Brown, two of the outstanding members of the group were unable to be present. The cantata was presented with much smoothness and showed the result of much earnest rehearsing and training under the direction of their leader, Mrs. W. O. Seyms. Among those in attendance were Rev. Mr. Dexter of Gilead, Rev. E. T. Thieme, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Caffyn, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lord and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Weir of Marlborough, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Chamberlin and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Norton and daughter of North Westchester.

After the close of the cantata many of the guests retired to the Congregational chapel where lunch and a social hour had been arranged.

Holiday Revelry

A New Year's eve celebration was held Monday evening at Dember's hotel on Elmwood heights. About 50 who are guests at the hotel for the holiday attended a New Year dance given under the auspices of the Pythian Sisters of Colchester, after which a midnight dinner and dance at the Dember hotel extended the enjoyment into the early hours of the morning. Among those present were Mrs. Louis Slavkin of Hartford, Miss H. Bronfen, Hollywood, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. M. Wasserman, Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Myers of Springfield, Mass., Miss Rosalind Dresdner, Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Shapiro and Mrs. Leo Gordon, Hartford.

William Herbert Adams left Monday evening for Pittsburgh to continue his studies at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, having spent the Christmas vacation at his home on South Main street.

Woodlot Demonstration Wednesday

A wodolot management and thinning demonstration is to be held by the New London County Barm bureau at the woodlot in North Stonington, owned by Ripley Parks Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The lot is located about two miles from the North-tonington-Old Mystic road.

PHILIP K. DEWIRE APPOINTED TO BE POSTMASTER AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Announcement was made today that Philip K. Dewire had been appointed postmaster of this city pending an examination, to succeed the late Walter M. Slocum. Mr. Dewire for years has been an employe of the post office and at present time is in charge of the finance department. While several were out after the position the Town Republican committee without his knowledge recommended him for the appointment and his friends are gratified at his promotion. Papers for the examination which he must pass are now being prepared by the civil service commission.

The mills of the Corticelli Silk company closed Saturday for three days, that the annual inventory may be taken.

Mrs. Dominick Golla and son, of 286 Howard street, were dismissed today as patients at Home Memorial hospital.

MRS. MAXSON MAY RECOVER, REPORT FROM HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Mrs. Mary Maxson, of Williams street, whose husband, a former chief petty officer, was fatally injured several weeks ago when the automobile in which he was riding from Portsmouth, N. H., to this city, was wrecked at Salem, Mass., and who has been despondent ever since because left with three small children to care for, became despondent Saturday afternoon. She decided to end her existence. Going to a pharmacy the woman purchased a 35-cent vial of iodine and then walked to Jefferson avenue where she started to drink of its contents. She swallowed a quantity of the poison, but it burned her lips and throat so severely that she dropped the bottle. In a few seconds she collapsed, when the poison in her system took effect. Mrs. Maxson was found writhing on the ground, in agony, by a passing autoist. She was not unconscious and when assistance was offered her, she requested to be taken to her home. Realizing that the woman had attempted suicide, the motorist speeded to Lawrence Memorial hospital, where emergency treatment was applied and today it was stated that Mrs. Maxson would probably recover.

Joseph Lawski, of North Bank street youth, was charged in the city court today with breach of the peace and was fined $10, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Lawski went to a Main street restaurant Saturday evening and created such a disturbance that he was complained against and was arrested by Patrolman Carlos Stone.

The other cases presented were for intoxication and all were fined $5 or $10.

BULKELEY SCHOOL GIFT OF $5,000 FROM F. W. MERCER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Frederick W. Mercer today donated $5,000 to the Bulkeley school as a New Year present. This is only one of numerous gifts Mr. Mercer has given the school. He presented the school the splendid athletic field which bears his name.

Six properties of delinquent taxpayers which were to have been sold today are still in their names. The date of sale on all was continued. The owners and properties were: Property in Mountain avenue belonging to Lena Kaplan; at 29 Shaw street, Angelo and Minnie Queen Oddo; at 2 Terrace avenue, Raymond H. Hilliar; at 200 Montauk avenue, Barney Belgrade; at 42 N. Bank street, Arthur Marcu and Ann Wilensky, the property of Isadore J. Kaplan, 214 Shaw street.

Rev. Frederick W. Haist, for eleven years rector of Bishop Seabury Memorial Episcopal church, Groton, left today to make his home in New Jersey and the church is without a rector. He preached his farewell sermon yesterday morning. Until a successor is appointed rectors from other churches will read the service weekly.

At 11 o'clock this morning the Oxford Hose company was called out to extinguish a fire at the home of Roaldo Seechiarelli in Goshen street. The blaze was started by a quantity of hot grease spilled on the kitchen floor. The use of one chemical tank was sufficient to put out the blaze.

FIRE, POLICE COURT, JAIL, RESULT FROM BOOTLEG BOOZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Charles Blount, negro, came very near disaster as the result of drinking bootleg whiskey yesterday afternoon. After having imbibed too freely the negro went to his room at 217 Main street and went to bed with a lighted cigarette in his mouth. After a short while the butt dropped from his mouth and set fire to the bedclothes and when he awoke everything was in flames. While he succeeded in escaping, without being burned, it was necessary to call out the Niagara Engine company to extinguish the blaze. Blount was arrested on a charge of intoxication and in police court this morning was fined $5 and costs. Being unable to pay the fine he was committed to the Franklin street jail.

As a result of complaints turned in, Patrolman Elwood Bailey, this morning confiscated five air rifles from boys who, it is alleged, had been in the habit of shooting out window lights and performing other similar stunts. A warning has been issued that unless proper care is exercised by boys owning such weapons others will be confiscated as soon as a complaint is made.

Prentice Baldwin Hunt, of Trenton, formerly of this city, was choir master and organist at St. James Episcopal church Sunday. His playing of unusual technique and the program rendered was enjoyed by the congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Carver, of 28 Rogers street, entertained at bridge Saturday evening. Four tables were in play and the prize winners were Mrs. John McInnis, Mrs. F. J. O'Hara, John Doyle and Joseph MacInnis.

MONKEYED WITH MACHINES; EAST LYME MAN PENALIZED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Paul Robertson, of East Lyme, was in police court this morning charged with tampering with an automobile. He was fined $10 and costs. Robertson was in this city Sunday night when he was observed by a shore patrolman to enter two automobiles on State street and attempt to start the engines of the cars. When he was unsuccessful Robertson alighted and entered a Packard roadster and drove away. The shore patrol, believing that Robertson was stealing a machine, commandered another auto and went to State and Bank street, where he made known his suspicion to local officers. The officers gave chase through Bank street and overtook the fleeing automobile just south of Lane A. Robertson declared the automobile was that of his brother's and inquiry revealed that he was telling the truth. When Robertson returned to where he had had been parked, it was not there and Robertson accused an officer of taking it. He then was arrested on the charge which resulted in his conviction.

Patrick Reagan, charged with breach of the peace, was sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. He was arrested Saturday by Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Elwood Bailey upon complaint of his mother.

Teddy Gingo, a waiter residing at 134 North Bank street, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was sentenced to jail for 30 days. Gingo went to Bank street Saturday evening and hid himself behind shrubbery. When a young woman drove her auto to a garage on the premises, Gingo applied insulting remarks to her and chased the girl into her home. He was captured and allowed his liberty, but Gingo returned to the house a short time afterwards and was arested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy.

NEW YEAR IS WELCOMED WITH NOISY JUBILATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—The populace of New London joined in merry-making tonight in celebrating the departure of the old year and the entrance of the new year. At the road houses in Waterford and Saybrook the largest gatherings assembled. At the New London clubs and at the Hotel Mohican joyous throngs assembled. In several of the churches watch meetings were conducted, with prayer and music. At the stroke of 12 the whistles on locomotives in the railroad yards and on steamers in port screeched forth a noisy welcome to 1929.

BLOCK ISLAND SUB TESTS SUDDENLY POSTPONED

NEW LONDON, Dec. 31—Arrangements by the government to conduct tests for the providing of additional methods of rescuing crews of sunken submarines and salvaging of the undersea boats, which had been planned to be held at Great Salt Pond, Block Island this week, have been indefinitely postponed. It was planned to have U. S. S. Mallard leave port Wednesday next and go to Bridgeport where arrangements called for the Simon Lake Torpedo company's salvage submarine, the Defender, to be delivered to the crew of the Mallard, which craft was to bring the Defender into port. A large pontoon was then to be added to the Mallard's tow and the rescue and salvage equipment taken to Block Island for the tests. This afternoon a message was received at the submarine base ordering the Mallard to remain in port because the Defender was not ready to be taken to the testing grounds. Officers from the base, who have charge of the salvage work will go to Bridgeport tomorrow to determine definitely when the Defender will be ready for the tests.

At St. Mary's Star of the Sea church the men of the parish are preparing for the annual celebration of Holy Name Sunday, Jan. 13. As was explained from the pulpit Sunday the public commemoration of the feast is intended as a tribute of honor and reverence to the Holy Name of Jesus and consists chiefly in the receiving of holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass on the day of the feast.

A large committee is working for the success of the event which is under the auspices of the Holy Name society of the parish.

Gary Messik, United States Coast Guard, state pier, will be in Groton town court Wednesday charged with reckless driving and driving without a license as the result of the automobile he was driving on Walker Hill Sunday being wrecked and one of the occupants injured. The automobile is owned by Miss Florence Friedland, 104 Ocean avenue. Driven by Messick and with George Prime of Brooks street, as a passenger a trip was made to the Groton side of the Thames. While the car was descending a grade, it collided with two boulders and overturned. Prime was injured, getting severe bruises. The state police were notified of the accident, but when they arrived it came out that Messick and not the owner of the car had been the driver and Messick was nowhere to be found. However, he was arrested this morning.

A Chevrolet sedan, carrying Connecticut markers, L-183 and owned by the Hire and Drive It Co., Brainard street, this city, was stolen in Putnam last night. The theft was reported to the state and tonight the New London police were requested to be on the lookout for the car.

William Coulson was arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin charged with breach of the peace and intoxication and will be in court tomorrow. Two cases of intoxication also await trial. One fellow was arrested this afternoon on North Bank street by Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Elwood Bailey and the other was arrested on the same street by Acting Sergeant Augustus Ray.

AIM TO MAKE CITY BIGGER AND BETTER —MAYOR SCOTT

As we are about to enter upon another year in our city's history, we might well renew some of the happenings during the year now drawing to a close.

We are pleased and thankful that all of our departments have functioned harmoniously, that our fire losses have been well under one hundred thousand dollars, that business has compared good, and that many major projects have been completed.

With the completion of the paving of Bank, Williams, Jay and Truman streets we have a city whose entrances are second to none in Connecticut.

As we enter upon the New Year, let us all have but one objective in view, and that to do our best to make New London a bigger and better place in which to live.

Let us all cooperate in all matters which will bring credit to our fair city.

I extend my sincere thanks to each and every one of you for your help and assistance during the past year and wish you a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

MALCOLM M. SCOTT,
Mayor of the City of New London

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

For some time Norma Shearer has been anxious to play a good bad girl on the screen. In "A Lady of Chance," the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture presented at the Palace theatre, she gets her wish, and we are glad, for it gives this beautiful and talented star her best screen role to date. And Norma's friends are so loyal she can be as bad as she wants to and they'll always forgive her and applaud her.

"A Lady of Chance" has been adapted to the screen from the story by LeRoy Scott and deals with a telephone girl who really was a gold digger. That is, she was a bold, bad gold digger until she set her cap for a handsome young man, found that he had no gold to dig and then suddenly discovered that she really loved him just the same.

"A Lady of Chance" is as captivating as it is intriguing and in addition to giving Miss Shearer her best role it also gives her a fine supporting cast and the result of their co-operation is splendid entertainment. Johnny Mack Brown is the boy who looks like a million and feels like a nickel. Gwen Lee and Lowell Sherman are two polished crooks who work a badger game and employ Miss Shearer's beauty and ready wit to their advantage. When she proves just a little quicker witted than they and runs away with the spoils they had hoped for, they nurse a grudge which has its innings when they attempt to blackmail her after her marriage and reformation. How she saves her happiness is just one of many entertaining climaxes. Buddie Messinger, and Eugenie Besserer are also active in the play. Robert Z. Leonard directed the story from a screen adaptation by Edmund Goulding and A. P. Younger.

If you are hungry for a real, honest evening's entertainment, "A Lady of Chance" will satisfy your every expectation.

Broadway Theatre

Greta Garbo, more glamorous and alluring than ever, and John Gilbert, dashing, intense and handsome, give another remarkable example of their unique charm as co-stars in "A Woman of Affairs," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture directed by Clarence Brown from a Michael Arlen story, which, synchronized with sound and with an accompanying program in sound, opened Sunday at the Broadway theatre.

The great Swedish actress presents another side of her amazing personality in this film. She has discarded the famous Garbo slink, and the exotic roles, with which she has been identified, and plays a tempestuous young lady of Lody society. She has altered the style, and the way of wearing, her clothes. Her amazing powers of acting, however, are unchanged.

As Diana Merrick, Miss Garbo passes through the picture, a tragic, passionate and misunderstood character, to a fate self-chosen, that it well may be left to those who see the picture (and that will be everyone who goes to motion pictures) to decide for themselves whether it was supreme self-sacrifice, or whether it was the distraught act of a tempestuous soul, which may have ended a problem, but failed to solve it.

Gilbert, as Neville Holderness, and Miss Garbo have as many opportunities for emotional love scenes as they did in their other two pictures, "Flesh and the Devil" and "Love."

The high standard of acting set by the stars is ably seconded by an unusually strong cast, which includes Hobart Bosworth, as the stern father who stands between his son Neville and Diana; Lewis Stone, as Dr. Hugh Trevelyan, a close friend of the Merrick and Holderness families; John Mack Brown, as David Furness, stroke of the Oxford crew, and friend of Diana's brother Geoffrey, played by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.; and Constance, played by Dorothy Sebastian, who is the sweet and unfortunate victim of the passionate relationship between Neville and Diana.

Breed Theatre

In connection with "The Red Dance," the latest vehicle for Charles Farrell and Dolores Del Rio, which is now showing at the Breed theatre, a story has just come to light showing how extras can carry devotion for their art to extremes.

Raoul Walsh told the atmosphere men to wear their furry coats one day, since it was to be a Russian scene in a snowy background. All the extras dutifully showed up the next morning wearing such furry coats and perspired freely in the balmy Hollywood temperature.

That is, all wore the required outfit except one. He stood out from the others because he was garbed in a mackinek. Walsh went up to him.

"Why didn't you put on a fur coat, as I told you?" the director demanded.

"Because I haven't any," the extra replied. "But I'll tell you what I did. I put on two suits of winter underwear instead."

SNOW FELL IN LONDON ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

LONDON, Dec. 31—(AP)—The old year departed in Britain like a blustering old curmudgeon. Snow fell rather heavily in the north yesterday and at night reached London, but by daylight today had changed to a sloppy drizzle in the metropolis.

Festive preparations for ushering in 1929 proceeded apace since the king was deemed out of imminent danger. London's big hotels arranged revels for the evening on an unusually grandiose scale.

Mrs. George L. Kies

At 1:30 o'clock Monday morning Mrs. Julia A. (Martin) Kies, widow of George L. Kies, died at her home No. 79 Fourth street. Her death was the result of a shock, the second suffered within a short time.

Mrs. Kies was born in North Franklin May 10, 1845, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin and was the last of her immediate family. There are two nieces, Mrs. Lottie R. Camp of Los Angeles and Mrs. Sanford A. Rice, also of California. She was united in marriage to George L. Kies on May 25, 1865 one year after the close of the Civil war in which Mr. Kies served as a soldier. Mrs. Kies was a faithful and devoted member of the Greeneville Congregational church, also was affiliated with Sedgwick Women's Relief Corps. Mrs. Kies was 83 years old and most of her life was spent in Greeneville and was one of the oldest residents in Greeneville. Mrs. Kies possessed a wonderful dispolstion which won and held many friends for her.

A stag party was held Friday evening in honor of Cadet William Mahoney on 53 Convent avenue. Radio and victrola selections were played during the evening. Vocal and piano solos were rendered and refreshments were served. Among the guests present were James Williams, Arthur McGowan, William Higgins, William Lukowski and Luke Reilley, all school friends of Cadet Mahoney.

Maurice Goldblatt, who has been spending the holidays recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Goldblatt on North Main street, has returned to resume his studies at William and Mary college at Virginia.

The Christmas program of the Salem Lutheran church Sunday school was rendered Thursday evening before a large congregation. The program opened with a processional by the Sunday school and church choir. The scripture text taken from the second chapter of St. Matthew, 1-11 verses, was then read by the superintendent and Sunday school after which the pastor, Rev. Anders Anderson offered prayer.

The Sunday school children sang and spoke praises to God for His great gift to mankind, Jesus Christ, whose birth we celebrate at this period. The whole program bore witness that Jesus Christ is the shining light for all people and that in Him only is eternal life to be found.

Two numbers, "Away in a Manger" and "Silent Night," were rendered by the Sunday school. "Beautiful Star" and "March of the Magi Kings" were given by the young men's quartette, and a duet, "Star of the East," by Mrs. A. J. Anderson and Miss Dorothy Pearson, accompanied by Miss Edna Hanson. There was also a song "Star of Bethlehem," by a trio of young ladies from the choir. The program closed with a song "Take the Name of Jesus With You," by the congregation, and benediction by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Anderson.

After the program the children were presented with gifts and candy, apples and oranges were also served.

TAFTVILLE

John Boucher has moved to the house at 19 North A street.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile J. Dubeau of Plainfield were week-end guests of Mrs. Dubeau's parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert, and family of North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Linderson and children, Arline and Philip, Jr., of Gurleyville have been recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and family of North Third avenue.

The members of the American Legion auxiliary have sent to the ex-service men who are at Uncas-on-Thames, holiday baskets. Each basket contained fruit and games. Mrs. William Emerson and Mrs. James Emerson were the committee in charge.

Postmaster Adams announced Monday that the hours at the local post office would be from 8:30 to 9 a. m. on New Year's day.

On New Year's day, the Feast of the Circumcision, and a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church, the masses at the Sacred Heart church are to be at 7, 8:15, 9:30 and 10:45 a. m.

Many of the local automobile owners instead of "putting up" their cars for the first three months of the year as usual, are operating them this year because of the mild weather and open roads.

NEW UNCASVILLE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

UNCASVILLE METHODISTS ERECTING FINE NEW BRICK CHURCH EDIFICE

By construction work which has been going on since June, the congregation of the Uncasville Methodist Episcopal church is to have a new church edifice to replace the building which was totally destroyed by fire when it was struck by lightning in April, 1927. A new site for the church building was provided through the gift to the church by Mrs. Ralph Melcer of a 200 foot lot, 320 feet deep, fronting on the Norwich-New London highway and adjoining the Uncasville school lot. Ground was broken on Sunday, Nov. 27, 1927, the building contract was let in June, 1928, the cornerstone was laid on Saturday, Aug. 4, 1928, and the work is so far advanced now that it is the expectation that the building can be ready for use in the spring. The approximate cost will run to $50,000.

The new building is 120 feet deep and 66 feet wide over all, with a steeple 75 feet high. The architecture is colonial and the outside of the building is of rustic red brick with cut stone trim. The inside is plastered and this part of the work is now being done.

The church is built of brick and hallow tile with steel trusses for the roof and the front part is occupied by the auditorium, seating about 250, with the spacious Sunday school room occupying the rear. Adjoining are the social parlors with a large fireplace and the arrangement is such that sliding doors make it possible to throw all the rooms into one.

Other appointments in the building include pastor's study, built-in organ and choir loft, stage for entertainment, ladies' parlor and toilets, and a fully equipped kitchen with cabinet, sinks and stove.

SUSPENDED 30 DAY SENTENCE FOR GEER

Thadeus Geer, 45, colored, of the West Side, and Earl Vera, 22, both charged with breach of the peace, were presented in the city court Monday morning. Geer was given a sentence of 30 days in jail, suspended, and Vera had his case nolled. Vera made a New Year's resolution in court that he would keep out of trouble in 1929. The two men were arrested at the Connell block, Thames street, Saturday night, after they engaged in a fight, in which it was alleged that Geer threw an ax at Vera.

A witness testified in court that several men were in the Connell block listening to a radio, when Geer walked into the room and became abusive. As the men were going down the stairs, Geer, it is said, swung the ax at Vera. It missed him and struck a bannister. In a fight which followed Geer received a black eye. Geer denied that he tried to hit Vera with the ax. He claimed that he was on his way to cut wood and Vera attempted to take the ax away from him. In the tussle the ax struck the bannister in some way.

SAILOR FINED FOR DRIVING WITHOUT LICENSE

Presented in the city court Monday morning, Stewart A. Mills, 22, a sailor at the submarine base, was fined $25 and costs on the charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license. A second charge of operating without having a registration with him, was nolled, after the registration was shown in court. The accused was arrested Saturday night on Franklin square after a collision. His car collided with a sedan owned and driven by Frank Sienkiewicz of the Norwich state hospital.

NORWICH AND MONTVILLE BOYS ON STATE TEAM

Two of the three boys who make up the state poultry judging team who are to compete at Madison Square Garden in New York on Jan. 16 and 17, are New London county boys—Leo Vollowitz of Norwich and Herbert Lowe of Montville. They won their places on the state team at Durham last Saturday, Vollowitz placing second with 1,240 points, and Lowe third with 1,210 points. The other member of the team is Charlie Reiter of New Haven. The three on the team are to go to Boston, Wednesday, for further training before the Madison Square Garden event.

FAILED TO SECURE LICENSE FOR ROOMING HOUSE

John Roderick, 36, proprietor of a rooming house at North Thames street, known as the "Flop House," was presented in the city court Monday morning and fined $10 and costs on the charge of conducting a rooming house without a license. He was arrested Monday morning. Roderick was given a sentence of ten days in jail a short time ago for violation of the liquor laws and in court promised to secure a license, but failed to do so.

WIFE WANTS HUSBAND TO RETURN HOME

Mrs. Blanche Bishop, of this city, issues an appeal through The Bulletin to her husband, who left town December 20, to return home immediately. Mrs. Bishop who is in a highly nervous state over her husband's disappearance, said Monday evening that the missing money has been found. Mr. Bishop is believed to be in New London and his wife is very anxious to have him return home.

SMALL CHIMNEY FIRE ON LAFAYETTE STREET

A call at 7:08 o'clock Monday evening called the fire department to the frame house in the rear of No. 24 Lafayette street for fire in the base of the chimney. The house is owned and occupied by James McAvoy. Engine No. 3, Squad A and Acting Chief Henry R. Taft responded and extinguished the blaze with no resulting damage.

To Address Commerce Chamber

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, recently appointed governor of the Philippines, will address the members of the Norwich chamber of commerce at a patriotic dinner at the Wauregan hotel, Feb. 19. Word has been received by Walter H. Pilcher, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, from Washington of this fact.

HERBERT E. LAURENCE SUPT. UNIVERSALIST CHURCH SCHOOL

NORWICH TOWN

PLAN TO MAKE C. E. SOCIETY MORE ACTIVE FOR COMING YEAR

"Release and Apprehension," was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey at the First Congregational church, John 9:4, was the text, I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work.

Nelson Webster was leader of the Junior Intermediate C. E. society, Sunday afternoon in the Congregational chapel. There was a good attendance. One of the senior leaders was in general charge and Miss Rose Durr accompanied for the hymns. "Look Ahead," was the lesson topic. Dr. James Floyd spoke to the children in a general way, about the blessings of having privileges of learning more about God and Jesus, that we may have Him more in our lives. Each member has been asked to suggest a new idea at the meeting next Sunday, to make this society more helpful and more prosperous in every way the coming year. At this meeting also, the contest for attendance, in charge of the Lookout committee, is to begin, as does also that of the Bible contest in charge of the Prayer-meeting committee.

Miss Eleanor Moore, was the leader of the Young People's C. E. service Sunday evening at 6:30, when the topic considered was "Learning From Experience."

Today (New Year's day) the Feast of the Circumcision, and a holy day of obligation, masses at the Sacred Heart church will be at 5:30 and 7:30 a. m. At this church Friday, in observance of the first Friday of the month, the mass that morning will be at seven o'clock. In the evening at 7:30, there will be devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

The mid-week service at the Congregational church will have for its theme Thursday evening "Retrospect and Prospect."

The Women's department of the League of Service plans to hold an interesting meeting in the chapel Friday at 3 p. m. All women of the parish have been urged to attend. The mite box will be present, and after the program a social hour will be enjoyed.

"Thou Shalt Exalt Christ in 1929," was the theme of the sermon by Rev. George Warren Potter Sunday morning at Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. The text was Matthew 5:20. In the absence of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich, the organist, Mrs. LeRoy Miner had charge of the music. A pleasing selection was sung by Muriel Rose, Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel. Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter told a children's story. At the Church school session in the absence of the superintendent, Lewis E. Aldrich, the opening and closing service was in charge of Millard Manning. Florence Gembel was leader at the Junior Epworth league service with the topic, "Sharing Christmas With Others." The C. E. meeting was led by Millard Manning who gave a very interesting talk on, "Learning From Experience." At the stereopticon evening service the topic was "Favorite Hymns." The pastor spoke on hymns: "America, The Beautiful," "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee," "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," "Saviour, Thy Dying Love," and "The Ninety and Nine." The stereopticon was operated by Ralph Smith who displayed about 70 pictures during the talk. The machine was loaned by the Norwich Young Men's Christian association.

This week at the Methodist parsonage, New Year's day from 3 until 5 the pastor and his wife will hold open house for all members and friends of the church. Wednesday evening the Camp Fire Girls meet at the parsonage and Mr. Potter's class of young men from the Church school meets with him in the study. Friday night the Boy Scouts meet and Saturday morning the Wolf Cub Scouts meet at 10.

MRS. MARJORIE HORTON IS GRANTED DIVORCE

At the short calendar session of the superior court in this city Friday, Mrs. Marjorie Horton, society woman of New London, and Oswegatchie (Waterford), was granted a divorce, custody of four minor children and alimony in the weekly amount of $250 from Robert Horton, a member of the New York stock exchange. The grounds of desertion and a statutory offense. The couple was married Feb. 16, 1915. Mrs. Horton testified that she was getting $250 weekly from her husband since he left here some three years ago. Her husband, she said went out with other women. The action went uncontested although Attorney Charles B. Whittlsey of New London was in court looking after Mr. Horton's interests.

STATE MAY TAKE OVER CHARTER OAK PARK

A state-wide meeting to determine the future of the Connecticut State fair and to discuss the possibility of the state taking over the 120 acre Charter Oak park property will be held at the state capitol at Hartford next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, according to a letter which President Henry Trumbull of Plainville has sent to a group of state officials, Hartford city officials, members of the 1929 legislature, the officers of certain chamber of commerce and trade associations in Hartford county, to the officers of about 15 state-wide agricultural organizations, and to the directors of the state fair.

Mr. Trumbull's letter follows:

"A meeting will be held in the old senate chamber at the state capitol at Hartford on Thursday, Jan. 3, at 2 o'clock to decide whether or not the state fair shall be continued.

"Won't you, as a public-spirited citizen, attend this meeting and help the directors of the state fair? The questions to be decided are:

"(1) Shall the state fair be given up, thereby tending to make the prices of Connecticut food products higher?

"(2) If the state fair it to be abandoned, should its 120-acre Charter Oak park property be sold for private development?

"(3) Shall we offer the opportunity to the 1929 legislature to purchase this property to use for military purposes and to house certain state departments?

"(4) Shall Connecticut admit its inability to stimulate through a medium of this kind a better relationship between agriculture and other lines of business and the encouragement of junior organizations so vital to Connecticut's industrial future?

"Proposals will be presented for the partial use of the property for semi-commercial projects that would at the same time help the future operation of the state fair.

"The directors of the state fair must consider and decide the foregoing questions. Won't you kindly attend this meeting so that we may have a helpful expression of sentiment on these questions?"

CHIEF STANTON STARTS LEAVE OF ABSENCE TODAY

The six months leave of absence granted Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department becomes effective today (Tuesday). At his request, several weeks ago the court of common council voted to retire Chief Stanton, setting the date of retirement as of July 1st next, and granting him a leave of absence effective January 1st. Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft will today assume his duties as acting chief of the fire department, and Captain Dennis J. Brennan assumes the duties of acting deputy chief.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD 234 CALLS FOR YEAR 1928

A total of 22 alarms was received by the fire department during the month of December. There was only one bell alarm, with 15 telephone and 6 oral calls.

For the calendar year, 1928, the department responded to 234 calls as against 213 for 1927. The loss for 1928 is a trifle larger owing to the several large fires. These were in the Dollar store, the Eldridge Hardware store and the Norwich Grain company.

313 ARRESTS WERE MADE IN WASHINGTON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Three Night Clubs Figured in a Series of Police Raids—In One Club There Was Trouble Because the Celebrants Objected to the Presence of the Police—Prohibition Officials Made Only One Raid in Chicago New Year's Eve.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—The capital generally looked out upon New Year's day through rain-dripping windows and to 313 of the population the day was even more sombre. This 313 were the police haul and of the number 64 must have seen the incoming year in an extremely blue light for they had carried hilarity to extreme in celebrating the death of the old year.

Three night clubs figured in a series of police raids, and revelers elsewhere were kept under a constant police eye. In one of thees clubs there was a small battle, without serious casualties, because the celebrants objected to the presence of police on such an occasion.

To add to the difficulties of some of the revelers, the police decided that a 1928 license tax was no good on an automobile after midnight and infraction of this ruling caused discomfort to many. One celebrant was arrested at 12:05 a. m. The charge was speeding. His excuse was that he had driven fast in order to get across the line into Maryland before midnight so as to avoid violating the law. The police dealt with many similar minor complaints, and today it was their expressed opinion that the new year was about as other new year's.

ONLY ONE DRY RAID IN CHICAGO NEW YEAR'S

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator for the Chicago district, today declared that the New Year's celebrators in the city and country are becoming reconciled to prohibition, and are not finding it so very painful.

"A certain few," he said, "persisted in trying to drink, but they were in isolated cases. Reports from my men showed a very satisfactory respect for the prohibition laws."

Only one raid was made by the prohibition officials who toured the city New Year's eve and only three arrests were made. Prohibition agents in hotels and cafes mingled with the guests and confiscated or ordered the management to confiscate bottles or flasks openly displayed but made no arrests and made no effort to find hip flasks not on tables.

Chicago hotels which entered 14,000 guests and the night clubs and cafes which entertained probably as many more, characterized the celebration as the liveliest in the city's history.

Mr. Yellowley said fewer arrests were made this year than any previous year and said several places would be observed further as a result of evidence obtained by his men last night.

In his annual report released today Mr. Yellowley observed that "definite and advanced results in enforcement of prohibition had been accomplished in the last year, adding that diversion of bonded liquor has been reduced to a minimum and that smuggling from Canada is one of the problems faced by agents now."

RABBI BECK RESIGNS AS CHAPLAIN OF THE LEGION

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 1—(AP)—The Pottsville morning paper will tomorrow carry an announcement by Rabbi Herman Beck, of the local Oheb Zedeck reformed congregation that he has tendered his resignation as national chaplain of the American Legion to Vice National Commander Edward White.

Rabbi Beck, who was elected national chaplain at the American Legion convention in San Antonio last October, said he had asked White to place his resignation before the executive committee of the Legion when it meets in Indianapolis on January 14.

"When Commander White happened to be in Pottsville last Sunday," the rabbi's announcement reads, "he visited me at my home and I took advantage of the opportunity to present my resignation to him.

Without seeking any office I have successively been post chaplain, state chaplain and national chaplain of the American Legion. This work makes many heavy demands upon me and my health has for sometime not been of the best though my congregation has generously granted me many privileges in connection with these positions I feel that this is an opportunity to relieve myself of some of these duties.

"I have been assured that my successor will be another Jewish rabbi and therefore the recognition given by the American Legion to the many valiant soldiers of Hebrew faith who fought in the World war will not be lessened by my resignation. I appreciate the honor of my election and regret that my health will not permit me to give the fullness of service which the office carries with it."

COOLIDGE ON HIS WAY BACK TO WASHINGTON

New Year's day was spent quietly on Sapelo Island, where the chief executive and Mrs. Coolidge were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Coffin. In preparation for an overnight railroad journey, the president decided not to attempt anything of a strenuous nature. The hunting trails were abandoned and the president rested quietly at the Coffin home.

Late in the day Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, with their official party and their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Coffin boarded the Coffin yacht, the Zapala Capala, for the first stretch of the homeward journey, through the meandering marshland channels to St. Simons Island and thence by automobile to Brunswick where the presidential special was drawn up awaiting the chief executive's arrival.

GERMANS FEEL ENTITLED TO FULL MEASURE OF LIBERTY

BERLIN, Jan. 1—(AP)—President Paul Von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hermann Mueller made today's official New Year reception the occasion for telling the diplomatic representatives of two score nations that the German people feel entitled to a full measure of liberty.

Chancellor Mueller used the term "foreign yoke" in referring to the occupied Rhineland provinces and the president said that his countrymen were "very bitter because a great part of their country still lacks the liberty which we claim through divine and human right."

The function at which these expressions were given was attended by the diplomatic corps, the federal cabinet members of the rechstag and reichsrat, chiefs of the army and navy, heads of the federal railways and the Reichsbank, and officers of the Prussian provincial government. The president exchanged felicitations with, and had a personal word for, each guest.

MAN WAS KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILES COLLIDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—One man was killed and nine other persons were injured when two automobiles collided head-on on the Boston Post road in Bronx today.

The man killed was John Colchanski of Stamford, Conn. In his car were a man he had picked up to show him the way and two women and three children from the Stamford address. Three men from New York city were in the other car.

COMPLIMENTS GERMANY'S ENTIRE ECONOMIC LIFE

BERLIN, Jan. 1—(AP)—Confidence in Germany's economic soundnes is the dominant note in Agent General Seymour Parker Gilbert's report for the fourth reparations annuity year made public today.

The report paints a highly complimentary picture of Germany's entire economic life. The agent general testifies to Germany's punctilious payments of all sums due on the reparations account and vividly describes Germany as placing the product of her science, skill and labor at the disposal of creditor nations in an effort to pay for the war.

Mr. Gilbert repeats earlier charges of over spending and over borrowing by the German states and individual communities. In his report he expressed the further opinion that "the most encouraging feature of the whole four years from the standpoint of public finances is the great productivity of revenues notwithstanding important reductions in taxation."

With reference to payments for the current annuity year the report forecasts that "no question can fairly arise, i nthe light of practical experience thus far, as to the ability of the Reich to provide the full amount of its standard contribution to the plan."

PEACE WORK IN WASHINGTON ON FIRST DAY OF THE YEAR

The Pan-American conference on arbitration and concillation worked away regardless of the holiday, and diplomats from many nations mingled at a diplomatic breakfast given by Secretary Kellogg at the Pan-American Union building.

With President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge away on a mid-winter vacation on the Georgia coast, the plans of cabinet hostesses and the wives of other high officials of the government were somewhat changed from the usual New Year's custom, and the white house reception at which thousands once each year shake the hand of the president was abandoned. Nevertheless Washington looked to the diplomatic breakfast to furnish the brilliant spectacle of the day.

Very few of the diplomats, or the cabinet, or the supreme court missed the breakfast which was given at 12:30 p. m. Vice-President Dawes was there and so was Vice-President-elect Curtis. Members of the senate and house foreign relations committees with their wives and many others distinguished in national life were guests.

PEACE THE THEME OF PRESIDENT OF FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 1—(AP)—France's part in the effort for world peace was the theme of the reception by President Gaston Doumergue today to the ambassadors and ministers of some 60 nations accredited to Paris.

Archbishop Luigi Maglione, the papal nuncio, as dean of the diplomatic corps, led the procession of envoys at the Elysee palace and addressed the president in their name. He described the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war as "due to the noble and generous initiative of France and the United States," and added:

"This pact has given the peoples of the world a welcome promise and it will remain for them a strong, sweet hope."

President Doumergue replied that France felt honored at having proposed the pact. He said it was prepared in complete accord with the government of the United States and he promised that the achievement of lasting world peace would remain the dominant concern of the French government.

SEEKS CAMP EQUIPMENT FOR CONFEDERATE VETS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Congress upon several occasions has enacted legislation similar to that sought by Representative Bulwinkle, democrat, North Carolina, to authorize the war department to loan camp equipment for a Confederate veterans' reunion in that state next June.

Except by congressional action the war department is without power to loan out any of the army equipment and in recent years bills to authorize such loans have been put through under routine procedure without extended discussion.

Question Mark Aloft On Endurance Test

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 1—(AP)—Cloudless skies and a gentle seven-mile breeze at 3,000 feet altitude furnished ideal flying conditions today as the giant army Fokker monoplane Question Mark cruised back and forth above Southern California's shore line on the start of the most elaborately mapped out aerial endurance test in history.

Capt. Ira C. Eaker, noted cross-country and international flier of the air corps, was seen to smile broadly as the big ship sailed past the pylon tower at the take-off. There was less than a hundred gallons of gas in the wing tanks, about three hours' supply, and within three-quarters of an hour the initial refueling of some 100 gallons of gasoline was made over the town of Lankershim, near the field.

"We held contact for eight minutes. We started at 2,800 feet altitude and Major Spatz (flight commander) found that 2,000 feet was the best after he had dropped 800 feet in experimenting for ideal conditions."

Soon after took off for Imperial airport near El Centro, Calif., in imperial valley, an emergency station. Following the second refueling at Rockwell field at San Diego, the crew participated in a New Year's turkey dinner on the northward flight which lasted until they flew over the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

AWAITING WORD FROM THE NATIONS INVITED TO MEDIATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Only favorable word from the governments invited to mediate the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute was awaited tonight to conclude formally the conciliation protocol which has been the Pan-American arbitration conference's major task since it assembled here December 10.

Inquiries addressed to Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay left Washington 24 hours ago to determine whether those countries would be willing to appoint judges on an international conciliation tribunal. The participation of the United States and of Cuba on the court is already assured.

Judges from these nations with two more appointed by each of the disputants would constitute the panel of jurists which, under the terms of the protocol, would investigate the Bolivian-Paraguayan trouble and would attempt reconciliation.

NORWEGIAN TANKER WENT AGROUND IN FOG

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Norwegian tanker Topila, inward bound from Curacao, went aground today on Flynn's Rock off Sandy Hook in a dense fog. A light sea was running but a southwest storm warning had been displayed at the Hook.

The Baltic later steamed through the fog to Quarantine, taking one hour and forty minutes for the lower harbor trip from Sandy Hook, which usually requires about 50 minutes.

The tanker Topila was believed to have escaped damage and it was expected the ship would be refloated at flood tide without assistance.

UNPRECEDENTED PROSPERITY PREDICTED BY CHRYSLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—The year 1929 should be one of unprecedented prosperity in the opinion of Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the Chrysler corporation, who bases his belief on the theory that the present rate of prosperity is in thorough keeping with modern speed, to which he says the automobile has contributed mightily.

"Generally speaking," Mr. Chrysler said, "business is excellent and will be better in most lines. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are not unduly over-extended in credit. Industry is not suffering from the over-production which has sometimes characterized it in the past. I can see nothing but good signs along the road of business in the present year.

NORTHCOTT READY TO MAKE A FULL CONFESSION

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1—(AP)—County officials and defense attorneys assembled at the county jail here tonight after Gordon Stewart Northcott, charged with the murder of four boys, told Captain William Bright of the sheriff's homicide squad that he was ready to make a full confession.

Northcott was to go to trial at Riverside tomorrow for the alleged slaying of three of the boys. He said tonight, according to Captain Bright, that he will plead guilty in court there tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, mother of Gordon yesterday confessed in court to the murder of one of the four boys. She was sentenced to life imprisonment and today entered San Quentin prison.

MIDDLE WEST IS HAVING SNOW IN ZERO WEATHER

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—Snow and zero weather greeted the New Year today in the middle west, some points reporting the coldest day of winter as a budding year was welcomed.

The drop in temperature started as the old year waned and in most sections snow was falling when the New Year was ushered in. Today the mercury east of the Mississippi river continued to descend with indications that the zero temperatures will prevail until tomorrow at least.

Three deaths here were attributed partly to the storm, two women and a policeman being the victims of automobile accidents.

AMERICAN DONATES $100,000 TO THE BRITISH MINERS

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—An anonymous American donor, a friend of the prince of Wales, has added $100,000 to the lord mayor's fund for the relief of distressed British miners. Announcement of the gift said that it came from "American friends of the prince of Wales". The gift comes within the purview of the government's promise to duplicate all private contributions to the fund

Recommends Canal Across Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 1—(AP)—General Jose Maria Moncada, in his inaugural address as president of Nicaragua today, praised American supervision of the election and said that he favored the construction of an interoceanic canal across Nicaragua. He asked for the establishment of schools, the construction of highways and railroads and promised that all political and civil rights would be respected.

"In the election," he said, "the Nicaraguan people responded magnificently to the hopes which we conceived for their welfare and it is only just that we render fervent homage to them for the splendid part which they took in the elections.

"In the same manner we complied only with our duty in giving thanks to the people of the United States, their government's electoral commission headed by General Frank McCoy as well as to Admiral Sellers, General Logan Feland, the United States Marines and the Nicaraguan National Guard for having conducted the election in the most honorable manner that could possibly be conceived.

"To other friendly nations, especially those whose shores kiss the same waters as ours, our policy will be one of sincere fraternity, motivated for the good of the continent and for its mutual defense. For this defense Nicaragua has something to offer. I refer to the canal, which would supplement the Panama Canal.

"Geographically located in the center of the new world and having common interests and destiny with the United States of America and the other nations of this continent, we Nicaraguans are inevitably obligated to open the heart of our country to civilization so that we may contribute something of what prodigious nature has given us for the benefit of all the people of the earth."

General Moncada asked his fellow citiens to forget the rivalries of the past, be tolerant of each other's opinions and work wholeheartedly for the good of the republic. He concluded:

"I urge my adversaries of yesterday to recognize in my statements the convinced expression of a man who has had only one great love in all his life—that for his country."

CROWD IN N. Y. GREETED FORMER GOV. SMITH

A band played "The Sidewalks of New York," as the governor passed through the terminal between lines of soldiers to the entrance to the Biltmore hotel, where he has maintained headquarters on visits to New York during his terms as governor.

Before leaving Albany this afternoon former Governor Smith said that his last duty was to see Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt installed in the executive mansion.

TOOK POISON ON DARE AT PARTY AND DIED

TOWANDA, Pa., Jan. 1—(AP)—Louis Myers, 26, took poison on a dare at a New Year's party here last night and died early today. Guests at the party were discussing the recent suicide of Miss Esther Vanderpool, 19, when Myers went to the kitchen and secured a bottle of the same poison the girl swallowed.

Reappearing among the guests, he asked if anyone dared him to drink it. Thinking he had placed water in the bottle and was joking, a member of the party called the dare and Myers drained the bottle. A half hour later he was taken ill and died less than three hours later.

AS FLU ABATES IN THE WEST IT INCREASES IN THE EAST

Twenty-Four States and New York City Yesterday Reported 90,000 Cases—The Same States Reported 168,000 Cases Last Week—Largest Increases This Week Were Reported by Michigan, West Virginia, Alabama, Louisiana and New Jersey—Connecticut Reported 297—Officials Believe a Second and More Severe Wave May Follow This One Later in the Winter.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Probability that the crest of the first wave of the influenza epidemic has been reached in the west was seen today by public health officials who scanned reports for the week ending Dec. 29, but the hope was tempered by a warning that such a development only substantiated the belief that a second and more severe wave might follow.

Twenty-four states and New York city today reported 90,000 new cases, compared with approximately 168,000 cases in the same states during the previous week. Officials saw in these reports a probability that the wave has reached its peak in the west, and that prevalence in the entire country would be less for this week than for the preceding.

"This, however, would only substantiate the belief that a second and more severe wave may follow this one later in the winter," health officials said, recalling that the more severe wave of the 1918 epidemic was preceded by a widespread outbreak in which cases were mild as they have been thus far in this epidemic.

Officials pointed out that among states reported today, decreases were, virtually without exception, in the west, while states east of the Mississippi river showed large increases. The increase in the east, however, has not balanced the decrease in the west so far.

Possibility that figures for the states not yet reported would bring last week's total up to or beyond that for the previous record was referred to by officials who also noted that in Pennsylvania and New York, two of the most important eastern states, the disease is not reportable. Unofficial reports from Pennsylvania, they said, indicate influenza is prevalent and reports from New York city have shown that the disease has appeared there.

The possibility that the seasonal holidays might have interfered with reporting, making figures less accurate, was suggested by officials who said today's reports would not interfere with plans of the public health service for a national conference on influenza, to be held here during this month.

The principal decreases shown, comparing reports for Dec. 29 and Dec. 22 were: Iowa, from 85,000 (estimate) to 27,000; Montana, from 4,031 to 623; Kansas, from 17,617 to 11,953; Wisconsin, from 14,724 to 4,698.

States showing largest increases this week, compared with the previous, were: Michigan, from 5,777 to 10,690; West Virginia, from 2,640 to 4,683; Alabama, 1,518 to 6,261; Louisiana, 121 to 2,343; and New Jersey, 219 to 584.

Other states reported today for the week ending Dec. 29 follow: Arkansas, 2,830; Oregon, 2,007; Idaho, 34; Connecticut, 297; Florida, 541; Georgia, 6,123; Massachusetts, 221; Washington, 590; North Dakota, 1,644; Vermont, 292; Utah, 14; Illinois, 2,657; New Mexico, 2,005; Maryland, 1,048; and Maine, 211.

New York city reported 441 for the same week. Colorado, which was not reported the previous week, reported 2,468 cases for last week. Oregon reported 14 deaths from influenza.

RECEPTION BY HOOVERS ON BATTLESHIP UTAH

U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 1—(AP)—Save for a mock white house reception New Year's day passed aboard this battleship, carrying President-elect Hoover, much as any other day during the cruise from Rio Janeiro toward Hampton Roads.

Mr. Hoover, Mrs. Hoover, and Ambassador Fletcher were in the receiving line on the upper deck at the "reception," and they as well as officers and passengers were much amused at costumes worn by those impersonating the justices of the supreme court, the diplomatic corps, the army, the navy, Tammany Hall, the W. C. T. U., the G. A. R., and Sandino, the Nicaraguan chief who has given the marines so much trouble.

The Utah rolled along at a little more than fifteen knots with brisk trade winds kicking up a sea which gave her a decided but gradual rocking from side to side.

Late this afternoon the goodwill ship was due east of Porto Rico and seventeen hundred miles from Hampton Roads which will be reached at 8 a. m., Sunday unless stormy weather is encountered meanwhile.

MAY INVESTIGATE THE LYNCHING OF SHEPHERD

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 1—(AP)—The probability of a grand jury investigation of the burning last night of Charley Shepherd, Negro convict, was indicated today by Arthur Jordan, district attorney in the district in which the lynching occurred. Mr. Jordan said he would get in touch with Judge S. F. Davis, at Indianola.

The district attorney's announcement followed a coroner's inquest at which it was decided that the Negro "came to his death from causes unknown to this jury." and after Adjutan General J. M. Hairstown had said that when he learned that the mob had seized Shepherd he had ordered home the 36 national guardsmen who were leading some 1,500 possemen. He explained that he was 30 miles away and could not do anything and that the soldiers had been called out to organize the hunt and "not to kill a lot of people trying to take away a murderer."

KING GEORGE SHOWS A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—A note of hopefulness sounded by Queen Mary in a New Year's message which she sent to the lord mayor of London, today, received confirmation today when a medical bulletin announced a "slight improvement in the general condition" of King George. The bulletin also said that the king had passed a restful day.

The improvement in the general condition of the royal patient is what the doctors, nurses, royal family and nation have ben anxiously awaiting in the many recent days of suspense. The continued and marked weakness of the king had seemingly defied the best efforts of medical attendants.

MUSSOLINI AGREES WITH AGRICULTURAL LEADERS

ROME, Jan. 1—(AP)—Premier Mussolini obtained an agreement from Italian agricultural leaders today which he hopes will enable Italy to produce all the sugar she requires. The plan provides for the cultivation of 250,000 acres of sugar beets.

Heretofore Italy has been obliged to import more than 70,000 tons of sugar annually. Half of this amount came from Cuba, 4,000 tons from Haiti and Santo Domingo and less than 2,000 from the United States.

It was also decided to raise the tariff against sugar from 24.75 gold lira per quintal to 36 gold lira.

NEW CHIEF MARSHAL OF BRITISH ROYAL AIR FORCE

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Sir John Maitland Salmond, air marshal has been appointed chief marshal of the Royal Air force in succession to Sir Hugh Trenchard, who resigned December 26. Sir John Frederick Higgins, air vice marshal, will be promoted to Sir John Salmond's old rank.

ROOSEVELT INAUGURATED GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 1—(AP)—A new governor of New York—Franklin Delano Roosevelt—was inaugurated today amid the plaudits of an enthusiastic crowd which filled the assembly chamber in the state capitol. A demonstration equally as enthusiastic was given to his predecessor, Alfred E. Smith, who today re-entered private life after a quarter of a century in public service.

A departure from the ancient ritual of inaugurations in Albany was made when the retiring governor introduced his successor immediately after the latter had subscribed to the oath of office.

In his speech of introduction, which was in the nature of a farewell to the public, former Governor Smith told of the growth of the state's activities during the 25 years he had been a part of the state government.

"I am turning the government over to you—not perfect, no human institution reaches perfection, but as good as it can be made," Mr. Smith said. He added that the state officials, by their co-operation, were responsible for about 90 per cent of the state's progress.

Then becoming intimately personal Mr. Smith said to his successor:

"Frank, I congratulate you. I hope you will be granted health and vigor and will be able to devote your intelligent mind to the problems of this state."

Governor Roosevelt in his inaugural address pleaded for the co-operation of the citizenry of the state in helping him reach a solution of the problems confronting the government.

SPLIT IN LEADERS OF THE SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, today received a letter from Mrs. William Bramwell Booth saying that it would be impossible for the American leader to see the sick commander-in-chief of the army for the present, because it was feared he could not withstand the excitement. Mrs. Booth expressed regret at having to deny her sister-in-law's request.

An official of Miss Booth's party also told the Associated Press that Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of the general, left the army's international headquarters last evening without attempting to see her aunt, although both were in the building at the time. It was stated that Commander Eva sent a note to her niece asking to see her, but the latter replied that it was impossible for her to do so at the moment. Later she departed without further communication.

This same official said that his chief could not obtain any definite information respecting the real condition of General Bramwell Booth at the international headquarters. He said the staff there seemed as much in the dark concerning the health of their commander-in-chief as was Miss Booth.

BODY OF ACTOR FOUND LYING ON THE SIDEWALK

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—The body of Norman St. Clair Hale, an actor, was found today lying on the sidewalk in West 58th street, just off Broadway.

Police said an investigation disclosed that Hale had visited the quarters of a fire engine company nearby during the New Year's celebration, climbed to the third floor and fell through the fire pole opening to the floor below.

Firemen said he refused medical attention and walked away.

SNOW WITH FREEZING WEATHER IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 1—(AP)—Paris just missed having a white New Year's. Snow fell copiously in the encircling cities of Calais, Metz, Toulouse and elsewhere. A cold wave brought freezing weather to all of France but the weather man said it did not herald the beginning of a hard winter because a warm wave coming from the north will spoil all chance of skating by day after tomorrow.

WILLIMANTIC

NE WYEAR QUIETLY WELCOMED IN THREAD CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1—New Year's day was one of the quietest ever noted here. Inclement weather played its part in making the holiday a peaceful one. A mixture of rain and snow which fell in the forenoon made traveling conditions uninviting and for a time dangerous and traffic during the day was very low. With a general suspension of industrial activities in the city observance of the day was confined to family gatherings. New Year's eve brought out its usual number of revelers but that a certain amount of decorum was maintained was manifest in the fact that no arrests were recorded at police headquarters and up to late today the police "blotter" was clean. Over 200 attended the annual watch night service at the Methodist church, the service concluding with an impressive consecration at the midnight hour. Crowds thronged the Capitol theatre for the annual New Year's eve performance from 11 o'clock to midnight. There were also capacity attendances at a special dance held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin and the annual Elks' Frolic held in the home, with admittance restricted to Elks and their lady guests.

WOMAN KILLED IN SUFFIELD IS NOT KNOWN HERE

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1—According to an article appearing in state papers today Mrs. Adolph Adams of Willimantic died in the Springfield hospital Monday night from injuries sustained when her machine, which had run out of gas on the highway in Suffield, was struck by one operated by Stanley Legenza of Thompsonville. A check up here today failed to reveal any such woman as being a local resident and belief was expressed that Mrs. Adams resided in a Massachusetts town bearing a name similar to Willimantic. Legenza was held without bail on charges of manslaughter, driving while under the influence of liquor and transportation of liquor, a five gallon can of liquor alleged to have been found in the car. Members of several Adams families here stated that they did not know the woman.

COLCHESTER

STATE HIGHWAY DEPT. SANDS ICY PLACES ON TURNPIKES

About eight o'clock Tuesday morning a light snow began to fall which soon changed to a rainstorm with slightly lower temperature. The sidewalks and roads leading out of the village were covered with a coating of thin ice throughout the day which made traveling dangerous for pedestrians and motorists. Several minor accidents were reported on the Hartford road, between Colchester and Marlborough. Employes of the state highway department were busy all day sanding the dangerous stretches on the Hartford, New London and Norwich turnpikes. Very few people were about the streets of the borough, indicating that there were many home parties and family reunions.

New Year's eve a large crowd of local and out-of-town people attended a dance held in Grange hall under the auspices of the Pythian Sisters of Colchester. The holiday guests at the Demter hotel on Elmwood heights enjoyed a midnight dinner which was followed by several hours of dancing in the hotel ball room. Watch night services were held at the Congregational chapel, followed by games and a social hour. A few local people motored to Hartford, New London and Norwichto witness the midnight shows. At the stroke of 12, the Congregational chapel and Bacon academy bellswere rung. There were many young people about the center of the village playing pranks, cheering and singing in celebration of the advent of a new year.

A Chrysler coupe bearing R. I. registration was badly damaged about 8 o'clock Monday evening at the dangerous Willard corner in the center of the village. The occupants of the car, a man and woman, were traveling toward Hartford. Upon reaching the Willard corner, the driver apparently being unfamiliar with the turn in the road, drove the car head-on into a tree opposite the Talcott house. The driver was badly cut and shaken up but the woman escaped injury. The car was damaged and was towed to a garage for repairs.

Therewas no delivery of mail on the rural or village routes, New Year's day. The post office closed at 10 a. m., there being only one incoming and one outgoing mail all day.

Miss Rachel Freedman returned to her duties as teacher in the Torrington schools Tuesday afternoon, having spent the vacation at her home on South Main street.

Herschel and Abraham Singer and Max Neidle returned to Michigan State college, Tuesday, after ten days' vacation with their parents here.

Starlings have been seen in dooryards about the village during the past week.

Local garage men did a good business Tuesday selling tire chains to passing motorists caught unprepared by the storm.

People who travel over the so-called Usher swamp road in the western section of the town are commenting favorably on the road repair work recently completed there.

Miss Addie M. Wickwire has returned from a few days' visit with New Haven relatives.

A meeting of the Eastern Star for installation of officers is to be held installation of officers was held Tuesday evening

DANIELSON

LOCAL RESIDENT DIES AT GROTON HOUSE

DANIELSON, Jan. 1.—Chauncey Miller, 81, a native and long resident of this town, died today at the Odd Fellows' home at Groton. The body was brought here by Undertaker Louis E. Kennedy. For many years Mr. Miller was a resident of Danielson. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Squire B. Miller and member of a family identified with the affairs of Killingly for about a century. Mr. Miller leaves his wife and two sons, Harvey and Bert, of Bridgeport, and three brothers, Fred, of Danielson. Henry of Townsend, Mass., and Everett, of Hartford.

Mrs. Pierre Bedard Dead.

The death of Mrs. Alphonsine Bedard, 60, a former resident of Danielson, occurred this morning at the home in Plainfield, Mrs. Bedard, the wife of Pierre Bedard, was a native of Canada, but had spent the greater part of her life in this country, and lived here for years. She leaves her husband and the following children: Adelard, North Stratford, N. H., Mrs. Joseph Charbonneau, Mrs. Wilfred Roberts, Attleboro, Mass., Mrs. Alfred Brodeur, Mrs. Arthur Pechie and Miss Bella Bedard, all of Plainfield.

New Year Starts With Sleet Storm.

Youthful 1929 did not get away to such an auspicious start in this neck of the woods, at least weatherwise. A storm that started out with snow flurries just before 9 o'clock this morning later developed into sleet, that to be followed up with rain that sifted down through the daylight hours. Out of doors Danielson had much the appearance of a deserted village. Comfort suggested remaining within. And there were no special dividends as a reward for staying out. The day produced little of general interest. In police circles there was unusual quiet. Traffic on the state highways was down to a minimum. Up to sunset tonight there had been no arrests in Danielson over the holiday period.

Yet, after all, there appears to be no reason why it should not be written into the records that "a good time was had by all."

Danielson Women Arrested in Prov.

The fact that one Danielson young woman was arrested in Pawtucket and fined during the holiday season, for shoplifting, and that two other young women who picked up some gloves were detected by an employe in a Providence department store and brought to book is of more than passing interest in business circles here. It has suggested to them that it will be well to be alert when shopping is brisk. It is not that Danielson has been without its experience with shoplifters in the past, but because a new crop of those who take things left unguarded appears to have come into being. Information is that the local shoplifters usually work in pairs, one of them engaging the attention of a clerk while the other picks up whatever may be at hand. Their efforts, it may be mentioned, are never exerted excepting when practically all of the store attendants are busy with other customers, allowing one to roam without supervision.

Auto Accident.

A Chevrolet truck, R. I. registration X9875, owned and operated by Beuno Fox of 52 Pembrooke, avenue, Providence, and a Whippet sedan owned and operated by Arthur C. Botham of Pomfret Center, were in collision this morning about half way down Hall's hill in South Killingly. The wet and slippery highway surface was held accountable for the accident, in which no one was injured and the damage to the cars did not amount to more than $50. An officer from the state police barracks took statements from the drivers as to how the accident came to happen.

It was being recalled today that it was ten years ago this month—January, 1919—that the advance guard of the Killingly men who served overseas during the World war began to return. A late date in January brought home many of the company of coast guardsmen who went out in 1917 as members of the Connecticut National Guard stationed at the local state armory and who served overseas as a unit of the 55th Coast Artillery. Their return was made a gala event. They received a rousing reception as they poured out of the electric cars that brought them back home. They were tended a dinner at the Attawaugan hotel, praised in the speeches that were a feature of the dinner and made much of generally. The majority of them remained in Danielson or its vicinity. A decade has worked little change in these battle-tried veterans insofar as any outward indication is concerned, and the town remains proud of them and of the splendid records they made in the great conflict.

The traditional practice of making New York's calls was maintained in some degree on the West Side in Danielson today, but not in such measure as in years gone by.

Numbers of radio fans in this section and in the comfort of their homes this dreary afternoon got a great kick out of listening to the broadcast of the football game from the rose bowl in Pasadena, Cal., and of the description of weather condiation that likely matched what Danielson will be enjoying next June.

Midnight dances and shows in this territory last night provided enough amusement or diversion for hundreds of people to leave them satisfied to sleep away the greater part of a New Year's day that was so stormy as to offer little inducement to go anywhere or do anything.

Several hundred thousands of coupons given out by Danielson merchants during the holiday shopping season, filled to capacity the containers set about the business section to receive them. The time for turning them in has now expired.

Killingly High School's basketball team opened its season at the high school gymnasium tonight, with an Alumni team furnishing the opposition. An account of the game will be found on the sport page this morning.

Heavy accumulations of fine gravel have been placed at points near hills and grades likely to become ice-coated during the winter by crews of the state highway department, making the material quickly available when required.

This day furnished another illustration of how efficiently the southerly section of School street, a part of Furnace and a part of Cottage street is being drained by the drainage line built by the borough the past summer.

Public schools of the town will reopen Wednesday of this week, after the holiday vacation. St. James' parochial school is not to reopen until next Monday.

Many hundreds attended the New Year's masses at St. James' church today, and to all of them the pastor, Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., wished successful New Year, spiritually and in all other ways.

On this first day of the year, observers of such things noted cars bearing 1929 registration plates not only of Connecticut, of which hundreds were to be seen, but also Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey.

Very few persons riding hereabouts tried to get away today with operating under 1928 license plates for motor vehicles. Incidentally, numbers of cars are now out of service because their owners failed to get new registrations before the first of the year.

Lack of train service on this holiday, and a belated truck, left Danielson with only a choice of a few newspapers up to well toward the noon hour.

Danielson will have representation at the governor's ball, a function preceding the opening of the legislature, the coming week, at Hartford.

Gerard Chartier, who has been spending the holiday season here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Venerand Chartier, will resume his studies at Assumption college, Worcester.

Following today's New Year's reception and musical of the Killingly Woman's club at the Wetherasfield Congregational church, the next meeting scheduled is set for Jan. 16. At that time a Midnight Fantasy will be presented under the direction of Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood of Wauregan

PUTNAM

INJURIES RECEIVED OCT. 11 RESULT FATALLY FOR DEVOE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 1—Moses Devoe, 25, of Salmon River, Nova Scotia, died during the forenoon at the Day Kimball hospital, following an eight weeks confinement period where he was recuperating from a fracture of the skull and other injuries.

Devoe was employed as an engineer at the Edward Boom Silk Co. on Providence street. On the evening of Oct. 11, at the close of the day's work, the plant speed was not cut off and an investigation was made by the officials of the mill. Upon entering the engine room, Devoe was found in an unconscious condition on the floor, with streams of blood issuing from his skull. He was rushed to the Day Kimball hospital, and after a week of treatment hope was expressed for his recovery.

The officials of the mill were unable to decipher the exact cause of his misfortune, yet it is believed that he was hit by a water wheel arm, used to generate power for the large plant.

Devoe is survived by relatives in Salmon River, where his body will be escorted for burial. He is unmarried

Baby 1929 has not arrived in Putnam yet, according to word from the Day Kimball hospital at a late hour this afternoon. There will be no royal welcome extended to the city's first born of the year, as will be done in surrounding cities.

A slight accident occurred Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the intersection of School and Providence streets when a car operated by Edward Adams of Sawyer district crashed into another vehicle, driven by Ulric Gravel of Senexet road.

Mrs. William Bates, who was a passenger in the Adams car, was thrown into the windshield of the coupe and sustained severe lacerations about the face and neck, caused by the broken glass. She was taken to a local physician's office where she was given medical treatment. She was reported as not being seriously injured.

The Adams car, a Ford coupe, struck the Gravel vehicle broadsides as it was entering School street. Other than a broken windshield and a damaged fender the Ford had no damages but the larger car was reduced to wreckage from the crash. Its doors and body on the left side were dented, glass shattered and the chassis was thrown out of line. Officer Alphonse Dubreuil of the local police checked up the accident and ordered the debris cleared from the highway.

The year 1929 was ushered into existence in Putnam at the stroke of 12 o'clock this morning by scores of merrymakers who gathered at parties staged in the Bradley theatre, Elks and Knights of Columbus lodge rooms. The inside affairs were marked by suppers, entertainments and noise-making, but no disturbances were had on the streets in the early hours of morning.

At the Knights of Columbus rooms the evening's programme commenced with a buffet lunch, served by the members of the grill committee, followed by a number of vaudeville acts from Providence. John M. Hogan, of this city, acted as master of ceremonies. Mr. Hogan proved to be efficient in his work, and was well received by his audience. Francis H. Murphy was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

At the Elks' club, the New Year was greeted by Tom Mulgrew and his gang, of Providence. Preceding Mr Mulgrew's vaudeville headliners, the grill committee served their guests with a chicken supper. About 300 were in attendance.

At the Bradley theatre, Manager "Jim" Mahoney provided his patrons with a midnight show. An hour before curtain rising time the theatre was filled to capacity with celebrators, who greeted the arrival of the new year and saw the departure of the old, to the din of shouts and noise of horns, whistles and bells.

At St. Mary's church this morning masses were celebrated in honor of the feast of the circumcision. The first mass of the day was at 5:30 o'clock. The second, at 8 o'clock, was attended by the children of the parish. At 9:15 o'clock a solemn high mass was officiated at by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, celebrant; Rev. J. D. Casey, deacon, and Rev. Ernest Bolleau, subdeacon. Special music for the occasion was rendered by the 9 o'clock choir, under the leadership of Armand Desorier, who also furnished a number of violin selections. Miss Rose Metras, church organist, was at the organ. The last mass of the day was celebrated at 10:30 o'clock

WEDDING

Light-Matthews

With only members of the two families and intimate friends present, Miss Edith Mae Matthews, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Seaver of North Grosvenordale, became the bride of Howard F. Light, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Light of 1 Ring street, Putnam, at St. Phillip's church this morning.

The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock and was performed by Rev. Edwin P. Wright, rector of St. Phillip's. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. P. Myers, church organist. Miss Betty Light, a sister of the groom, rendered a violin selection.

The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Nettie Wright and Miss Frances Yates, both of Boston. The bride was charming in a gown of white satin-back crepe and lace, with a veil of tulle arranged in band effect, combined with the same lace. She carried a large shower bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids were becoming in frocks of geranium pink georgette with black portrait hats, trimmed with pink facings. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations. Leonard Shepherd of this city acted as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride in North Grosvenordale. Miss Matthews attended Tourtellotte Memorial high school in North Grosvenordale, where she is widely known. Mr. Light was a member of the class of 1927 of Putnam high school and is now employed in the printing department of the General Photograph plant in this city.

The couple left this morning for a short wedding trip to Boston. For her traveling outfit, Mrs. Light was attired in a black ensemble with a hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Light will make their home in North Grosvenordale following their return from their wedding trip after Jan. 10.

Double Wedding at St. Mary's

The second double wedding of the season took place at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock this morning when Miss Albina Moreau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul (Moreau) Auger of River road, and Arthur Provincel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Provincel of this city; and Miss Stella Auclair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Auclair of Church street and Telesphore Jolicoeur, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jolicoeur of Putnam, were united in marriage by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's.

The two brides wore gowns of the same style, which were of white satin trimmed with Spanish lace, and they wore tulle veils caught with bandeaux of lilies of the valley. They carried shower bouquets of Killarney roses.

As the bridal parties entered the church, Armand Desorier, violinist, accompanied by Miss Rose Metras, church organist, played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin.

A reception followed the church ceremony. This was held in Eagles' auditorium on Providence street and was largely attended by the many friends and relatives of the bridal parties.

For their going-away outfits, the brides were attired in green coats with mink fur trimmings, with satin velvet dresses to match. Mr. and Mrs. Provincel and Mr. and Mrs. Jolicoeur left late this afternoon for an extended visit to New Hampshire. Upon their return they will make their homes in this city.

Dr. Edward F. Perry, who has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for the past two weeks, suffering from a nervous disorder, was discharged this afternoon. Dr. Perry returned to his home on Grove street, but will not take up his practice again for a few days.

Schools in the city will reopen this (Wednesday) morning for the commencement of the winter term, Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin announced today.

The holiday celebrations last evening were in accordance with the city ordinances and the police of the city were given little trouble. Only one boisterous merrymaker was arrested during the evening, on a charge of drunkenness.

Safe automobile travel was jeopardized today by an ice storm which coated the highways of the city with ice. The ever-existing danger was augmented this morning by a rain and snow storm. Until a late hour this afternoon there had been no reports at the local police station or at the Day Kimball of any automobile mishaps.

New Year's day was observed as a holiday by the members of the Putnam post office delivery staff, since no mail deliveries were made in the city or rural districts today. Morning mail over the Norwich & Worcester branch was carried this morning on a motor truck, since the regular train service was not scheduled today.

Miss Helen C. Sharpe, secretary to Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National bank, said today that only half of the dividend checks of 5 per cent have been paid. This is due to the unusually small number of creditors of the bank who have appeared at the bank to present their claims.

Dividend checks are now being distributed by the Cargill Trust Co. and the Citizens National bank of this city, to the stockholders. Both of the banks have declared bonuses of one-half of one per cent in addition to the regular three per cent semi-annual dividend. The actions of the banking houses in the city is but one example of the business conditions in Putnam which have been maintained on a high level during the year past.

STONINGTON

VERMONT PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL OF LOCAL BAPT. CHURCH

Rev. Perry W. Back of St. Johnsburg, Vt., has accepted the call of the First Baptist church of Stonington to become its pastor. The church has been without a pastor for nearly ten months, since the illness of Dr. Henry M. Thompson, who resigned in April, 1928. Stonington Council, No. 5, Jr. O. U. A. M., has elected the following officers: Councillor, Ellery Burdick; vice councillor, Clifford James; recording secretary, Herbert S. Staplin; assistant recording secretary, William Smith, Jr.; financial secretary, Louis B. Carson; treasurer, Everett James; conductor, Charles D.Amico; warden, Walter Merrill; inside sentinel, Sherman Swallow; outside sentinel, Edwin James; trustee, six months, Sherman Swallow; trustee, 12 months, Fred R. Zellis; trustee, 18 months, Walter Briggs; chaplain, Charles Main.

At the annual meeting of the Second Congregational church school, the following officials were chosen: Superintendent, James H. Weeks; assistant superintendent, Edward J. Johnson; secretary, Miss Wilhelmina Derricks; treasurer, Miss Louise Trumbull; pianist, Miss Doris Rix; chorister, Miss Phyllis Sheffield; music committee, Miss Doris Rix, Miss Phyllis Sheffield; superintendent of cradle roll, Mrs. August O. Muller; assistants, Mrs. Walter Anderson, Miss Barbara Muller; superintendent of primary department, Miss Carolyn Derricks; assistant, Miss Barbara Muller; superintendent junior department, Miss Phyllis Sheffield; superintendent of intermediate department, Miss Louis Trumbull, superintendent senior department, Miss M. B. Trumbull; superintendent home, Miss Hannah P. Hyde; assistant, Miss Louis Thayer.

At the funeral services of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McDowell, Monday afternoon, Rev. W. F. Williams was assisted by Rev. I. R. Sanford. The choir of Calvary Episcopal church sang Abide With Me. The bearers were Dr. Herman Tyler and Charles Peabody, of New London, F. LaVerne Burdick, Joseph E. Cushman, Lawrence Clay and John B. Bindloss.

Nicholas Lucker, Jr., who has been spending the holiday recess at his home, returned Monday to Annapolis, Md., to resume his studies at the United States Naval academy.

Mrs. Edwin S. Stanton, Miss Wilhelmina Stanton and Miss Angelina Walsh left on Monday for Hoboken, N. J., called there by the sudden death of Prentiss Walsh, 31, nephew of Mrs. Stanton. Mr. Walsh spent much of his boyhood in Stonington.

WESTERLY

SUSPICIOUS STRANGERS HELD FOR HEARING FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I. Jan. 1.—Maynard N. Caswell, 24, machinist, of Lawrence, Mass., George R. Smith, 25, laborer, of Perry, Maine, Joseph H. Burgess, 19, laborer, Franklin, Mass., and Frank I. Burgess, 26, laborer, of Bellingham, Mass., were presented by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown before Judge Oliver H. Williams at a special session of the third district court Tuesday morning, charged with being suspicious persons. Caswell, Smith and Joseph Burgess, all pleaded not guilty. Their cases were continued to the Friday session for trial, bonds in the sum of $100 each being required for their release.

Frank I. Burgess pleaded guilty and was held in the sum of $500 for trial Friday. None of the men was able to secure bail and they continued locked up at Westerly police headquarters.

Must Have Number Plates.

The Rhode Island state board of public roads through its chief clerk, Geo. R. Wellington, sent a letter to Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, relative to use of 1929 automobile number plates.

The letter stated that there was to be no extension of time for use of 1928 plates after Dec. 31, 1928. Notification was included to the effect that several states had asked and been granted extension of time for use of 1928 plates. Among these are South Carolina to Jan. 15th; South Dakota, to Jan. 31st; Washington to March 15 and Minnesota to March 31, 1929.

Tuesday proved unpleasant for the first day of the new year. About 8.30 a.m. a combination of snow, hail and rain began falling which coated pavement streets and sidewalks with thin ice which made traveling at speed unsafe. Later the rain continued to fall and the combination of snow and hail became a thin coating of slush.

New Year's day the Westerly post office observed holiday hours; the town hall and banks closed and the manufacturing plants shut down, with the exception of the William Clark mill of the American Thread company and the printing press works of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons company. Retail business stores lacked the Christmas throng of patrons of the previous week and in many the proprietors and clerks were busy taking inventories.

New Year's eve many Westerly residents motored to Providence, New London, Norwich and Hartford, or to intervening road-houses to watch the arrival of the new year. Many private homes also contained smaller parties.

Formal New Year parties were held in Odd Fellows' hall by Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 19, Daughters of Rebekah, and at the United Theater, where souvenirs and noise producing implements were distributed. Dances were held in the Westerly town hall by the Hope Athletic club, at Mechanics hall and the Morrone and Castagne hall on Canal street.

Special masses were held Tuesday in the Immaculate Conception chure and by the St. Michael's church in Pawcatuck.

In the early evening Monday the annual Christmas party was held at the People's Mission and later there was the annual watch meeting.

At midnight Monday the chimes on Christ Episcopal church were played and even the school bell at the Elm street school building was sounded about 12.15 a. m. A police officer visited the building but was unable to locate the bell ringers. No arrests were made over the old year end by either the Westerly or Pawcatuck police.

George Ernest Robinson, of Boston, the Smith Granite company seven lots, Nos. 1, 2, 32, 41, 42 and 43, on the Norman farm plat off the Old South road.

Dec. 31, The Maynard Land company of Providence transferred to Frank E. R. Leete lots Nos. 32, 33 and 34, Melrose Heights tract.

George Ernest Robinson, of Boston architect on the new Westerly Central Fire station, Union street, was in Westerly New Year's day. He made a thorough inspection of the work thus far accomplished on the station.

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, David A. Lowry, commander, is to hold its January stated conclave this (Wednesday) evening. Formation of a Guards' association will be discussed. A venison supper in charge of a committee of which Captain General George E. Leonard is chairman, will be followed by an entertainment.

Westerly lodge of Elks, Charles H. Cushman, exalted ruler, Wednesday evening of next week is to receive its annual visitation from Rhode Island stated exalted ruler.

The Westerly Boat club plans Wednesday of next week to hold its first annual banquet. Capt. Irving O'Hay, soldier of fortune, will be the principal speaker.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Thomas B. Segar.

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas B. Segar was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at her home, 168 High street. Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Walker. The bearers were Henry R. Segar, A. W. Demarest, Charles Segar, Thomas W. Segar, Ernest Segar and Dr. William Coy.

Ernest Jones of 56 Williams street, Pawcatuck, employed at the plant of the American Thread company, was painfully injured Monday when he struck his foot against a piece of machinery fracturing the little toe on his left foot in two places.

A straw ride was enjoyed on New Year's eve to Hillandale Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Selden M. Young, in Haversham, by a party made up of ten couples of Westerly young people. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

The public schools of Westerly and Stonington will open this (Wednesday) morning for the winter term. The same teachers returning who taught during the fall term.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hilton of Carolina announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace W. Hilton, to John R. Oppy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Oppy, of Westerly.

Due to the fact that New Year's fell on Tuesday, the regular session of Westerly probate court was continued to this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell was among the Westerly visitors in Providence Tuesday to attend the inauguration exercises at the state capitol for Governor Norman Stanley Case, of Providence.

Miss Camelia Papalia, after passing the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. G. Papalia, has returned to Pawtucket, to resume her duties as a teacher in the public schools.

Miss Dorothy C. Lenihan, after passing the vacation with her parents, Postmaster and Mrs. Lenihan, has returned to her duties as a student nurse at St. Raphael's hospital, New Haven.

PLAINFIELD

A shower was given Thursday evening in honor of Miss Blanche Dupre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dupre, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Bergeron. Many gifts were received. A lunch was served by Mrs. Bergeron and Mrs. Dauby.

Miss Rose Axleson was in Providence over the week-end.

Philys Baauchman, Ivan Mercier, Ledwigue Jodoin and Hector Allard were in Baltic Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dion from Vermont were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Phil Houle over the week-end.

Mrs. Mary Blanchette and son, Leadore, of Baltic spent Christmas in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Vincent were visitors in Plainfield over the holiday.

Harry Johnson, Jr., and Walter Swanson of New York are visiting Mrs. Harry Johnson.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today, at any drug store and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open

Why all roads lead to the TYDOL pump

MULTITUDES of motorists have found from the very first filling of Hi-test TYDOL that it gives them instant starting and roaring acceleration . . . without extra cost.

That's why they believe in Hi-test TYDOL

They've demonstrated by rugged road tests, by traffic stresses and strains, by valiant hill-climbing that Hi-test TYDOL gives them both anti-knock and super power . . . without extra cost.

That's why they believe in Hi-test TYDOL.

They've proven by every imaginable starting and driving test that Hi-test TYDOL rolls together all the superior qualities of the best gasolines into a single unit . . . at no extra cost.

No wonder they believe in Hi-test TYDOL!

The motor tells the story. Mile after mile, day after day. With Hi-test TYDOL in the tank the engine joyously hums its story of flashing liveliness . . . anti-knock, extra power. And without any extra cost.

Because multitudes of motorists have found the proof in the using . . . because their motors have testified by sweeter performance . . . all roads now lead to the TYDOL pump

CONSIDERING LIMITATIONS.

If we are to judge by the statement by the preparatory commission on disarmament there is no disposition to abandon further discussion concerning the limitation of armaments because there has been no change in the agreement since the Washington conference. Efforts have been made but without actual accomplishment. Views have been expressed, discussions have been entered into but without definite results. Even the Anglo-French pact was abandoned after it had progressed through the preliminary stages of negotiations.

In spite of the discouraging aspects of the discussions the commission is unwilling to regard the outlook as hopeless. The belief prevails in certain circles that the conference at Geneva should have been productive of results. The study given to the deliberations at that time makes it possible to believe that different results would attend another effort. That is at least to be provided by the commission at the meeting called for next April, which is within the time limit for such action as fixed by the previous session.

It is to be expected that the mistakes, the impediments and the weak points of that Geneva conference will be overcome in April. Evidently the commission is unwilling that the idea should prevail that the nations are not serious in their endeavors. Certainly the declaration against war, entered into by the nations since the disarmament conference, lends no discouragement to future limitation of armament efforts.

There is unquestionably a real sentiment in behalf of armament limitation. It is in marked contrast to sentiment a couple of decades ago. It means a decided change and of a character which can be expected to develop rather slowly. Thus even though the conference of the past failed to actually accomplish anything and there is no definite assurance that any greater headway will be made at the coming one, no barrier for future efforts can be considered insurmountable. Sentiment has been moving in the right direction and through continued effort the time will come when the desired action will be taken. Naturally we have an interest in such a goal and our participation will be as sincere as ever.

THE LYNCHING RECORD

It was a most encouraging report that was made by President Moton of the Tuskegee Institute when he was able to show that the records for 1928 revealed but nine lynchings, while 24 were prevented.

This is a decided improvement and creates the belief that there has been a marked change in sentiment in several states where lynching has been more prevalent in the past. That this is in response to the opposition that has been set up, the educational efforts that have been carried on and the steps taken for federal legislation dealing with that evil is not improbable. It is a gratifying change from the years when the records showed several times as many lynchings and it is particularly noticeable that Georgia which held the unenviable reputation of leading all others in this type of lawlessness had no lynchings throughout the year.

Evidently Mississippi has fallen heir to the disgraceful leadership among states where lynching still prevails. President Moton's report was issued a few days before the end of the year so that it did not include the burning alive of a Negro on the last night of the year, but that made four instances where mob violence caused death in that state during 1928.

There is never any justification for a lynching, but that Rome, Miss., was particularly savage. There can be no condoning of the murder and kidnaping committed by the Negro, but he should have been given a hearing and been penalized under lawful provisions. It may be said that capital punishment has not resulted in the complete prevention of murders, but it is also obvious that lynchings haven't either, and it would reflect much more upon the law abiding of Mississippi if they had refused to lynch the law as well as the Negro.

Apparently there is need for that enlightenment which had such good effects in Georgia being applied liberally in the neighboring state of Mississippi, while Louisiana and Texas might also profit from occasional applications.

THE NEW CHINA.

Although we have known little of the real conditions which have been prevailing in China for the past several years, there are now definite indications that an orderly situation is being developed from a most unorderly one. Instead of being torn by civil strife China comes the nearest to being united that it has been since the nationalist effort was started.

Within the country there is different leadership, different government, different policies, and as the result of the principles of the nationalists China stands in a different light before the other nations of the world. From all indications it doesn't appear that China has fought in vain. At least there are strong indications that that great country has put itself in a position to derive much and lasting benefit. There have been great sacrifices, great losses, some serious mistakes, but out of it all there comes evidence that China is better able to take care of itself.

Even Manchuria now stands under a united government. This doesn't necessarily mean that everything is entirely harmonious, that there are no sore places or that present leadership can be expected to get unflagging and continuous support from every section but the change is one which will have to undergo the acid test like others which have gone before.

The fact that the new government has received recognition from this and other leading governments indicates that it has merit, that it meets the requirements which are demanded before recognition and that the new order of things is generally approved.

If China feels pleased over the progress that it has made it cannot be blamed. It has reason to regard its action as forward rather than backward and it is evidently prepared to demonstrate that it is entitled to the confidence that is being displayed in it by other countries. Having been through a long period of devastation it now faces one of construction and development. It still must wrestle with certain huge problems which are by no means new.

MUST LOOK TO FUTURE.

In his recent report to the secretary of agriculture, Chief MacDonald of the bureau of public roads refers to the growth of highway traffic, the speed made possible by the design of motor vehicles, the development in the common-carrier busses and the congestion and time consuming delays upon the principal highways near metropolitan centers and insists the highway policy of today should look to the future.

"These facts," he maintains, "must be taken into consideration in the planning of future federal-aid improvements. They point especially to the necessity of acquiring rights of way of ample width to allow for future widening or the making of definite provision for future acquisition as needed; to the importance of designing the highways for safe use at higher speeds; to the desirability of considering the improvement of arterial routes with the service of the entire route in mind; and, in metropolitan areas, to the urgency of grade crossing elimination, wider pavements and the building of relief and by-pass highways."

Highway construction today is getting to be a huge problem. It grows each year because of the increase in machines and the demands made upon the roads. It is turning attention to the special highways and makes it evident that those who are advocating the idea of special roads, even though they may be toll roads, are seeking to provide just such advantages as fast traffic, through traffic, and that desiring to escape all the delays to be otherwise encountered are seeking. The toll road may be but the inevitable development of the future, however much it may seem like going backward.

CONQUERING DISTEMPER.

Outbreaks of disease among animals cause much distress and anxiety. When distemper gets its hold upon the dog it tackles a family pet, whether a mixed breed or a thoroughbred, in a manner that has its noticeable effects upon many households. It is all the worse because of the seriousness of the disease. Because of the difficulties of restricting it and the high death rate, special study has been made with a view to prevention, and it is therefore cheering news to owners and lovers of dogs which is presented by the Field of London when it announces that the distemper research committee, which it was responsible for starting, has discovered the cause and the means of preventing the distemper.

This has come about as the result of a five year study. It has been demonstrated upon no less than 1300 dogs and it is significant when the Field states, "all these dogs after treatment at the Field distemper research station proved to be completely resistant to the disease afterwards, whether they were exposed to infection by close contact with other dogs suffering from acute distemper, or whether an attempt was made to inoculate them with the actual poison of distemper, which the investigators discovered."

Better progress appears to have ben made in discovering the means of immunizing dogs against distemper than in fighting many diseases. It will be particularly pleasing not only to all those who aided in the research work through their contributions but to dog owners in general, and the results most certainly reflect the intensive fight that has been made.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Getting away from the leap year influence wasn't such a struggle after all.

The next big event in Connecticut will be the assembly of the legislature.

This is the day when some who thought it wouldn't be necessary are rushing into new resolutions.

Could the decrease in marriages last year have been due by chance to the fact that it was leap year?

There's many a start of the New Year which doesn't really indicate what the finish is going to be.

The agreement by Paraguay and Bolivia is only what should be expected from neighbors in this day and generation.

Is Norwich going to make any effort to get a branch office of the department of motor vehicles from the 1929 general assembly?

THE PULMOTOR

Mrs. Peter Troompus kept her culture as carefully manicured as her finger nails. She attended lectures in which the concentrated knowledge of the centuries was served up in fifty minutes, with questions for dessert. She read the reviews of all the latest books, and sometimes she read herself to sleep on the books themselves. She was a "patroness" of art and music—probably there was nobody in the entire city whose name appeared more often in programs unless it was the fire commissioner.

So it was not astonishing that Mrs. Troompus was among the hostesses at the musicale (which is French for Chopin and crabmeat salad) that the Euterpe club gave in honor of Mme. Febrina, the celebrated Russian pianiste, who seldom, if ever, mentioned the fact that she had been born in Coffeyville, Kas.

Mrs. Clifton, a veritable social promontory, poured. If Mrs. Clifton smiled at you as she handed you your teacup you knew that you were on the right track socially. If Mrs. Clifton remembered how many lumps, you were made.

Mrs Clifton knew that Mrs. Troompus took half a lump. She had the deepest regard for Mrs. Troompus. Mrs. Troompus, she often said admiringly, was "so well informed." It was, she declared, an education, positively an education, to know Mrs. Troompus.

The guest of honor took lemon, posed at the piano, let her fingers play idly on the keys, tuned up her soul so that she could entertain the Euterpeans with it. These affairs used to thrill her. Now she was getting deadly sick of them.

Suddenly she struck the opening strains of a Brahms waltz. The ladies sat respectfully silent, didn't fidget awfully much. Many of them would have subconsciously defined culture as the hard-won mastery of the desire to fidget.

Mme. Febrina stopped, graciously accepted applause, once more attacked the keyboard. As she played she saw yellow cornfields on a September evening. She felt the relief of the coolness that follows a scorching day. She was a girl again, and it was harvest time. Strange that she should think of it now, but she saw herself laughing. It was a joke she had played on one of the harvest hands. What a cut-up she had been!

She smiled to herself as the measure chased each other up and down the keyboard. An imp if there ever was one! The old impulse came back to her. She stopped and looked solemnly at Mrs. Clifton.

"Don't you just love Edelweiss?" she said, and resumed playing.

Although she did not again turn her head, she could sense perfectly the pandemonium, the panic, which swept over the assemblage. Peace of mind, self-control were gone. The fidgeting was open, brazen. Edelweiss? Edelweiss? Who was Edelweiss? Some even descended to whispering.

By electricity, as it were, the mute appeal was passed on to Mrs. Troompus. Surely she would not fail them! Her face was immobile, her eyes were half closed, she tapped her tips with a spoon. She was miserably racking her brain. Surely she had heard of this Edelweiss! He sounded German? Viennese? Modern?

She knew that as soon as the music ceased she would be expected to speak and to know all about Edelweiss. Where, oh, where, had she read of him? Where had she heard his music before? Oh, to think that her memory would fail her now!

A chord, and it was over. The moment was here. Mrs. Troompus had to say something; every one was waiting for it. Mrs. Clifton actually formed with her lips the word "Well?"

"Beg pardon?" It was the impish harvest girl speaking. How terrible to have to repeat.

"One of his early works, er—er, Edelweiss?" she said. The face of Mme. Febrina was cruel—how could she?

"A little thing of my own," she said. "I call it 'Edelweiss, the Mountain Flower.'"

The silence was tragic. There was a clearing of throats, a little forced laughter. It was akin to the ominous sound of a wolf pack about to depose a leader. Then it was that the playful pianiste caught sight of the face of Mrs. Peter Troompus. And she realized what it was she had done. Clever, whimsical, perhaps, but——

"I joke," she said. "Edelweiss was my teacher. He is not very well known in America. That lady was right; this is one of his early works. You will pardon my little jest, eh?"

And Mrs. Peter Troompus stared at her with an expression one sees on the faces of men who have been rescued after they have gone down for the third time.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—A reference made in this column to the feeling of many Gold Star mothers whose dead sons are numbered still among the missing, that the tomb of the Unknown at Arlington is above all theirs to cherish, prompted Mrs Cassandra P. Dyer of Hudson, Wis., to write the Bystander a touching letter.

She transmitted a poem of her own, written at the time of the funeral services for the Unknown, and which she felt "voices the feelings of not only this mother, but thousands of other Gold Star mothers all over our land."

The note was written in wavering hand and in pencil. Mrs. Dyer added in explanation:

"I am a 92 year old cripple and can only sit up an hour at a time."

A Mother's Poem

She was anxious to see her poem, never before offered for publication, in print. Here it is:

A MOTHER OF AN UNKNOWN
Was it my boy, with glory crowned,
Brought back from o'er the sea
To slumber in this hallowed ground
Till Time no more shall be?

Was it my boy upon whose bier
The tribute badges lay,
Placed there (as pledge of faith sincere)
By nations far away?

Was it my boy brought home at last
To fill that honored grave,
Among the great ones of the past,
The heroes true and brave?

It is not for this one alone
A mighty nation grieves;
But for the unknown and the known
The laurel chaplet weaves.

My boy was of the unkpown dead,
His burial by chance,
I only know my own dear lad
Died on a field in France.

And if it be he still shall rest
Where Flanders' poppies blow
Or in that sacred tomb—'tis best
That I should never know.

Plans For Tomb.

The decision has now been made as to the completion of the Unknown tomb. The low base, encircled by stone moulding, which now covers the actual resting place of the casket is to be surmounted by a huge, oblong block of the same stone as the base, treatment of the exposed faces of the block being simple and confined to bas-relief columns and a trio of symbolical figures.

There is very little ornamentation or carving to be done. In this respect, the finished tomb will be in harmony with its surroundings and, judging by the model, should not detract from the airy beauty of the amphitheater terrace where it will stand.

Congress is keeping close watch itself on this final touch in the nation's tribute to the Unknown. At the request of a senate committee, the accepted model was removed to a room at the capitol where it could be examined critically and at leisure. There still remains the question of making over the approaches to the tomb and the terrace of the amphitheater. The artists who planned the memorial have in mind a wide, tree bordered esplanade. If that is to be done, however, further appropriations will be needed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Changes Wrought By Time And Man.

Mr. Editor: I have just returned from a trip to the "Rose of New England," and although my time was limited, still I had a very fine time. Today is Christmas day and what a day! More like a beautiful spring day than a day in December. The only thing lacking to make one think of springtime is the absence of the flowers and the foliage on the trees.

What a splendid time one can have even though they have but a short time at their disposal, for I met many fine people who met me with a smile and a welcome that was sincere and for which the people of New England are noted.

What a great deal we have to be thankful for. Although we may not have an abundance of wealth, still if we have health we have something money cannot buy. And yet we are prone to complain, for bad as it is, it could be worse. That is the thought of some who are afflicted and even they look upon the bright side and can see sunshine where others see only shadows. I do not intend to write a sermon, but I do want to tell you of a dear old man whom I called upon over in Long Society which was once in Preston. Although sorely afflicted he still looks out on the world as an optimist, and finds consolation in the thought that is expressed in a letter to me and from which I will quote:

"Although I am so badly crippled that I can't walk from my bed to a chair without the use of two canes, and here I sit all day, yet I feel I have a good deal to be thankful for, for there are in this world many others worse off than I am." This from Herbert Richardson.

In a conversation with Mr. Richardson he spoke about the old covered bridge that I told you about in my letter of recent date and once again I want to quote from his letter:

"I well remember the old covered bridge that crossed the Shetucket at Norwich, but I can't recall when people paid toll for going over it. I have been told people used to drive through the river some 40 or 50 rods above the bridge, so as not to pay toll. I have heard my mother say that when she was a little girl she went through the river many times in a wagon with her father, for people used to cross the river from Hamilton avenue and as there was no railroad in those early days there was a good landing place on both sides of the river."

For the benefit of Mr. Richardson, in looking up some old records, I find that tolls were exacted from the people somewhere around the years 1811-13. This same condition was incident to all the bridges or at least most of them in early times, for some of them were constructed and owned by private parties, and by this means they received interest on the money invested. As I understand it the bridge going into Preston was supposed to be free and when a toll was asked for, some people would ford the river rather than pay it. If you will note the river is very shallow and not so hazardous but what a team could cross without much trouble. The contractor for this bridge was Captain John Lathrop of Windham and the original cost was $10,000. The street leading to it, East Main street, was opened in 1817 and through this artery all public travel found its way into the wilds of a primitive section—Preston. And today what a change! This no doubt will answer Mr. Richardson's query.

So far as I can find from early records this bridge stood for six years and was destroyed by a freshet, March 6, 1823, was rebuilt and eventually became the joint property of the towns of Norwich and Preston. The tolls were discontinued in 1858. So much for the story of the covered bridge. Nature's forces have destroyed it stroyed it several times. As D. M. Voorhees has said, All nature speaks the voice of dissolution, the highway of history and of life is strewn with the wrecks that time, the great despoiler, has made. We listen sorrowfully to the autumn winds as they sigh through the dismantled forests. And we know that the warm breath of spring will bring back the flowers, the birds and then all nature will be in tune. The forces of nature are ever at work, and man's work offers no more resistance to the demands of nature than a house of cards. On my trip into Norwich I came across the bridge at New London and so along the river. What a splendid view in all directions, and what a change from the yesterdays! As we move along we pass the naval base and so on to Allyn's Point. This was the terminal point not so many years ago for the Norwich and Worcester railroad, for there stopped the vessels of too heavy draught to go up the river. This particular place received its name from its original owner, Robert Allyns, who settled here in 1651. All this has been taken from some of the early records and is only used to show the advance that time has made and the comforts people have today in comparison with those people who blazed the trail that we followed years after.

This Shore road is a fine drive and the views along the river which come to our notice are wonderful. Then we move out through a wide open space through the pine woods on to Laurel Hill and across the bridge into Shetucket street, the Wall street of Norwich, where are located some of the oldest banks of the city. The chauffeur tells us the Wauregan hotel that was opened to the public Feb. 20, 1855, is just before us. Although it has been in operation for a long time it is very modern and right up to the minute in its appointments. Many noted men have been entertained here. I often wonder why it is that as we grow old we see the world of nature so different to what we did in our youthful days. For youth is busy with its problems as befits their time and when they begin to show the silver in their hair they look out on the world from a different angle. This world is just a looking glass and gives to us all a reflection of ourselves. Who is there that sees the beauty of the places they pass through as does the tourist who sees everything that is new and worthwhile, more so the older ones who look out upon the world that youth passes by and forgets. How beautiful is youth, how bright it gleams With its aspirations, illusions, dreams; A book of beginnings, story without end Each maid a heroine, each man a friend. And after all we were all young once upon a time, and it is logical that you cannot put an old head on young shoulders for youth must have its fling and will not be denied. It is better so, for soon youth will be gone, and the winter of disconted will come oll too soon. Often when I want to tell you of some of the really beautiful places in and around the city I am at a loss for the correct word to use to describe any certain place, for there is a majesty and a beauty in all the places that are to be found out in nature's world for as we are whirled along in a fine car one either side we see the foliage still on the trees, the pines, the smell of the cedar, and then out of the woods almost like coming from a tunnel, out into the glorious sunshine and the river comes the view which to a tourist is sublime in its rugged beauty. With the hills in the distance as a frame, it creates a great big wonderful picture of the great out doors.

All this is only one of the many places that are to be found if you but look and find them. All around you is nature's fairy land. John Lubbock said, "All those who love nature, she loves in return and will richly reward, not with material things, but with bright and happy thoughts, contentment and peace of mind."

Here I close the book to once again open on another page—and with the compliments of the season to all.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Reddy Solves the Mystery

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Mysteries are always queer
Until solution makes them clear.
—Reddy Fox.

Hooty the Owl isn't much given to curiosity. He had quite by accident discovered Peter Rabbit in Farmer Brown's dooryard. He had almost caught Peter. It was a bright moonlight night, just such a kind of night as Hooty loves for hunting. Peter had dodged and dodged again and then run straight for Farmer Brown's barn. There, just as Hooty was reaching for him with those great claws of his, Peter had mysteriously disappeared. It had seemed to Hooty as if Peter had vanished right through the solid wall of the barn. He had flown up on the little house of Bowser the Hound to think it over and there he had been found by Reddy Fox. You know, Reddy had been lying in wait for Peter.

Not for the world would Hooty have let Reddy know that he was puzzled by Peter's disappearance. All he would tell Reddy was that Peter had hisappeared. Then, because he was hungry, and because he does not believe in sitting around worrying over disappointments, Hooty abruptly spread his great wings and flew away in the direction of the Green Forest. He flew directly over Reddy Fox, yet Reddy could hear no sound of those great wings. You know, Hoty is one of the few birds that can fly silently.

Reddy watched Hooty out of sight. Then he turned to consider the mystery of Peter Rabbit's disappearance. "I don't believe," said Reddy to himself, "that Hooty knows any more about it than I do. There is something queer about it. I think I'll look around a bit."

Reddy first went over to where he had seen Peter when Hooty the Owl first swooped at him. Then he turned and lookal over toward the barn. "This is the direction," thought Reddy, in which Peter went. It would bring him straight over to the barn. Then if he had kept on he would have come out right where I was hiding. If he had dodged out across the dooryard I should have seen him." Reddy began to run back and forth with his nose to the snow. Presently he caught a whiff of rabbit scent. Then he caught another. He had found Peter's trail. Swiftly he ran forward. Straight over to the barn the trail led him. Reddy ran fast. He was running close along the barn. Suddenly he stopped abruptly. He had lost the trail of Peter Rabbit. He no longer got that tantalizing rabbit scent.

He whirled around and started back, his nose close to the snow. Ah, there was that scent again! It ended right there, close to the barn a little one side of the door. Raddy stared this way and stared that way. Where had Peter Rabbit gone? Once more he put his nose to the snow and sniffed of the side of the barn right where Peter's tracks ended. He put his nose against one of the boards of the barn. The board moved. It startled Reddy so that he jumped backward. But nothing happened. Then Reddy went forward again to examine that board. Again he put his nose against it and again it moved.

Reddy stepped back and sat down and stared very hard at that board. He had discovered what had become of Peter Rabbit. Peter was inside the barn. Yes, sir, that is where Peter was. That board that moved was nothing but a little light door that swung either way. It had been made for Black Pussy the Cat to go in and out of the barn. Somehow Peter Rabbit had discovered it, or had known it, and when Hooty had swooped at him he had darted through into the barn, pushing that little swinging door open.

To make sure, Reddy went over and pushed. The litle door swung back but the opening wasn't big enough for Reddy to pass through. He couldn't follow Peter into the barn.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most apt to be; crowded cars, public meeting places, warm, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers. Breathe through the nose.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrous fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take every precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs

4 Above all, avoid catching cold. Any cold may be the forerunner of flu. Take Bayer Aspirin at the first sign of a cold and you can ward it off. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at first sign of sore throat as this will remove the infection.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor.

CHRIST CHURCH SCHOOL CHRISTMAS CAROL SERVICE

The church school of Christ Episcopal church, William Clark, superintendent, and James Sanford, treasurer, held its carol service and Christmas tree last Friday night at 7 o'clock. The school young people gathered in the church with many older friends in the congregation to sing their Christmas carols and each pupil presented a gift to the Christ child at the manger to be sent next advent to a mission Sunday school in the southern mountains of Virginia. The altar was brilliantly lighted with over 50 candles as a service of light and a back of poinsettias decorated the altar below the brass candlesticks. After the special Christmas offering the congregation withdrew to the parish room where a most interesting program was presented on the stage. Mrs. Jane Southouse's primary class sang Jingle Bells and A Manger Song, Miss Johnson and Miss Vallen's boys classes presented a sketch called The Farmer's Minstrels, Miss Byrne's class gave a pantomime entitled The Arrival of a Long Looked-For Lover, Miss Maxon's class presented a pageant, The Nativity. Mrs. Newbury's class had a member read to the children a Christmas story. Because of sickness at the last moment, Mrs. Hooks' class of young men was unable to present a play called Pa's Christmas Necktie. Miss Esther Johnson and Miss Mary Southouse played selections on the piano, then Santa Claus arrived and gave out the gifts to the children and candy boxes to all from the Christmas tree that was brilliantly lighted with many colored lights and other decorations. Everyone had a jolly, happy time at this yearly event.

The rector gave a word of welcome to all the friends and visitors in the name of the children at the Christmas service and program.

$5 FOR EACH $100 IN MYSTIC WORSTED BONDS

For each $100 bond of the defunct Mystic Worsted Mills, Inc., the sum of $5 is to be paid, according to an order signed by Judge C. L. Avery of the superior court and Receiver P. LeRoy Harwood has deposited a check for $2,105 with John H. Walker, clerk of the superior court, in order to make payment on the bonds when they are presented and accepted as part of the purchase price.

Bonds in the amount of $157,000 out of $190,000 are outstanding, according to the report on file. The mill, which was valued in excess of $200,000, was sold to a committee of the bondholders for $10,000 at public auction by Mr. Harwood. For his services and expenses he was allowed $295, and the three appraisers, Sheriff Sidney A. Brown, Carlos C. Peck and Lloyd E. Gallup, were each allowed $25. The bondholders' committee consisted of Albert E. Berringer, Laurence M. Symmes and Clarence E. Hale.

Henry Peale

Henry Peale, well-known resident of this city, died a few minutes before midnight, Monday, at the Sheltering Arms where he had made his home for some time. Mr. Peale was the eldest son of the late Col. and Mrs. Henry Peale and was born in this city. For years he was employed in the woodworking department of the car shops of the old Norwich & Worcester railroad and was also an inspector of cars at Allyn's Point. Later he was employed by the Richmond Radiator Co.

Mr. Peale was greatly interested in historical matters. He was a past commander of the Sons of Veterans and attended the First Baptist church. Mrs. Peale, who was before her marriage, Alice Fargo, died in Norwich July 2, 1918. Surviving Mr. Peale, are a brother, Arthur L. Peale of this city, four nephews, Richard P. Peale of Hartford, Henry T. Frazier of Norwich, Roscoe P. Frazier of Providence and Clarence J. Frazier of Pittsfield, Mass., and a niece, Mrs. Stanley J. Sumner, of Willimantic. Mr. Peale was well and favorably known to many Norwich people by whom he was highly respected, and who extend deep sympathy to the surviving family.

Mrs. Adam Zelinski

Mrs. Anastasia Zelinski, 45, widow of Adam Zelinski, died late Monday at her home, 31 Fourth street, New London. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

She was a native of Poland but had long been a resident of New London and was a member of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Josephine Harding, Mrs. Julia Dessette and Mrs. Mary Crane of New London, and Mrs. Jean Weisenski of New York; two sons, Adam and Charles Zelinski of New London and two brothers, Joseph Wieslewsky of this city and Felix Wieslewsky of Milwaukee.

Chauncey F. Miller

Chauncey F. Miller, 82, resident at the Fairview Odd Fellows home in Groton since 1926, died at the home there Tuesday morning at 6:45 o'clock. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

Mr. Miller was born in Killingly, Aug. 22, 1846. He was a member of an Odd Fellows lodge at Hartford. His last residence before going to the Fairview home was at Bridgeport. He was a carpenter.

Mr. Miller is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Miller, of Bridgeport, and one son, A. H. Miller, also of Bridgeport.

Joseph Fregeau

Joseph Fregeau, 74, formerly of Taftville, died Tuesday at his home in Hartford where he had resided about two months. He was born in Canada but for over 55 years had resided at Taftville. He is survived by his wife, one son, Horodore Fregeau, and several daughters. The burial is to take place in Taftville.

Mrs. William H. Molthrop

Mrs. Fanny Adams Molthrop, widow of Capt. William H. Molthrop of Gales Ferry, died at 2.30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, at the Submarine Base, where she has been ill for nearly four months.

Mrs. Molthrop was born in Ledyard, the daughter of the late James and Julia Stoddard Adams, and has been a life-long resident of the town. She is survived by a brother, David Adams of New Haven. There are also cousins residing in Gales Ferry.

Following her marriage with Captain Molthrop she united with the Episcopal church in Groton, and retained her membership there, although a regular attendant in the later years of her life at the Gales Ferry Methodist Episcopal church. She was also a member of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Groton, and was one of the organizers of Belton Allyn chapter, Children of the American Revolution, in Gales Ferry.

For a number of years, up to the time when her illness became serious several months ago, she had been The Bulletin's correspondent in Gales Ferry.

$185 AND OTHER GIFTS TO CHAPLIN COUPLE FOR THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

CHAPLIN, Jan. 1—A hundred guests joined with Mr. and Mrs. Winslow B. Gallup in celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding at the Congregational church vestry here today. Mr. and Mrs. Gallup received relatives from noon until 3 o'clock and from 3 to 6 o'clock friends in town and from other towns.

A collation was served, Rev. Paul Sanger, pastor of the local church, presiding as toastmaster. After dinner remarks were made by old schoolmates and lifelong friends of the couple, including Rev. Frank Fuller of Putnam, Rev. Walter Lamphear of Eastford, Rev. John H. Knott of Willimantic, State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, Deacon Andrew M. Grant of Mansfield, Archie H. Gallup, brother of Mr. Gallup, Arthur H. Mathewson of Plainfield, and C. Winslow Noyes of Willimantic. A poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Fannie Gibbs Clarke of Prospect, Conn., was read.

Among the numerous gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Gallup were $185 in gold and greenbacks, a beautiful Bible, pair of golden candlesticks, half dozen cut glass goblets, half dozen glasses with gold bands, two beautiful table runners, handwoven and in gold and white, and a great quantity of flowers, yellow predominating. The vestry of the church was most attractively decorated.

NEW YEARS SERMON BY LUTHERAN PASTOR

The First Evangelical Lutheran church on Franklin street, to which Rev. Carl Storck has recently come as pastor, held a well attended New Year's eve service as well as a New Year's service Tuesday morning in the church. At the Monday evening service impressive scripture passages were read and the old church hymns were sung. There was also special music at the Tuesday morning service.

Writing is one of the ancient arts, which, I fear, we do not always appreciate, for it is the simple things in life that we take for granted. "Writing, reading and arithmetic" are still the three fundamental branches of our educational system. In these days everybody can write. Our alphabet is a mighty instrument. In a few minutes a man can write either a letter of cheer and send it across the continent for two cents bringing happiness into a lonely life and sunshine into a gloomy soul. Oh, how we neglect these simple gifts, oh, how we bury our small talent! He may also cause immeasurable distress. The pen is mightier than the sword. The pen may also hurt more than the sword. In writing we are usually more careful than in speaking, for we forget that we must give account of every idle word and that our words never die, but according to the scientist the human voice floats endlessly over the ether, it finally registers somewhere in a record, which may frighten us at the end of the day. But not all of us write with pen or pencil. Most of us write with our deeds, and our life forms a book which mankind will and does read. Some may never read the bible, but they will read your life. Do the church-people always realize that? Do we realize that the "outsiders" first look up our life and watch us in our daily conduct before they will join us. We were all writing a record in 1928, but some of these records will be no credit to mankind. Some frightful blots and blunders were made no doubt. But we may do better this new year. When we went to school and our composition books were returned at the end of the term, we were amazed at the waste of red ink that the teachers seemed to have indulged in; but every year those books looked better. So I say we may and must write better in this year of Grace of 1929. When Thorwaldsen was asked which of his sculptures he considered to be best, he answered "The next one". We are all artists in a certain way. Let our next effort be better and the result shall be better also. Today we may say with Pilate: "What I have written I have written," it cannot be changed, but God help us it shall be better this year. It may be our last effort too. Don't take everything for granted, especially not the safety of your soul and the certainty of your life. We may and we may not finish this new year, we may and we may not finish the new task. Today thy soul may be required from thee and what then? What will your unfinished task be? Will it be an unfinished symphony or an unfinished crime? We shall also be judged by our unfinished tasks, they will be a mute testimony of our being.

If the future seems to be dark and puzzling, let us remember that God also has written a record, which is to be our guide for the unknown path or goal. Let us not neglect His word this coming year, let us listen to His voice. God said to the pleading rich fool in torment in regard to his brothers still in this life: They have Moses and the prophets let them hear them—and if they do not hear Moses and the prophets neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

DECEMBER SMALL BUT YEAR LARGE FOR POLICE

December was a small month in number of arrests made by the police, but the year that has closed is one of the largest on record for the Norwich department.

Intoxication, 43; breach of peace, 5; violation of the city ordinances, 7; violation of the motor vehicle laws, 18; theft, 5; burglary, 2; non-support, 3; vagrancy, 3; violation of the liquor laws, 3; manslaughter, 1; conducting a rooming house without a license, 1.

The total for the 12 months of 1928 was 1,402 arrests, which was 273 more than in the preceding year.

Indecent assault, 2; burglary, 11; breach of the peace, 229; common drunkard, 4; common prostitute, 1; conducting disorderly house, 21; frequenting disorderly house, 21; fornication, 6; fugitive from justice, 3; intoxication, 495; injury to private property, 5; injury to public property, 3; non-support, 26; resisting an officer, 12; non-payment of taxi fare, 1; theft, 19; violation of the city ordinances, 134; violation of the liquor laws, 40; violation of the motor vehicle laws, 232; vagrancy, 44; being incorrigible, 2; contempt of court, 3; defrauding a boarding house, 2; deserter, 2; embezzlement, 2; insane, 2; education, 1; receiving the earnings of a female, 1; violation of the fish and game laws 1; carrying concealed weapons, 1; false representation, 4; manslaughter, 3; trespassing, 7; adultery, 3; assault with a dangerous weapon, 1; forgery, 1; conducting a gambling house 1; frequenting a gambling house, 11; incest, 1; violation of the school laws, 1; violation of the Sunday labor law, 1; peddling without a license, 1; conducting a rooming house without a license, 1.

Attended Coleman Funeral

Rev. Myron E. Genter of this city, district superintendent, Rev. Charles E. Spaulding and Alton T. Miner of New London went to Fall River Monday to attend the funeral of Rev. F. W. Coleman, a former pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church in this city. Rev. Mr. Genter conducted the funeral service.

NEW YEAR'S AT ST. PATRICK'S OPENS WITH LOW MASS AT 5

At 5 o'clock, Tuesday morning, the celebration of New Year's day began in St. Patrick's church with a low mass read by Rev. John J. Reilly. A large number received holy communion. The services commemorated the feast of the Circumcision of Our Lord, commemorating also the Saviour's submission to the law, His Name day and the octave of the Nativity, i. e., the eighth day after that feast. At 7, another low mass was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin and again there were many communicants, so that the aid of a second priest was required. At 8 o'clock, when the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, began the singing of high mass the auditory was filled, late comers being obliged to stand at the back of the church.

The organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, repeated portions of his Christmas music, which the quartet and chorus gave with much spirit. For the last time this season, the congregation had the pleasure of hearing, "Adeste, Fideles," Roderick F. Sullivan carrying the theme in the enunciation of the opening stanza. Horace F. Corning joined Mr. Sullivan in the duet, the other members of the quartet and chorus being Mrs. John C. Cantlin, William Shannon and Walter F. LaFontaine. Fourteen boys from the Junior choir aided in the choral numbers. During communion time, Mr. LaFontaine played a medley of carol melodies, with judicious employment of the chimes. The recessional was the inspiring Christmas hymn, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

So great was the number of those receiving communion as a worthy preparation for the New Year that Rev. Father Galvin's assistance was required by Monsignor May in administering the holy eucharist. The last mass in particular was one of real splendor, as the magnificent cathedral-church was fully lighted, the altars were adorned with Christmas flowers, while the acolytes who attended the celebrant were in white linen cassocks, with copes and girdles in rich monsignor red with gold embroidery. Closing a most successful old year and welcoming the new in its promise, the congregation appeared to sense that spiritual exaltation inspired by numbers, and consciousness of the Divine blessing, as manifested through unusual material prosperity and religious activity in the 12-month just ended.

ORGANIST YERRINGTON PLEASES WITH FINE RECITAL

"New Year's Day" one of the outstanding features at the Congregational church at Norwich Town, was observed this year as usual, when members of the parish and friends enjoyed the hospitality of the church officials. The day's events began at five o'clock, with the annual recital by Organist Herbert L. Yerrington, the program lasting about an hour. This was followed by the annual parish supper, always attended by a large number. The supper was served this year at 6:15, under direction of the supper committee of the woman's department of the League of Service, Mrs. John L. Browning is chairman. Others on the committee are Mrs. Walter Hitchon, Mrs. Frederick Ross, Mrs. Ronald Nelson, Mrs. Marcus Grady and Miss Mabelle Scott. Assisting were Mrs. Ernest Washington, Mrs. Charles Barber, Mrs. Harriet Barber, Miss Elizabeth Avery and Miss Margaret Chapin. The delicious menu consisted of cold ham and tongue, rolls, mashed potato, peas, cranberry sauce, coffee, lady-fingers, ice-cream and grapes. Preceding the supper Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey said grace.

This was Organist Yerrington's forty-eighth recital. He was assisted by Miss Frances Kslavek, soprano, who gave two numbers in pleasing voice. Mr. Yerrington manifested his enthusiasm in the usual way, playing his numbers in the same spirit as throughout former years.

The opening number "Jubilate Deo," by Silver, was well chosen for the holiday season. This preceded Idye, by Ludebuchi was pleasing, being unique in registration. Majestic of the Deep, by Hamer, was a strong dignified composition as the title implies. The next number, Cathedral Suite, by Schuler, was an interesting composition in three parts. This and the preceding number have been revived the past year. Minuet Francais by Tremblay, is written in a quaint mood, while the next number Stillness of the Night, by Clubb, proved of rare beauty. Processional, by an organist and composer living in Ohio, Carl W. Grimm, showed strength and power. Miss Kslavek gave as her pleasing numbers, Rose Softly Blooming, Sophr, and Last Night, by Kjerulf. She was a guest at the parish supper at the close of the recital.

Annual Church Meeting

Following the supper, the annual church meeting was held, Rev. Mr. Bailey presiding. Officers elected for 1929 are: Clerk Herbert L. Yerrington, treasurer, Henry T. Frazier. Both succeed themselves. The officers in the League of Service, all being re-elected, comprise, President, Henry T. Frazier; vice president, Arthur W. Avery; secretary, Miss Mary Watties; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Chapin. Various chairman were also elected in the several departments of the League of Service. During the meeting which opened and closed with singing, a rising vote of thanks was extended the women of the supper committee and helpers for the appetizing repast, at which about 150 were served. Rev. Charles E. Reeves offered the opening prayer and pronounced the benediction at the business meeting.

Effective Decorations

A large Christmas tree gayly decorated with electric lights adorned the chapel auditorium, and on the tables five long-ones and five smaller ones, were potted pine trees covered with icicle trimming on each. From a wholesale grocery house in Norwich five pounds of coffee was donated for the supper, also a dozen long aprons bearing the brand of coffee and 150 paper napkins. The aprons were worn by the several women in charge.

During the meeting Mr. Yerrington expressed his gratitude for the beautiful condition of the church organ, emphasizing his pleasure each day in using it, since it was remodeled. An appreciative tribute to the generous gift of Mrs. Maurice Wallen, of Hartford, in making this possible, especially so, because it was in loving memory of the entire Lathrop family, long ago workers in this parish, was read by Mr. Yerrington. He made special reference to Mrs. Wallen's sainted mother, Mrs. Julia Lathrop Potter, a beloved member of the Lathrop family, also of this parish, whose memory still lingers among its members, significantly at the Easter season, when beautiful flowers are given in her memory, each year.

NEW YEAR'S DAY HAD UNCOMFORTABLE WEATHER

The first day of the year was practically a general holiday in the city and the streets in the morning seemed almost deserted, especially as an uncomfortable sleet storm prevailed, with slippery walking that kept people in the house. In the afternoon the sleet turned to rain which continued through the night.

Automobiles on the streets, each machine carrying new red and white 1929 number plates, were noticeably fewer in number, as many owners will lay up their cars for the next three months. The probability is, too, that a considerable number were not able to have their cars out through not having received their 1929 number plates in time to put them on the first day of the year.

GUESTS FROM NORWICH ATTEND PLAINFIELD PARTY

The outstanding social event of the season at Plainfield was held New Year's eve at the Lawton Inn, with an attendance of 100 guests from Norwich, Hartford, Providence and Plainfield. At 8:30, to music by Krause's orchestra, the gay company marched into the beautifully decorated dining hall, where a bountiful turkey dinner was served.

Between courses dancing was enjoyed, also vocal selections by Miss Teresa Sullivan and Mrs. Clifford Struthers of Plainfield and John Gorman of Providence. Just as the community chimes ushered in the New Year the dancing ceased and the merry-makers, after exchanging New Year greetings, joined in singing Auld Lang Syne. The party dispersed in the early hours of 1929, all thanking the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hayes, for the enjoyable evening and anticipating another such gathering at an early date.

WEDDING

Elfenbein-Goldberg

At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Spruce lodge, Fitchville, Miss Miriam Louise Goldberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldberg of No. 4 Goldberg avenue, this city and David Elfenbein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Elfenbein of No. 194 Hempstead street, New London, were united in marriage by Rabbi Tonkel of this city. The ceremony was performed in the presence of members of the immediate families and a group of friends of the couple. The matron of honor was Mrs. Abraham Silverberg, sister of the bride, and the best man was Aaron Elfenbein, brother of the groom. The bride and matron of honor were charmingly gowned.

After a reception which followed the ceremony the bride and groom left for a wedding trip and on their return will reside in New London. Mr. Elfenbein is a well known New London merchant, being proprietor of the Capitol Haberdashery store on State street.

The bride received numerous and beautiful gifts. Both bride and groom are well known and popular with their numerous friends who extend them hearty good wishes for a happy married life.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION WAS HELD AT Y. M. C. A.

The annual New Year's reception for the members of the Young Men's Christian association and guests was held Tuesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at the "Y" with a large attendance. A delightful programme of music was furnished by Swahn's orchestra, comprising John M. Swahn, cornet, Fred H. Geer, piano, Walter W. Lang, violin, and Richard Sanders, clarinet. A basketball game between the Norwich "Y" Seniors and South Manchester teams was a feature of the programme, the latter five winning by a score of 27 to 18. After the game refreshments were served. The committee in charge of the successful affair was Harold E. Robbins, E. Arnold Smith and Arthur P. Wyman.

BRIDGE RAIL MADE GASH IN GREENEVILLE MAN'S LEG

Wilfred Parr, about 26, of 168 Central avenue, was badly hurt after midnight Tuesday, when the machine he was riding in crashed into a small bridge on Hunters avenue, Taftville. One of the bride rails tore through the upper part of his leg, ripping a gash that required 17 stitches to close. He was taken to the hospital in the ambulance at about 12:35 this (Wednesday) morning. Parr declined to give any information to the authorities as to the details of the accident, beyond saying that he was riding with a party of friends.

For Burial in Greenwich

The body of Frank Fadda, who died in this city Saturday, was sent to Greenwich by Undertakers Shea and Burke on the 5:30 o'clock train Tuesday evening. Burial is to be in that city.

MARRIED

BECKWITH-WATROUS — In East Lyme, Dec. 31, 1928, by Rev. George W. Potter, of Norwich Town, Dwight W. Beckwith and Miss Ruth W. Watrous, of Niantic.

MANY GET BACK YOUNG APPETITE

Quick lunches, usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing, is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches; and, worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Pape's Diapepsin handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Pape's Diapepsin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baalmann's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That drowsy sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalmann's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine, in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price $1.

DON'T STARVE TO END FAT

Few succeed without harm. Try the modern way, embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. The results are seen everywhere.

Marmola contains a gland element which helps turn food into fuel and energy. The formula appears in every box, also the reasons for results. Thus you will know how the changes occur without harm.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. Go start it now. Take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. Do this because of the new beauty and vim which Marmola has brought to so many, for so long.

Y SENIORS LOSE BOTH GAMES OF NEW YEAR'S DAY PROGRAM

The Y Seniors had their winning streak, which had stretched over the six games this season, smashed to pieces New Year's Day at the Y gym, dropping two hard-fought decisions. In the afternoon the All-Heller five of Willimantic won 33 to 22, getting their rather wide margin through a last second scoring spree while in the evening on the occasion of the annual "open night" of the association the All-Manchester five trimmed the Yers 27 to 18. Fair crowds witnessed both games.

In both these teams the Seniors met clubs just a trifle above their class, teams that have had previous seasons of experience. However, the locals made is close practically all the way in both games and gave the comparatively few fans who braved the elements fast basketball.

Between the halves of both games Physical Director Howard Deamrest of the Y. M. C. A. put a group of juniors through various drills that were hizhly entertaining to all.

Afternoon Game

Against the All-Hellers, the Y played an erratic game, their first bad one of the season. They could have won by converting just a fair percentage of the easy shots that were missed while they did altogether too much fouling. The Hellers also missed shots but none so costly as their oponents.

In the Hellers, the locals met their superior for the first time this season. The Seniors' floor game suffered greatly from the tight defense of the Willimantic brothers. Not once during the game did the locals get the ball past their opponent's foul-line by dribbling and half their field goals were on long shots, some, by the way, being very pretty.

Hymie, the Brown university football and basketball star, was the shining light of the afternoon. He scored six points, two field baskets and two fouls, but his general all-round work was better than his total score would indicate. In other years the big gun of the Heller team seemed to be Abe, or Red, the husky center, but this year, at least, Tuesday afternoon, Hy performed the brilliant stunts.

The five brothers, Sam, Max, Abe, Hy and Harry started the game and remained intact through the first quarter, at the end of which the score was 7 all. Harry, who is not quite the basketball player that can compare with the rest of the family, was replaced by Eddie Nichols and Eddie proceeded to make himself quite useful. The brothers led at half-time 14 to 11 and at the end of the third quarter 21 to 19.

The Y put on a big spurt about midway in the third period, when with the score 15 to 11 against them, Kelly and Pingree tossed in four baskets in succession. This rally was short-lived however, and the Hellers had a lead again in the last few minutes of the period, never to lose it.

Nichols, Max and Sam got loose redetly in the last quarter to widen margin and put the game safely in the bag five minutes before the whistle.

Les Pingree, once again, led the Yers in scoring with 11 points and also played just about the best game for them. He threw in a couple of long baskets that were very nice while otherwise distinguishing himself on the floor. Harris was held scoreless from the floor by Abe Heller and Nichols, getting only a foul shot. Harris, however, outjumped both these boys the majority of the time.

In the preliminary game the Y Emps beated an All-Star aggregation, comed mostly of Emps' reserves, 31 to 1. "Tommy" Lynch led the scorers with 13 points, followed by "Red" Fagan with eight.

Evening Game.

The Manchester five put on a neat display of what teamwork will do, and got the decision. Every member of the team showed a heady game. A. Boggini led the scorers with ten points but every player proceeded to throw in at least two points. Their defense, too, was of high calibre. Les Pingree, Y's scoring ace, being held scoreless along with Jim Kelly of the regular five. Enos Eccleston went scoreless from the floor but tossed in five foul shots.

The Seniors showed in this game, as in the one earlier in the day against the Hellers, that they still lack a little bit of competing with teams that have been playing for several years, but, nevertheless, they have the goods and can be depended upon to get back to winning form very shortly. KAPLAN WINS EASILY OVER RITCHIE KING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1—(AP)—Lou (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion now fighting as a lightweight, won the decision over Ritchie King, Philadelphia, in the ten-round windup at the Arena today.

The veteran Meriden ringman found his youthful opponent anything but difficult, and showered him with punches whenever and wherever he pleased. King, apparently, was coached to box the clever and experienced Kaplan, and in this he was completely outclassed. It was Kaplan's fight all the way.

Maurice Holtzer of France and Emory Cabana of Philadelphia, lightweights, put up a thrilling ten-round battle in the semi-windup. Holtzer took the decision by a fair margin, outboxing and out-smarting Cabana, who usually found himself tied up when he rushed in close. Holtzer cuffed his opponent with rights and lefts at long range and also stung him repeatedly at close quarters.

Bucky Boyle of Allentown won an unpopular decision in ten from Gaston Lacadre of France in another lightweight fuss. Lacadre staggered Boyle several times with heavy punches but could not put him down. Boyle flashed momentarily in the ninth when he rallied and put Lacadre on the defensive. The crowd hooted the decision and cheered Lacadre at the finish.

NEW HAMPSHIRE WINS WINTER SPORTS TROPHY AT PLACID

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 1—(AP)—E. O. Pederson of New Hampshire university won the Marshal Foch trophy for standing ski-jumping and by his win also enabled his university to capture the President Harding trophy in the eighth annual intercollegiate winter sports program concluded here today.

Pederson's jump was 158 feet. Knute Dahl, representing the University of Wisconsin, by a standing jump of 148 feet, was second; Jacques Landry, of Ottawa University, with 143 feet, third; and George Sumner of McGill university with 132 feet, fourth. The places were judged on form as well as distance.

The President Harding trophy goes to the university team winning the highest points, including the ski jump in 8 events.

New Hampshire 21, McGill university 18, University of Wisconsin 17, Syracuse 10 and Dartmouth 8.

Pederson was high point scorer of the college week competition with 15 points.

Williams college today defeated Amherst, 4 to 1, in the third and last game of a hockey series played in connection with the competition. Williams won the first game and Amherst the second.

ILLNESS PREVENTS FUCHS FROM APPEARING BEFORE COMMISSION

BOSTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—An attack of pleurisy that placed him in a physician's care may prevent Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves from appearing before the city finance commission tomorrow to testify in connection with the controversy over the Sunday baseball question, Braves officials tonight said. His condition was not serious but if attendance at the meeting would endanger his health he would not attend, it was said.

Fuchs and Charles Adams, vice president of the Braves whose intimations that a Boston councilior sought graft to assure early and favorable action on the baseball order started the rumpus, have both been summoned to testify under oath. Others who were expected to appear were Thomas H. Green, president of the city council; Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox baseball team, and Arthur L. Race, manager of a local hotel.

COUGARS MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT FROM BLACKHAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Detroit Cougars made it two straight over the Blackhawks in three nights, downing the Chicago ice sextette tonight 2 to 1 in a National league hockey game here. The Cougars defeated the Hawks Sunday night at Detroit.

Mitchell Wins Over Kawler

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 1—(AP)—Ray Mitchell of Philadelphia this afternoon won the judges' decision over Nat Kawler of New York, in a slashing, ten-round bout here. Each scaled 141 pounds.

MORGAN BEATEN BY SANGOR BUT RETAINS JUNIOR LIGHTWEIGHT CROWN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 1—(AP)—Joey Sangor, of Milwaukee won the newspaper decision over Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., junior lightweight champion in a 10-round battle here this afternoon. The title did not change hands because no decisions are allowed in Wisconsin.

Morgan had the fight won in the fourth round when he was fouled by a left hook to low territory but refused to accept it. They continued fighting after a short rest with Sangor always piling into him with busy body attacks.

In the opening bout Mike Mikkel, Milwaukee light heavyweight, knocked out Kid Guepe of Rochester, Minn., in the first round with a right cross to the chin.

Louie New, Milwaukee's newest lightweight pride, fought six fairly even rounds with Vic Walters, a fellow townsman in the second bout.

Johnny Rylan, a Boston southpaw, won the newspaper verdict over Frankie Pall of Toledo in six rounds at 122 pounds.

Jack London, Chicago lightweight, had the better of Jackie Nichols of Milwaukee in the six round semi windup. Nichols was guilty of holding.

MURPHY-HAYES TEAM TAKES JUNIOR DOUBLES TITLE

The new doubles champions defeated Billy Jacobs, Baltimore, and Richard Covington, University of North Carolina, in the finals. The scores were: 6-3, 8-6, 6-1.

In his singles match with Frank Shore, Washington, D. C., Murphy dominated the play from start to finish. He won in three straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

When the doubles finals started late in the afternoon, William "Big Bill" Tilden was in the referee's chair. Murphy and Hayes appeared to have an edge on Jacobs and Covington, principally through the strength of Murphy's service. The second set, which really decided the match, went to 14 games before it was won by Murphy and Hayes.

RECORD PURSE FOR BILLIARD TITLE FEB. 4

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—Carrying the largest cash prizes ever offered, the next international championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament will be played at the New Level club of New York, starting Feb. 4, the National Billiard association announced today.

To the champion will go an annual salary of $6,000 for one year, not subject to challenge, a diamond medal emblematic of the championship, a cash prize of $2,500 and 38 per cent of the net gate receipts. The runner-up will receive a salary of $3,000 for one year, a cash prize of $1,500 and 23 per cent of the net gate receipts.

The tournament, conducted under the auspices of the N. B. A., will be a round-robin affair, lasting 11 days and bringing into competition seven of the outstanding balkline shot makers of the world, including Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, the present titleholder. Willie Hoppe will not compete, being ineligible as the result of his participation in the recent three-cushion tourney.

RANGERS STRENGTHEN HOLD ON LEAD IN HOCKEY LEAGUE

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 1—(AP)—The New York Rangers strengthened their hold on the American group lead of the National Hockey league by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs, three to two, here tonight in one of the fastest games of the season.

The Leafs had a big edge on the offensive in the initial period but could not get past John Ross Roach. The Rangers cut loose in the second session and were rewarded with a goal by Bill Cook. The third period was the most exciting session of the game. Bun Cook scored shortly after the period opened, driving in the puck when the Leafs were slow in clearing his rebound. Art Smith put the Leafs in the game a little later but Bill Cook got his second tally a short time afterwards to give the Rangers a commanding lead. Blair chopped in Horne's pass to end the scoring.

PIRATES LOSE WEIRD GAME TO MAROONS

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates lost an opportunity of remaining in a money position tie with Boston by dropping a wild National league hockey game to the Montreal Maroons here tonight 4-2.

Nels Stewart, gigantic winger of the visitors, proved a valuable man for his team. He scored three goals, assisted in another and repeatedly dropped back to the defense to stave off Pirate thrusts.

Herb Drury played his usual bang-up game for the Pirates. He was hit over the head with a stick in the last period and was unconscious two minutes. Three open goal shots from the three-foot mark were slid past the net by the Pirates.

RICKARD TAKEN TO HOSPITAL FOR OPERATION

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Tex Rickard, president of Madison Square Garden New York, was in the Allison hospital at Miami Beach tonight for an operation for an attack of acute appendicitis. The fight promoter was stricken ill this afternoon.

Rickard was to have been host at the club house of his costly new Greyhound racing plant at Miami Beach tonight, when the gates were thrown open for the first time. He was taken to the hospital at 7.30 o'clock.

REPORTS ROCKNE WILL NOT LEAVE NOTRE DAME

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Ohio State Journal tomorrow will say that Knute Rockne will remain as football coach at Notre Dame university and is not open to a proposition to coach Ohio State's football team next fall, as successor to Dr. J. W. Wilce, resigned.

Wrestlers Ready To Go.

BOSTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Gus Sonnenberg, young Boston challenger, both had hard workouts today in preparation for their title match Friday in the Boston garden. A large holiday crowd watched the two men work out.

BONEHEAD PLAY LOSES GAME FOR CALIFORNIA AGAINST GEORGIA TECH.

By Russell J. Newland
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROSE BOWL, Pasadena, Calif., Jan 1—(AP)—Georgia Tech, southern conference champion, snatched a spectacular game from California's Bears, 8 to 7 today in the 12th annual tournament of roses game.

Nearly 70,000 persons massed in this green turfed stadium under a brilliant sunshine saw the Golden Tornado swirl to an undefeated season with a safety and touchdown. A closing rally by California netted a touchdown in the last quarter and the closing gun saw the Bears starting another offensive in Tech territory.

Tech's first points, two on a safety, resulted from a freak play in which Roy Riegels, California captain-elect and center, scooped up a fumble and ran the wrong way. He came to within a foot of his own goal line before Benny Lom, a team mate, caught him and held him back.

On the next play Lom's punt from behind his own goal line was blocked and Barr fell on the ball to give the visitors a lead.

With the score 2-0 at half time, Tech pushed over a touchdown in the third period. Two long runs, 20 yard dash by Mizell, halfback and a 15 yard canter by Thomason, halfback, netted the points. The try for point by place kick failed.

A sharp aerial attack in the final quarter brought the Bears their touchdown. Lom passed 37 yards to Phillips to put the ball in scoring territory. Two short tosses followed for small gains and Lom again swished one for ten yards to Phillips who cought the leather behind Tech's line. Barr converted the try for point with a place kick.

Tech's tornado played heads up football throughout, seizing every opportunity to keep the Bears on the defensive. On the offensive, The visitors got the breaks but their backfield combination showed up much better than the California toters. Mizel, left half for Tech, was outstanding with gains of from five to 25 yards through the entire game. Lom for the Bears was the punch that kept the southern players at bay most of the time.

That heart-breaking incident that cost the Bears two points, shattered the hopes of California followers for an undefeated collegiate season. At the same time it almost evened up the score in inter-sectional rivalry this year. The west has won three such contests and the east and south two.

Today's game was the third in which southern teams have been featured in this yearly classic and to date their record is intact. Alabama won one game and tied another in the past.

LES CANADIENS TIE WITH AMERICANS AT 1-ALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—The flying Frenchmen of Montreal, Les Canadiens, brought their winged skates to Madison Square Garden tonight for the first time this season and skated to a 1 to 1 tie with the New York Americans in a speedy National Hockey league game.

Howie Morenz, tied the count for the Canadiens in the middle of the third period tricking his way through the New York team alone to beat Worters with a perfect shot. Normie Himes tallied for the Americans in the opening frame on a pass from Simpson.

Broadbent and Conacher were fined $25 each, the former for fighting with Burke in the penalty box and the latter for arguing with the referee when he was penalized in the extra period.

BIALAS WINS 880 EVENT TO TAKE SKATING TITLE

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Valentne Bialas, of Utica, skating for the Lake Placid Skating club, today won the 880-yard race and captured the Middle Atlantic skating championship. Bialas also won the special three mile race.

Margaret McBride of the Toronto Speed Skating club, swept all three of the women's events and became the champion for the second successive time in this division, with 90 points.

STRIBLING KAYOES LEAGUE IN THE FIRST ROUND

On Way South

Somewhere on the road between here and Williamsburg, Va., a couple of favorite ex-sons of the Academy are probably curising this morning in a Ford of ancient vintage. Mace Goldblatt and Steffy Cimikoski, former star athletes of the Academy, made the round trip from William and Mary college to the Rose of New England for the Christmas holidays in a flivver that set them back something like $30. They left Monday morning for the return trip and at last reports were still going strong.

Callahan Beats Wagner

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 1—(AP)—Andy Callahan of Lawrence, scoring five knockdowns gave Eddie Kid Wagner of Philadelphia such a beating in the main bout at the Exposition building tonight that the Quaker City boxer barely weathered the 12th and final round. One knockdown came in the second, tw oin the third and another pair in the final session. Callahan weighed 140 and Wagner 137.

Ted Kid Drew of Biddeford, 141, was given a newspaper verdict over Johnny Scully of Boston, 137, in a six round semi final.

Alabama Alumni Wins.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Alabama Alumni defeated Auburn Alumni 6 to 0 today in a charity game that marked the first meeting of football teams composed of players representing the two state institutions since athletic relations were severed in 1907.

Jimmie Kohnson, Alabama back, who scored the touchdown to tie Stanford in the tournament of roses game three years ago scored the winning marker for the Crimson and White Alumni in the first quarter.

The game, sponsored by the local junior chamber of commerce, was designed as a step toward bringing the schools back together on the gridiron.

Vacca Beats Cubic

CHICOPEE, Mass., Jan. 1—(AP)—Johnny Vacca, 118, of Boston, took a close 10-round decision over Willie Cubic, 115 1-2, of New York here this afternoon. Vacca won in the closing rounds. Pete Bianchi, 115 1-2, of Clinton, won an eight round decision from Art O'Day, 112 1-2 East Hampton. Art Chapdelaine, 114, nephew of Jack Delaney, won easily in six rounds from Johnny Bedell, 114 1-2, of New London, Conn.

KILLINGLY OPENS SEASON WITH WIN OVER ALUMNI

DANIELSON, Jan. 1.—The Killingly High school quintet opened its season at the gym here tonight with a victory over the Alumni five by a score of 25 to 22. The game was fast and interesting throughout the entire 40 minutes of play. The Alumni had the edge over Killingly in the first three-quarters but the Red and White came back in the last period with superb strength tallying nine points putting the game on ice.

"Beans" Conklin of the Alumni started the works with two baskets in succession and they maintained the lead of 5 to 1 at the end of the first quarter. Killingly came back in the second quarter and put up a great rally with fine shooting by Withey and Young but they could not overcome the lead of the Alumni. The half ended in favor of the latter 11 to 7. The second half brought more good playing by both teams. The Alumni still held the lead by the score of 26 to 18 at the end of the third period. In the final period Killingly came back with much more fight and teamwork. Young and Slowik opened a fierce attack which added nine points to the score, Conklin threatened to tie the score with a long shot which cleared the hoop perfectly but the lead was too big and it was a victory for Killingly. Thompson was the high scorer for Killingly getting 13 points, and W. Hammett was high scorer for the Alumni with 12 points. During the last half the score was tied twice by the Alumni.

BIG SIX CONFERENCE TEAM WINS FROM SOUTHWEST

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 1—(AP)—"Blue" Howell of Nebraska, and Bob Merkle of Missouri plunged and sidestepped in phantom fashion today to give a team of big six gridiron stars a 14 to 6 victory over a handpicked southwest conference eleven before 10,000 spectators. The game was staged for benefit of a crippled children's hospital.

All thrills of the contest, Dixie's last of a lengthy season, were not confined to the exploits of big six scoring aces. Late in the game when Howell was chased out of bounds by Burgess, a crowd of several hundred swarmed on the field when the southwest player apparently swung at his opponent. The game was delayed several minutes while police cleared the field. "Rammin" Rufus King, captain of the Texas university southwest conference championship team, bore the brunt of the losing team's attack in convincing manner.

Tavelleri Kayoes Decker

O'Dowd Wins Decisive Verdict

O'Dowd at 124 1-2 pounds was outweighed by 2 1-2 pounds. Ring critics gave O'Dowd nine rounds and called three even.

Michigan Beats Penn State

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 1—(AP)—University of Michigan defeated Penn State 32 to 14 in a basketball game here night. The visitors scored first but never were ahead again throughout the game. The score at half time was Michigan 17; Penn State 8. The Nittany Lions introduced the novel idea of amking a complete five man substitution at the end of 15 minutes play.

Petrolle Gets Verdict.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Pete Petrolle, Schenectady, N. Y., was awarded the decision over Billy Pollock, local lightweight, in a sizzling ten round bout this afternoon. Petrolle floored Pollock for counts of nine on four different occasions but was unable to keep his opponent down.

Firpo And Dillon Draw.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Henry Firpo, of Louisville, Ky., and Jack Dillon of Nashville, Tenn., fought a ten round draw here today. Dillon was outfought and outslugged by Firpo, but the Nashville boy was clever at infighting.

Gibbs Loses to Malone

King Tut Beats Leroy.

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 1.—(AP)—King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight, won the decision over Russie Leroy of Fargo in a ten round boxing contest here. Leroy had the better of the milling early in the bout but wilted under the fast pace.

CHAMPS HAVE CHANCE FOR NEW RECORDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—The long straight fairway of 1929 probably will prove a trail beset with trouble for golf champions. Many a greater golfer goes through his competitive life without winning a title and once won the championships have a habit of slipping away. Three of the major champions go into the campaign of the New Year with chances to make new golf records by winning again and this added responsibility may prove too great a burden.

If Bobby Jones again is crowned amateur king he will annex the title for the fifth time—something that has not been done before.

Walter Hagen can give future generations of golfers something at which to shoot by successfully defending the British open for he had his name on the cup three times, more than any other player from the United States.

Glenna Collett may be the first woman to win the championship of her class four times.

Bobby Jones, perhaps, has the best chance if for no other reason because winning has become a fixed habit with him. The Atlanta lawyer has not been without a major title since 1923 and for six years has had at least one and sometimes two. His record of eight world series golf victories in six years seems safe from immediate attack.

The Atlantan has never played golf in California where he will be called on to defend his amateur championship but there is a conviction that he will not be a push-over at Pebble Beach in September. On the other hand, George Von Elm, now of Detroit, the only amateur who has defeated Robert Tyre in the last five tournaments, made a considerable part of his golf reputation in California and certainly will know his way about. Phillips Finlay, the long hitting collegian, reversed the process employed by Von Elm when George moved east. Phil went west and he will play at Del monte for the glory of his adopted state.

The Pacific coast contingent, especially the delegation from Portland, consisting of Dr. C. P. Willing, Frank Dolph and the Moe brothers, and Bond Stein, of Seattle, will bear watching in the autumn.

Johnny Farrell has set about the task of defending his golf honor at Winged-foot in June as seriously as could be expected of any golfer. He reduced his playing to a minimum with a plan to work up to top form during the spring and early summer.

Glenna Collett, with her putting developed to the fine level of the rest of her game, gave no indications at Virginia Hot Springs last year that she had any motto but "forward" and barring a golf earthquake before September, she will enter the women's tournament at Oakland Hills a heavy favorite.

The British will be called on to repulse the most ambitious invasion in recent years as the best professionals in the United States descend on the tight little isle in the spring. Led by Walter Hagen, British open titleholder, Johnny Farrell, open champion of the United States and Leo Diegel, P. G. A. and Canadian champion, a crack Ryder cup team will oppose Britain's best April 26. A little more than a week later the Americans will go on to Muirfield for a mass attack on the British open.

The British golfing world has grown weary of seeing of seeing its most prized trophy leave home and every effort will be made to do something about it. For five years "the cup" has been packed for shipment to the United States each year, although Bobby Jones left it in Scotland when he won it the second time.

A matter of less moment is the British women's title which has spent the last two years in France. Miss Collett, who ran into difficulties after a brave start in the last British tournament, may have something to say about disposition of the trophy for 1929.

Cormier Scores 13th Knockout

WORCESTER, Mass. Jan. 1—(AP)—Vernon Cormier, of Worcester scored his 13th successive ring victory here this afternoon when he easily defeated Harry Roberts, of Boston in an eight round encounter. Cormier weighed 118 and Roberts 117.

PLAINFIELD VS. WHIRLWINDS TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineups

Whirlwinds	Plainfield
Crotty, rf	rf, Brusso
Riorden, lf	lf, Kasper
Martin, c	c, Bernot
Kiley, rg	rg, Tisdell
Morley, lg	lg, Dissinger

The Boston Whirlwinds return to the Plainfield Community house floor this evening seeking revenge for the defeat administered earlier in the season when the Plainfield Pros turned them back by a score of 30 to 20. This was by far the largest score by which Plainfield had ever won from the Whirlwinds and the Beantown five is coming to Plainfield with the determination to make that margin of victory seem small in comparison to the one they intend to pile up. Plainfield has yet to win a series from the Bay State team but this year have hopes of taking tonight's encounter which will settle the supremacy for the season.

After last week's defeat by the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn in a hard-fought game in which Plainfield played brilliant basketball although beaten the Pros are intent on showing the fans that they are a fighting team. Practice has been stiff during the past week with special stress being laid on the passing of the team and basket-shooting. With Plainfield out for a victory and Boston striving to even the series the indications are that a real basketball tussle is in store for the fans.

Manager Lester Salisbury will use his same lineup that has performed so well during the past few weeks while Boston brings down the same reliable lineup which centers around the two veterans, Fiddle Morley and Leo Martin. In Bernot and Dissinger Plainfield can match the play of the Beaners and taken right through the lineup there is little to choose between the two clubs. Previous games bear out the contention that two more evenly matched teams would be hard to find, or teams where every player is an individual star.

A fast preliminary between the Buddies and the Westerly Whirlwinds another fast junior team is slated for 7.45 o'clock with the big game following at 8.45. As has been the custom at the Community house dancing will be enjoyed after the big game.

MENTHOLATUM HEALS PILES

AGAIN COUNTY HOME KIDDIES VISIT CASSIN'S CREW, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—For the second year the 65 children—25 girls and 40 boys—at the county home on Smith avenue, Norwich, were given a New Year party today on the Coast Guard destroyer, Cassin, at the state pier in this city. Accompanying the children were the matron, Miss Jessie Gibson and her assistants, Miss Duncan and Miss Ericson and Mrs. Emma Scovel. The children came from Norwich by invitation of Capt. W. M. Derby, in a bus provided by the Connecticut Motor Transportation company through the generosity of Capt. E. R. Geer. The party left the home at 11 o'clock, accompanied by a special escort from the ship. The ice on the roads had melted somewhat, so the trip down was made without mishap.

A splendid New Year dinner was ready for the kiddies, in charge of Chief Commissary Steward O. P. Landfield. Every child in the home accepted the generous invitation and every man on the ship devoted himself to seeing to it that they enjoyed the big day. At 3 o'clock they were taken to the Capitol theater where, as guests of the management, they greatly enjoyed the afternoon performance. At 5 o'clock the party again boarded the bus for the return trip. Following the dinner the children had been liberally provided with gifts by the Cassin's crew, who all told gave them the time of their life.

SHIP & ENGINE CO. MERGED WITH ELECTRIC BOAT CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1.—Announcement was made today that the New London Ship and Engine company has been absorbed by the Electric Boat company, the deal having been consummated yesterday at a special meeting of stockholders of the former company. The merger was brought about with theides of reducing overhead expense. The actual dissolution of the old company will not take place for several months, thus giving it time to straighten out its business affairs. The officers of the company will be retained.

NORWICH GIRL'S CHARGES CAUSES OFFICER'S SUSPENSION

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1.—Patrolman George McCaskey was suspended tonight by Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney and will remain suspended until such time as the officer is given a hearing by City Manager William A. Holt and that official renders his decision. In the event of action being taken calling for the dismissal from the force of the officer, McCaskey has the alternative of appealing to a board of three, of which the judge and deputy judge of the police court are two of the members. The specific charges against the officer has not been made known, but it is understood that it will be conduct uncecoming an officer.

Yesterday the parents of a girl of 17 whose home is in Norwich, came to New London and the father went to police headquarters where he made certain accusations against the officer. The latter was sent for and related his story in connection with the accusation. This afternoon Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Desk Sergeant William Babcock went to the home of the girl and questioned her in deail relative to the alleged conduct of the officer. What the girl is said to have related is believed to be most damaging against the officer for upon the return to New London of Sergeant Smith and Sergeant Babcock, Captain Pinney went to police headquarters and at once ordered the suspension of McCaskey. Two other officers were interrogated also, but they were not relieved of duty. McCaskey was supposed to have gone on duty with the night detail at 7 o'clock, but he was detained and subsequently suspended. McCaskey has before been under charges and on one occasion was suspended for two weeks.

George K. Hall, 76 Pleasant street, Groton, was arrested this evening by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh charged with reckless driving, upon complaint of Philip Beers, Main street. He will be in court tomorrow.

Arthur Hucks, submarine base, tonight was arrested by State Police Officer John Hick charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving without a license. Hucks will be presented in the city court Wednesday morning.

DRIVING WAS PERILOUS TILL THE SAND MAN CAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1.—The rain that fell and froze during the early hours of this morning created a slippery condition to autoists and there were numerous accidents, none, however, of a serious nature. Autos skidded promiscuously and on State street, esnecially in front of the union station, buses and taxicabs were almost uncontrolable. On the New London-Norwich highway there was a string of trucks and pleasure cars held up several hours because of the treacherous condition of the road. At one time there was a line of trucks anchors that extended from Quaker Hill to Bolles' Hill awaiting the arrival of state highway employes with sand for the two hills for the road-surface was so slippery that the drivers would not take a chance of descending them.

BIGAMIST CRONIN HELD JAIL LACKING BONDS IN JAIL LACKING BONDS

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1.—Edwin Cronin, former Union street store proprietor, was arrested in Taunton, Mass., several weeks ago charged with bigamy. It is alleged he has three wives, one of whom resides at Mare Point, Waterford, where she recently became a mother. The hearing was started yesterday in Waterford town court, but the case was continued to Monday after testimony had been taken and which occupied the court until nightfall. Besides the wife who resides in Waterford, it is claimed that Cronin's first wife resides in New Bedford, Mass., and his third wife is a resident of Harris, R. I. Cronin is being held a prisoner at the New London county jail, in default of bail of $2,000.

Mrs. Mary Maxson, of Williams street, who attempted suicide by swallowing a portion of a vial of iodine near St. Mary's cemetery last Saturday, will probably recover. Her condition today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital was reported as being vastly improved. The woman, whose husband, a chief petty officer was killed in an automobile accident at Salem, Mass., several weeks ago, was despondent over the death of her husband and doubly so because she has been left with three small children.

The military authorities and the police are seeking the whereabouts of Nicholas J. Dillon, a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Ericsson, state pier, who is classed as a deserter. Dillon disappeared several days ago.

Frank T. Cable, 606 Montauk avenue, president and general manager of the New London Ship and Engine company, who underwent a serious operation at Lawrence-Memorial hospital last Saturday, was reported this afternoon as being slightly improved.

Four cases of intoxication were tried. Two of the fellowes were sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentences were suspended. The other two cases were disposed of by one being discharged and another fined $10 and costs. Four sailors were also arrested on charges of intoxication last night, as were two members of the crew of a fishing boat moored at the plant of the American Fisheries, Groton. The sailors were given into custody of a short patrol and the fishermen were allowed to return to their boat.

DISCIPLINE OF WIFE THOUGHT SEVERE BY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1.—Augustus Gauthier, colored, is evidently of the type who believes in threshing his wife, not because he does not love her, but to show his authority, but his act in this respect brought him a fine in the police court today. Gauthier went this morning to the house 115 Green street where his wife was residing in an effort to persuade her to return and live with him. This the wife refused to do and when persuasion was of no avail, Gauthier meted out severe bodily punishment to his spouse. The wife went to police headquarters where she made formal complaint against Gauthier and he was arrested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy. In court a fine of $10 and costs was imposed. Gauthier said that when he courted his wife she was inclined to be "sporty," but that when the wife was about to become a mother, it appeared as though she was ready to settle down to a life of domesticity. However, when the baby was born, Gauthier declared, his wife wanted to continue her sporty life and this the former did not approve. It was for this reason, Gauthier said, that he went to the Green street house today and engaged in the row with his wife.

William Coulson, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication, was discharged. Coulson was arrested yesterday upon complaint of his wife.

LEFT KEY OF DOOR HANDY FOR YOUNG THIEF TO ENTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—Paul Stubelik, with a police record, was arrested today by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman John Courtney charged with theft. Because of the youth's age, he was not prosecuted in the police court, but was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The boy observed that Arnold Meyers made a practice of hiding his house key and when the former was absent from his home, 31 Winthrop street, yesterday Stubelik, secured the key and entered the house, stealing a wrist watch and $10.

City officials and fifteen electrical contractors gathered in the rooms of the chamber of commerce last night for the purpose of considering an inspector of electrical wiring for the city. A movement to secure such an official has been on foot for some time, as it is claimed a greater degree of safety from fire and a resultantly lower insurance rate will be brought about by having one in the city. Fire Chief Thompson has always maintained that a large number of local fires have been caused by defective wiring. Such an inspector will be chosen later.

The entire stock of goods in the store of McMahon and Sexton which has been doing business here for the past 33 years, has been sold to the Raymonds, a big Boston clothing firm that specialize in purchasing stocks of stores. The purchase price was not made known.

Fire almost destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Von Feilitz, an aged couple living in Pine Grove, Niantic. When the fire was discovered it had made considerable headway and neighbors rushing to aid had great difficulty in fighting it and it was not until the Niantic Engine company arrived that the blaze extinguished. Mr. Van Feilitz during the hottest part of the blaze narrowly escaped death when he rushed to the rescue of a pet dog. It is understood that there was no insurance on the dwelling.

The first case of influenza to hit this city was reported by a physician today when a woman was found ill with the malady.

Mrs. Darwin Tracey of Groton was discharged from Home Memorial hospital today.

Improvements in this city during the past twelve months are mostly noticeable in State and Bank streets. Many new stores and store fronts improve these thoroughfares. Bank street was widened during the year and but recently new electric traffic signals were set up at different intersections.

Announcement was made today of the marriage last March of Miss Agnes T. Mark of this city and Harry B. Brooks of the coast guard destroyer Force. The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace in Providence. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks have taken an apartment in the Harris building, State street. The groom is a well known athlete.

The annual reunion of members of the Jocundis club was held last night at the home of Mrs. Frank E. Douglas, on Vauxhall street. The affair took the form of a watch night party. Bridge was played and the prize winners were Jerome Collins and Mrs. David Coffey.

Officers of Star of the Sea branch, Ladies Catholic Benevolence society are to be installed at a meeting to be held in Eagles hall, tomorrow night. After the installation ceremonies supper will be served.

Takes Waterbury Bride

Attorney Henry Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Harris of Ocean avenue married tonight at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, Miss Gertrude Janice Johnson of Waterbury, a graduate of Connecticut college, class of 1928.

Adina Major of this city became the bride yesterday of Antoine Major, U. S. N. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ.

A check-up of receipts at the local post office show an increase of $4,599 in 1928 over the preceding year. The total for last year amounted to $189,124.

Twenty-one freighters landed at the state pier this city during 1928 and landed a total of over 20,000,000 feet of lumber, at a value of $668,000.

Miss Fredericka Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holt Smith, of Worthington road, entertained at bridge yesterday afternoon. Winners of prizes were Marjorie Prentis, Ruth Andrews and Nancy Rogers.

The annual message of George H. Gariepy, secretary of the chamber of commerce, was to the effect that all signs point to an era of prosperity in this city for the year. Business during 1928 showed a considerable increase over the preceding one. Mr. Gariepy states that everything for the present year looks rosy.

Richard Darlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Darling of 169 Howard street suffered a severe fracture of the left leg yesterday afternoon when he fell from a small play cart while coasting down Alger hill. He was picked up by his father and Sanford Herrindeen and the latter rushed him to Home Memorial hospital where the bone was set. Today he is reported as resting comfortably.

A new law partnership was formed today between Judge Arthur E. Calkins and Attorney Thomas E. Troland. The firm will be known as Calkins and Troland. Judge Calkins retires from his judgeship duties on the 16th of this month.

DUCK NOT A RARE FOWL TILL PURCHASER WANTS ONE

A local woman, Monday, being quite desirous of serving roast duck for the family dinner on New Year's day, visited the whole list of 13 local markets without success in her proposed purchase. Past transactions have proven her to be a woman of determination. What she purposes, that she performs. Reporting her failure, her husband, a noble man and true, gave her a bright new ten spot, all yellow on one side, even like the Connecticut buses, and more, yellow and fair breast of the duck she would surely buy in Norwich.

"What, ho!" said her munificent helpmate and lord, "Go to, get thee to Norwich on the next bus, and there where fowls are plenty, purchase a duck for our New Year roast!"

The woman departed, and tarried not. Alas, within all the Rose there was not a duck to be found! The woman hurried through all the city markets, even the unfailing poultry repositories of the West Side. Now, a dealer was "just out," here, the bland counterman declared he had just let the "last one of 7 dozen go." One butcher, pointing to a pair suspended by their necks in the show window, transfixed with a skewer, uttered the one cold, heartless ejaculation, "Sold!"

While returning, tired and sad on the bus for Jewett City, she told her troubles to a housewife friend whom she met en route. The genial and altogether friendly operator at the controls, overheard the pathetic tale of failure. Compassion filled his soul, and then and there he called upon his grandfather's beard to witness that he, he would procure a duck and have it on the job in the little borough up the line, in time for the New Year's dinner.

The woman took heart, but not for long. Alas, that mere man should be so filled with forgetfulness and such! The family dined Tuesday on corned brisket of beef and cabbage. Not however without pleasant circumstances, for it was followed with the plum pudding, that was to have flanked the duck.

DEACON PHILLIPS SPEAKER AT BAPTIST ROLL CALL

A few over 100 gathered in the vestry of the Baptist church New Year's eve, for the annual roll-call James B. Palmer announced a short program to which Miss Emma Dearnley and Delwyn Martin contributed pleasing vocal solos. Miss Ellen R. Prior and Everett Thornton were accompanists. Pastoral statistics, as well as an outline of the coming Cooper meetings, which it was voted to hold here for a week in February, were of much interest.

The many pleasant features of the evening were enhanced, in that the New Year address was delivered by the senior deacon, John E. Phillips. Born in 1850, he has not only given the many years of a long and active life to the clerical end of the cotton industry, but he has served an equally long and active term as a faithful steward of the Baptist church. What he had to say was of interest from every viewpoint. The roll call too proved of special interest, as letters were read from absent members who live in other towns. Cake and ice cream supplemented the social hour of pleasant reminiscences.

New Year's weather in the borough set up a record for disagreeable features. Snow, with a dash of hail, followed by rain all day, kept the streets practically deserted and the state highway as a country lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hansee recently gave a birthday surprise party for their daughter Florence Hansee, forty or more being invited. Miss Hansee received a portable Victrola from her parents, also many other beautiful gifts from friends. Games were played and dancing was enjoyed. Ice cream and cake and fancy cookies and punch were served.

BENNIE NOFLE'S FUNERAL CLAIMS COMMUNITY INTEREST

The funeral of Bennie Nofle was held from his home at North Main street New Year's morning, St. Mary's church was filled with mourning relatives and friends. In the solemn requiem mass Rev. J. J. McCabe was celebrant, Rev. Dr. P. J. McCormick of Washington was deacon and Rev. Nicholas Caron sub-deacon. Mrs. Noel Garand sang "O Meritum Passionis for the offertory. James Olson played the processional and recessional marches. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Rev. Fr. McCabe reading the committal prayers. The bearers were Joseph and Bennie Salonski, Joseph Siergay, Walter and Anthony Koziowski and Joseph Wojkowski. There were beautiful flowers, among the ma cross from Bennie's Bulletin customers, the result of the kindly thought of Loretta Lemieux, who had covered this route previously. Other flowers were from Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Niciewicz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Marcaurele and family, teachers and classmates of the 7th grade at Riverside Grammar school, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Koziowski and family, Mrs. Valerie Koziowski, Mr. and Mrs. Polomski and family, Mrs. Kargol, Bennie's godmother, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Anthony, and Mrs. Bouchard.

Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Two Gifts to Church

The New Year's services at the Methodist church were very well attended Monday evening. The first hour was enjoyed by listening to a program of music and readings. Mrs. Ella Geer gave two readings. Mary McFall and Grace Gardiner played piano solos, Bessie LaLiberty sang, and there were vocal selections by the Gardiner class. L. D. Howe gave a brief address for the Men's class. There were two presentations made during the program. A gift of new linen for the communion table was made for the Gardiner class by Mrs. L. D. Howe and received by R. W. Robertson, one of the trustees. The Willing Workers' class through Hazel Johnson gave a velvet and gold lace runner for the communion table ormentation during the weeks. It was received by L. D. Howe, chairman of the trustees. A social hour followed in the vestry, with humorous sketches by David and Oliver Carter. Sandwiches, doughnuts, and coffee were served. At 11:15 there was a devotional service in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter. Delwyn Martin sang Open the Gates of the Temple. An altar service at midnight closed the service, the assemblage singing Blest Be The Tie That Binds, as the New Year came in.

Maynard Family Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maynard entertained at their home at 16 Hill street, New Year's day. A turkey dinner was served by Mrs. Maynard assisted by Mrs. Alpherie Maynard. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. William Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Maynard and son Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Velo Maynard and daughter Margarette and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Alphoerie Maynard and Yvonne Maynard, from Lisbon, Louise and Charles Maynard, Theodore Kenyon, from Norwich, Albert and Archie Despres and Homer Maynard.

At St. Mary's church New Year's day, the Feast of Circumcision and a holy day of obligation there were special masses in the morning, and devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in the evening.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Kenyon were entertained at the home of William L. Kenyon on the recent holiday. Other guests were Rev. and Mrs. Dewberry of Waterbury, Conn., Mr. Hobart and son of Shelton, Conn.

Mrs. Amos L. Kenyon and daughter Barbara visited with Miss Reba Collins in New York the past week.

Funeral services for Everett G. Coon, who died suddenly, while partaking of his holiday dinner, Tuesday, were held at undertaking rooms in Westerly Friday afternoon, Rev. William L. Burdick officiating. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery, Ashaway and the committal services were conducted by the Junior American Mechanics of Ashaway.

Mr. Coon has resided for several years on High street, Ashaway. He was a quiet, industrious mechanic and had the respect of all who knew him.

Surviving him are his widow, father, brother and two stepdaughters.

It is understood that there will be competitive bidding for the position of mail carrier from Ashaway to Hopkinton City, via Clark's Falls for the next four years.

Walter White and family of Johnston, R. I., and Clarence White and family of Wakefield were in town Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. White returned home from Wakefield Sunday afternoon.

SOUTH WINDHAM CONCERN IN PAPER MACHINERY BUSINESS FOR CENTURY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1—Probably one of the most intensely interesting industrial histories to be found in New England is that of the Smith & Winchester Manufacturing company of South Windham which, in the year 1928 concluded a century of pioneering in the manufacture of paper-making machinery. The plant is the outgrowth of a partnership formed between George Spafford of South Windham and James Phelps who built for America the first improved Fourdrinier paper-making machine. The original Fourdrinier was the product of Messrs. Henry & Sealy Fourdrinier of London and was made in 1804. A machine of this type, the first to come to this country, was imported in December, 1827, by one Joseph Pickering and it was to be set up at North Windham, Conn., under the direction of Spafford. Spafford's study of the machine while installing it led to the improvements which he made upon it.

Working as assistant for Spafford & Phelps in a little remodeled school house in South Windham was Charles Smith, a boy of 19, whose mechanical talent and executive ability had already marked him for leadership. Throughout subsequent years and under untold handicaps new improvements for paper-making machinery continued to be developed and so the firm of Phelps & Spafford pioneered and flourished until the financial crash of 1831, when their losses compelled them to suspend work. Charles Smith, however, had faith in the future of the business and with Harvey Winchester bought out the concern and reorganized as The Smith, Winchester & Company. Guided by the maturing hands of Charles Smith, who added to his business a mechanical genius, the firm weathered the final depression of the period and eventually was firmly established on a sound footing. By 1840 the company had developed a line of stuff pumps and beaters and in 1854 it obtained patents from Joseph Jordan and Thomas Eustice to introduce to the waiting world the Jordan refining engine. Even today Jordan machines 50 and 60 years old are being returned for reconditioning when they are again ready for successfully continuing their work.

The fame of the Smith, Winchester & Company had spread from coast to coast in 1853. Ox teams hauled machines to Maine. The first machine to go west of the Mississippi and consigned to Samuel P. Taylor who had struck it rich in the California gold rush, was shipped by boat to the Isthmus of Panama and then drawn by ox sled to its destination. Eventually Smith, Winchester & Company machines were installed in England, Cuba, Mexico and South America. One of the South American installations was indeed a test of the designer's ingenuity for it had to be so constructed that it could be carried by burros across the mountains, and each piece had to be planned to be small enough for such transportation.

As the years of progress transpired Charles Smith's son, Guilford, was fast becoming a force in the concern. He had worked his way through the plant from clerk to a position of responsibility. Arthur S. Winchester, son of Harvey Winchester, had also become associated with the concern and was holding a position of great responsibility in connection with the financial side of the firm's interests. Charles Smith died on April 6, 1896 and his burden went to the shoulders of new geniuses that he had developed. The organization was now known as the Smith & Winchester company and it went forward with a new resolve to pioneer as its leader would have wished.

New demands which were being met with characteristic promptness and accuracy were causing notable changes in the operation of the plant. In 1905 the company was incorporated as The Smith & Winchester Manufacturing company and at that time Guilford Smith bought out the interest of his partner and assumed control of affairs. Three years later the National Manufacturing company of Indiana, makers of excellent paper bag machinery, was purchased by the South Windham concern. Soon after taking charge Guilford Smith placed his management in the capable hands of William P. Barstow, who in 20 years had risen from bookkeeper to assistant treasurer and Mr. Smith made him general manager. In 1909 the machine shop of brick and steel was built and the equipment motorized. A new foundry had been erected and in every way power and equipment were brought to play to speed production to peaks of which early pioneers had only dreamed.

With the constant new developments in rapid strides, the company did not forget the machines of the past and care was given so that no patent became obsolete. In this way machines that had worked for a generation could be reconditioned to continue operation without loss of efficiency.

The concern is now headed by General Manager Walter Abbe, Jr., who has been connected with it since 1917. He was secretary and assistant treasurer from 1921 to 1923 and president, treasurer and general manager since 1923. Carl E. Oman, connected with the company since 1899 has been vice president since 1905. Cassius A. Barstow is secretary and assistant treasurer.

In observance with the beginning of a new century of pioneering the Smith & Winchester company has now started on the construction of a giant new Fourdrinier machine that is 96 inches wide and 90 feet long, it being nearly four times wider than the first Fourdrinier and about 10 times longer. This great product of mechanical genius will be used to manufacture high grade condenser paper, which is the thinnest paper made and is especially used for radio condensers.

New Year's Party Guests

A New Year's party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schneider, of 54 Bentley avenue. Miss Melanie Schneider and Mrs. Frieda Kanzler assisted Mrs. Schneider in serving a New Year's lunch, consisting of vegetable salad, cold meats, cakes, fruits and coffee. After lunch Miss Tenant gave several choice selections on piano, and Dorothy Scheider was the special feature of the evening, charmingly dressed in blue tulle and silver trimmings, doing the butterfly dance and several other fancy dances.

Several of the latest songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Gregory. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Normandin, Miss Melanie Schneider, Mrs. Frieda Kanzler, Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, Mr. Hammel, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buesche and son, Max, Lloyd Maddocks and Frank Buesche.

The guests stayed to see the old year out and the new year in.

JOHNSON HOME MATRON REPORTS FOR A BUSY YEAR

One more year is drawing to a close and as matron of the Johnson home I take this way to thank those interested in the home for their many kindnesses during 1928.

Thomas Bachelet, a kind neighbor, sent squashes and apples several times during the year. Feb. 14th Mrs. Edward A. Smith of Fair Acres, Mystic, brought us cream and cake, also gave each member of the household a valentine and a large box of heart cookies. At Easter she remembered them with cards. Feb. 17th Grace Circle of the King's Daughters held their thirty-first anniversary meeting at the home, served a delightful luncheon, also gave the home a dozen and a half dinner plates.

Comfort Circle K. D. in April gave for their room here four pillow covers, four small towels, two large towels, two face cloths, four dresser covers, one bed spread. In March, Charitable Circle, K. D., gave to their room one bed spread, four towels, four dresser covers, four face cloths, a bed spread.

Mrs. A. Jarvis Baker, now Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice, sent five quarts of canned fruit. The United Congregational church donated two dozen books to the library of the home.

Mrs. George Stanton sent dishes to be used in the kitchen for cooking. In April Loyal Circle, K. D., donated six pillow covers. The members of this circle are very kind to Miss Mary Witter who has been a shut-in for seven years and who will be ninety years old the first day of March.

At Easter the First Congregational and United Congregational churches, and Grace Episcopal church of Yantic sent potted plants and flowers.

April—Charitable Circle, K. D. gave a musicale by colored singers, also served refreshments.

April 2—Mr. Casper Bailey sent to the matron six tickets for the Woodman organ recital at the First Congregational church.

During May Mrs. William Hough sent the home three dozen packages of Jello. Home Chapter, K. D., furnished shades for all windows needing them at a cost of one hundred dollars ($100) also a half dozen hospital gowns for the sick rooms.

In October Dwight Underwood sent a bushel of wonderful apples; Miss C. I. Frink of Town street sent pie apples.

December 22—Oliver Johnson, president of the home, sent to the matron a check to be used for the Christmas expenses.

Mrs. William Beckwith sent sugar, apples, strawberry jam and post cards.

Mrs. Henry Kendel of Lisbon sent five quarts of canned fruit for Christmas.

At Christmas time Miss Mary Porteous sent a half bushel of oranges. Powers Bros. sent two quarts of oysters. The Bulletin company has sent The Bulletin and The Record for the past year.

ARGENTINA DECLINES TO BE PARTY TO MEDIATION

President Yrigoyen Writes That, as Argentina Had Previously Offered to Mediate in the Bolivian-Paraguayan Dispute, He Felt Compelled to Decline the Invitation Transmitted Through United States Ambassador Robert W. Bliss——Adds That Argentina Now Would Abstain Completely From Intervention in the Dispute.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 2—(AP)—President Yrigoyen today declined the invitation of the Pan-American conference on arbitration and conciliation to appoint an Argentine representative to the commission to investigate the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute.

The president said that in view of the fact that Argentina previously had offered to mediate in the dispute he was forced to decline the invitation transmitted through United States Ambassador Robert W. Bliss. Paraguay had accepted the Argentine offer but Bolivia had made reservations.

President Yrigoyen added that Argentina now would abstain completely from intervention in the dispute.

CONCILIATION TREATIES IN HANDS OF TRANSLATORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—The buttressing of peace in the western hemisphere through the efforts of the Pan-American conference tonight was at a temporary standstill.

While the conference awaited a reply from Bolivia to authorize the signing of a protocol to conciliate the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute, the parley's own arbitration and conciliation treaties were in the hands of a corps of translators.

The conclusion of the Bolivian-Paraguayan protocol by which both countries would submit their differences to an international tribunal of nine members, was held in abeyance by Minister Eduardo Diez de Medina, delegate from Bolivia. He told the conference committee in charge of the conciliation he could not sign the document until he received instructions from his government.

Dr. Eligio Ayala of Paraguay, announced that he had been instructed by his government to sign at any time.

Secretary of State Kellogg, chairman of the conference, was ready throughout the day to call a special session of the committee for the protocol signing, but the only report from the Bolivian minister was that no orders had been received from La Paz.

The texts of the treaties of arbitration and conciliation, which have been agreed upon by the respective subcommittees o fthe conference, were being translated into English, Spanish, French and Portuguese. The pacts, it is expected, will be presented tomorrow for adoption by the full committees in charge of their drafting.

MEXICO OR PANAMA MAY REPLACE ARGENTINA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—Word of Argentina's refusal to take part in the Pan-American conference's effort to conciliate the Paraguayan-Bolivian dispute was received tonight as something of a shock by the delegates from twenty of the American nations.

The action withdraws from the field one of the five neutral nations invited to sit in at the conference table to inquire into differences between the two republics. The other neutrals are the United States, Cuba, Brazil, and Uruguay. Of these Brazil alone has not replied thus far to the invitation.

Argentina's withdrawal has not as yet been received officially by the state department.

It is the opinion of many delegates to the conference that the invitation to take the place made vacant by Argentina will be extended to either Mexico or Panama.

BOYCOTTING PUBLIC TELEPHONE STATIONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 2—(AP)—Profits running into millions of dollars annually, accruing from public telephone stations, was the object of a fight which developed here today between downtown business establishments and the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

Declaring a boycott when the telephone company decided to discontinue splitting profits with them, the business places discontinued service at 6,000 of the larger stations which they housed.

The telephone company notified the establishments that they would receive only 22 1-2 per cent of the receipts hereafter and stores and hotels where the booths were installed protested but offered to submit the matter to arbitration.

W. R. Abbott, president of the telephone company, refused to consider arbitration, explaining that the step was taken to equalize rates received by the large downtown establishments with those received by the smaller outlying business places and to bring about a saving to the company.

In some stores and hotels today an effort was made to collect ten cents for calls which the telephone company said was illegal. In other places slugs were refused customers or the booths were locked and some of the drug stores said they expected to tear the booths out and install wall phones. Francis X. Busch, counsel for the Chicago Retail Druggists association, estimated that 50,000,000 calls are made annually from the drugstores alone.

Officials of the Chicago Hotel association said they were negotiating with the telephone company for a settlement, but Mr. Busch said the druggists expected to take the matter before the city council, the state legislature, the Illinois commerce commission and into the courts if necessary.

LATEST REPORTS FROM AERIAL ENDURANCE FLIGHTS

By the Associated Press

One or the three airplanes, that ascended into lanes west of the Mississippi Tuesday and Wednesday to try for new records in endurance flying still purred lazily along as midnight approached last night.

A new world's endurance flight mark for feminine fliers was set by pretty Miss Bobbie Trout, 19 year old Los Angeles girl, when she landed her Golden Eagle plane at 6:36 o'clock last night, setting a new continuous flight time of 12 hours and 11 minutes.

Another of the three aerial vikings, a little open cockpit monoplane, failed to gain its objective of surpassing the refueling sustained flight record of more than 60 hours by landing early last night after it had been up a bit over eleven hours. Blaine M. Tuxhorn, pilot said he gave up the attempt because in approaching the earth to pick up fuel from a mechanical refueling device the plane's wheels had touched the earth, disqualifying him. The plane took off at Marshall, Mo.

The army's great monoplane Question Mark purred into the night with good prospects, army officials said, accomplishing its purpose of making a new refueling endurance record. The five airmen aboard this monster of the skies planned to keep it above the earth until men or motors fail. The ship was being refuelled day and night at intervals by making contact with other planes. It was flying in the Los Angeles vicinity.

REFORATORY BOYS WERE RECAPTURFD IN NEW BRITAIN

MERIDEN, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Less than two hours after their escape from the Cheshire reformatory, Ambrose Brizzo, 18, of Warehouse Point, and Edward Couch, 24, of South Norwalk, were apprehended by the reformatory authorities at the New Britain railroad station tonight.

The youths, according to information received by the local police, escaped from the institution at four o'clock this afternoon. Both were bareheaded and without overcoats at the time.

FRENCH VIEW OF THE REPARATIONS PROBLEM

PARIS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—S. Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations was given credit in French circles tonight for eliminating one of the big questions which was expected to come before the new committee of reparations experts. His report of the manner in which the Dawes plan has been working led the newspaper Le Temps to say that impartial minds would now be convinced that the Dawes plan "took adequately foot account Germany's capacity to pay and there is no reason for bringing that subject up again."

Official circles believe that the report has cralified the atmosphere for the new study of reparations and the fixation of a total of payments by Germany. It was reiterated in several quarters that France needs the maximum payments by Germany provided by the Dawes plan in order that this country may pay its way debts. Since Mr. Gilbert has found that the reich is able to pay their maximum, they say that the financial situation is well cleared up.

OPENING SESSION OF THE MASS. LEGISLATURE

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Representative Martin Hays of Boston, republican, enlivened the opening session of the Massachusetts legislature today by staging a vigorous attack on Representative Leverett Saltonstall, of Newto, who had been nominated for speaker of the house of representatives at a republican caucus earlier in the day. Hays had previously announced his own candidacy for speaker but had stayed out of the caucus.

Saltonstall replied. Other members spoke. Then the house elected Saltonstall by a vote of 160 to 75 for Leo M. Birmingham, democratic caucus nominee. There were three scattering votes.

The opening session of the senate was more peaceful. No opposition appeared to the caucus nominees of the two parties and Casper G. Bacon, of oBston, republican, was elected president.

KING GEORGE PASSED ANOTHER GOOD DAY

LONDON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—With medical announcement tonight that King George had passed another good day and that the improvement noticed yesterday had continued, the atmosphere around Buckingham palace was one of assurance that the danger line had at last been left behind and that although complete recovery might take a long time, it was virtually assured.

This feeling was a reflection of an opinion expressed earlier by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, who said that after a consultation with the king's doctors he felt it would be safe to go to the south of France for a holiday.

"I feel that the worst of the illness is over," Said Sir William.'

Tonight's bulletin was in one sentence, it said:

"The king passed a good day and there is a slight improvement in his majesty's condition."

APPROVES MICHIGAN HABITUAL CRIMINAL LAW

CHICAGO, Jan. 2—(AP)—Approval of the provision of the Michigan habitual criminal law under which Mrs. Etta Mae Miller, mother of ten children was sentenced to life imprisonment for selling liquor, was voted today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

AIRPLANE CARRYING DIPHTHERIA ANTITOXIN

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Captain "Wop" May and Vic Horner hopped off here at 12.45 p. m. today in an Avion plane to carry a supply of diphtheria antitoxin to Hudson's Bay company trading posts at Fort Vermilion and Little Red River in the far north. The weather was cold and fair.

Definite Split In The Salvation Army

Two Groups Lining Up For Vote Next Week on Removal of Commander-in-Chief Booth.

LONDON, Jan. 2—(AP)—For the first time both parties within the Salvation Army today, openly admitted that the high council which will meet shortly is split in two opposing camps.

Officials at the international headquarters and at the headquarters of Evangeline Booth, the American commander, freely announced on the probable line-up of next week's voting when the questions of removal of General Bramwell Booth as commander-in-chief and re-organization of the army will come up.

An official of the Evangeline Booth group stated that after a careful canvass the group was satisfied that more than the necessary three-quarters majority of the council will vote for the removal of the general and for re-organization of the army.

At an international headquarters on the other hand, those who are supporting General Booth refused to concede a probable victory to the other camp, saying that they were sure of at least seven votes and that they believed the council would vote confidence in the general to continue his leadership.

They said, however, that the method of choosing a successor and other administrative reforms might be effected, and that even certain of those who would support the general would favor this.

A high official at international headquarters said that in his opinion such changes would spread to the roots of the army's re-organization and perhaps seriously affect the methods of appointments in all departments.

ACTRESS ALMA RUBENS PLEADED NOT GUILTY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2—(AP)—Alma Rubens, motion picture actress, pleaded not guilty in municipal court here today to a charge of disturbing the peace.

The complaint was issued at the request of Mrs. M. Uhl, owner of the house in which Miss Rubens lives, and neighbors of the actress, including Leroy Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Flois Fox, and Rita Carewe, all of filmland.

Miss Rubens waived a jury hearing and trial was set for January 8.

The actress denied that she had had any "wild parties," but admitted that a young man visitor may have talked loudly. The complaint alleged that neighbors were disturbed by loud and "vile" language from the Rubens bungalow and by "wild parties."

Following the court appearance this morning Mrs. Uhl indicated that she would be willing to drop the case against Miss Rubens. The deputy prosecutor in charge of the case was absent, but court attaches said that when he was reached, the case probably would be dismissed.

FIVE INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL COMPANIES HAVE MERGED

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Merger of five industrial alcohol companies into a new concern Rossville, Commercial Alcohol corporation, which, it is claimed, will be the second largest producer of industrial alcohol in the United States, was announced today.

The companies involved in the consolidation are: Rossville company, Orange Grove Refining company, Federal Products company, Seaboard Chemical company and Industrial Chemical Manufacturing company. The factories are in New Orleans, Lawrenceburg, Ind., Cincinnati, Newark, N. J., and Mechanicville, N. Y.

Victor O'Shaughnessy, long identified with the industrial alcohol industry, will be president.

The company's alcohol allotment from the government will total 11,100,000 gallons, the second largest amount issued to any one company in the country.

12-YEAR OLD BOY WAS INDICTED FOR MURDER

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 12—(AP)—Frank Rokas, 12 year old Nashua boy, was indicted for murder in the first degree by a Hillsborough county grand jury here today. He was arrested on a charge of shooting Adam Goodvitch, 9, at Nashua on Oct. 23 after Goodvitch had told police of several breaks which he said he and Rokas had committed.

KELLOGG TREATY GIVEN PRIORITY IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The senate is going to consider ratification of the Kellogg treaty pledging the nations of the world against war before starting work on the bill to increase the navy by 15 cruisers.

An understanding giving the peace treaty priority was reached today by senators interested in the two propositions, which come before the senate tomorrow on an equal footing.

Financial Report Of Nat'l Rep. Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—Pocketbooks of 144,124 friends of the republican party furnished $6,541,748 to the funds of the national committee from June 24, last, to December 31, on which date a balance of $285,637 remained, indicating disbursements aggregating $6,256,111. Four years ago the committee collected $4,360,479 and expended $4,270,469 and had a balance of $110,010.

A report on the committee's finances was made today by its treasurer J. R. Nutt of Cleveland, to Chairman Lehlbach of the house campaign expenditures committee.

Nutt's statement listed the amount expended for administration and expenses of the republican national committee during the period as $3,529,178, exclusive of funds returned to state committees and allocated to other committees.

Explaining the manner in which the funds were handled Mr. Nutt said that "in many states we made an agreement with the state committee to have one solicitation for contributions for the state and national committees." In such cases where contributions were paid to the national treasurer, he said he acted merely as agent for the state committees and returned to the state committees their proportion of collections, the percentage varying in different states.

The statement showed $116,000 was placed to the use of the republican senatorial committee and $228,500 was given to the republican congressional committee.

During the campaign the republican party made frequent reports on its finances and Nutt included in his statement a list of the funds received and expended between November 1 and Dec. 31.

Gross receipts during the two months' period amounted to $1,630,003, the statement showed, of which $439,361 was collected by the treasurer for various state committees. The balance of $1,190,642 went to the national committee.

Expenditures during that period were: Administration and expense of the national committee $1,396,996; state committees, $69,753 and senatorial committee $15,000.

The republican national committee late in the day made public a list of the contributors of $1,000 and over. Included among the larger contributors were the following:

C. M. Schwab, Bethlehem, Pa., $25,000; Connecticut republican state central committee, $10,000; Julius Rosenwald, Chicago, $15,000; and S. S. Kresge, Detroit, $15,000.

Other contributors included: From New York city, Charles E. Hughes $1,000; Elihu Root $1,000; Adolph Zukor $2,500; George F. Baker $1,000; Edwin Gould $1,000; Mary Duke Biddle $1,000; B. W. Duke, $1,000; Sara P. Duke, $1,000; A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., $1,000; Julius H. Barnes $2,000; James W. Farrell, $2,000.

Louis J. Horowitz, and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., both of Locust Valley, L. I., each gave $1,000.

From Ohio: Myron T. Herrick, of Cleveland, $2,000; and O. P. Van Sweringen and M. J. Van Sweringen, Cleveland $10,000 each.

Massachusetts, from Boston: Mrs. Mary E. Davenport, $2,500; Louis K. Liggett $5,000; William Endicott $1,500; Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, $4,000; N Penrose Hallowell, $1,000; F. L. Higginson, $1,000; Frank G. Webster, $2,500. Other Massachusetts points: Mrs. Martha F. Halsey, Malden, $1,000; Mrs. F. T. Bradbury, Manchester, $1,000; Henry L. Bowles, Springfield, $1,500; Earl P. Charlton, Fall River $2,000.

Connecticut: Connecticut republican state central committee $5,000; Albert W. Johnston, Greenwich, $1,000; George H. Storm, Greenwich, $1,000

BROOKLINE, MASS., WITHOUT FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT IN 1928

BROOKLINE, Mass., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Figures released today showed that this town of 46,00 inhabitants weathered 1928 without an automobile fatality.

The record was all the more unusual as one of the town's four main squares stands the brunt of the vehicular traffic flow during the football season in Boston and the town lines border the vicinity of Braves field, where there is a heavy traffic movement during the summer.

DISARMED FOUR BUFFALO POLICEMEN AND ESCAPED IN POLICE DEPT. AUTO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 2—(AP)—A man sought by police for a series of robberies, and a companion tonight disarmed four Buffalo policemen and two Lackawanna detectives and escaped in a police department automobile. During the melee Patrolman Fred C. Smith, member of the Buffalo police department and former prize-fighter, was shot through the stomach. He is not expected to live.

Following a series of burglaries which covered a period of several weeks, police tonight located an alleged mmeber of the gang, William Wunderlich, 24, in a house in Lackawanna. The four Buffalo policemen, after enlisting the aid of the Lackawanna detectives, surrounded the house and called upon the occupants to come out. When their command was not complied with, the officers entered, but were met by Wunderlich and his companion with drawn revolvers.

As each police officer entered he found himself covered with four weapons and heard a command to lay his revolver on a table and line up against the wall, hands up, under penalty of being shot. Five of the policemen promptly complied, but Smith resisted. When he made an effort to fire at Wunderlich, the latter dodged behind a woman who was in the place, reached around her and felled the policeman with a bullet which entered Smith's stomach and passed out through his back.

The two gunmen then calmly gathered up the weapons of the police officers which had been spread on the table and ran out the front door, escaping in the small car in which the Lackawanna detectives had driven to the scene. A short time later the police car was seen speeding through Angola toward the Pennsylvania state line.

Police Commissioner Higgins notified surrounding communities of the shooting by telegraph and issued an order to Buffalo police to shoot Wunderlich and his companion on sight.

STATES HAVE NO POWER TO FIX THE PRICE OF GASOLINE

Ruling Made by the Supreme Court Yesterday, Setting Aside as Invalid Such a Law in Tennessee—Decision Declares That Gasoline is One of the Ordinary Commodities and That a State Has No Right to Impose Conditions Which Require the Relinquishment of Rights Guaranteed by the Federal Constitution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—States were held to be powerless to fix the price of gasoline by a ruling of the supreme court today setting aside as invalid such a law in Tennessee.

The court asserted that it had repeatedly declared that a state legislature was without constitutional power to fix prices at which commodities may be sold, services rendered or property used, unless the business or property involved was "affected with a public interest." Its opinion handed down by Justice Sutherland, to which Justice Holmes dissented, declared that gasoline is one of the ordinary commodities of trade, and that dealin gin it, irrespective of its etxent, does not affect it with a public interest.

The state of Tennessee had declared gasoline to be a public utility in view of its universal usage and indispensability, with the object of meeting the previous decisions of the supreme court regarding the fixing of commodity prices.

The claim that the price fixing law was warranted because the sale of gasoline in Tennessee was monopolized by certain dealers was not sustained by the facts, the court stated.

Pointing out that the statute had been drawn with a saving clause which provided it should not fall as a whole should any part be found unconstitutional, the court reached the conclusion that it was the purpose of the legislature in enacting the statute to fix the price of gasoline and that the entire act must fall.

The validity of the law was challenged by the Standard Oil company of Louisiana and the Texas company. The state of Tennessee asserted that it had been the practice of the large oil producing companies to depress the retail prices until competition was removed and then jump up the prices to the injury of the consumer.

The oil companies denied the unfair practices, insisting that the real purpose of the legislation was not to benefit the ultimate consumer but to keep in business middlemen who were being injured by the producing companies selling directly to filling stations and other retail dealers.

Explaining that the only question the court had to consider was the power of a legislature under the federal constitution to authorize the state to fix the price of gasoline, the court asserted that a state had no right to impose on foreign corporations doing business with its borders conditions which require the relinquishment of rights guaranteed by the federal constitution.

EIGHT ESCAPE FROM AUTO STALLED AT GRADE CROSSING

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, of New Britain, and their two children were taking their visitors, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Vos and their two children, of Plainville, home.

Hoffman was driving. He had got to the center of the tracks on the East Main street crossing when he saw the watchman waving his flag. In the excitement, Hoffman stalled the engine. Just then the party saw the headlight of the oncoming train and shouting to each other, all jumped to safety.

COOLIDGE TACKLES ACCUMULATED BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—Back from his Christmas vacation in Georgia President Coolidge lost no time today in proceeding to the executive offices and tackling the pile of business that had accumulated during his absence.

With Mrs. Coolidge, the chief executive arrived in Washington in the middle of the afternoon, a little less than 24 hours after leaving Sapelo Island, where for a week they had been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Coffin. They were met at Union station by Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg and the president's secretary, Everett Sanders.

FORMAL CHARGE OF FRAUD AGAINST DUKE D'AYEN

PARIS, Jan. 2—(AP)—The Duke D'Ayen, eldest son of the Duke de Noailles, was formally charged today with fraud, abuse of confidence, and complicity in a plot to defraud in connection with the Gazette du Frant scheme of Mme. Marthe Hanau. The duke, who belongs to one of the oldest families of the French nobility, was allowed his liberty pending trial.

He is accused of having loaned his name as a subscriber to more than 1,000,000 francs worth of shares in the companies founded by Mme. Hanau. It is charged that the woman provided the money for the subscriptions, the duke handing the shares back to her as soon as they were delivered.

Eleven persons, including Mme. Hanau and her former husband, Lazare Bloch, have now been legally implicated in the alleged swindle

NEW $5,000,000 CASINO MAY BECOME WHITE ELEPHANT

NICE, France, Jan. 2—(AP)—Frank Jay Gould's new $5,000,000 casino may become a white marble elephant on his hands. The gala opening, widely advertised for Jan. 1, was called off at the last moment because the French government had not issued a license that would allow the little horses to run and play at the baccarat and other tables to proceed.

Hundreds of persons dressed in evening clothes, the women in their best fineries, waited outside the gates for several hours while 500 employes including waiters, croupiers, cashiers and managers, stood at their posts within. Then the opening was suddenly cancelled and after further delay it was announced that the place was not ready.

BYRD PARTY CAMPED IN GREAT ICE BARRIER

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 2—(AP)—George A. Wendt, a friend of Commander Richard E. Byrd, today announced receipt of a radio message from the Antarctic explorer sent out from the bottom of the world and announcing Commander Byrd and his party were camped on the great ice barrier at the Bay of Whales.

The message was from "the most southern radio equipped place in the world," the Byrd expedition's base on the great ice barrier along the Bay of Whales. It was relayed via the flagship of the expedition, the City of New York.

The commander said he and his party had received the New Year's day program of a Pittsburgh radio station.

THREE CAPTURED AFTER A GUN FIGHT WITH OFFICIALS

FERNANDINA, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Two youths and the girl wife of one of them, all from North Adams, Mass., were held today under $500 bail each following their capture after a gun fight with officers who surprised them in the act of robbing a filling station at Hilliard, near here shortly after midnight. None was injured in the exchange of shots.

The prisoners, Harry Hemmingway, 22, and his 18 year old bride, and Oscar Proctor, 23, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering but declared they were not guilty of a charge of assault with intent to kill which also was made against them.

INSPIRING NEW YEAR'S TALK BY REV. MR. WHEELOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 2—In a breezy New Year's message of which the dominating notes were co-operative effort for civic welfare and exemplification of Rotary obligations, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Congregational church addressed his fellow members of the Willimantic Rotary club at the postponed weekly luncheon meeting held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. Concluding with an interesting review of the more notable inventions of the past two centuries, especially those of the past 25 years, Rev. Mr. Wheelock pointed to the tremendous opportunities awaiting all, stating that a coordinated effort on the part of every citizen could make of the year 1929 a historical one for Willimantic.

President Raymond A. Parker, who was in charge of the meeting, appointed the following committee to investigate the advisability of erecting a shelter at the trolley terminal on Main street: Gerard E. Loiselle, chairman; Roland B. Jordan, Aime J. Martineau, Kenneth N. Hillhouse and Attorney Harry S. Gaucher. Through the president, Harry W. Standish was presented with a seasonable gift from a guest at the recent rural-urban meeting held under the auspices of the club. James B. Fullerton reported the receipt of a donation from H. C. Lathrop, president of the Windham National bank for the Rotary Christmas fund. Herbert W. Huber read a letter of thanks from Miss Constance Leigh, superintendent of the Newington Home for Crippled Children for the group donation and assistance to individual children at the home by the club. As chairman of the program committee Mr. Huber announced that the meeting next week would be in charge of the community service committee while that of January 29 will be held with a supper in the evening at the Congregational church house with a Rotary playlet as the feature. The playlet will be under direction of Dr. R. Bullock Jones. The annual Rotary calendars were received today from Harry W. Standish.

J. E. BRICK SELLS BUSINESS INTEREST TO HIS PARTNER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 2—Announcement was made today that John E. Brick, of the firm of Brick & Sullivan, retail shoe merchants, had disposed of his holdings in the firm to his partner, Jeremiah E. Sullivan, who assumed sole proprietorship today. Mr. Brick has definitely retired from business and will leave Thursday with Mrs. Brick for Avon Park, Fla., to remain until May 1.

Mr. Brick retired after 39 years in the shoe business and is second only to W. N. Potter as the oldest shoe dealer in the city. Mr. Sullivan has been in the business for 34 years.

John E. Brick was born in Alfred, N. Y., July 4, 1859, a son of Edward and Bridget Brown Brick. The family moved from Alfred to Hornessville, now Hornell, N. Y., when he was four years of age and it was in this town that Mr. Brick obtained his schooling. He also attended school at Almond, N. Y., concluding his studies at the tender age of 12 years when he started on his business career. He was a messenger boy for the Erie railroad, later learning telegraphy and becoming an operator for the railroad. He came to this city in 1885 as telegraph operator in a branch brokerage office. Unfailing ambition led him to enter the shoe retailing business in the Chronicle building on Church street in 1892, admitting Mr. Sullivan as a partner into a growing business in 1895. Courtesy and fair dealing brought favor to the partnership. The store was first removed to 734 Main street in the Shea block, then into the MacAvoy block, 756 Main street for five years after which it was returned again to the Shea building. The present location was taken over 15 years ago but according to an announcement made today by Mr. Sullivan the store will be moved to 673 Main street on March 1, in the Lehrman block. Mr. Sullivan plans in the near future to consummate a partnership with Mark Emerson of Boston, Mass., a shoe man of wide experience, who already has half-interests in three shoe stores in Connecticut.

For 20 years, up to about 10 years ago, Mr. Brock was local manager for the Postal Telegraph company holding a similar position with the Western Union Telegraph company for two years following. Mr. Brick is a trustee of Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, member of the chamber of commerce, vice president of both the Willimantic Trust company and Willimantic company Inc., and treasurer of the Natchaug Industrial company.

MANGER SCENE DEPICTED BY LOCAL DECORATOR

Among the many handsome and elaborate window decorations for the Yuletide season, none attracted more admiration and attention than did the manger scene in the window of Malek's restaurant. The artist was Andrew Walchuc, an employe in the new Malek hotel. The stable, two by three feet on the ground, is made of round sticks, all running to the uniform diameter of an inch. These were set up on the three closed sides to the height of 18 inches, with a log cabin effect.

The roof is of thatched rye straw. Inside, a dozen small figures, include the manger, the Holy family and the wise men from afar. The cattle are to be seen in their stalls. Overhead a red glow illumines the traditional scene.

TWO REP. BURGESSES ARE TO BE ELECTED

The caucus notice is out for the borough election which takes place the last week in the month. Warden E. J. Jodoin holds office another year. There are to be two republican burgesses and one democratic burgess elected. Two republicans, for the reason that E. L. French has resigned, and the term of Thomas McBroome has expired. The contested offices will be those of clerk and treasurer, tax collector and bailiff. The burgesses and auditor are elected by virtue of their nomination.

A local dahlia grower reported Wednesday that 1,000 bulbs stored in his cellar are sprouted. This should not occur until early spring.

Miss Roselma Wheeler spent New Year's day with Miss Betty Jarvis in Taftville.

Pachaug Grange officers are to be installed this (Thursday) evening. It is certain that there will be a large number present, as this is the only subordinate grange in the state to have the state master, Minor Ives, as the installing officer.

TORCH IS TO BE TAKEN TO NORWICH AT LATER DATE

A Passing of the Torch service is to take place in the Baptist vestry Friday evening at 7 o'clock. The Torch containing a message from the governor of the state, which has been carried by boys all over the state, will be brought by runners from Plainfield to Jewett City at that time. It will be received by Earl Robinson and William McNicol is to give a challenge to the runners, and William Brewster reads a special poem. Ten boys from Jewett City at a later date, will carry the Torch to Norwich. The service at the church is for men and boys. It is in charge of J. Edwin Hill of Danielson, county secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in New London and Windham counties.

Don't fear flu — fight it!

What U. S. Public Health Service says:

"If a germ could talk, it would tell you that nothing pleases him more than to get a free ride from someone's soiled hands to some other person's mouth."

—U. S. Public Health Service Broadcast No. 96

Don't fear Flu —fight it these seven ways

Rules by LIFE EXTENSION INSTITUTE

1 Keep out of crowds all you can.
2 Remove germs from hands as often as possible.
4 Avoid exposure to chill when wet, especially feet.
5 Fortify yourself to resist the flu by having a health examination. If you have the real flu don't take home remedies, call in a doctor.
6 Be careful in convalescence. It is a dangerous period.
7 Be careful to use Lifebuoy Health Soap.

KEEP flu away by fighting it, not fearing it, leading health authorities urge. Help protect yourself and your children by taking every precaution against its attack.

Always remember that hands may spread influenza, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases. Note statement of the U.S. Public Health Service on the danger of hands spreading germs.

For hands pick up all sorts of germs from things you have to touch, unavoidable things that many other hands have touched before yours—door-knobs, car-straps, banisters, money, public telephones.

The Life Extension Institute has compiled seven health rules—listed below—to help protect you and your family against the spread of influenza and other serious germ diseases.

Note especially Rule No. 2 about keeping hands germ-free—one of the most important rules of all, yet so simple to carry out. No extra trouble, no extra expense. Just wash the hands oftener—always before eating—with Lifebuoy, the toilet soap that removes germs as well as dirt.

Splendid for complexions

Quite aside from its purifying action, Lifebuoy is a delightful toilet and bath soap—wonderfully cleansing, invigorating, fine for preventing odors of body and perspiration—and for keeping complexions clear, smooth and fresh.

But, best of all, Lifebuoy helps protect health. Its mild and abundant antiseptic lather removes germs as well as dirt.

Its hygienic scent says "greater protection"

Lifebuoy's reassuring, pleasantly hygienic scent, which vanishes as you rinse, tells you it gives greater protection. Yet it costs no more—probably less than the soap you now use.

You MUST touch car-straps regardless of germs

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. Start using Lifebuoy today as a common-sense health measure.

OBITUARY

Francis X. Ducharme

This afternoon the body of Francis X. Ducharme of Main street was brought here in charge of Undertaker Louis E. Kennedy from New Bedford, where Mr. Ducharme died last night at the Sacred Heart home, where he has been a patient for several years. While Mr. Ducharme has been in failing health for a long time, his condition was not regarded as dangerous until New Year's day. He was a native of St. John de Matha, P. Q., and came to this country with his parents as a little boy. He had been a resident of Danielson the greater part of his life. He leaves his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Aldei Lamothe, both of Danielson, and a brother, Pierre, resident in Hartford.

Joseph Fregeau

The body of Joseph Fregeau, 75, who died at St. Francis' hospital in Hartford on New Year's day was brought here in charge of Undertaker Martin T. Burns and later taken to the home of Mr. Fregeau in Taftville, where he had been a resident for years. Mrs. Anna Bousquet of Dyer street and Horedore Fregeau, who is in the employ of Burroughs and Hopkins here are daughter and son of Mr. Fregeau. Numbers of his local relatives will be in Taftville to attend the funeral services.

Mrs. Eliza Gosselin

Mrs. Eliza Gosselin, 78, former resident of Danielson, on the West Side, is dead in Plainfield. She was a native of Canada, but had lived for many years in the United States, for a long time in Danielson and since in Plainfield, where she died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Aldei Brouchada.

The hazards that motorists face was shockingly illustrated again today when two women lost their lives on the Putnam-Chepachet pike in an accident that was investigated by Coroner A. G. Bill and officers from the Danielson state police barracks. A patch of icy highway, resultant from the rain of New Year's day and the freezing temperature of the early hours of this morning was held accountable for the sad affair. On the whole this highway was as free of ice and snow today as in mid-summer. Occasionally there was a bit of ice—just a skimming sufficient to make the road slippery and treacherous—but as it was it cost two lives and breaks up two families.

From quarters that should be productive of results, negotiations are underway tending toward the hope that Danielson will have the assurance of a more dependable arrival of the morning train bringing mail than it has had during the greater part of 1928. It is hardly just to describe the present morning train, with its string of freight cars, as the old dependable Boat Train. It just isn't that any more, but it is the train that brings the mail—whenever it happens to get here. The present service is highly unsatisfactory, but there is the prospect of something better being in store.

Friday afternoon of this week members of the Civic federation are to meet with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby of Academy street.

Michael Gieruisa, who is a resident of Moosup but employed in Goodyear, was the only person to appear before Judge W. Renner Woodward at today's session of the town court. The charge was intoxication and the sentence 30 days in jail.

W. W. Reimer today announced the sale of 500 acres of land of the old Alexander estate owned by Mrs. Ethel Atwood of Wauregan and being on the north and south shores of Alexander's lake to Henry Monty of Norwich. The transfer does not include the brick house at Attawaugan crossing nor other acreage of land in the vicinity of that house.

A discount of 20 per cent on entire stock at G. O. Thomas, dry goods. Buy now for future. Sale closes Sat., Jan. 5; corner store, Hyde Block.—Adv

Mark Marcotte, 2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marcotte, of East Killingly, died at their home in that place this morning. The child had been ill with pneumonia.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was at Putnam this afternoon to investigate a fatal motoring accident that is set forth in detail in the Putnam news this morning. The coroner found the accident to be of the unavoidable class, due to a car skidding on an icy patch of highway, climbing an embankment and turning over.

LOCAL MAN GETS LETTER THAT WAS IN PLANE CRASH

DANIELSON, Jan. 2—The mails brought back to Harold B. Atwood today a charred and bespattered letter, containing a check, that he despatched from here on December 19, to be forwarded by air-mail and destined for delivery in California. This particular letter was one of several hundreds that Leo J. McGinn of Maywood, Ill., National Air Transport mail pilot was flying from Cleveland to Chicago, when his plane crashed at Huron, O., in a heavy snowstorm. Buffeted by a 50-mile wind and unable longer to stay aloft, McGinn was forced down, his plane landing in an apple tree, then bounded off and into a barn on an adjoining property owned by Wright M. Stein, an undertaker. McGinn's body, press despatches have told, was thrown clear of the cockpit as the crash came and an explosion followed, which set both the plane and the barn afire, reducing both to ashes and warped metal. Only a few letters were saved from the wreck, and it now appears Mr. Atwood's happened to be one of these. Both the letter and the check it contained were partly consumed, but the postoffice, with its usual uncanny efficiency, brought back to Mr. Atwood what remained. Pilot McGinn lost his life in the accident.

ROCKVILLE, R. I.

Elmer E. Kenyon and La Verne Burdick were holiday dinner guests of Mr. Burdick's sister, Mrs. Charles P Palmer, and family of Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Lewis and little son, Lester, of Woody Hill spent the recent holiday with Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erio G. Barber

Mrs. Annie B Kenyon and son, Leslie B. Kenyon, and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Barber were dinner guests on the holiday, of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Smith, of Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean of Central Village, Conn., and their guest, a registered nurse from New York were guests of Mrs. Annie B. Kenyon, Saturday.

PUTNAM

TWO WOMEN KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDS AND OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 2—Death claimed its first automobile victims of the year today when a large sedan operated by Cleophus Laflamme of North Grosvenordale capsized on the Providence highway, instantly killing Mrs. Cleophus Laflamme and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Adelard Laflamme, also of North Grosvenordale, shortly after eleven o'clock this morning.

The occupants of the car, other than the two women killed, were Adelard Laflamme, Cleophus Laflamme, Mrs. Philip Corteau of New Bedford, Mass., and her baby boy, Arthur, who is sixteen months old. The younger Mrs. Laflamme, who was a victim of the crash, had with her, an infant son of eight months, who was uninjured.

The Corteau baby sustained a fracture of the right leg, when the top of the car crashed upon him. The other passengers all suffered light scalp and face abrasions, but were not seriously injured.

The accident occurred on the grade, known as Tucker's hill on the Providence pike road. The car was headed towards Providence. The highway was coated with glare ice, as the result of Sunday's ice and rain storm. As Mr. Laflamme approached the hill the car slid and went from his control crashing the embankment and capsizing twice, alighted upon the top, crushing the two women to instant death. When the bodies of the women were removed from the wreckage their bodies were so badly disfigured and marred that it was almost impossible to recognize them.

The other five occupants are at loss as to an explanation of their escape from death, since the car was reduced to a mass of crumpled steel. Both of the dead people were presumably occupants of the rear seat, as were the two infants now patients at the Day Kimball hospital in this city.

State Policeman Royal V Scranton of Danielson state police barracks, accompanied by Captain William Jarvis and Officer Benoi Durand of the Putnam police investigated the fatality and assisted with the removal of the bodies and escorted the survivors to the Day Kimball hospital, where first aid treatment was given them.

The car started from North Grosvenordale, where the elder Laflammes make their residence for New Bedford, where a visit with relatives in that city had been planned. Mrs. Cleophus Laflamme was 57 years of age while her relative was but 28 years old. Both well known in the village of North Grosvenordale where the family has resided for many years.

FORMER WILLIMANTIC CITY TREASURER SENT TO PRISON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 2—The January term of Windham county superior court opened at Putnam this morning with Judge Newell Jennings on the bench. Rev James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city offered prayer, followed by the formal opening of the criminal docket term of court by County Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic.

John Chraszcz of Oat street, Putnam, who was arrested in Killingly during the summer months on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws of the state was put to plea before court this morning. He entered a plea of not guilty and elected to be tried by a jury. His case was assigned for trial on Thursday, morning January 10.

Edward Reilly of this city arrested to serve six months sentence was presented on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine of $200 and costs of court, in addition to receiving a 60 day jail sentence, which was suspended for a period of six months, at the request of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, who recommended the Reilly be placed in care of the probation officer during the time of his suspension. Reilly was arraigned on a first offense, but since his first arrest he was again arrested on the same charge and has the second case now pending in the court of the town of Killingly. Due to some technicality in the court here he was charged only for the first offense. Judge Jennings upon a plea from Reilly's attorney held that drunken drivers are the worst menace to the safety of other autoists and pedestrians.

James Donahue of Willimantic former city treasurer of that city was before Judge Jennings on a charge of misappropriation of funds of the municipality as an agent of the city funds. He at first entered a plea of not guilty and later changed it to guilty.

During his term of office, which extended for about five years, Donahue was first suspected of the misuse of funds and was warned against it. He continued to indulge in such practice until he had drawn for his own purposes a total of about $5,000. Other warnings led him to replace a considerable amount of the city's money. It was said in court that the cause of Donahue's misdoings might be attributed to the bad examples set by other financial officials in the state and other cities. Judge Jennings imposed a sentence of not less than two nor more than five years in state's prison at Wethersfield.

George W Lawson a member of the U. S. Army was before court on charges of breaking and entering. Lawson pleaded guilty to the charges. He told the court that while he was on a furlough he became intoxicated and during his spell broke into a Willimantic garage. Judge Jennings imposed a sentence of 60 days in the county jail at Brooklyn.

George Morean of New York city pleaded guilty to a charge of taking an automobile without the owners permission. It is alleged that he wandered into the town of Columbia one evening and while under the influence of liquor took the car and wrecked it. He offered to make restitution if the court would discharge his case. Morean explained that he worked for the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works of that city and his position was being held open for him upon his return. A sentence of sixty days in the county jail at Brooklyn was imposed.

Raymond Jacobs of Willimantic was arraigned on a charge of making and issuing fraudulent checks. It is alleged that Jacobs during his career issued six checks for the aggregate amount of $240. His past criminal record indicated that he had been previously sentenced to serve a jail sentence on a charge of theft. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to serve not less than one nor more than three years in the state prison at Wethersfield.

Fred E. Baker, who was arrested in Hampton, on a charge of non-support had the charges nolled against him in superior court today. Baker was formerly a member of the United States coast guard, but since his arrest has been discharged from the service and is making his home in the town of Plainfield.

State's Attorney Howard Bradford has prepared the following list of cases for trial at the session of court which will convene at Putnam on Thursday morning January 11: State vs. Charles E. Monty, operation of a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor; State vs. Arthur Lafleur, violation of fish and game laws; State vs Charles E. Monty, operation of motor vehicle while intoxicated; Appeal of Victoria Flaubacher from order of commitment of Charles Flaubacher, Jr., as an uncared-for neglected child; State vs Andrew H. Lowe, operation of motor vehicle while intoxicated; State vs Armond Blanchette violation of fish and game laws; State vs William Segar non-support; State vs John Chiraszcz violation of motor vehicle law; State vs. Kenneth Light, theft of motor vehicle; State vs. Henry Amidon, violation of liquor law; State vs. John Stankowitch violation of liquor law; State vs Valmer Auger, violation of liquor law; State vs. Ilene N. Nickinson, violation of motor vehicle law.

The weekly meeting of the members of the Putnam Rotary club was held today at the Putnam Inn. The members had as a speaker at luncheon Adrian Van Leeuwen, landscape gardiner of the city of Worcester. Mr Van Leeuwen's address dealt with the methods exercised in the correct raising of flowers and other plants which he puts into practice in his work in the city of Worcester. Mr. Van Leeuwen said that the Americans are many times failures in the growing of successful plants because of the crowded manner in which they set their seed into the ground. In order to be successful in this enterprise one must adopt the following code as outlined by him: Proper planning, proper planting and proper maintenance of the gardens. The Worcester gardiner spoke of the many beautiful flower gardens in his former home city of Rotterdam Germany. He also touched upon the scientific methods that have been applied to gardening during the past few years and as an example of this he spoke of the removing of fully grown trees to new positions, without killing the trees. He also spoke on modern methods of pruning and trimming vines, hedges and other plants which have become domesticated to adorn American homes.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Parrin and Cashier Arthur E. Smith of the Citizens National bank of this city were today admitted to the membership of the Rotary club. Both men have shared in public work for the city during the past year and will prove to be an asset to the membership of the club. Sabin S. Russell of Danielson was a visiting member of the club today.

The stork made his first official visit of 1929 to Putnam early this morning when a daughter was born to Mr and Mrs. James Henry Doake of Center street Putnam at the Day Kimball hospital. The tiny "Miss Putnam of 1929" and her mother were reported by the hospital officials this afternoon as doing fine.

OBITUARY

Lester D. Joslin.

Lester D. Joslin 74, for the past twenty years a resident of Putnam, died at his home on Killingly avenue Monday evening from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy. Mr Joslin was born in Thompson, Feb 8 1854. During his life he has been engaged in farming and was well known to the people of Putnam where he marketed his crops.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, Randolph and George, both of whom live at the Joslin home on Killingly avenue. Mr. Joslin is also survived by two daughters of another marriage, who make their homes in the far west.

FLU is now Epidemic!

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far is mild; and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub. Over 432,000 jars are now being produced daily.

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

1. AS A PREVENTIVE

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germ-infection.

2. IF A COLD STARTS

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks also acts through the skin like a poultice. Repeat this treatment every four hours if lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks. Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

PROPERTY TAX ON AUTOS.

In regard to the suggestion that has been made that the motor vehicle department collect the tax on the motor vehicles at the same time that it obtains the registration fee, Commissioner Stoeckel has given expression to his views. He doesn't oppose the idea and he doesn't say that his department cannot do it. He is ready to support the idea but only on the ground that if such a thing is ordered it shall be required that the money thus obtained for the respective towns must be applied to the improvement of dirt roads or city streets.

Now Commissioner Stoeckel has nothing to do with the road building problems in Connecticut, but the taxes that he might collect ought to go are licensed go for the construction and maintenance of state highways. It is therefore natural that he should promptly think that any other funds that he might collection ought to go in a similar direction, and when it comes to dirt roads and city streets he is by no means alone in the belief that they should get more attention than they do.

It is entirely possible that Commissioner Stoeckel's proposition is not so formidable as might be thought at first. Every town and every city makes provision for road and street improvement. It is a question whether the property tax paid by auto owners could be sufficient to meet the amount which is spent for such purposes every year at the present time by many of the municipalities. That being the case there would be no objection to what the commissioner suggests. It would be another case where those who particularly benefit from good roads would be having their dollars applied in a cause which directly concerns them. That other property owners would take the same view of the matter is another question.

With one in every five owning autos, most every one is interested in better roads and there is no escaping the fact that the country roads are entitled to far more attention than they are getting. Likewise there are sections of the state where the good road work is especially conspicuous by its absence.

CURTIS' DECISION.

Only those who have been anxious to have him resign his office and abandon his duties will be disappointed over the decision of Senator Charles Curtis, and vice president-elect, to hold his seat in the senate until the close of this session. That doesn't complete the term for which he was elected senator but it will mark the beginning of his term as vice president, hence it will be necessary to leave the senatorship at that time.

Senator Curtis has been and still is the republican leader in the senate. He is in close touch with the business in hand and he is the man to be relied upon to direct it to a successful conclusion. There is nothing that requires his attention in connection with the vice presidency and there is nothing calling for a change in the republican leadership. On the other hand there are good reasons why he should stick to his job and see it through.

There are times when such changes can be made without serious possibilities. It might be done at the present time but in view of the attitude which has been expressed concerning various questions, the need for getting legislation enacted at this session and the desirability of avoiding a split in the ranks over the selection of a successor, it must be regarded as a wise decision which has been reached by the senator from Kansas. In the makeup of the present senate his leadership is too valuable to be ended at this time, and by his decision it is strongly indicated that he gives recognition to the best interests of the legislative programme when he decides to see the session through. The help that he can give will be needed.

THE RETURN OF THE SHAD.

According to the report of Conservation Commissioner Macdonald of New York state there were four times as many shad caught in the Hudson river in 1927 as in 1924.

That gives reason for thinking that if such improvement can be shown in the Hudson it may be possible to accomplish as much in the Connecticut. Every time shad are mentioned it recalls the other days when they were so plentiful that they were a drug on the market. Even the Thames used to yield generous catches of shad, but the fish have been driven away by the pollution which has been steadily increasing for years.

We are not told how it is that the shad find it possible to get past New York and its pollution in their trip up the Hudson, but even though the number is larger than for several years we can hardly believe that there is any immediate prospect of the market being flooded by those that venture into what were old spawning grounds.

It would be interesting to know what effect, if any, the reduction of pollution may have had upon the attractiveness of the Hudson from the standpoint of the shad. If it means they have come back to stay there can certainly be hope for Connecticut streams if the efforts which are being made to improve the rivers, or at least prevent them from getting worse, amount to anything.

When we stop to realize the volume of sewage that is being poured into the rivers today in contrast to that of a half century ago, in addition to which there are the acids and poisons from industries, there can be little wonder that the shad long since gave up frequenting these streams. They were driven away because they could not exist. Since they went there has been nothing to call them back. They encounter worse conditions today than they experienced in past years, all of which makes it the more surprising that there are appearing in larger numbers in the Hudson. It will therefore be particularly interesting to learn whether they have discovered among themselves a process of self immunization against the pollution and poisons or whether the Hudson is actually showing such improvement as to entice the fish back. With a fair chance there's no reason why they shouldn't return.

PENNSYLVANIA VS. MISSISSIPPI.

On the morning of the day that the Mississippi mob seized the Negro who had committed murder and was being taken to the authorities and who was later soaked in oil and burned alive, the authorities in Pennsylvania put to death by electrocution in a state penitentiary a young Negro who had been charged with and convicted of murder in that state.

In both instances there was plenty of brutality displayed by the murderers as they committed their crimes. There were no mitigating circumstances. Their crimes were such that it was to be expected that death would be the penalty, and yet the two states pursued directly opposite methods in applying it.

Pennsylvania complied with the Constitution and the law. Mississippi resorted to as horrible tactics as the murderer did, disgraced its own law and ignored the federal Constitution.

The Negro who was electrocuted in Pennsylvania is not the first person to lose his life because of the enormity of his crime. His execution does not mean that there will be no more murders in that state. It shows nevertheless that the state is insistent upon such cases being treated in a lawful manner. The state is not ready to resort to lawlessness just because the individual has, but by its course it serves notice upon any and all others that they can expect like treatment for capital punishment crimes.

The Negro burned alive in Mississippi is not the first to be subjected to mob violence in that state because of his crime. Burning him to death doesn't mean that there will be no more such crimes as he committed, however much that may be the expectation. It was the fourth last year, and the governor even announces that there will be no investigation of the horrible finish of the year.

These two states stand as conspicuous examples of what ought to be and what ought not to be done under such circumstances. The contrast in regard to crime treatment is marked with everything in favor of Pennsylvania, which insists with most of the states that law must be administered upon a higher plane than that dictated by an excited mob.

RUSSIA'S PLEA.

When Russia appeals to Poland to put the Kellogg pact into effect between Poland and Russia immediately it is inevitable that it should attract attention. There is reason unquestionably for seeking peace in eastern Europe that will be permanent, and outlawing war, but the question is bound to arise as to whether Russia is really serious and can be relied upon to carry out the provisions of the pact.

If such doubt exists there is no one to blame except Russia itself. It has stood for such policies and displayed an attitude so diametrically opposed to international peace that its right about face must of necessity create doubt.

It is not to be overlooked that Russia was a participant at the disarmament conference at Geneva and that it presented a plan which failed to obtain endorsement at that session. Russia was for going to whole distance concerning disarmament. It was as much in favor of disarmament as it had ever been opposed. But there Russia was a puzzle, the clock then it has criticized the Kellogg pact in a manner which indicates that it had ever been the strongest advocate of world peace.

Possibly Poland is ready to enter into an agreement with Russia right away in keeping with the Kellogg pact, but there has been nothing to indicate it.

Russia on the other hand apparently thinks that there is some merit to the pact. Possibly it figures it the best that is to be had and therefore should be taken for what it is. If this is really a serious move on the part of Russia, and not just a flourish, it is a good thing. Perhaps Poland like some of the other countries will insist upon a better demonstration.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Is anyone keeping a record of the broken resolutions?

It is necessary now to learn the color schemes all over again in order to identify the visiting motorists.

After a two days' trial how many can show that the new resolutions are unblemished?

Even though the government reports a 5 per cent drop in the pig crop it will not have any effect upon the road hogs.

Now that congress is again in action, something more than talk and obstructive tactics are expected. Let it redeem past shortcomings.

QUIET FOR CHRISTOPHER

Of course, you understand that I never like actually to criticize Emily regarding her care of the children, yet it was so obvious that I have frequently felt that she devotes herself entirely too intensely to Pamela and Peter, especially on Sunday afternoon, when I like to sit quietly and read, and when Emily insists on having the children play in the living room, where she can watch them.

Personally, I believe that children left to their own devices develop resourcefulness and ingenuity faster than those who are watched constantly by some adult. Emily, however, claims that that is just the difficulty—that juvenile methods of expressing originality demand strict censorship, and that if I don't want her to watch the children Sunday afternoons when she can't bribe Opal, the cook, to look after them, we had better hire a nurse. But as Opal has now learned to cook exceptionally well, I did not think it wise to risk offending her by employing a regular nursemaid.

So that is how it happened that when a college friend of Emily's telephoned from the station Sunday, after Opal had left, and there was no chance of persuading her to give up her afternoon off, and Emily seemed so disappointed at not being able to see Madeline for the few hours she was to be in town, I volunteered to look after the children myself.

At first Emily refused to consider my suggestion, but when she saw that I was really hurt to think she would not trust my own children to my care for an afternoon, she agreed to go.

Pamela was delighted when I told her that if she would take little Peter quietly upstairs to the nursery and keep him amused, I would give her a nice surprise.

Two hours later, when I finished my magazine, I called Pamela and asked her what she wanted as her reward for looking after Peter so nicely, and she said, "Chewing gum." To be sure, Emily never allows either of the children to have gum, but as I felt that this was in the nature of a special occasion, I telephoned the drug store, and as I did not like to ask them to send just the gum, I ordered a quart of ice cream, too. I was not certain when Emily would be home, and I thought the ice cream would go very nicely with some of the cold chicken left from dinner. I also asked them to send along another magazine, for I find detective stories very relaxing after the week's work at the office.

Peter and Pamela both seemed so keen about the ice cream that I let them each have a big dish for their supper instead of warming the breakfast cereal. Besides, I remembered Emily saying she gave them ice cream very frequently last summer.

After supper I told Pamela I would give her 10 cents more gum if she would undress Peter and put him to bed. I thought she managed remarkably well, for instead of having a crying spell right after she put him in his crib, as he has been having every night recently, he quieted right down without a murmur.

The kiddies in bed, I settled down thoroughly to enjoy my reading, and when Emily came home at about 9 o'clock I took occasion to explain to her how utterly simple the care of children can be made if one only approaches problems from the proper angle, allowing the little folks to develop self-reliance.

I pointed out how beautifully quiet the children had been all afternoon without rigid supervision, and added that, Although I did not wish to dictate to her in any way, I did feel that in the future Sunday afternoon might just as well be quiet and restful with the children in the nursery, contentedly playing by themselves, instead of romping noisily about the room.

Emily said nothing, but went rather hurriedly upstairs, and a moment later called to me. When I reached the nursery I was amazed to see the baby sound asleep on the floor under the crib. Emily explained this by saying that for a week Peter had been possessed to "sleep like a bow wow," and had screamed in protest when forced to stay in his crib. Evidently when Pamela left him alone, he climbed out of his crib and curled up on the floor. Fortunately, Pamela had forgotten to raise a window in the nursery, so the little fellow was not seriously chilled.

From the nursery we went to Pamela's room. Blinking at the light, Pamela sat up in bed and explained that the reason her bangs presented such an eccentric scalloped appearance was that when Peter was finally persuaded to remove his chewing gum so she could brush his teeth he stuck the gum in her hair, and that failing to wash out the gum, she had cut off her bangs with the manicure scissors.

So we have persuaded a cousin of Opal's to come as nursemaid, for I am beginning to believe that a mother knows what is best for her children. Emily has mentioned several times how nice it would be if she could have regular help in the care of Peter and Pamela, and as I remarked before, I do like to have my Sunday afternoons quiet for reading.—Chicago News.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—If the wealth of political and legal experience mobilized in supreme court proceedings over the St. Louis-O'Fallon case is taken as a measure of the public importance of the issues involved, assumption by some writers that this is the biggest law suit ever appears justified.

The court itself includes a former president and war secretary, two former federal attorneys general, a former assistant attorney general, a former president and a former vice president of the bar association, and a former "friend of the court" in countless interstate commerce commission battles over railroad freight rates. To this add among counsel three more former cabinet officers, two for the government and one for the carriers; but previously, in related matters, another former cabineteer appeared for the roads.

Little Road In Big Case.

It seems quite remarkable that a midget unit of the railroad family like the St. Louis-O'Fallon should become the center of such a mobilization of talent, particularly since there was no preliminary assurance that the court would treat the case as a test of the vast physicial valuation issues both sides desired to have hinged upon it.

The line is just a little ten mile affair that lets near-beer flow from a St. Louis brewery to a thirsty world; but it is a common carrier subject to federal regulations. Hence the extraordinary character its fight against returning a share of its excess profits to the government assumed.

Excess profits upon what valuation of the road? There is a difference of less than half a million involved in this specific case; but expanded to cover valuation of all railroads, the divergence of view aggregates ten billions and up. If such an issue is to turn on the St. Louis-O'Fallon decision, the tail is wagging the dog with a vengeance.

Involves Freight Rates.

What's behind it all, of course, is future freight rate levels. In a letter prompted by a previous comment on this case, John D. McCartney of Savannah, assistant to the president of the Central Georgia, makes the point to the Bystander that railroad credit needs, not physical valuation of their property, ought to be the rate making measure. Inadequate earnings means loss of the ability to borrow new money for expansion to meet future transportation needs in a fast growing country, he said adding:

"Railway valuation has little or nothing to do with this question. Changing the valuation, either by making it higher or lower, would not change the credit needs of the railroads or the level of rates that should be established to provide earnings sufficient to meet those needs."

Regardless of this theory, congress has provided the physical valuations yardstick. The question at bar—perhaps—is what kind of a valuation did it mean, a more or less arbitrary figure for government purposes only, or one representing stock market value original cost or reproduction cost? That's where the ten billion hitch comes in.

YOUR HEALTH

Digestive System Taxed by Christmas Excesses

By Carl A. Wilkbach, M. D., Director of Health Education, Cincinnati Public Health Federation

A consideration of the kind of food so abundantly supplied at Christmas festivities is familiar to all. The richest and most highly fattening dishes, in quantities that tempt one to eat far in excess of what should be eaten in order to maintain good health standards, are furnished. Moderation and temperance in eating, not only of sweets, but of the more substantial foods should be observed, particularly at Christmas time.

Special mention should be made of sweets. While the quantity of food eaten is the big factor in overweight, sugar is thought to be one of the chief offenders.

It is interesting to note that with the increase in overweight, and its attendant affections of the kidneys, blood vessels and heart, and with the increase in cancer and diabetes in those who are overweight, there has been a great increase in the use of sugar. The per capita consumption in the United States in 1870 was 32.3 pounds annually. This amount has steadily increased until at present it is more than 107.5 pounds per capita per year. There has been an increase of over fifty per cent in the use of sugar since 1900.

This information in no ways degrades sugar as a food. There is ample evidence to show how valuable and necessary it is to the body economy. There is some question about certain individuals, particularly those who are overweight, eating too much sugar. The question is being asked whether many are not overtaxing their bodies with too much sugar. Sugar is quickly converted into usable food and then into energy. It satisfied the appetite. It is more easily secured than formerly.

Dentists show the influence of sweet foods upon tooth decay. This is not due to sweets causing direct decay to the teeth. Teeth suffer in three ways from sugar excess: They are deprived of the advantage, by mastication, of obtaining necessary sugar from starch, and sugar forms a satisfactory medium for the growth of bacteria in the mouth. Also, gastro-intestinal derangements incident to excessive sweet eating interfere with assimilation of bone forming material from other foods.

Certain physicians have suggested that the excessive use of sugar has an indirect bearing on the development of adenoids and hypertrophied tonsils in children. The whole subject needs more study, before definite statements can be made. In the meantime, it would seem wise, particularly at the Christmas season, to be temperate in the use of foods that have real possibilities for harm.

Remember that nature takes no special precautions to prepare the digestive system for Christmas excesses. The best wishes for a Happy, Healthy Christmas and a Merry one to all. "And so, as Tiny Tim observed, 'God bless us, every one!'"

Question Incorrectly Stated

Mr. Editor: The answer to first question in "What Do You Know About Eastern Connecticut" for Saturday, Dec. 29 is wrong.

Rev. Samuel Whiting was the first pastor of the church in Windham, (Congregational).

Very truly yours,

The questions of Dec. 29 were incorrectly stated. They concerned the first pastor of the third society in Windham, or Scotland parish, who was Rev. Ebenezer Devotion.—Ed.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Mentioning It

Nick's auntie had promised to take him downtown and buy him a toy if he would be a good boy. Fearful that she might forget he kept reminding her of her promise. Finally in desperation she said: "I'll not take you at all if you mention it again."

After a while he said: "Auntie, I ain't mentioning nuthin' but you know X. Y. Z."

Still Short

John had lost the end of his finger in a swinging door dropped in to the office to visit some friends who had been inquiring about his injury. He had just left the doctor's office and the injured digit was still conspicuous with yards of gauze bandages.

About as soon as he got inside one of his friends rushed forward and asked with interest:

"How's the old finger getting long, Johnny?"

POETRY

Winter

The day had been a calm and sunny day,
And tinged with amber was the sky at even;
The fleecy clouds at length had rolled away,
And lay in furrows on the eastern heaven;—
The moon arose and shed a glimmering ray,
And round her orb a misty circle lay.

The hoar-frost glittered on the naked heath,
The roar of distant winds was loud and deep,
The dry leaves rustled in each passing breath,
And the gay world was lost in quiet sleep.
Such was the time when, on the landscape brown,
Through a December air the snow came down.

The morning came, the dreary morn, at last,
And showed the whitened waste. The shivering herd
Lowed on the hoary meadow-ground, and fast
Fell the light flakes upon the earth unstirred;
The forest firs with glittering snows overlaid
Stood like hoar priests in robes of white arrayed.

—John Howard Bryant.

In the Highlands

In the highlands, in the country places,
Where the old plain men have rosy faces,
And the young fair maidens
Quiet eyes;
Where essential silence cheers and blesses,
And for ever in the hill recesses
Her more lovely music
Broods and dies.—

O to mount again where erst I haunted;
Where the old red hills are bird-enchanted,
And the low green meadows
Bright with sward;
And when even dies, the million-tinted
And the night has come, and planets glinted,
Lo, the valley hollow
Lamp-bestarred!

O to dream, O to awake and wander
There, and with delight take and render,
Through the trance of silence,
Quiet breath!
Lo! for there, among the flowers and grasses,
Only the mightier movement sounds and passes;
Only winds and rivers
Life and Death.

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Bishop of Chester says that such violent sport as rowing is unsuitable for girls. Too much of an ordeal, eh Bishop?—Humorist.

"Brown eyes indicate a weak will," says an oculist. And black eyes, we suppose, a weak defense.—Wall Street Journal.

"So Barker is doing a cash business and making lots of money?"

"Yes, he's feathering his nest with down payments, so to speak."—Exchange.

Teacher—What can you tell me about the Tower of Babel?

As a patron walked away, leaving change on the counter, he was asked what he did in a case like that.

Teacher (stressing difference between the rose and the modest violets—Now, a well-dressed, lovely lady goes along the street but is proud and greets nobody—that is the rose—behind her goes a small creature with bowed head—

Pupil—That is her husband.—Nebelspalter, Zurich.

Tailor—Look here, you owe me now for three suits and you don't seem the slightest bit concerned about it.

Owens—You're wrong. I've been worrying myself sick about it. In fact, I'm afraid I shall have to ask you to take them all in a little at the waist.—Bystander.

Tommy's mother came in to give him a dose of cod liver oil. Glancing at the bottle, Tommy said: "Mother, can you keep a secret?"

"Certainly, child! What do you mean?"

"Doesn't it say on the label 'The secret of health'?"

"Yes."

"Well, please keep it, mother," said Tommy.—Boston Transcript.

Even a porcupine has his price and that of Peter was a carrot. Peter was caught by William P. Alexander of Buffalo, N. Y., and was put in a cage wherehe glowered and sulked for three days. Then he made terms with the enemy for a carrot and within a few days he was eating from the hand. Thereafter he climbed up an arm and soon he was as familiar as a house cat.

The inner secrets of the growth of a rosebud, as it is slowly unfolded through a three-day period, have been recorded on a motion picture film by means of a new X-ray movie camera invented by Arthur C. Pilsbury, Berkeley, Calif., naturalist-photographer. The potted rosebush was placed before the camera, and every five minutes for 72 hours a new four-inch film was moved into place and exposed to the rays as they passed through the bud. At the end the inventor had 200 feet of film portraying the whole history of the flower's unfolding, down to the last detail of inner structure. This will reduce to 50 feet of ordinary motion picture film. It is planned to make use of the new camera for many scientific investigations; one project is to get a continuous history of the knitting of broken bones.

Old Sores and Ulcers Can Be Healed!

"This sincere letter," says Peterson "gave me another happy day and as nearly every mail brings praise for Peterson's Ointment, is it any wonder that I keep cheerful all the time?"

"Dear Sirs: I had a bad leg for 29 years, tried everything but no benefit. I tried Peterson's Ointment and five 35 cent boxes healed my leg. I can never praise it enough. My leg was so painful at first that I had to put fresh ointment on every two hours, night and day. It stopped the pain at once. Mrs. Mark Richards, Lake Linden, Mich."

Besides running and old sores and ulcers, Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles, eczema, itching skin, sore feet, prickly heat, sunburn, chafing, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and scores of other ailments as any druggist anywhere will tell you. A generous box 35 cents.

MOLINARO AND WIFE TO HAVE TRIAL BY JURY ON CRIMINAL LIBEL CHARGE

Fortunato Molinaro and his wife, Mariateresa, of this city are to stand trial before a jury in the criminal superior court here next Tuesday afternoon on the charge of criminal libel in circulating a certain "appeal" last September which opened with the statement that "in the courts of New London county is no justice, but only robbery" and went on to name Judge "Allen" Brown, Judge Arthur Libby, Attorneys Charles L. Stewart, V. P. A. Quinn and Josiah Greenstein of this city, Max Boyer and Arthur T. "Keef" of New London, John Palmieri and Anthony Branda of New York and Pasquale Vione of Bridgeport in an alleged libelous way.

Molinaro and his wife were put to plea in court before Judge C. L. Avery, who had previously appointed Atorney C. B. Whittlesey to be counsel for them as they had no counsel. Both pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury.

After pleading to the charge Molinaro addressed the judge and read a list of the names of about 20 persons whom he said he wanted the court to summon because they were "interested" in the case.

Judge Avery explained to the man that Attorney Whittlesey would look after the case and that the only thing to be considered was whether they had circulated this appeal. Other matters did not enter into the case before the criminal court.

Attorney Whittlesey explained to the judge that he had talked to the two accused and indicated that he anticipated considerable difficulty in handling the case because of the attitude of the two accused. He said that probably not more than six of the persons named by Molinaro would be witnesses with testimony relevant to this case.

Judge Avery set the Molinaro trial for 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, but court is to come in at 10 o'clock in the morning for the disposition of other cases.

Judge Avery opened the January criminal term of the court at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church offering prayer. There were 18 prisoners in the pen, 15 of whom had come from the New London jail and the others from the Norwich jail.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown was in charge of the prosecution and Public Defender Charles L. Stewart appeared for most of the accused.

Cases Disposed Of.

Among the cases disposed of were the following:

Lorenzo Montali, Angelo Giano, Arturo Pettinari, Vincentie Gardenzi and Raymond Guistinni, all of New London, had their cases nolled on payment of $25 each. They were charged with breach of peace in connection with the row between the Fascisti and anti-Fascisti during the Columbus day parade.

Richard J. Glidden of New London, charged with the theft of an automobile, had his case again postponed to the next term of the court.

Leo Sheffield of New London was given six months in jail, while two companions, John Swalcki, 20, New London and John Hefenden, 20, also of New London were sentenced to the Connecticut state reformatory at Cheshire, after they all pleaded guilty to statutory burglary. They were alleged to have entered the pawn shop of Louis Lampert in Bank street, as well as a tailor shop and a butcher shop.

Ernest Weatherbee, 21, of Groton, was given three months in jail on a charge of wilful injury to private property. He pleaded guilty to setting fire to a hay stack in revenge against Allen Harvey of Stonington.

Richard J. Beckman, 26, of New London was given one year in jail on a charge of forgery, for uttering a check on which he obtained money from George E. McDougall, New London probation officer, and from Arthur J. Carahoe.

Robert J. Devore, 24, of New London, was given four months in jail on a charge of stealing $730 on Nov. 25 last from the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Sullivan, where he was employed as a butler.

Lawson Hildreth, 19, and Albert Bellville, 22, both of West Warwick, R. I., arrested in New London on Nov. 15, charged with stealing a motor vehicle belonging to John S. Cafaro, were presented and sentence was deferred. Hildreth pleaded guilty but Bellville pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by a jury.

Jones Kelo, 35, of Montville, charged with keeping a gambling house, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty.

John H. Quinn of New London was given four months in jail charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. He pleaded guilty.

Peter Lockwood, 46, of North Stonington, was given a year in jail, the execution of which was suspended on a charge of not supporting a wife and child.

Katharine Perrino, alias Katherine Ramistella, of East Lyme, charged with manslaughter in connection with criminal abortion, had her case postponed until the next term of the court.

James K. Shaughnessy of Pomfret and Hartford, charged with embezzlement had his case continued until the next term pending the decision in a civil case which had to do with his management of the chicken farm at the estate of the late Morton F. Plant.

Lucien Lagevin was fined $100 and costs of $22.50 on the charge of theft of a steamer trunk on Oct. 26 from Bernadette Cote, another employe at the Norwich state hospital. A charge of stealing a fur coat was not pressed.

Thomas McCarthy of Norwich was sent to jail for 30 days on the charge of indecent assault and a nolle was entered in the case of William Smith of Jewett City on the charge of theft of an automobile.

There was also a nolle in the case of John Krul of Griswold on the charge of abandonment of child.

George Hapney of New London was sent to jail for 30 days for assault with intent to rob.

Two youths, William Cadieaux, 17, and Biazej Topor, alias Bosher Topor, both of Jewett City, were each given six months in jail, execution of which was suspended, and the boys were placed on probation, while the cases of a similar nature pending against Stephen Minkiewicz and Arthur Barry, also of Jewett City were nolled.

The charges against the four were wilful injury to private property at the Ashland Cotton company mill, where they were employed. It was alleged that pieces of iron were thrown into picker machines with the intent of causing a fire so that the youths could get time and a half for overtime in clearing up the fire damage.

TEACHER LEAVES FUND TO PROVIDE TWO PRIZES

The sum of $500 is left in the will of Miss Julia M. Pease, for many years a West Side school teacher, to provide prizes for the best English composition by any senior in the West Chelsea school district and for the pupils in that district having the highest scholarship in the last four years of study. Half the income from this sum is to go to each purpose. The prizes are to be known as the "Julia M. Pease prizes" and are to be given annually. The Johnson Home at Norwich Town is made the residuary legatee under the will.

Mrs. William T. Crandall and John H. Perkins, both of this city, are named executors of the instrument which was made July 17, 1917, and witnessed by Mrs. Amelia M. Starkweather, Ellen V. Marvin and Jacob Starkweather.

The the Broadway Congregational church of Norwich, in memory of her mother, Julia A. Pease, the sum of $1,000 is given in trust, the proceeds of the same to be applied to the purchase of floral decorations for the church on Easter Sunday, Children's Sunday, or on any special occasion, as may be deemed best by the pastor of the church.

To the following friends, the amounts mentioned are given:

To each of the following cousins the sum of $50 is given: Clifford J. Parsons, Mrs. Roselle Welch, Mrs. Ida Swift, Mrs. Ada Baxter, Mrs. Agnes Kibbe, William Kibbe, Mahlon Kibbe, Howard Kibbe, Mrs. Eleanor Tuttle, Alvin Kibbe, Mrs. Carrie Proctor, Mrs. Emma Aborn, Orville Hunn, Mrs. Mary Hunn, Charles N. Hurlburt, Clarence K. Hurlburt, Clifton Kibbe.

The ninth paragraph of the will directs that the bequests herein made be paid in full in their order, and that her executors make distribution, according to instructions of the specific articles mentioned in the sealed paper hereto attached and affixed.

To the City of Norwich, the sum of $300 is given as a trust fund for the perpetual care and maintenance of the burial plot in the Yantic cemetery, Norwich, wherein her father an mother are buried.

The will also sets out that "If, previous to the time of my death, no monument shall have been erected on the burial plot of my parents and self in said Yantic cemetery, then I direct the executors hereinafter named to erect a substantial monument thereon, at a cost of not to exceed $2,000.

I further direct that my executors shall erect an oval monument, with a double base, on the burial plot of my great-grandparents in the cemetery at Somers, Conn., at a cost of not to exceed $400 with their names and the dates of their birth and death suitably engraved thereon as follows:

"Pete Kibbe, 1758-1846, His Wife, Esther Pomeroy, 1763-1859."

Of Saybrook students, Lawrence Ingham has returned to Maine Central school, Pittsfield, Maine; A. Clark to Maine university and J. Frances Couture to Bates college, Lewiston, Maine, after the holiday vacation.

SANATORIA PATIENTS WRITE OF THEIR CHRISTMAS JOY

At the request of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent at Uncas-on-Thames, a number of patients there wrote for him their expression of appreciation of what is done for them at the Christmas season in the way of supplying holiday joy. This provision for the Christmas and other holiday seasons is made possible through the holiday which is now taken care of by Miss Mary E. Richards, Miss Mazie V. Caruthers and a committee.

Two of the letters are as follows, one being from a patient in women's infirmary No. 1, and the other from a patient in men's infirmary No. 1:

Christmas away from home—and in a hospital—how terrible! No indeed, not if you go down to Uncas-on-Thames, and ask the patients in "Women's Infirmary No. 1."

"Women's Infirmary No. 1," you know, is where the girls are all bed patients, and therefore stood no chance of a pass to go home for the holidays.

Just ask any of the girls what sort of a day they had, and your answer will be "Oh! gorgeous, everyone was so wonderful to me," or "one of the nicest days I ever spent because of the thoughtfulness, and kindness of everyone."

Did you help the holiday fund for Uncas-on-Thames, or did you help pack the boxes of goodies, which were sent in? If you did, you may feel well repaid. If you could have seen how lovely the ward looked with its holiday decorations, and the Christmas tree, completely surrounded by presents, you wouldn't wonder that the holiday spirit prevailed.

Santa, chose as his representative, Mr. Hugh Campbell, father of Dr. Hugh Campbell, superintendent, and in choosing Mr. Campbell, he picked a man most beloved by all the patients. Santa arrived shortly after ten a. m., and then the fun and excitement began. Such presents as Santa gave out!

He seemed to know just what each girl wanted and when the packages were opened, they contained pajamas, sweaters, bed jackets, stockings, writing paper, powders, and many other things, which were "just what I wanted." There were also boxes of goodies, with a gift tucked away inside, and each patient was given an attractive knitted cap.

There wasn't long to wait after the presents had been distributed before it was time for dinner—and what a dinner it was! Turkey and all the "fixins" and such an abundance of everything. Needless to say each and every patient did justice to all that was placed before her.

After dinner the visiting hours began and relatives and friends came laden with more gifts. Almost every visitor stopped to exclaim over the beauty of the decorations—the fireplace being especially beautiful. During the day, the varied program over one of the radios, recently presented to us by the Norwich Elks, increased the already existing cheer.

After visitors left, supper was served, "and so to bed," but before we settled down for the night, each and everyone agreed that it had been a most enjoyable Christmas, and when I say I wish I could thank the people who helped give us such a day, I am only expressing the wish of the other patients.

MRS. FLORENCE HARGRAVES.

What is it that makes life worth living. For some the accumulation of material possessions, for others the siren call of fame, for still others the attainment of an inner ideal.

No matter what our ideas on this question, we all, in our endeavor to make our lives happy, leaven our existence with sentiment and its co-partner illusion. Especially is this so at Christmas time. Sentiment and illusion, twin duties who takes the dross of our ordinary world and turn it temporarily into the gold of the world of our imagination. Is there a soul who has not responded to their appeal at Christmas? I think not.

Who can fail to be affected by the Christmas spirit—who can escape it? Possibly a Bill Sikes or a Scrooge but they were products of Charles Dickens' imagination and had no actual prototype in real life. Christmas is one of our sentimental interludes—one of the pauses in the routine of existence that makes life worth living. Music, poetry, literature in general, in fact all the arts are offerings laid on the shrines of illusion and sentiment and that is why their masterpieces are immortal.

Christmas is the masterpiece of our communal living—not only in its religious significance but in its appeal to the qualities that are strongest in our childhood that are inclined to atrophy when we become adults. Show me the man who "is just a big kid" and show me the woman who "never grew up" and I will show you two people who enjoy Christmas 365 days of the year. Pardon this long introduction—my purpose is to discuss Christmas at Uncas-on-Thames, not to philosophize or moralize on life. No more abstract meandering but a concrete case.

First we T. B's wish to thank those who so generously contributed to the tubercular fund. Speaking for the men I can say that the fund provided many needy things and that the gratitude of all goes out to the good people of Norwich, New London and vicinity. We again thank you.

Our ward tastefully decorated by the artistic hands of our nurses presented a pleasing picture. The tree symetrical and luxuriant stood in the centre of the room. Grouped about its base were the presents made possible by the donors to the fund.

While waiting for the sound of the bells which heralded the approach of St. Nicholas we listened to Christmas songs over the radio and new records on the Victrola. About 11 o'clock Santa appeared, roared a cheery greeting and seated himself beside the tree.

The distribution of gifts then began, Santa Claus calling out the names with a witty and appropriate remark for each. Owing to the fact that our wants had been ascertained before hand and that our nurses under command of Miss Sinclair had been untiring in procuring exactly what each patient desired we were universally pleased. Drs. Campbell and Urquhardt appeared making the rounds of the beds and wishing everyone a Merry Christmas. Miss Comsick head nurse left her bed to join in the greetings. All in all there was a spirit of comraderie which did much to make the day delightful. Emerson said there was compensation in everything—he was right—even in being a T. B.

The gift distribution over St. Nick made a short jolly speech, bid us all adieu and giving a long spring into the air vanished from sight. The mystery of his identity was revealed in that superhuman jump. It could be none other than the perenially young Mr. Campbell, a Santa Claus in years but a youngster in spirit.

A turkey dinner with the usual trimmings followed and was eaten with evident relish. The writer, who never needs a tonic for his appetite, consumed four helpings of turkey, not neglecting the other delicacies. The afternoon was spent in that half somnolent state, like a gorged python, listening to music and the murmur of many visitors.

Supper and the evening radio concert over we were tucked into bed by our efficient and charming nurses and left to the perfect dreams which accompany the contented mind.

"Sweet are the uses of adversity."

ROCHESTER MAN TO BE FIRST SPEAKER IN SERIES

Members of the Norwich chamber of commerce and several hundred specially invited members of the men's clubs in and about Norwich are expected to hear William Pidgeon, Jr., who will address the first chamber dinner of 1929 in the "Unveiling Norwich to Norwich" series in the Wauregan hotel Monday night, according to announcement made by Joseph C. Worth, president of the Norwich chamber.

The series was planned by a committee of which Ernest O. Rodier was chairman and provides for a Merchants night, Manufacturers night, Public Utilities night, and Bankers night and closes with a Farmer's City meeting in the month of May. The speaker on each of these occasions will tie up his subject with the nature of the meeting.

William Pidgeon was fortunately secured to address the Merchants night. He has attained an enviable reputation as a retail merchant due to the unique methods in advertising and retail store operation used in his enormous shoe store in Rochester. In addition to being an active and progressive merchant Mr. Pidgeon has been intensely interested in many causes for social, political and economic betterment. He fostered and promoted the Peoples Sunday evening experiment which ran for five years in the theatres of Rochester. He is an active member of the Rochester chamber of commerce, the Rotary club. He is a director of the "Ad Club," the largest civic organization in Rochester. He is director of the Rochester Better Business bureau, and a past president of the New York State Shoe Dealers association. He is in constant demand as a speaker because of his intimate knowledge of civic and economic topics, also before mens' clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s and church organizations on religious topics.

Mr. Pidgeon approaches his subject in a little different way than the average speaker. Speaking of a talk he delivered before the salesmen of Rochester one time it was stated by the president of the organization "Mr. Pidgeon spiritualized the art of selling." In Boston before the Shoe Retailers association, the newspapers stated after the talk on "Selling Shoes Plus Service," that it was one of the most inspiring, well delivered and loudly applauded talks of the day. He is author of a book on salesmanship entitled "Types of Customers." He frequently punctuated his talks with a touch of humor that gets them over.

In connection with this series of meetings it has been arranged by the publicity committee to unveil a "Chart of Facts About Norwich" at each meeting. At the meeting Monday night, Mr. Max Hanover, chairman of the chamber's publicity committee, will talk for five minutes on Chart No. 1 entitled "Mercantile Norwich." In the course of Mr. Hanover's talk he will endeavor to tell something about the part the merchants play in the life of the city. Special provisions have been made by the president to assure the largest attendance possible. All of the directors have been appointed as a special committee to call the membership on the telephone and urge their attendance. A special committee composed of J. B. Caron and John P. Lyston have been appointed to secure the services of a toastmaster and arrange the program of the evening. A reception committee was also appointed to welcome new members and invited guests as follows: N. Eugene Smith, Charles Jacobson, Henry Younson, C. E. Fitch, F. Russell Smith, H. H. Vignot, Earl Taggart, Harold Robbins and Walter F. Lester. Rev. David A. Pitt will invoke the divine blessing.

Many Remedies Tried—then Resinol

Cincinnati, Ohio—"For the past year I have been bothered with eczema on my feet and limbs, from which I suffered the greatest agony and found sleep almost impossible. I tried all kinds of remedies, even prescribed treatments, but got no relief. A friend suggested Resinol Ointment and I tried it at once. After applying Resinol Ointment I was able to sleep well all night for the first time in months. I am now entirely well."—(Signed) J. Cal. Wells.

RIFLE CLUB CHOOSES ITS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

At the annual meeting of the Norwich Rifle club held at the State Armory Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for 1929: President, Allyn Brand; vice president, Carl Brend; treasurer, Clarence Lucia; secretary, Everett Morrill; executive and range officer, A. L. Stebbins; publicity, N. C. Pierce; coach, Lt. Andrew White; governing board in Mohegan league, Allyn Brand, Joseph French. Lt. White graduated from the small arms firing school at Camp Perry. The new members will be given special instruction. In 1928 the club had 66 members. So far 45 have renewed membership for 1929. The government through the director of civilian marksmanship supplies bot h22 cal. and 30 cal. rifles and cartridges for the members, without cost.

Jan. 17th the Middle Haddam rifle team will come to Norwich for a return match. A lunch is to be served after the match. The Middlefield Rifle club will also have a return match here.

The Mohegan league has started with teams from Willimantic, Killingly, Danielson, Norwich, Mystic, Groton, Coast Guard and Submarine Base, New London, and American Legion, Taftville, and will shoot matches for the next two months. In February there will be held a state shoot in Hartford, with ten-man teams from these places, also members of the Nutmeg league, at Bristol, Farmington, New Britain, Middle Haddam, Meriden, Cromwell, Wallingford, Middlefield. There has recently been organized a third state league composed of teams from Bridgeport, New Haven and points in the southwestern part of state. Last spring the Norwich Rifle club was winner of the Mohegan league, and defeated in one match the Middle Haddam club that was the winner of the Nutmeg league.

If enough members are interested a pistol team will be formed among the clubs in the Mohegan league.

The Norwich Rifle club plans to start outdoor shooting for qualification early this spring with the 30 cal. rifles at 200 yards.

WHIRLWINDS NOSE OUT PLAINFIELD 31 TO 27 IN OVERTIME PERIOD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 2—The Boston Whirlwinds nosed out Plainfield here tonight by the score of 31 to 27 in one of the roughest and most exciting games of the season. Plainfield led all the way up until there was only 9 minutes to play in the second half when the Whirlwinds evened the score at 22 all. From then to the end of the 40 minutes it was a nip and tuck affair with Plainfield usually holding the lead by the scant margin of one point. With only ten seconds to go Riordan tied it up for Boston at 26 all. Just as the ball whizzed through the hoop the horn blew for the end of the second half. Without a doubt this was the hardest and fiercest half ever staged on the home floor and at one time Dissinger, Riley and the referee were under the seats in a pile.

For 3-4 of the game Plainfield had it all their own way and at several different stages were leading by 10 points. The first half ended with Plainfield leading by the score of 15 to 10. Boston dug up a new lease of life and gradually overcame Plainfield's lead. Dissinger brought the crowd to their feet twice during the most exciting part of the game with the score tied with spectacular shots from three-fourths the length of the floor as well as contributing 8 points from the free throw line.

Morley was high scorer for Boston with 10 points.

Next week Plainfield plays the Philadelphia Colored Giants. The summaries:

DARTMOUTH TO PLAY NAVY NEXT FALL

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 2—(AP)—A football game between Dartmouth and the Navy on next November 30, has been arranged by Harry Heneage and Jonas Ingram, athletic directors of both institutions, it was announced here today.

The athletic directors came to a two-year agreement, which contains a provisional clause, and if there is no healing of the Army-Navy breach, Dartmouth will play a second game with the Middies in 1930.

So far the place of the 1929 game has not been decided. Heneage and Ingram have been considering both New York and Philadelphia, but both favor the former site because of the success of the recent Army-Stanford game at the Yankee stadium.

The agreement for the game was made a few days ago, Dartmouth athletic officials said, and caused Heneage to postpone his plans for booking a gridiron contest on the Pacific coast in 1930.

The addition of the Navy game gives Dartmouth the stiffest schedule in its football history. The Green will open the 1929 season on September 28 with Norwich and then play Hobart, Allegheny, Columbia at New York, Harvard at Cambridge, Yale at New Haven, Brown at Providence, and then Cornell at Hanover on November 16.

Though no definite announcement could be made at this time, Dartmouth athletic officials were certain that Hawley would again return here next fall to act as head coach for the seventh time.

OLD TIME BALL PLAYER DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

WEST COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 2—(AP)—Dennis "Denny" Lyons, 63, former major league baseball player, died today after a short illness. Years ago Lyons played on the Baltimore Orioles club when John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson, major league managers, were members of the team. He also played with the Athletics, Browns and Yankees in the American league.

Always a heavy hitter, he topped the .400 mark once and batted above .300 for ten years. He was forced out of baseball when he injured a knee while playing with the Browns.

BEER OUT IN FRONT OF SAN DIEGO GOLFERS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 2—(AP)—Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal., professional, led a field of golfers, including a big delegation from the east, by one stroke in the first round of play today in the second annual La Jolla Country club $2,500 open golf tournament.

Beer had to set a new competitive record for the seaside course of 69 strokes to head the field, for Johnny Golden of the North Jersey Country club, Paterson, N. J., was just one stroke behind him.

Following the two leaders came five golfers with a 72 each with two more at 73. Johnny Junor, Portland, Ore., professional, Willie Hunter, Montebello Park, Al Espinosa, Chicago, Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, and T. H. Cotton, London, were in the 72 group.

Scores of 79 or better were required to get into the charmed circle of 64 players who will play the final 36 holes of the 54 hole open tournament tomorrow.

WOMEN PHYSICAL DIRECTORS IN ANNUAL SESSION TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Opposed to what they say is over-training of girl entrants in Olympic games with resultant neglect of thousands of other girls not so gifted, more than 100 women physical directors assembled in New York today for the fifth annual meeting of the women's division of the National Amateur Athletic federation.

The framing of a program of intramural sports for girls, which will be offered to high school principals to offset any tendency to concentrate too strongly on selection and training of girl athletes for the 1932 Olympics in San Francisco, will be the principal business of the federation's three-day session.

Friday afternoon's program will be given over entirely to that subject. Miss Ruth Elliott, director of the department of hygiene and physical education of Wellesley college, will preside.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover founded the federation in 1923, and a letter from her, written aboard the U. S. S. Maryland, will be read at tomorrow's session.

N. Y. PAPER SAYS DEMPSEY WILL RETURN TO RING

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—The New York American tomorrow will say that Jack Dempsey has definitely agreed to return to the ring in quest of the heavyweight championship he lost to Gene Tunney in 1926. The American will say that Promoter Tex Rickard will announce the Manassa Mauler's return next week from Miami.

Rickard's statement will say, according to the American:

"That Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the impending elimination tournament, and that the match will decide the rightful owner of the championship left vacant by the retirement of Gene Tunney.

"That the match will be staged at New York during August or September, depending on the length of time it requires Dempsey to get in shape.

"That he feels the public will agree that Dempsey, as a former titleholder, should not be required to fight his way through the tournament."

RICKARD'S CONDITION IS REPORTED VERY FAVORABLE

Rickard, last night planned to supervise the launching of his latest sports venture, a dog track here, but started the new year instead by undergoing an operation for appendicitis. "Tex," while expressing his disappointment that the birthday had to be spent in bed, said he was thankful that the operation was successful.

Attending physicians tonight said that the condition of the promoter, who is president of Madison Square Garden, New York, was favorable and that his recovery was but a matter of days.

MISS ORCUTT AND MISS HICKS TIE FOR MEDAL AT BERMUDA

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 2—(AP)—Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., women's metropolitan golf champion, and 18-year-old Helen Hicks of Hewlett, N. Y., tied for the medal in the qualifying round of the second annual Bermuda women's championship over the windswept Reddell's Bay course today. Each had a medal score of 80. Eileen Pattison, former Bermuda champion, was third. All of the entries from the United States and Canada qualified for the championship fight.

Ada Mackenzie of Toronto scored 92, tying with Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, O., and Edith Quiet of Reading, Pa. Betty Guthrie of Buck Hill Falls, Pa., came in ahead of them with 90.

College Hockey

At New Haven: Yale 5, Dartmouth 1.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Teddy Russell, who used to be quite a fighter hereabouts, lived on Laurel Hill in the same house and tenement that Al Koziol, local flash, now makes his place of abode.

Both had John Martin as manager (rather Koziol has).

Barney Keenan was the trainer for each.

Bulkeley high, in New London, is making every effort to get back to winning teams in its major sports.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 2—(AP)—Yale encountered little difficulty in defeating Dartmouth in a hockey match tonight, 5 to 1. The Eli stick handlers peppered Dartmouth's goal tender in the opening period scoring four times. Luce, who tallied two of these goals scored the lone Yale goal in the second session. Shea kept the visitors from a shutout in the same period.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Football records become a trifle hazy with the years. There is no counterpart of the "Little Red Book" of baseball to check on past performances of the gridiron but it has been at least one or two pale blue moons since anything so startling has occurred as Roy Riegels' now-famous run toward his own goal line at Pasadena.

"Such things have happened before but not as a deciding factor in so big a game." That about sums up the impression of football men hereabouts today to whom the question of precedent for Riegels' dash was put.

There has long been the famous case of "Snooks" Dowd, one-time major league ball player, who ran nearly 200 yards for a touchdown—some 70 yards to his own goal and then, upon discovery of his error, over 100 yards the right way for a score, including the distance across field, but Riegels had no such luck.

"I never have heard of a player making so long a run in the wrong direction," said Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, "but I have seen players start the wrong way a number of times after emerging from a mixup with a fumbled ball.

"It was very easy, as I read the play, for Riegels to go wrong. He was not accustomed to ball-carrying and he probably came out of the mix-up head down, bent simply on moving away. In being spun around he just lost his sense of direction, as he says."

"Instances of players getting started the wrong way have been numerous but they seldom get very far without discovering their mistake or being checked," said Ed Thorp, famous referee. "The yells of team-mates or the crowd usually will wake a fellow up before he has done much damage, but I can understand readily how it happened to Riegels. It is very easy to lose a sense of direction after being spun around in a mass of players and it must be remembered that California had just changed goals.

"But the most famous incident of this sort I can recall happened in a basketball game some years ago between City college and Cornell. A City college substitute came in and, becoming rattled as he got the ball, shot it through his own basket, giving Cornell two points that turned out to be the deciding margin."

Other sports have their equivalents. Golfers occasionally knock their opponent's ball into the cup and in polo, where the goal changes after every score, players sometimes become confused. Stealing second with the bases full is one of baseball's prize stunts and catching a "crab" is the bane of all oarsmen.

A prospective football game between Dartmouth and the Naval academy this year in Philadelphia or New York seems to remove the last slim hope of any reconciliation between the Navy and Army, at least until 1930. The Army, it appears, is dissatisfied with any compromise agreement on eligibility regulations and so the break will continue.

Dartmouth and Navy would add an interesting rivalry to the eastern slate, booked presumably for Nov. 30, the date held open by the Navy pending possible success of negotiations with the Army. But the Cadets are booked on that date to play Notre Dame in New York.

Dartmouth already has a rugged finishing program, playing Columbia, Harvard, Yale, Brown and Cornell on successive Saturdays up to Nov. 16. The Green could play the Midshipmen on Nov. 23, an open date also for the Navy, but would prefer an extra week of rest.

No charge of excessive commercialism can be laid at the door of those promoting the forthcoming world's championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament here. At the Level club, scene of the tourney, arrangements have been made to seat 968 spectators.

FUCHS NAMES LYNCH AS LEADER OF COUNCIL BLOC THAT SOUGHT BRIBE

BOSTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—The Boston finance commission, sitting as a tribunal to hear charges of bribery, today heard Emil Fuchs, president and manager of the Boston National league baseball team, testify that William Lynch, Boston city councillor, had sought a bribe for favorable action by him on the Sunday sports bill.

Thus the charges made by Charles F. Adams, vice president of the club, were brought into the open and with them came revelations that were startling and unexpected.

At the opening of the hearing, before Fuchs had started his testimony, Joseph P. Walsh, an attorney, appeared and told the commission he was counsel for Lynch. He asked and was granted, the right to cross examine witnesses and introduce witnesses of his own. This was the first intimation that Councillor Lynch was connected with the bribery charges.

Fuchs' testimony had to do mainly with a meeting in his suite at the Copley Plaza hotel at which, Fuchs said, Lynch told him he represented a "bloc" in the city council which could hold up passage of the Sunday sports bill.

"Lynch told me," Fuchs testified, "that they (the members of the bloc) had come to the conclusion that passage of the bill would give Adams Sunday hockey and that they thought they ought to get something out of it. They figured, Lynch said, how many Sundays the Braves would have and how much the receipts would be.

"Then Lynch said that members of the bloc had considered that I could afford to pay $5,000 a man to have the bill passed."

This was the only specific amount mentioned during Fuchs' testimony, although Attorney Walsh later made several attempts to have Fuchs testify to other sums.

Fuchs testified that Lynch had come to his apartment with Daniel Carroll, manager of Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight boxer, with whom Lynch is associated. After the city council had tabled the Sunday sports bill on a motion by Lynch, Fuchs asked Carroll to see "if he could get Lynch to carry out the vote of the people in his district," the Braves president testified. Carroll told him he'd do what he could.

"Carroll and Lynch came to my suite on November 23," Fuchs testified. "Ed Cunningham, secretary of the Braves was there but after a general conversation he left the room. Then Carroll said that Lynch was tied up in a matter and for that reason had not voted for the Sunday sports bill."

Then Fuchs told of Lynch's proposal. He said that Lynch had lists of those who were in the "bloc" and those who were not.

"I thought the thing was ridiculous," Fuchs said, "and I didn't believe there was anything to it. I told Lynch he couldn't do anything like this and he replied, 'You don't know what we can do. We'll delay it and when it comes to your permit, we'll delay that, too.'"

Fuchs said he and Lynch went over the lists Lynch brought with him.

"I asked him whether he thought these councillors would do such a thing and he went through the lists explaining each one's stand."

At this point, John C. L. Dowling, chairman of the finance commission who presided at the hearing, asked Fuchs when he could name the councillors who were said by Lynch to be members of the "bloc." Fuchs said he could think of most of them and gave the names of ten: Donovan, Murphy, Busch, Ruby, McMahon, Dowd, Sullivan, Motley, Wilson and Mahoney. They were not further identified during the remaining testimony.

The Braves president testified that shortly afterward Burt Whitman, a sports writer, came into the room and that the conversation changed. He testified, however, that he told Whitman of the proposal Lynch made. He also said that he had not made any counter proposal to Lynch.

At the start of his testimony he told of efforts by himself to have the council pass the bill as soon as the referendum vote had been announced so that the Braves could proceed in making a schedule. He said he saw many of the councillors, including Council President Thomas H. Green, to "show them that they should carry out the mandate of the people."

He said he told Green that Lynch had said that he (Green) had received money from the Braves for calling a special meeting to consider the Sunday sports bill and that Green replied, "Lynch can't conceive of anybody doing a gratuitous act without being paid for it."

Attorney Walsh then started his cross-examination and from time to time there were verbal clashes between him and Fuchs that were accompanied by applause from the listeners until Chairman Dowling ordered silence.

Walsh asked Fuchs whether he had told the commission everything that was said in the hotel room on the night of November 23. Fuchs replied that he had told everything whereupon Walsh asked him a number of questions concerning subjects which Walsh intimated were discussed that night. Fuchs replied in the negative until Walsh asked him if they had discussed Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Braves last year.

Fuchs said they had. Then Walsh asked him if he had complained to Carroll and Lynch because of rumors that Hornsby was a member of the K. K. K. and that Bruce Whetmore, a director of the Braves, was a member of the klan. When Fuchs replied in the negative, Walsh asked:

"Didn't you tell them that you had worries because of the story that there were no Catholics on the Braves and that the team was being boycotted?"

Fuchs denied this and Walsh then inquired about an alleged conversation Fuchs had with Carroll and Lynch concerning Fuchs' stock in the Braves. Chairman Dowling interrupted the cross-examination and cautioned Walsh not to bring Fuchs' personal affairs into the hearing. Dowling said that the commission assumed there had been other conversation and that that fact would not exclude the other testimony given by Fuchs.

Walsh then declared that he was trying to show that the testimony of Fuchs was not the truth and that "his whole attitude on the night of this meeting was a plea for forgiveness and one of apology."

Then he turned to Fuchs. "Didn't you say to these men, 'I want to apologize. I'm crazy'"? Fuchs raised his voice to deny this.

Walsh continued his questioning along this line until Chairman Dowling adjourned the hearing until tomorrow at 2 p. m. Walsh said he would continue his cross-examination at that time.

Plainfield vs. Goodyear

A league soccer game will be played at Goodyear on Sunday afternoon when the Plainfield and Goodyear teams clash. Plainfield will use Walker and Greenhalgh in their lineup as these two players made a strong impression in the New Year's exhibition against Wauregan.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Basketball, the only winter sport for Eastern Connecticut, gets going in earnest within the next week or so. By the middle of the month the nine schools in this section will be on their season's schedule.

Windham opens against Rockville High Friday night at Willimantic. Tommy Callaghan will not have as strong a club as wore Windham colors last year but should make a great showing in this section, at least. Friday's lineup will probably be Meikle and Mason at forwards, Lamson at center and Captain Monast and Ahern at guards.

Chapman Tech has only lost one game in seven starts, that to the Alumni. With this spotless record against scholastic competition, the Whalers meet Pratt High of Essex and Deep River within the week. Tech has beaten both of these teams so far this season.

Some see in the rejuvenation of athletics at Bulkeley a chance for basketball. Probably not this winter, but in 1930.

The Academy opens its schedule next week against Putnam High at Putnam a week from Saturday, Jan. 12. The first home game is the following Tuesday with Pratt High of Essex. There are no home games on Saturdays during the month of January. And, incidentally, after the football title disagreement, that game in Putnam ought to be quite a tussle. This is a league game.

IMPROVEMENTS NEARLY DONE AT THE ACADEMY CAMPUS

The left field hill has been levelled, the new field house is practically completed and the Academy campus lies still for the winter at the present time.

The work of cutting away the slope in the left field section of the field was practically completed before Christmas and, what little work there is left will be done in the spring in time for Jack Marks' baseball team. The hill has been cut into up to the foul line, leaving a drop of about 20 feet off the hill. Therefore few fouls that go out left field way will be caught this season.

The fine looking new field house now awaits interior work, installing of showers, etc. What disposition will be made of the old white "clubhouse" has not been made known. The wooden building, scene of many an after-the-battle celebration (or ominous silence, following a defeat) may be left for the Industrial league in the summer time.

DANIELSON TOWNERS TO PLAY FITCHBURG TEAM ON FRIDAY

The Danielson Town team faces another one of the top-notch New England teams on Friday evening at the Danielson Town hall when the Fitchburg, Mass. five furnishes the opposition. The Fitchburg club is made up of former Holy Cross and Boston college basketball stars and is rated as one of the fastest Bay State outfits. This club on last Saturday night defeated the Clinton German five by two baskets and were beaten last Tuesday night by three points by the Boston Whirlwinds. Fans can get some idea of the calibre of the team from the results of those games. Danielson will use the same lineup that has played all season.

GEORGIA TECH TEAM TO BE GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 2—(AP)—Georgia Tech's conquering football heroes, due home January 8, from their 8 to 7 victory over California in the rose bowl at Pasadena, will find probably the greatest ovation in the history of Atlanta awaiting them.

The blare of brass band and the cheers of thousands will greet the Golden Tornado, under plans started today. Phillip H. Alston, president of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, sent a telegram to Coach William Alexander, today, saying:

"The Atlanta chamber of commerce is celebrating with all our people and you and your boys have in store the warmest possible welcome upon your arrival home."

Acting Mayor Claude L. Ashley disclosed that the probable welcome from the city officially would include the participation of the police band, the fire department and members of the city council.

Hundreds of Tech students will have returned from the holidays and they will lend a leading hand in making the demonstration one of riotous color, while thousands of alumni, friends and followers of the team, will converge here from every section of the state and many from distant parts of Dixie to cheer the team.

FARM LIFE APPEALS TO HAHN MORE THAN RUNNING

BOSTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—Farm life in Falls City, Neb., has a greater lure for Lloyd Hahn, probably America's greatest middle distance runner, than the board tracks of the east. Hahn said so in a letter to Jack Rider, his confidant and coach, which was received here today.

So far almost every track promoter in the east has invited Hahn to reconsider his retirement decision and the Nebraska flyer has turned a deaf ear to every invitation. In commenting on these invitations, Hahn wrote Ryder that he had declined each one "because it would be next to impossible for me to get away."

LEWIS AND SONNENBERG COMPLETE THEIR TRAINING

BOSTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, and "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, today ended training for their title bout at the Boston Garden on Friday night. Both described themselves as being in perfect physical condition.

Both wrestlers have been working out in the same gymnasium. Today Sonnenberg wound up his training by roughing up Dan Koloff, the chief of his training staff. The former Dartmouth football player's actions indicated that he would depend more on force, than on science, when he crawled inside the ropes with the champion.

Georgetown Downs Yale

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 2—(AP)—After being held to a one point advantage at the end of the first half Georgetown increased its scoring power and downed Yale, 33 to 17, in the third annual Yale basketball tournament here tonight. By winning tonight Georgetown will encounter New York university to decide the tournament winner tomorrow night.

Yale, winner of the tournament last year, will meet Holy Cross later tonight to New York U. Captain Mesmer, McCarthy and Meenan each ran up eight points for Georgetown.

Flydal Lost to Aggies

STORRS, Jan. 2—(AP)—The prospects of the Connecticut Aggies having a good basketball season received another blow today, the second during the week, with the announcement that Rhoar Flydal, of Hartford, a promising guard candidate, would not return to college for the second semester. The first blo wwas the casualty of Captain Henry Schildgren who dislocated his shoulder during practice.

Aggies to Play Mass. Aggies

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 2—(AP)—Connecticut Aggies will encounter Massachusetts Aggies in basketball for the first time in two years, according to an announcement made today by the athletic authorities, here. The game will be played at Amherst on January 19.

The resuming of relations between these two state colleges, will bring back a traditional rivalry broken in 1925. No plan has as yet been made for scheduling the Massachusetts Aggies on the football and baseball lists.

N. Y. U. Beats Holy Cross

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 2—(AP)—New York university basketball quintet scored a 25 to 14 victory over Holy Cross tonight in the third annual Yale Christmas tournament. The winners held their advantage throughout except at the opening of the game and checked the Holy Cross forwards in the last half by not letting them score a basket. Captain Couroy of New York university tallied nine points.

Arrows and Indians Tie

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2—(AP)—The Philadelphia Arrows went back into first place in the Canadian-American Hockey league race tonight, notwithstanding they were held to a 1 to 1 tie by the Springfield Indians, defending champions.

Moody Knocks Jacovacci

RIEGEL'S RUN MOST SENSATIONAL SINCE DOWD'S CELEBRATED JAUNT

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2—(AP)—The weird 75-yard run of Roy Riegels, California center, to his own goal line, echoed by the groans of thousands of Bear followers who in the Rose bowl here yesterday saw their team go down to an 8 to 7 defeat before the Golden Tornado of George Tech primarily because of that hapless blunder, reechoed today wherever gridiron fans gathered.

Everywhere the luckless miscalculation of the California captain-elect, which paved the way for the safety that proved the ultimate margin of victory, was recalled in detail.

This freak play of modern gridiron history, teammates of Riegels and Coach Clarence "Nibs" Price took for what it proved to be—a "break" that favored Tech. The general consensus was that Riegels, befuddled momentarily when charging toward the Tornado goal line, suddenly reversed and headed toward his own.

Riegels, heart broken over his blunder, today offered no alibis and would talk but little about it. He denied that he had been hurt and as a result was unconscious of what he was doing.

"I was running toward the sidelines and when I picked up the ball I started to turn to my left toward Tech's goal," he said. "Somebody shoved me and I bounded right off into a tough tackler. In pivoting to get away from him I completely lost my bearings."

Riegels in the second half played brilliantly, erasing part of the stigma of his previous blunder with his defensive work which included the blocking of a Tech punt.

Sports writers here commended the southerners for followin gthe ball and hail Warner Mizell, Georgia Tech's star halfback, for the dashing runner he proved himself to be, but they all revert to the old story that the "breaks decided the game." California, too, had her breaks and took advantage of them. In numbers, perhaps these breaks were equally distributed.

After visiting San Diego and Tia Juana, Mexico, today, the Georgians returned to Pasadena tonight and will leave for their home state tomorrow morning at 11.30 o'clock.

in the field
of low priced sixes

De Soto Six—the vogue in design, new in style, new in performance, the supreme new value among all the sixes under $1000—is the most significant car of the year.

In five months' time it has won a greater popular triumph than ever before accorded to any new car. Yet its newness singles it out today as it did on the day of its introduction.

In its class, there is no match for its sparkling individuality; there is nothing to equal its obvious quality and inspiriting performance. Because it is Chrysler-built it stands at the very pinnacle of value in its price range.

New today as any car can be, 35,000 owners are already enjoying the distinction and satisfaction which play so large a part in De Soto ownership

WESTERLY

DISCORD AT HEARING IN PROBATE COURT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 2—In Westerly probate court Wednesday afternoon Judge Edward M. Burke disposed of matters as follows: Estate of William Brown. Inventory received and ordered recorded.

Estate of George J. Goroy, who died a resident of Stafford Springs, Tolland county, Conn., and who owned real estate in Westerly. Petition received from the Hartford-Conn. Trust Co. that letters testimentary be issued the company as executor in Rhode Island. Petition granted and bond made $1,000. Daniel F. Larkin was named appraiser.

Estate of Emma J. Doust. Attorney John Ferguson appeared in court to represent a creditor of the estate, Harry H. Coleman, and by citation served there also appeared Martha Doust Wilson and daughter Helen Elizabeth Wilson, who were named executors on the estate two years ago together with a third, John Doust Wilson, son of Martha Doust. The only executor to qualify by filing a bond for $8,000 had been John Doust Wilson. After a heated verbal tilt between Helen Elizabeth Wilson and Clerk Whipple and Judge Burke, the two executors were given until 3 o'clock this Thursday morning to file their bonds or the court threatened to rule that they constructively declined to accept the executorship. Miss Wilson declared herself ready to accept at once if certain requirements of the law were explained to her. She was referred by the judge to the Rhode Island legislature, which made the laws. She declared that she stood ready to pay all the estate bills but that her brother had not accorded herself and mother proper rights in the estate matters. The bonds were signed in the court session and Frank W. Coy was continued as appraiser.

VENISON DINNER FOLLOWS NARRAGANSETT COM. SESSION

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, David A. Lowry, commander, held its 623rd January stated conclave Wednesday in its asylum. Business was taken up in consideration of the formation of a Guard's association, similar to that of New Haven Commandery and Worcester County, Mass., commandery. Another matter discussed was adequate insurance on commandery property.

At the conclusion of the conclave adjournment was taken to the Commandery Armory banquet hall were a venison dinner was served in charge of a committee consisting of Capt. General George H. Leonard, Senior Warden Fred W. Harvey and Junior Warden J. Russell Oppy. With Sir Knight Henry A. Stahls as chef the following menu was enjoyed by more than fifty Templars:

Roast Venison
Baked Potatoes — Mashed Turnip
Cranberry Sauce — Rolls
Apple Pie — Coffee

In the large lodge room Courtland B. Silvas, proprietor of the Wigwam hotel at Misquamicut, showed by use of the stereopticon many interesting views of old time Westerly scenes and sights.

Westerly Band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, Wednesday evening at its band rooms in the Porter-Loveland block held its 66th annual meeting. About 40 members and guests attended a preliminary dinner at Peckham's inn, where Band President John McCaffrey was toastmaster. Adjournment was taken to the band rooms for a social time for the remainder of the evening.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Rowland Howland.

A former Westerly resident, Mrs. Sarah Ann Holland, 87, widow of Rowland Howland, died Monday at her home, 11 Woodruf avenue, Wakefield. She was born in South Kingstown, the daughter of Rathbone and Ann Clark Dickens. Her first husband was Joseph Stanton Gavitt, died about 40 years ago. It was during his lifetime that she resided in Westerly, their home being on Tower street.

In 1904, she married Rowland Howland of South Kingstown. He died three years ago.

The only surviving relative is a daughter, Miss Jennie C. Gavitt of New York.

The first addition to the population of Westerly for 1929 was Alice Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holice Stevens of 5 Grove avenue, born New Year's day at the Westerly hospital.

Westerly's assemblymen, Senator Howard E. Thorp and Representatives John M. O'Connell and Clifford W. Campbell attended Tuesday the first meeting of the January 1929 term of the Rhode Island general assembly, when at the Capitol in Providence both bodies met to hear the annual message of Governor Case. Representative O'Connell is serving his first term in the legislature from the First Westerly voting district and Representative C. W. Campbell from the Second Westerly district.

NOT AN AUTO FATALITY IN TOWN DURING PAST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 2—Westerly passed through 1928 without an automobile fatality, while not one of the surrounding towns maintained such a clear record. In years past the police have looked forward to the year when the police record would be clear from such undesired entry. To Lieut. George H. Champlin, in charge of the night patrol duty and especially during the week of the Christmas record, it seemed that Westerly would fall short of the desired mark and when New Year's was passed without a fatality he breathed a sigh of relief. The state record was not so clear for sixteen persons were fatally injured in automobile accidents in the state during December, bringing the total for the year up to 149. Cranston led in the number of fatal accidents during the month with five; Providence was next with four, with two in Pawtucket, two in Johnson and one each in North Providence, Central Falls and Woonsocket.

For the year Providence was in the lead with 29 followed by Cranston with 13, Pawtucket 14, Central Falls 7, East Providence and West Coventry, North Providence and Warwick each, Cumberland, Lincoln, Newport and West Greenwich 3 each, Barrington, Bristol, Hopkinton, Charlestown, Johnston, Portsmouth and Tiverton 2 each and one in each of the following towns: Burrillville, Foster, Gloucester, North Smithfield, Smithfield, Warren and Scituate.

There were 17 more fatal accidents in the state during 1928 than in 1927.

Tuesday evening a bad chimney fire gave concern at the home of Everett Champlin on the North Stonington Road and a telephone call for assistance was sent to the P. S. Barber Hose company. About 6:30 o'clock the call was received by the firemen and the hose wagon was sent out at once. The fire had gained headway and was smouldering in the partitions, so that the firemen had to use axes to get at the flames. They were successful in subduing the blaze before much damage was done.

Miss Gorin to Play

The meeting of Westerly Music club is to be held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. H. H. Scanlon on High street. The entertainer will be Miss Katharine Gorin, brilliant young composer-pianist.

Mr and Mrs John Hunt, Miss Emily Kelly of Somers and John Hunt Jr., of Wapping spent the holiday with Miss Kelly's sister and family in Chicopee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Converse entertained Mrs. Converse's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Parker, son, Perlin Parker, and several of Mrs. Converse's nieces and nephews, on the recent holiday.

Somers schools opened Wednesday for the winter term.

Snaps Out of Cold In Record Time!

Did you ever hear of a five-hour remedy for colds? There is one, and it really does bring you out of it completely. Even if it's grippe, this method works only takes longer. It's a simple compound the druggist has in tablets. Pleasant-tasting, but it surely has the "authority!"

Plenty of people with a bad cold in the morning have been rid of it by night; and the secret is Pape's Cold Compound. You'll think it just luck the first time, but it always goes to the spot. Druggists have it for 35c.

STOCK MARKET STRONG WITH GAINS

RUNNING TO A MAXIMUN OF 24 POINTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Last year's violent bull market carried over into the new year in riotous fashion today, when some 50 issues surged up to new high levels for 12 months or longer, in gains running to a maximum of nearly 24 points.

Trading was in the largest volume since the heavy selling movement of early December, total sales aggregating 5,408,600 shares. The ticker again gave up printing the volume of all save the largest sales, but nevertheless ran for 34 minutes after the close of the market.

The buying was stimulated by anticipation of heavy reinvestment demand during the next few sessions as result of the billion dollar year-end interest and dividend payments, by a drop in the call money rates to 10 per cent. for the first time since last Thursday, and a series of favorable developments in the day's business news.

Call money again renewed at 12 per cent. but dropped to 10 as funds were made available by the return to the banks of the Jan 1 interest and dividend checks. Time money remained at 7 3-4 per cent. for 60 to 90 day loans, however, but traders were inclined to ignore this rather unpromising condition. Commission houses reported that the public was again in the market on a large scale, with heavy buying coming from the west.

The steel trade reviews were unusually cheerful, reporting that operations were holding at 85 per cent. of capacity with indications of considerable speeding up during the month. The official price of domestic copper was advanced to 16 3-4 cents per pound, and it was reported that none was available under 17 cents.

Directors of Kennecott Copper and American International proposed 2-for-1 stock splitups and indications were that the new issues would be put on dividend basis more favorable than the present. American Smelting put its new stock on a $4 annual basis, equal to $12 on the old stock, which had been paying $8.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 10 points on a little flurry of buying promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables, optimistic annual reviews of the cotton goods situation, and expectations of an increased trade demand after the passing of the holiday season. Some trade buying was reported on this early buige, but after selling up to 20.25 for January and 20.25 for May at the start, prices eased under southern selling and realizing. The volume of the latter seemed to increase and some stop orders were uncovered, as prices worked downward, with the market reaching the lowest levels of the day in the late trading. January sold off to 10.71 and May to 19.75 making net declines of 33 to 47 points and the market closed at about the lowest.

Trading in the new contract permitting deliveries in five of the southern spot markets as well as of cotton at New York in satisfaction of New York contracts began at the opening, commencing with deliveries for October and later month. At the opening, the new style October contracts seemed to be about 15 to 17 points under the old October with a sale reported at 19.65 for the old. Later the difference narrowed somewhat with the old October about 14 points over the new at the close. Considerable interest was shown in the new contract and the narrowing of the difference between the two in the later trading may have reflected liquidation in the old. The chief activity, however, was in the present crop positions and the liquidation of long accounts was supposed to be absorbed by trade buying or covering on scale-down orders.

Private cables reported continental and Bombay buying in Liverpool and said Manchester was optimistic over prospects for a fair business in cotton cloths. Port receipts today 14,583. U. S. port stocks 2,380,650. Exports today 16,304 making 4,516,693 so far this season.

Considerable realizing came into the market during the day, but it was readily absorbed. There was a tendency to "sell on the good news" in the coppers, but recessions were limited. Steel, rail, motor, oil, utility, motion picture and merchandising shares participated prominently in the advances.

General Electric led the upturn with a spurt of 23 3-4 points to a new high record at 245 1-4. Radio and International Nickel certificates climbed about 20 points each, the latter to a new top. National Biscuit mounted about 10 to a new high, and Union Carbide made a like gain. Abraham and Straus mounted about 17 points to a new peak.

In the rails, Pennsylvania sold at 78 1-8, the highest price in 26 years, while Boston and Maine jumped 10 points to 100, the highest since 1912. General Motors moved up 5 points and Willys Overland touched a new peak at 34. In the steels, Bethlehem, Central Alloy and Otis broke into new high ground.

Among coppers touching new highs were Kennecott, Calumet and Hecla and Anaconda, although the last was off more than a point, net, at the close. Marland and Barnsdall issues were strong points of the oils, stepping up 4 to 5 points, while Prairie Atlantic Refining and Standard of New York touched new high levels. Paramount Famous Lasky mounted 5 points to a new peak, and American International sold up about 7 to a new high on announcement of the stock split.

Industrial Rayon dropped 14 points during the morning, but more than made it up later. Among soft spots were A. M. Byers, MacAndrews & Forbes, Macy & Co., and Wright Aero, which yielded about 2 points each.

The commodity markets were inclined to heaviness. Cotton sold off on lower Liverpool cables. Grain closed steady after some liquidation and corn closed slightly lower.

Foreign exchanges eased as the high interest rate here continued to draw funds. The discount on the Canadian dollar widened to more than 1-4 of a cent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—With only one exception, the south, every important industrial center in the country reports 1928 was the most active year since the war for machine tool and machinery sales, American machinist states. Manufacturers ended the year with a record volume of unfilled orders. Most manufacturers believe that the high level of activity will continue for at least 6 months.

Rock Island Railway is planning to spend about $25,000,000 in the biggest improvement program in its history. This sum does not include new equipment expenditures. About $16,000,000 will be spent improving present physical property and $6,760,000 on 146 miles of new lines.

Empire Pipeline company, Cities Service company subsidiary, is to start immediate construction of a 32 mile oil pipe line from Guthrie, Okla. to the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company's discovery well near Oklahoma City.

PENDLETON HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson and daughter Katheryn entertained a family party of nine on the recent holiday. In the evening they entertained at cards, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Gray, their son Harold and daughter Anna, Mr. and Mrs. Appley and daughter Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. John Geer and son Bourden and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Gladfelder.

Mrs. Clifford Thompson, Miss Katheryn Thompson, Mrs. Jennie Thompson and Miss Sarah Thompson Palmer were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bowers on Washington street, Norwich, Wednesday.

Miss Marion Bentley of Westerly and Gaylord Newton of Durham spent Wednesday afternoon and evening with Miss Bentley's sister, Mrs. Clifford Thompson, and family.

It is of interest to neighbors that the Van Greg place has come into the possession of Charles Allen, who is making every effort to restore the place to its one-time fine condition.

Several in this place recently received Christmas greetings sent out by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Palmer of Round Hill farm, Lisbon, with a poem written by Grace Snow Palmer (Mrs. James), as noted in the Jewett City news at Christmas.

As an offering to her former schoolmates here, Miss Elva Roos, until this year a pupil in the local school, but now attending high school in Detroit, sent a large jar of candy for distribution at the tree.

Several homes hereabouts were beautifully illuminated Christmas eve and Christmas night. Noticeable among them was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson, where a candle burned in every window, upstairs and down, and a huge light swung from a tree inside.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and family shone with brightly lighted candles Christmas eve.

Mrs. Etta Miner, with the assistance of her son Dwight, is repairing her home, including renewing the sills.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley and A. E. Phillips and family spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Kent of Brooklyn.

William Potter of Auburn, R. I., has been spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Byron Place.

Fred Gomo has returned to work after a vacation of a month.

Mrs. George Phillips has recovered from a severe cold which kept her in the house for several days.

Arthur Law, Adelbert Holland, Elizabeth Barber of Putnam and Phebe Barber of Norwich were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall for the holiday.

The local school will open the winter term today (Wednesday) after the holiday recess of ten days.

Gustav Borgquist shot a large coon last week. He had it dressed and cooked and found it made an appetizing dinner.

Ruth Coffey, who has been assisting in the work at the home of Marion Hutchins in Danielson during the illness of Mrs. Hutchins, spent the week end at her home.

J. W. Whipple of Pomfret called on A. E. Hall Friday and took him for a ride to Sterling and Foster. This is the first long ride Mr. Hall has taken since his attack of sciatica, several weeks ago.

Gertrude Hall has returned to Lyme having spent ten days' vacation at The Oaks.

Marjorie and Mildred Place were week end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Coffey.

An illustrated lecture on China was given in the church Sunday evening.

Pedro, a dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Barlow has been ailing. Owing to his advanced age complete recovery is considered doubtful.

EVERY DAY IS PAY DAY FOR GROUP OF FARMERS

POCAHONTAS, Ark. —(AP)— every day is pay day for a group of Randolph county farmers working in cooperation with J. O. Fullerton, county agricultural agent. Their individual incomes have been greatly increased by cooperative production and sale of farm, truck and range products.

A sheep growers' association of 50 members saved nearly $200 apiece on two cars of lambs shipped cooperatively.

Other phases of the program have been veterinarian demonstrations by the agent, planting of vetch to improve the soil, production of soybeans and testing of all cows in the country for tuberculosis. In addition to the usual farm crops, the group produces truck crops for home and market supply, eggs, milk, butter and chickens.

Patronize These Well Known Concerns

LET THE NORWICH GLASS COMPANY REPAIR THOSE BREAKS

The Norwich Glass company at 5 Bath street stands ready at all times to go to the rescue of people who unfortunately break windows at their homes. Accidents which cause breaking of glass in furniture as well as windows are happening all the time. Some people put off repairing these broken pieces and allow them to spoil.

A broken pane of glass in a new house, or in an old house, may cause hundreds of times its value in damage if it is not immediately repaired. Picture a home with expensive furniture. A window is broken and the owner sticks in a piece of cardboard and says: "I'll fix that Saturday or Sunday, when I get time." A day passes and the sun shines. Everything is rosy that day. The family retires and during the night a storm comes up. Rain soon soaks up the cardboard and it falls from the window. Then the rain begins its work of destruction in earnest. Of course the family may realize the danger and rush downstairs immediately and repair the broken cardboard. However some expensive article has been ruined a curtain, shade, or drape torn. And all this because a glass that could cost perhaps from 50 cents to a dollar, plus a little work was not immediately replaced.

The Norwich Glass company has glass for every purpose, and also repairs and resilvers mirrors. Why put up with a blurry old mirror when a few dollars will make it new again?

If anything in this article applies to your particular case, or if you have any problem in glass fitting to be solved, drop in and see us or call 2463 Norwich and tell us about it. We are at your service.

RICKER'S PHARMACY IS A FRIEND IN NEED FOR HUNDREDS

At this season of the year, when there is usually more than the regular amount of colds and sickness, it is at least pleasant to know that the drug store, the friend next to the doctor, stands but a few short steps from your door.

To the hundreds of people on the West Side, Ricker's Drug Store is that friend. Sickness comes suddenly and a doctor is called. Immediate medical attention is recommended. At once a member of the family is sent out for medicine. Then Ricker's Drug Store stands as a friend in need. It is not necessary to travel far from home and waste many precious minutes. A few steps take you to Ricker's store, where two registered pharmacists are on hand to take your prescription and compound it immediately. Thus the much-needed medicine is soon brought back to the home and the work of restoring the sick to good health begins almost immediately.

Besides the modern and efficient prescription department, Ricker's Drug Store also carries complete lines of prepared medicines, candy, tobacco and various other needed articles.

Another popular feature of Ricker's store is the soda fountain. At all seasons of the year this fountain is cared for by employes of the store and patrons are certain of securing immediate service.

If you have not had the habit of dropping into Ricker's Drug Store for your medical needs, pay us a visit the next time you are in need of any of the articles which we carry. We feel sure that you will be pleased with our service and thus become another supporter of the neighborhood drug store—the friend in need when friends are needed the most—and when big downtown stores are too far away to respond to the urgent call of immediate service.

NUTMEG CLUB BEVERAGES ARE ALWAYS PLEASANT

At this season of the year most families in Norwich are doing considerable entertaining. Liquid refreshments, a sparkling glass of ginger ale, are a necessary thing to make these parties a success. Why should any Norwich host or hostess find themselves without the necessary beverages when the season of entertaining is at its height?

Call 2212-2 and ask the company to put you on its list of patrons who are now enjoying daily or weekly service. This service may be provided at times most convenient to you. If you need a case of soda each week, delivery can be made on that basis. More orders may also be added as needed.

Water is a good drink but there are times when water does not seem to hit the spot. That is the time when Nutmeg club beverages stand up and shout "Here we are!" These sparkling beverages have the "just right" flavor that seems to get at that dry spot and stop that craving for something to drink—but not water.

AS A DECORATOR, SABOURIN TACKLES ANY JOB, LARGE OR SMALL

As a decorator P. F. Sabourin of 206 Broad street, tackles a job of any size or amount. No job is too small, nor none too large, Mr. Sabourin says.

Mr. Sabourin has been in the decorating work for many years. He handles small jobbing work and large jobs as well.

Mr. Sabourin gives his personal attention to all jobs and has therefore built a reputation for careful and painstaking work.

If you wish to redecorate your kitchen or any room in the house, Mr. Sabourin will be pleased to consult with you, give you an estimate on your work and likewise do the work for you.

COFFEE SHOP A HANDY PLACE FOR SHOPPERS

Situated near Franklin Square, in the heart of the business district of Norwich the Wauregan Coffee Shop is the ideal place for the tired shopper to stop and enjoy a refreshing meal.

Excellent service, with well cooked foods has always been a policy at the Coffee Shop and hundreds of steady patrons offer the best proof of satisfactory service.

The Coffee Shop serves tasty lunches all day long and during the evening. Dinners are also served.

OFFICERS OF RELIEF CORPS INSTALLED FOR NEW YEAR

Williams Woman's Relief corps met in G. A. R. hall, Tuesday evening when officers for 1929 were installed by Mrs. Annie Maynard of New London, as follows:

President, Mrs. Eleanor Lucy; senior vice president, Mrs. Hattie Grimes; junior vice president, Mrs. Elsie Thorpe; treasurer, Mrs. Leota Wilcox; secretary, Mrs. Margaret Eldridge; chaplain, Mrs. Lucy Lewis; conductor, Mrs. Bertha Pollard; assistant conductor, Mrs. Annie Inderfurth; guard, Mrs. Laura Tiff; assistant guard, Mrs. Mary Packer; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Ira Decker; color bearers, Mrs. Jessie Goodman, Mrs. Lillian Barden, Mrs. Anna Higbee and Mrs. Marian Higbee; press correspondent, Miss R. Carrie Chapman; musician, Mrs. Louis Kinney.

Following the installation, a lunch of chicken salad, rolls, cake and coffee was served by the committee, Mrs. Lillian Barden, chairman, Mrs. Laura Tiff, Mrs. Elsie Thorpe, Mrs. Mary Packer, Mrs. Leota Wilcox and Miss Carrie Chapman. The Sons of Veterans and Daughters of Veterans were guests. About 50 were present.

The Country club is to meet this (Thursday) evening, when the committee will be Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Z. Chesebro, Dr. and Mrs. George S. B. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Lathrop, Miss Katherine Donnelly and Miss Joanna Burnet.

FUNERAL
James Godsie

The funeral of James Godsie, 69, was held Wednesday morning at the home of Richard N. Foley, 1 Ashbey street, Mystic, at 8:30. Requiem high mass at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. John F. Kennedy, the pastor. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Lane-Chesebro Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Lane of North Brookfield, Mass., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Florence Ethlyn to Paul Ridgely Chesebro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Chesebro, of Mystic. Miss Lane was graduated from high school and from the School of Household Arts, Framingham, Mass., and attended Simmons college. She is now in charge of the Household Arts department in Milford, Conn., high school. Mr. Chesebro was graduated from Bulkeley high school, New London and Amherst college, and will receive the degree of doctor of philosophy and chemistry from Princeton university this year. He is assistant principal of the Hun Preparatory School for Boys, at Princeton.

Miss Margaret Sheehan, R. N., after spending a week with her parents in the village, has returned to Waterbury.

Miss Dorothy Gray returned to Providence, Wednesday, to resume her studies at the R. I. College of Education.

Mrs. Emily B. Holmes is recovering, following an operation on her throat.

Chimney Fire

The chimney in the house occupied by Carl Goss on the Mystic road, caught fire Tuesday morning, but the blaze was put out with neighbors' help, without having the Mystic fire department go up.

Mrs. Henry Kellogg was a week end guest of friends in Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kahl have been spending a few days in New York.

Thomas W. Farnsworth has returned from a business trip to Texas and Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Buchaud and two children were guests of relatives in Jewett City, Tuesday.

James Patterson and family have moved from Mystic to Pequonoc Bridge.

Miss Emma Albright has returned from a visit in Pennsylvania.

Miss Margaret Osgood, former physical instructor at Mystic Academy, visited friends here during the holidays.

John Flynn has returned to Waterbury after spending several days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Peter Flynn.

Plans Demonstration

Miss Ruth Russell, the new home demonstration agent of the County Farm bureau is planning a demonstration in regard to foods, the last week in January, for the Mystic group.

Clark Allyn has entered the employment of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries.

Mr. and Mrs. James Galvin after spending a week in New York city, have returned home.

Mystic Rebekah lodge is to install officers Friday evening. District Deputy President Mrs. Annie Rennerson of New London will be the installing officer.

Holiday Illuminations

This holiday season, many people have had trees lighted on the lawns. Many have made a practice of driving around evenings to see the illuminations. Charles E. Wheeler always illuminates his residence on Christmas Eve with candles, making a very effective picture.

Merchants are now engaged in taking inventories of their stock, preparatory to starting the New Year.

Mrs. William F. Baker and son, William F. Baker of Norwood, Mass., Mrs. Ella F. Quintard and daughter, Miss Helen Beesley of Stamford, Conn., were in the village Monday, to attend the funeral of their relative, Henry C. Bingham.

CEDAR ST. GIRL, NORWICH ACCUSES SUSPENDED NEW LONDON PATROLMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—Following the edict last night of Captain of Police Charles A. Finney suspending indefinitely Patrolman George McCaskey, on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, the direct result of a complaint being made to him by the mother and step-father of a girl upon whom it is claimed, the officer has brought disgrace, it was revealed today that the girl is Beatrice Perlatti, 17, of 133 Cedar street, Norwich. Today also resulted in Patrolman McCaskey retaining counsel, for he intends to fight the case before City Manager William A. Holt, when that official conducts a hearing for the purpose of obtaining testimony which will either substantiate the charges or discredit them.

The statements of the girl, made yesterday to Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Desk Sergeant William Babcock, who were instructed by Captain Finney to go to Norwich and interview the girl, are such that most of them will never appear in print. However, the girl related with bitterness and extreme deliberateness her alleged relations with the officer, besides supplying the officers with additional evidence which will be introduced as testimony, when McCaskey faces his accuser.

Statements made by the girl were to the effect that she has been employed as a domestic in a family near Ocean beach and became acquainted with the officer. The acquaintanceship ripened into one of extreme friendliness and resulted in appointments being made, one or more of which resulted in her being taken to a cottage at the shore resort. In the course of events the girl was brought to realize that she was to become a mother. She took medicine and ultimately became a patient for a few days at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. It was after her dismissal from the hospital that the girl's mother and step-father became aware of the girl's condition. The mother and step-father came to New London and made complaint against McCaskey to Captain Pinney. The girl was then sought, to obtain a signed statement. This was provided City Manager Holt this morning and that official immediately conferred with Captain Pinney. No date has been set for the hearing, but it will be the latter part of this week or early next week.

SAILORS OF 11 SUBS FLAGSHIP AND FALCON LEAVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—In the neighborhood of 1500 sailors, comprising crews of 11 submarines, the flagship tender Camden and the salvage vessel Falcon, left this port today for Hampton Roads, Virginia, on the first lap of a southern cruise. Tonight the streets of the city showed the difference for the number of sailors who usually are seen strolling up and down Bank street and State street was noticeably diminished.

Wife No. 2 of James Edgar Cronk and the baby boy born to her a short time ago were sent to Brooklyn yesterday at the expense of the town of Waterford. Mrs Cronk has expressed a desire to go to work and support herself and child and arrangements to help her were made by Selectman Frank J. Alexander. Furniture dealers in this city went to Waterford today and removed furniture from the Cronk home which was not paid for. Cronk is charged with bigamy and his case was postponed last week until the seventh, when he will again be tried in the Waterford court. It is alleged that he married three women without ever having secured a divorce

At a meeting of Martha Washington council, No. 16, Sons and Daughters of Liberty held last night, Madolin Welch was elected councilor. After business gifts from a tree were distributed.

Lack of cold weather creates a problem for local icemen who rely on getting their summer supply from lakes and streams. So far there has not been enough cold weather to make ice.

BROTHERS MORTGAGE FARM TO PAY FINE FOR BOOTLEGGING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—Dominic and Tony Ceravolo own a small farm in Groton. Today they placed a mortgage upon it as a result of the need of money with which to pay a fine for selling bootleg whiskey. Last Thursday afternoon state troopers under the leadership of Sergeant Henry J. Albright swooped down upon the home of the brothers and seized a quantity of illicit whiskey and home brew. The men were arrested. They were fined in the Groton town court $200 and costs and payment was required by today. In order to raise the money they found it necessary to secure a mortgage on their real property holdings. Dominic was also fined for attempted bribery. He offered the troopers fifty dollars if they would let him go at the time he was arrested. Both also received a thirty day suspended jail sentence.

More than fifty guests attended a New Year's party held at Fairview Odd Fellows home, Groton, yesterday. Each one in the institution received a gift after which there was a program of entertainment.

Miss Valentine E. Maxson, daughter of Charles Maxson, of 136 Crystal avenue became the bride Friday night of John G. King of Fall River, Mass. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Star of the Sea rectory by Rev. R. J. O'Callaghan. Mr. King is in business on Main street. Upon their return from a wedding trip he and his bride will reside in Shaw street.

The mass of requiem was sung by Rev Raymond J. O'Callahan. The bearers were Edward Condon, Daniel Casey, George McCormick Edward Cuddy, Thomas Condon and James Casey, cousins of Miss Pickett. Burial was in St Mary's cemetery

The body of Chauncey S. Miller, who died Sunday at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, was forwarded to Dayville today for the funeral and burial.

OBITUARY

Charles E. Rogers

Charles E. Rogers, 75, died last night at his residence, 142 Montauk avenue, death being caused by an acute attack of heart disease. He is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs. A. H. Peckham and Mrs. Frank McMahon, of this city; Mrs. George Young, Waterford and Mrs. William Pemberton, of New Haven and by a son, Walter E. Rogers of New York. Mr. Rogers was a carpenter. He was born in Montville.

Thomas Joseph, aged one year, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sugrue, 11 Jefferson avenue, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital last night from pneumonia, the disease developing following a surgical operation.

Gary Messick, U. S. coast guard, state pier, was in Groton town court this morning charged with speeding and driving without a license On the first charge, Deputy Judge C. S. Willard imposed a fine of $5 and on the latter a penalty of $3 with costs of $11.55 was imposed. Messick was driving an automobile owned by Miss Florence Friedland, 104 Ocean avenue, in which was George Prime of Brooks street, last Sunday forenoon. On Walker Hill, Groton, the car collided with two boulders, then overturned and was wrecked. Prime being painfully injured. When state police officers arrived Messick had fled, but he was arrested the following day.

Mrs. Mary Maxson, 506 Williams street, who attempted suicide Saturday, by swallowing a quantity of iodine during a fit of despondency, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today.

George K. Hall, 78 Pleasant street, Groton, was in the police court today, charged with reckless driving, and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested last evening by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh and upon complaint of Philip Beers, Main street, Niantic.

Arthur Hucks, Submarine base, charged with driving without a license, was fined $10 and costs, while Joseph Bouten, also Submarine base, was charged with loaning his driver's license; he was likewise fined $10 and costs. Hucks was driving about the city yesterday afternoon and when held up by State Police Officer John Smith, it developed that he possessed no license issued to himself, but had Bouten's license to show in the event he was called upon to display credentials for driving.

NORWICH OWNER'S COTTAGE AT BEACH ENTERED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—Mrs. Max Schwartz, 55 Fairmont street, Norwich, reported to the police this afternoon that her cottage at 17 Peninsula avenue, Ocean Beach, had been entered and that much damage had been perpetrated. Mrs. Schwartz did not have knowledge of the date entrance was effected. Entrance was gained by forcing a window.

Two more patrolmen were added to the list of the ailing tonight, when Officer John Clifford was reported as being confined to his bed at his home, Blydenburg avenue, and Officer Henry Sylvia as being indisposed at his home, Ocean avenue. Altogether there are eight members of the department ill.

The New London police late this afternoon were requested to be on the lookout for two prisoners who had escaped from the state reformatory at Cheshire earlier in the day. One is Ambrose Briggs, 13, about five feet three and one-half inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds. He is heavy build and has dark hair and gray eyes. The other prisoner is Edward Gauch, 24, about five feet seven and one-half inches in height and weighs about 124 pounds. The prisoners made their escape by overpowering a guard, tying him hand and foot, enabling them to leave the prison without detection.

James Reed, colored, a member of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Downs, state pier, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital as a result of his having been beaten last night while attending a dance conducted by colored residents of the city at their hall on Hempstead street. Reed was among about 75 men and women at the hall and shortly after 2 o'clock he became involved in a quarrel with another Negro, identity not fully determined by the police. During the quarrel, Reed was struck a blow on the head, rendering him practically unconscious. He was assisted to the street by a companion and then placed in a taxicab. In the vicinity of Union street, Reed and his companion alighted, but Reed was practically helpless and was bleeding from the nostrils. Patrolman Michael Dorsey, who happened along, took charge of Reed, having him taken to police headquarters. When it was realized that Reed's condition was serious he was taken to the hospital, where he remained unconscious until this afternoon.

CORMANT'S DIESEL ENGINES DO 10 1-2 KNOTS IN SOUND TEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—Officials of the New London Ship & Engine Co., subsidiary of the Electric Boat Co., are elated because of the excellent performance of the trawler Cormant built for the Ocean Trawling Co., Boston, this afternoon on Long Island sound where the boat was taken for a test of the Diesel engines with which the trawler is equipped. The test was highly satisfactory in every respect and much interest was manifested by owners of the boat, together with officials of other fishing companies. There were about 40 owners of other fishing industries on the boat to witness the performance of the engines. The Cormant left the harbor about noon and returned about 4 o'clock, during which time a severe test of the engines had been made. During the test the Cormant developed a speed of ten and one-half knots an hour. The Cormant will be hauled out this week to permit minor work to be completed, after which she will go to Boston where she will be put into service at once. The Cormant is fitted throughout with the very latest devices for boats engaged in the fishery business. It is believed that other boats of several fleets will be equipped with the Diesel engines, so satisfactory was today's test. The Cormant cost about $150,000.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris again are co-featured in "Women They Talk About," the Warner Bros.' production which comes to the Broadway theatre today for a run. William Collier, Jr., plays juvenile lead. Anders Randolf, Claude Gillingwater, Jack Santoro and John Miljan are also in the cast. Anthony Coldeway did the story on which Robert Lord based his scenario Lloyd Bacon directed.

"Women They Talk About" is the story of a political battle between a self-made mayor and the woman he at one time loved. To further complicate matters, the son of the mayor and the daughter of the would-be mayoress fall in love.

Henchmen of His Honor perform various tricks on the opposing party, among which is the kidnapping of the woman candidate's daughter. The mayor is shot by accident—he wins through at the polls. He has a period of convalescence in which the old love is revived— and all ends in a way highly satisfactory to the public—to judge from the applause and chuckling which accompanies the piece wherever shown.

No cleverer exposition of the present state of politics has been seen than "Women They Talk About."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Holt, having portrayed the hero roles in a score of Zane Grey's dramas, as filmed by Paramount, has come closer to the west than most persons. In addition he has ranched, ridden range and prospected and knows that part of the world intimately.

"There is no reason to weep over the passing of the western frontier," he declares. "There will always be outposts of civilization, new places to explore and settle. No one yet has lived to tell the world about the country at the headwaters of the Amazon. There are still waste places in the far north and in the far south upon which no man has set foot.

"And when we're through with this earth, perhaps there will be airplanes to carry us to others.

"Furthermore, I know of scores of spots in Wyoming, Arizona, Utah and other states that are a long way from home, places where white men are still curiosities, despite the radio, the airplane and television."

Holt's newest screen role is that of a gambler, "Honest Jack" Dunton, in "Avalanche," which the Palace theatre will show for three days starting today. Baclanova and Doris Hill are the other featured players.

Breed Theatre

Again in a strong, handsome and heroic role, George O'Brien will be seen when the Fox production of "Blindfold" opens a three-day run at the Breed theatre today.

Although he was raised in the shadow of a police station and his father is a distinguished chief of police, George O'Brien until recently never had essayed the role of a cop.

George says it was the ambition of a lifetime, and now it has come to pass. For many years his father, Chief Daniel J. O'Brien, of San Francisco, has urged his son to give a human interpretation of the often misunderstood minion of the law.

George never could find the right part until "Blindfold" was written for Fox by Charles Francis Coe. It was what he was looking for.

The leading feminine role in "Blindfold" is played by the petite Lois Moran of "Stella Dallas" and Fox Films studio fame. Others include Earle Foxe, Fritz Feld and two new Fox "finds," Don Terry and Maria Alba.

The story was directed by Charles Klein and written for the screen by that teller of vivid tales, Charles Francis Coe.

TEA AND COFFEE PLEASE MILLIONS

Sugar Also Adds to Their Flavor

Millions of adults enjoy the flavor of coffee and tea as a beverage, and yet there are some who, because they do not add sugar, miss a great part of the delicate taste that coffee and tea should have.

Why do these people leave sugar out of their coffee or tea? Perhaps some do not know what they miss. Perhaps others feel that they should not enjoy any drink so much. There are people, for example, who persist in taking cold baths when a warm or tepid bath would be much more beneficial. Do they feel that they are benefiting themselves by the hardship of a cold bath? Do people who leave sugar out of their coffee or tea feel that they are benefiting themselves by missing part of the enjoyment?

Just try sugar in your coffee and tea if you haven't yet learned how much it improves it. Learn to use the amount that just suits your taste. Sugar is the perfect flavor developed by Nature. It makes nearly all foods and beverages more delightful to the taste.

Coffee and tea are America's popular beverages. Sugar enables every cup to promote happiness by affording individual flavor. The Sugar Institute.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Peter Has a Full Meal

The change of outlook is complete
When hunger finds enough to eat.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit had had one of the most narrow escapes of all his life. Hooty the Owl or Reddy Fox certainly would have caught him had he not remembered having seen Black Pussy the Cat push open a little swinging door made especially for her in Farmer Brown's barn. Peter had pushed open that little door and entered the barn just as Hooty the Owl was reaching for him. The little door had swung to right in Hooty's face. Now that he was inside, Peter was both thankful and scared. You know, it often is scary to be in a strange place. Funny little shivers ran all over Peter as he sat in that big, dark place. When one of Farmer Brown's horses stamped, Peter jumped almost out of his skin. But with all its scariness, it was better than being outside, where he suspected that Hooty the Owl was waiting and watching. He didn't know that Reddy Fox was also there.

Peter crouched close by that little door through which he had entered. He crouched there for a long time, trembling with fright. But nothing happened. And presently Peter's nose—his wabbly, inquisitive little nose—began to pick up pleasant odors. To begin with, there was the smell of sweet clover hay. It fairly filled the barn. Then Peter caught a whiff of cabbage. It seemed to him that his stomach just turned right over with longing for a bite of cabbage. He stood it as long as he could and then he ventured to move about a little. As nothing happened, he grew bolder and bolder. It was so long since he had had anything but bark and twigs to eat that the pleasant odors in that barn filled him with an irresistible longing for a good meal.

Now it happens that Farmer Brown had a pile of cabbages there in the barn which had not yet been stored away for the winter. It didn't take Peter long to find them. There were loose leaves lying around on the floor. Peter sat right down beside the first one he found and began to eat. He ate and ate until that leaf had wholly disappeared. He sighed with pure enjoyment. Then he ate a second and a third leaf. By that time the edge was off his hunger, as the saying is. He remembered that Reddy Fox had said something about carrots and turnips.

"I'll look around a bit," thought Peter

"I'll look around a bit,' thought Peter. So, with his wabbly little nose a'wabbling, as only it can, Peter began to hop here and there. Presently he found the carrots. Once more he sat himself down to eat. He ate one small carrot and then for the life of him he couldn't eat another mouthful. His stomach was full. Then Peter began to feel sleepy.

"I believe I'll take a nap," said he. "My, but I certainly do feel fine! I wonder why I've never been in here before. Reddy Fox told me the truth I wonder what Fuzzy (meaning little Mrs. Peter) would say if she were here? She didn't believe Reddy. She thought it was just one of Reddy's tricks to get me up here. Ho, hum, I must have a nap."

So Peter began to look about for a place to take a nap. He burrowed under the hay. He even nibbled a little as he burrowed, for it was sweet clover hay, and despite his full stomach he just had to sample it. He only burrowed a little way under. It was delightfully warm. Peter hadn't been so comfortable since the coming of winter. Right then he hadn't a care in the world. His whole outlook had changed just because he had a ful' stomach. In two minutes he was asleep.

FLAG AT McKINLEY BIER GIVEN TO SEAMAN'S HOME

TAMPA, Fla., (AP)—A tattered American flag that was said to have draped the body of President William McKinley when it lay in state in the white house after his assassination has been presented to the seaman's home here.

Made in 1876, it first was used at the New York centennial celebration and later occupied a place of honor in the ballroom when President McKinley was inaugurated. After the assassination it next was flown from the mast of the soldiers' and sailors' monument in New York when President Roosevelt reviewed the fleet on its departure for the world tour in 1907.

Since then it has been aloft only once until hauled to the masthead of the home here recently after it had been presented with appropriat exercises. It will rest in a glass case in the reception room at the home.

MONEY VALUE OF TREE RATED AT THOUSANDS

STAMFORD, Conn., (AP)—What is the money value of a tree?

Dr. E. P. Felt of the Bartlett Research laboratories here says that refusal to part with a tree for $10,000 is not unusual, and that he knows of 50 fair sized elms that sold for $5,000 each.

He estimates the trees for which the town of Greenwich, Conn., 2 celebrated at "not less than one-fourth the town's assessed valuation," which would put their figure at about $25,000,000. Mr. Felt says that from his point of view the value ought to rate at $50,000,000.

OBITUARY

Humphrey P. Brennan

After an illness of but two days, Humphrey P. Brennan passed away at his home, No. 428 Boswell avenue, Monday morning at 7.30 o'clock. He was the son of the late Patrick and Johanna Sullivan Brennan and was born in Greeneville. Most of his life was spent as a farmer, he being classed as a very successful one. Mr. Brennan was united in marriage to Emma Brozofski at St. Patrick's church thirteen years ago by Rev. Father Trainor. Besides his widow, Mr. Brennan is survived by four children, Daniel, William, Henry and Edith Brennan and two brothers, Michael R. Brennan and James Brennan, of this city. He was a veteran of the Spanish American war. In learning of Mr. Brennan's death, his many friends and acquaintances extend their heartfelt sympathy to the family in the time of their bereavement.

Arthur McGowan has returned to resume his studies at Georgetown university after spending the ten-day recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McGowan on Roosevelt avenue.

Stole Christmas Tree Lights.

The Christmas spirit has been no protection for the community trees erected in the city and town. A day or two after the Laurel Hill tree was put up a number of electric light bulbs were stolen from it and the Norwich Town tree has also been raided by thieves who took the colored electric light bulbs.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE IMPOSED UPON NEW LONDON AXE WIELDER

Rock Zekos, New London's champion bad man, according to his record of about 30 appearances in the New London police court, was given a sentence of from three to five years in state prison in the criminal superior court here Wednesday afternoon when he pleaded guilty to assault with intent to kill his daughter with an axe on July 2 at their home, 79 Crystal avenue.

Zekos fled after the assault and was not caught until he was arrested in New Britain in September. In the superior court, Wednesday, Attorney Charles L. Stewart represented Zekos as public defender and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown prosecuted the case.

After Zekos had pleaded guilty and State Attorney Brown had moved for sentence, it was brought out in the course of statements by the two attorneys that Zekos apparently became a fiend when under the influence of drinks and it was while in such a condition that he had committed the offenses which had brought him before the New London court so many times.

On the night of July 2 he went into the cellar of his home and secured an axe, with the intention, it is believed, of killing his wife. As he was coming up out of the cellar the first one he met was his daughter. He swung at her with the axe, but the weapon struck a chandelier before it hit her. However, she received a cut in the back and was knocked over into a window. As she was falling out of the window he threw the axe at her like a tommyhawk, but his aim was bad and the weapon hit the window sill. Then he fled and got out of the city before the police could get their hands on him. The investigation by the officers convinced them that but for the chandelier Zekos would be facing a charge of murder as he would undoubtedly have killed his daughter with the first blow he aimed at her.

State Prison for Theft

Another to receive a state prison sentence from Judge Avery Wednesday was Frederick I. Stamm of this city, accused of theft of $70 from his former employer, Elijah Lathrop of the Gardner Lake section of the town of Montville. Stamm was given from two to four years in state prison. This will be his second state prison term, it is understood.

He was accused of taking the money from Lathrop's trousers pocket, on Nov. 15, while Lathrop, who is 80 years old, was asleep. Stamm got away by taking a bus bound for Hartford and was arrested on the bus.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY BY POQUETANUCK WOMEN'S GUILD

The Women's Guild of St. James' church, Poquetanuck, held its annual New Year's party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Mary Harris. A roast pork dinner was served at noon to 22 members of the guild. After dinner a short business meeting was held and quarterly reports were read by the secretary and the treasurer. A very interesting letter from Miss Ella B. Lucas of Mavik, Alaska, was read by Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford. This was followed by the distribution of New Year's gifts by Orrin Harris, Jr. Mrs. Harris was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Smith, president of the guild, who had charge of the affair and Mrs. Charles Harkness, Mrs. Alanson Fuller, Mrs. Fred Nicolai and Mrs. George Betting.

ASSISTED IN INSTALLATION OF NEW LONDON OFFICERS

New Year's night, 12 members of Norwich chapter, 124, Women of Mooseheart Legion, journeyed to New London to assist in the installation of the New London officers.

The Moose Home there was beautifully decorated and in spite of bad weather was well filled with members of the Loyal Order of Moose and invited guests.

Past Regent Mary Geer of New London was grand installing officer and Past Regent Teresa Watters of Norwich was grand installing guide.

Assisting the installing officers were eight members of the Norwich degree team, Legionaires Martha Wunderlich, Irene Burns, Evelyn Kane, Vera Sterry, Nora Willett, Margaret Comire, Nellie Dorr and Mary Edwards. Past Regent Geer made a very efficient installing officer. The following officers were installed for the ensuing year: Senior regent, Gertrude Finnegan; junior regent, Elisebeth Nichols; chaplain, Alvina Lavoie; recorder, Bertha Mahaffy; treasurer, Jennette Keenan; guide, Elisebeth Ables; assistant guide, Anna Roderick; sentinel, Helen Leno; Argus, Mary Leal; pianist, Margaret Mattertall. Remarks were made by Deputy District Supervisor Ethel M. Hoelck, Past Regent Emma Beaver and Past Regent Teresa Watters of Norwich.

The vice-dictator of New London lodge, L. O. O. M., and a number of the brothers, when called upon for remarks, one and all complimented Past Regent Geer upon the growth of New London chapter under her leadership; also upon the excellent way the work was put on Tuesday night. All were loud in their praise of Norwich degree team, which was led by Martha Wunderlich and Irene Burns, and the way they carried out the floor work. They made a very pretty sight with their red satin coats, white satin skirts, white stockings and red shoes.

A beautiful head bag was presented to Past Regent Geer and a gold piece to Past Regent Watters.

Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cake, coffee and ice cream were served after the meeting.

TO CONSIDER SITE FOR D. A. R. CHAPTER MUSEUM

With the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, presiding, the monthly meeting of Faith Trumbull Chapter, Inc., D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis was named acting secretary for the meeting. Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, the treasurer, reported a balance of $293.86 and Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, the registrar, reported a total membership of 184, a gain of three for the past month.

Mrs. Albert J. Sinay, reporting for the ways and means committee, announced that the committee is planning to hold an entertainment at Slater hall annex, Miss Mary L. Pardee, secretary of the Connecticut D. A. R., will speak on Shopping Around the World.

The chairman of the patriotic education committee, Mrs. Frank L. Royce, read a letter from the school at Hindman, Ky., thanking the chapter for the box of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Royce stated that another box is to be sent to Ellis Island, next month.

The museum committee, through its chairman, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne, stated that she has received a number of articles given the chapter by Mrs. Osgood and that the chapter may take them over at any time.

Mrs. Dawley, the regent, announced that the chapter is expected to designate its preference for state offices and councillors soon. The delegates to the state conference and for the national conference, will be named at the February meeting. Mrs. Pettis, acting secretary, announced the committee for memorial flowers as follows: Mrs. George A. Keppler, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs and Mrs. Albert S. Comstock.

Mrs. Browne laid before the meeting a recommendation from the board of management that a committee to visit and report upon, possible property for a museum be elected by the chapter and that this committee consist of three, one from the museum committee, one from the advisory board, and one from the chapter who is not on either the museum committee or the board of management. A committee of the board presented these three names for the approval of the chapter: Mrs. Wilber S. Alling, Miss Nancy E. Lucas, Mrs. Howard L. Stanton.

Mrs. Comstock, the chapter treasurer, placed before the meeting recommendations from the board of management that the chapter's quota for the monument to the founder of the N. S. D. A. R. (ten cents a member, $18.50) be paid now. Also that the quota for the Conn. Guide to Historic Spots (25 cents a member, $45.25) be paid and that the better films committee be empowered to buy what is known as a "trailer" on the correct uses of the flag, to be loaned to schools and theatres.

The afternoon's programme during the social hour consisted of music by Mrs. Raymond C. Brittin and Mrs. W. H. Stebbins, a five minute paper on defense by Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, a travel talk by Mrs. William H. Oat and tea was served by a committee of which Mrs. William S. Elliott was chairman.

NORWICH TOWN

FIRST CONG. CHURCH HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

When the annual meeting of the First Congregational church took place Tuesday evening in the chapel, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, presided and quoted words of Scripture from the fourth chapter of Philippians. The meeting opened with congregational singing of hymns from the new song books used in the Sunday school, "Worship the King," "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," and "To the Knights in the Days of Old." Miss Louise Sterry played the piano accompaniments. Rev. Charles E. Reeves offered prayer. The minutes of the last meeting and the report of the year just closed were submitted by the clerk, Herbert L. Yerrington, who was re-elected to fill this office during the business session. Henry T. Frazier, treasurer of church benevolences, read his report. He also was unanimously re-elected.

For the League of Service, the secretary, Miss Mary Wattles, read a lengthy and interesting report covering nearly all of the church benevolences throughout the year. She also read the report of the league treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Chapin. William Randall Lathrop was re-elected a deacon for six years, he having completed a term of six years. George F. Hyde, the faithful chairman of the board of ushers, was re-elected. The committee on welcome and reception for the coming year comprises Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, Mrs. Sarah Chapin, Miss Lillian Browning, Mrs. David M. Dean, Mrs. Charles E. Reeves and Charles W. Barber and Furton W. Jopson. This committee, which functions largely in the church's interest in a social way, is somewhat changed each year.

Henry T. Frazier, Mrs. Carlos Ricker and Mrs. James F. Connolly were the delegates appointed to represent this church at the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers' meetings.

The report of the chairman of the nominating committee, Miss Susan C. Hyde, for the League of Service, as read by Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, named the following officers and committee chairmen: President, Henry T. Frazier; vice-president, Arthur W. Avery; secretary, Miss Mary Wattles; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Chapin; men's department, James F. Connolly, chairman; women's dept., Mrs. Dwight W. Avery; young people's dept., Mrs. Burton W. Jopson; children's dept. Miss Jessie E. Hyde; cradle roll, Miss Bernice Underwood; home dept., Mrs. Ronald R. Nelson; literature dept., Miss Louise Hyde, chairman. Many of the above were re-elected. At the close of business, Mr. Yerrington read a most interesting letter from a former beloved pastor for about 20 years, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, now of California. An evening hymn, "Peacefully Round Us the Shadows are Falling," and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," were sung with Mr. Yerrington at the piano. The closing prayer and benediction were by Rev. Charles E. Reeves.

The reports of the different organized classes in the church school are to be forwarded to Rev. Mr. Bailey, which in turn, will be summarized in the form of a sermon at Sunday morning worship, during this month.

At a recent meeting of the G. O. A. L. class of the Congregational Sunday school, held at the home of the teacher, Clyde M. Beebe, the following were elected to office: President, Crosby Peck; vice-president, Ernest Nylen; secretary, Carl Nylen; treasurer, Henry Counterman. This class of young men has planned a meeting for Monday evening next at the home of the president, Crosby Peck, Otrobando avenue.

Loyal Circle Aids

In the Johnson Home report submitted by the matron, Mrs. May Rollins, it should have been stated that the Loyal circle of the King's Daughters, during 1928, contributed to its room at the home, six pillow covers, six towels, a dresser scarf and stand cover. The occupant of this room, Miss Mary Witter, who has been a shut-in for several years, receives the most devoted attention from the members of Loyal circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Sanderson have returned from their wedding trip which took them as far as Montreal. The trip of 1,600 miles was made by automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson are now at their home on Tingley street, Willimantic. Monday afternoon and evening they were visitors at the home of Mrs. Sanderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley, of Town street. While in Norwich Town, Mrs. Sanderson made a few brief calls on former neighbors.

Is on U. S. S. Camden

When U. S. S. Camden left the Submarine base, New Year's day, for a cruise of about five months to Panama and other ports, one of her crew was a former Norwich Town young man, Chief Signalman Robert Wells Sterry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterry. Before his departure, Mr. Sterry visited his parents and other relatives in Norwich Town. He has been in the United States navy about 14 years. The ship and crew usually sojourns south each winter. For about six weeks prior to Thanksgiving, 1928, the Camden and crew were at Boston navy yard. For the several preceding months, this mother ship had been at the Sub base.

Cat Catches Wild Duck

A Persian cat belonging to Mrs. Irene Holmes of 157 West Town street, appeared to its owner on New Year's with a wild duck, which it had caught. Because of its size, the duck was successful in releasing itself from its captor.

RED-LETTER EVENT FOR Y. M. C. A. BOYS' DIVISION

The first red-letter event to take place in the year 1929 in the boys' division of the local Y. M. C. A. will be the fourth semi-annual Boosters' club membership banquet this (Thursday) evening at 6:15 o'clock.

Every member of the boys' division who has secured a new member since the last banquet will be entitled to enjoy a free supper and a fine social program following the supper. About 45 boys have qualified for this event. The leaders in securing members are George Lambert, Stephen Stefano, Leo Lahn, Harold Robbins, George MacNeil, H. Dickinson, Thomas Smith, Walter Crandall, Theodore Kennedy. The contest prizes and pins will be awarded at the supper.

Plans for the membership race between four teams composed of the members of the Boosters' club will also be outlined at the meeting. The six-reel feature picture, "The Man from Hardpan," will be a part of the social program to be enjoyed by the Boosters. The way a member of the boys' division can secure a ticket to this event, is by securing a new member.

Among those who have qualified are Leo Lahn, J. Paquette, Wm. Fitzgerald, Wm. Sheridan, Neil Leary, John Gallivan, Leo Farrell, A. Serfain, S. Placenza, Carlton Bellows, L. Cochran, H. Dickerman, Wm. Kinney, C. White, W. White, R. Morin, P. Smith, F. Higgins, T. Doyle, G. McNeil, R. Kearns, E. Stevens, T. Smith, A. Bundy, W. Crandall, E. Seder, C. Malogrides, Scopelitis, G. Lambert, H. Robbins, J. Stevens, T. Kennedy, H. Dickerman, James Murphy, L. Clouthier, Albert Smith, T. Mullens, W. Gruska, E. Lichenstein, G. Lichenstein.

Others may qualify any time up to 6 o'clock this (Thursday) night by bringing in a new member.

MEN STUDY BIBLE IN CLASS AT NORWICH Y

At the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening, the weekly Bible study men's class met at the supper hour. The topic was "Jesus strengthening the demands of righteousness," and the scripture was a part of the fifth chapter of Matthew.

Among the points brought out in the discussion were the following: Jesus in a sense classified anger with murder, for oftimes back of the murder is the anger. A Christian man cannot worship God acceptably if he harbors enmity against another, nor can a man pray acceptably if he is in love with some pet sin; "if I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." A Christian man should not wait for the other party to a quarrel to come half way to make up, but he himself should go more than half way if necessary.

Jesus put adultery in the realm of thought while the old law confined it to the act. There is probably no sin so far-reaching in bad results as adultery or impurity. Jesus took the more searching view of what adultery was because he realized that "the thought is father to the deed."

Society would become chaos if the law, "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," was practiced by the majority of the people. A man gains absolutely nothing by returning evil for evil, nor does a man ever loss anything by returning good for evil. The man who practices the idea of non-resistance in a sane way achieves far greater success than he who follows the "get-even" spirit. Jesus "was led as a lamb to the slaughter, yet He opened not His mouth."

COUNTY MINISTRY TO HOLD ITS ANNUAL QUIET DAY

The ministry of New London county and vicinity have been invited by the Second Congregational church at New London to hold its quiet day at the church next Tuesday. The meeting is under the auspices of the continuation committee and is to have the following program:

Miscellaneous Shower for Bride

A delightful miscellaneous shower was recently tendered Mrs. Frank DeLarm at the home of Mrs. Harold Lathrop of Fitchville. There were about 30 friends of Mrs. DeLarm present and she was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Games were played and refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Frank Lathrop and Miss Blanche Lathrop.

Mrs. DeLarm was formerly Miss Helen Greene of Greeneville and is employed as bookkeeper in the United States Finishing Co.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Evelyn Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Huntington, has returned to Vassar college, following the holiday vacation at her home on Harland road.

Mrs. E. G. Evans of Albany is visiting her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breed Gilbert.

Prof. Thomas G. Brown of Otis street will sail Thursday, Jan. 10, on steamer Adriatic for a Mediterranean cruise, as lecturer.

Friends of Mrs. Burrill Woodworth Hyde remembered that Tuesday, Jan. 1, was her birthday and she received messages and felicitations.

Donald Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Gilbert returned Wednesday to Middletown to resume his studies at Wesleyan after spending the holidays at his home here.

The Wednesday club held its first meeting of the New Year with Mrs. Hugh Baird Campbell. The hostess had the paper, its subject Dr. Trudeau.

BALTIC

Frank Bourgeois, who has been spending six months' vacation with friends in New York, has returned to Baltic.

Miss Thelma Newman, a student at the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Backus hospital, Norwich, is resting comfortably.

PENNIES STOLEN IN BURGLARY AT STORE

Another break, the fourth since the first of the week, was reported to the police Wednesday morning. The latest break was at the Disco Bros.' store on Main street. Entrance to the store was gained through a rear window which was smashed, and about 80 cents in pennies was taken from a cash register. Boys are blamed for the break

Appeals Waterford Court Sentence

After a three-hour trial in Waterford town court, Monday, Philip Miller of the Quaker Hill section of Waterford was found guilty of a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. He had pleaded not guilty. Miller was defended by Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who took an appeal to the court of common pleas.

It was charged that an automobile operated by Miller had crashed into the rear of a truck and then was involved in a head-on collision with a car operated by Charles O'Brien. O'Brien, injured in the accident, appeared in court leaning upon a cane.

Conn. Girl in Mother's Steps

"Out of sight, out of mind" is a true saying. The fact that we can't see what's happening inside our children's bodies is the reason so many of us allow them to go on suffering from constipation until they are full of the poisons from decaying waste and they're bilious, headachy, sallow and weak with no appetite or energy. Watch your baby or child, Mother, and at the first sign of coated tongue, bad breath or feverishness, give him a little California Fig Syrup. This rich, fruity product gently expels all the souring waste; gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels, so they continue to act normally; stimulates the circulation; tones and nourishes the entire system.

Its sales record of over four million bottles a year and the enthusiastic praise of women everywhere, prove mothers depend on it today as they have for more than fifty years. A Hartford mother, Mrs. Clayton Field, 69 Rowe Ave., Hartford, says: "I used to take California Fig Syrup, so when my little girl began to suffer with constipation I started her on it. It stopped her trouble quickly and made her look ever so much better. I kept using it with her for a few weeks and it made a different girl out of her. She has grown so well and strong and is never sick any more."

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

QUESTION MARK HAS BROKEN AERIAL REFUELING RECORD

At 8.33.46 o'Clock Last Night the Army Plane Had Been in the Air 61 Hours and 7 Minutes—Previous Record of 60 Hours and 7 Minutes Was Made by Belgians—The Great Fokker Now Aims to Make Record For Sustained Flight, Regardless of Refueling—It was Set by the Germans at 62 Hours and 25 Minutes—The Army Plane is Flying Over Imperial Valley, Having Been Driven From the Coast by Fog.

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 3—(AP)—The world's record for sustained flight by refueling was broken tonight by the American army monoplane Question Mark, which took off here on New Year's day and was still flying tonight at 8:33:46 o'clock. At that hour the ship had been in the air 61 hours, 7 minutes, or 1 hour longer than the record established by two Belgian fliers last June.

Aeronautic standards require that a record must be surpassed by an hour to be broken.

The great Fokker soared on toward another record, that for sustained flight, regardless of refueling, set by the Germans at 65 hours and 25 minutes. At 12:31 a. m. Friday, if the tri-motored plane is still going, the second new record mark will have been reached.

Two hours after the Belgian record had been equalled the great ship was still circling over Imperial Valley, having shifted to that section this afternoon because of fog along the original route between San Diego and Los Angeles. The motors were humming smoothly at last reports.

Although the Fokker officially had broken the previous refueling endurance record at 8:33:26 o'clock the time at which she would have been in the air the necessary one hour longer than the record holding Belgian plane, at that time she was not seen by any observers. Certainty that the monoplane still flew was not obtained until after 9 o'clock, when she reappeared over Brawley where she made several circles and then appeared over the Imperial airport, 12 miles down the valley.

QUESTION MARK IN FLIGHT OVER IMPERIAL VALLEY

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Calif, Jan. 3—(AP)—Fog late today forced the Question Mark, army plane attempting to shatter the refueling endurance flight record, to abandon its stated course between Rockwell Field, San Diego, and Los Angeles, to cross the Santa Rosa Mountains into Imperial Valley.

The tri-motored Fokker appeared 1,000 feet above Brawley in the heart of the valley at 4:30 o'clock, at which hour she had been in the air 57 hours. Her motors were purring smoothly and with the sun shining brightly visibility was excellent. The plane headed northward up the valley, which she is expected to circle throughout the night.

After a night described as "hectic" by Major Spatz and a day during which poor visibility placed the tri-motored monoplane in constant danger, the huge craft wheeled its way to the valley which lies below sea level and is surrounded by mountains.

Refueling plane No. 2, formerly stationed at San Diego, was ordered to proceed to Imperial airport, near El Centro., Cal., and to prepare to remain there until the fog on the coast dispersed. The Question Mark will circle the the valley indefinitely. Should a landing be forced before the ship can return to the coast, it will be made at the government airport in Mexicali, Lower California, Major Spatz indicated.

In the event the big craft is forced to land in Imperial Valley its attempt at records will be futile, observers here say, since the rules require that the plane end its flight at the port from which it took off.

An optimistic message from the Question Mary indicated that there was no danger of an immediate landing. Every one aboard was reported well and the condition of the plane was described as "normal." The Wright Whirlwind motors with which the plane is equipped were running smoothly.

ONE BANK ROBBER KILLED; FOUR OTHERS CAPTURED

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 3—(AP)—One bank robber was killed, four were captured and three escaped in three robberies in the southwest today. Two bank employes were held captive tonight by two robbers at large.

At Asher, Okla., two men robbed the Canadian Valley State bank late today, kidnaped Cashier W. M. Hampton and Carl Cochran, bookkeeper, then sped out of town in a northerly direction by motor car. Although a posse pursued them, the robbers had not been found hours after the holdup. The amount of loot was undetermined.

The robber killed went down after he and two other men had looted the First National bank at Mexico, Mo. One companion was captured and another escaped.

Three men who attempted to rob the Gunnison Valley bank at Gunnison, Colo., early today, were unable to open the safe and were captured after a chase in which one of them was shot. The wounded man gave the name of John Briant. The two others, who gave their names as Anderson and Bauer, were found hidden in a haystack. In disarming Briant a member of the posse tripped the trigger of his pistol and the charge entered the robber's stomach.

The dead robber at Mexico was identified tonight as Willie Hightower, Chicago, while his companion gave the name of John Matthews, 20, Chicago. Matthews said the other companion was Tom Davis, 40, also of Chicago.

The trio in this robbery obtained $2,000 in cash and securities when they forced customers and employes to lie flat on the floor while the assistant cashier was obliged to hand over the money. The robbers escaped in an automobile which ran into a ditch near Auxvasse, Mo. Here Hightower was shot through the head and killed by Elmer Johnson, World war veteran and filling station attendant. A posse captured Matthews and went in pursuit of the third robber. A sack of loot was found by possemen while another sack was believed to be hidden in the woods near Auxvasse.

JURY TO INQUIRE INTO PADDED PAYROLLS CHARGE

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP)—A new special grand jury to inquire into charges of padded payrolls, political and police corruption and the rackets they are accused of protecting, was ordered today to be impaneled next Wednesday by Chief Justice J. J. Sullivan of the criminal court today on application of John A. Swanson, Cook county's new state's attorney.

SLED DOG MAIL TEAM HAS ARRIVED AT ST. ALBANS

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 3—(AP)—Alden Pulsifer and his sled dog mail team, en route from Lewiston, Me., to Montreal, arrived here today after a 34-mile run from Milton. Pulsifer planned to remain here until tomorrow noon, pushing onto Swanton and Enosburg Falls. After crossing the Canadian border, Pulsifer expects to make his first stop at St. John's, Que.

WANTS $5,000 DAMAGES FOR A HUG WHICH BROKE A RIB

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 3—(AP)—Mrs. Aida Porter of Meadville wants $5,000 damages for a hug which broke a rib.

In an action filed in court here today, Mrs. Porter said she entered the employ of John Schwartzman of near Northeast on Nov. 22 and that on Dec. 29 Schwartzman seized her and hugged her so tight one rib was fractured and two others injured.

ANTI-FASCISTS IN NEW YORK DENOUNCED MUSSOLINI

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Anti-Fascists and radicals booed and waved placards denouncing Mussolini today when Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian minister of aviation, visited City hall for a reception by Mayor Walker.

A crowd had gathered in the plaza of City Hall park when the air minister's party, including Commendatore E. Grazzi, Italian consul-general in New York, drew up in automobiles escorted by two motorcycle policemen. An Italian reception committee stood on the steps of City hall and cheered, but some in the crowd jeered and raised the placards.

Fifty uniformed patrolmen and several detectives charged into the crowd and seized the cards, but the booing continued and was supplemented with shouts of "Down with Mussolini." Order was restored quickly, however, and Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen conducted the party to the reception chamber.

The crowd set up another demonstration when the air minister left City hall, but his party was escorted away without difficulty. No arrests were made.

General Balbo, who arrived from Washington this morning at Pennsylvania station on a tour of the country, was met by a detail of detectives of the radical suad. Police said an Italian radical last night addressed a meeting at which pamphlets denouncing Balbo were distributed.

CHARGES FORMER JUSTICE IS FATHER OF HER SON

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 3—(AP)—Charges that Judge C. O. Craig, former Illinois supreme court justice and wealthy Knox county banker, is the father of her 12-year-old son, Richard, and that he has failed to carry out a verbal agreement for the boy's support, were made by Miss Fern Yates, 30, of Chicago and Los Angeles, in an amended declaration to her $150,000 damage suit filed today in Knox county circuit court against Mr. Craig.

"She is making charges that are blackmail and absolutely false," said Mr. Craig. "We intend to fight it to the end to prove that it is a scheme to extort money."

Miss Yates alleged that Mr. Craig promised to pay her $100,000 and to establish a $100,000 trust fund for the boy to be given him when he becomes 21 years of age. The agreement, she said, was made in 1923 and until a year ago she said Mr. Craig had paid her installments of $500 a month. She now asks damages covering the amount she claims is due, with interest.

The girl was Mr. Craig's stenographer here from 1911 to 1916.

WAYWARD PARENTS PROBLEM FACING THE YOUNG PEOPLE

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 3—(AP)—The Methodist Episcopal World Service conference was told by E. J. Gratz, editor of the Epworth Herald, that the great problems facing young people today are wayward parents and the divorce complex.

"A boy and a girl will plunge in marriage with the idea in mind that if they don't hit it off properly, there is a divorce just around the corner," he said. "That is a complex that should be corrected."

Despite the poor example set by "syncopating grandparents and fast-stepping parents," however, he felt that young people are growing better and better each day.

"Many young men and women are more moral than their parents," he said. "Much of the recklessness of youth today can be blamed on the poor examples set by grandparents and parents."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LIEGE, Belgium, Jan. 3—(AP)—Fifteen workmen were drowned when an automobile transporting them fell into the Aurthe river this evening.

ANTWERP, Jan. 3—(AP)— Princess Victoria, sister of the former Kaiser of Germany, and her young husband, Alexander Subkoff, sailed yesterday as ordinary passengers on the steamship Anversville for the Congo. It was stated that Subkoff had obtained a post with the Societe Congalaise.

CHIMNITZ, Germany, Jan. 3—(AP)—The 332,000 inhabitants of this saxon industrial city have been forbidden, under pain of severe penalties, to bathe except on Sundays. The order resulted from a water shortage due to the dry season and the absence of a control system for the Chemnitz river, on which the city is situated.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in America, Bishop Paul Matthews, of New Jersey, Father Harrison of the Order of the Holy Cross, and Mr. Hoke Gray, of Boston, arrived here today. Bishop Murray on Sunday will consecrate a new Episcopal cathedral here, the first cathedral consecration outside the United States by the presiding bishop.

18 AUTO FATALITIES IN CONNECTICUT LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Jan. 3—(AP)—Eighteen automobile fatalities occurred in Connecticut in the week ending Saturday, Dec. 29, 1928, according to the weekly report of the motor vehicle department. The number is the largest that has been recorded in the state in any week for more than three years.

With two days of 1928 still unrecorded the automobile fatalities for 1928 out-numbered 1927 by 103. The number of deaths for 1928 at the close of the week was 459 as compared with 356 for the entire year of 1927.

The 18 fatalities for the week resulted from 15 accidents of the 513 that were reported to the motor vehicle department. Of this number, 316 were reported from ten larger cities. The same week a year ago produced 519 accidents, 11 of which brought death.

Christmas eve witnessed 123 of the accidents that were reported in the week. Several of the fatalities occurred from these accidents.

The fatal accidents were: Avon, Alfred Wurts and John Keefe; Berlin, John Henry and Louis D. DeRosa; Bridgeport, Mrs. Hannah O'Donnell; Cheshire, Mrs. Clarence Loveridge; Derby, Steffa Liska; East Hartford, Orin Morrill; Hamden, Clarence Reid; Hartford, Louis Markman, Mrs. Elizabeth Tobin; Middletown, Fred Kreising; Norwalk, May Murphy; New London, Richard Beckwith; Stonington, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel MacDowell

FRANK G. ALLEN INAUGURATED GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Alvan T. Fuller stepped out of office as governor of Massachusetts today to the accompaniment of an echo of the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Simultaneously Frank G. Allen, who has seen service as lieutenant-governor under Fuller for four years, was inaugurated as governor and in his inaugural address called for drastic action against drunken automobile drivers.

As a prelude there was a brief drama in the executive offices at the state house. Mr. Fuller turned over to the incoming governor the insignia of his office. When Governor Allen told him he would endeavor to uphold "the high standard" of the Fuller administration, Mr. Fuller said:

"That's good of you, Frank."

The incoming governor left him. Mr. Fuller, showing evidences of emotion, shook hands with state house employes, kissed the state flag on his desk, then walked down his private stairway. Leaving the state house by the broad portico of the bulfinch front, he walked alone down the long steps to Beacon street. A gun on the Common was booming in salute to Governor Allen.

$3,350 AWARDED NEWSBOY FOR AUTOMOBILE INJURIES

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 3—(AP)—A verdict for $3,350 was awarded in superior court today to Arthur R. Mason, Jr., a newsboy, of this city, injured last spring by an automobile owned by the Albro Motor Sales Co. The boy's skull was fractured and he also received a punctured brain when he ran into an automobile driven by Stanley Albro. The suit asked for $10,000.

DOG RETRIEVED A HUMAN FOOT AND PART OF A LEG

BROAD ALBIN, N. Y., Jan. 3—(AP)—A human foot and part of a leg, brought to the home of a farmer six miles from here today by a Shepherd dog, tonight furnished state troopers and sheriffs men with a mystery investigation of which they thought might reveal a murder.

MARRIAGE OF AUTHOR OF "HOW TO GET RID OF A WOMAN"

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Two months ago Edward Anthony, who was eastern press director of the Hoover campaign, published a book on "How to Get Rid of a Woman." Today he was a married man.

The bride was Miss Esther Howard, publicity secretary of the New York state Hoover committee. Announcement of the marriage was made today after they had sailed for a honeymoon abroad.

REPORT OF WRECK OF THE FRENCH STEAMER MALAKOFF

MAHON, Isle of Minorca, Balearic Islands, Jan. 4—(Friday)—(AP)—The French steamer Malakoff was wrecked between Cape Bartrium and Santa Galdana bay (on the southwest coast of Minorca) today. Some of those aboard were saved.

The Malakoff is listed as bound from Dunkirk and Havre to Madagascar; its displacement is given as 2,819 tons.

OBITUARY

William C. Adamson

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—William C. Adamson, former Georgia congressman who sponsored the railroad act named for him, died of pneumonia tonight at Presbyterian hospital. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Adamson, a resident of Carrollton, Ga., was taken to the hospital a little more than a week ago. While at times some improvement was noted in his condition, today he was said to be "very poor" and oxygen was administered at intervals.

Two Rockefeller Institutions Merge

Listed Value of More Than $223,000,000 to Promote the Welfare of Mankind.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Two philanthropic institutions founded by John D. Rockefeller "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world," which have property with a listed value of more than $223,000,000 and an actual value far greater, were consolidated today by permission of the supreme court.

The institutions are the Rockefeller foundation, organized in 1913, and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, founded in 1918 in memory of the oil magnate's wife. The combined organization will be known as the Rockefeller foundation.

Consolidation was desired because the two institutions were organized for kindred purposes and it was believed their work could be more effectively carried out if they were merged.

Since they were organized the foundation and the memorial have given millions of dollars to educational and research institutions in this and several foreign countries.

Until the first annual meeting of the new organization in May the following were appointed as directors and trustees: James R. Angell, Trevor Arnett, John W. Davis, David L. Edsall, Simon Flexner, Raymond P. Fosdick, Jerome D. Greene, Ernest M. Hopkins, Charles P. Howland, Vernon Kellogg, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Julius Rosenwald, Anson Phelps Stokes, Frederick Strauss, Augustus Trowbridge, George E. Vincent, George H. Whipple, William Allen White, Ray Lyman Wilbur, Arthur Woods and Owen D. Young.

The application for consolidation set the value of the foundation's property at $158,090,543.04 and the Memorial's at $65,127,535.42. Liabilities were $21,781,605.23 and $26,889,577.02. The Foundation's property includes stock listed at $98,811,060.82, but having a market value of $163,803,476.84. The Memorial has stock listed at $17,950,742.80 but with a market value of $35,744,838.

The rest of the property is in bonds, land, buildings and secured loans.

The Rockefeller Foundation announced creation of a new corporation, the Spelman Fund of New York, to carry on the work done by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial in the advancement and diffusion of knowledge concerning child life, the improvement of inter-racial relations and cooperation with public agencies.

EDW. G. BUCKLAND ACTING PRESIDENT NEW HAVEN ROAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—The board of directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, at a special meeting today elected Edward G. Buckland of New Haven chairman of the board with power to work as president until a president is elected. Edward J. Pearson, former president, died recently at Baltimore.

Mr. Buckland has been associated with the road for 20 years, serving in recent years as vice-president in charge of law and finance. For nine years before joining the road, he was engaged in general practice and was instructor and assistant professor of law at Yale.

Although the next regular meeting of the directors takes place next Tuesday, it is not expected that a president will be elected at that time.

DRUM OF ETHYLENE GAS EXPLODED, KILLING DOCTOR

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 3—(AP)—Dr. Dalton Wilson, surgeon at Walker hospital, was killed instantly and his body blown almost to bits when a drum of ethylene gas he was trying to repair exploded this afternoon in a laboratory.

Edward Taylor, a Negro attendant, escaped with a fractured leg, body injuries and seriously injured ear drums.

The body of the surgeon was thrown through a six-inch wall, two receiving rooms were almost totally destroyed and windows throughout the building were shattered.

A spark caused by friction against metal on the drum is believed to have ignited the gas.

THE NUN CONCEPCION IS ILL IN PENITENTIARY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Nun Concepcion, sentenced to twenty years imprisonment in connection with the assassination last July of General Alvaro Obregon, is seriously ill at the penitentiary here, it was said today.

She is suffering from a lung ailment and a recurrence of an old trouble with one of her feet, occasioned in a fall years ago. El Universal Grafico says gangrene has set in the injured foot and the member itself is threatened.

In view of the illness she has been moved from the floorless cell, in which she was quartered to a more comfortable one.

Kellogg Treaty Given Priority In Senate

Backers Are Confident of Keeping the Pact Ahead Until Finally Acted Upon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Kellogg treaty [illegible] war early overtook the [illegible]struction bill as the senate [illegible] barrier on the two proposition[illegible] and the treaty backers were [illegible]t tonight of keeping it ahe[illegible]inally acted upon.

Sc[illegible] applause from some women [illegible] gallery attracted attention to [illegible]don of Chairman Borah of the f[illegible]n relations committee, in charge of the pact, as he moved to proceed to discussion of the treaty late in the day.

The motion went through with a perfunctory vote which registered no nays and a crowded chamber listened attentively as Senator Borah launched the much awaited debate.

Previously, under questioning, Chairman Hale of the naval committee and in charge of the cruiser bill, confirmed an agreement with Senator Borah that the treaty would be permitted to displace the naval measure "temporarily."

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who waited his chance today to rip into the treaty, asked Hale about the cruiser treaty agreement and was informed by Hale that he would give a "reasonable time" for action on the treaty before seeking to bring up the naval bill again. Hale said he believed this would facilitate final action on the cruiser bill.

Smiling confidently, Borah listened to this discussion. He believes he has sufficient votes to keep the pact constantly before the senate regardless of the agreement.

There were long waiting lines at the gallery doors and the senate floor was well filled with members as Senator Borah delivered his opening address devoting attention to a history of the pact and to the the "important questions" raised in its connection.

THOMAS W. MILLER HAS BEEN DENIED A PAROLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3— (AP) — Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, convicted of conspiring to defraud the government in administration of alien property seized during the World war, was denied a parole today by Attorney-General Sargent. The prisoner, who was sentenced to serve 18 months in the federal prison at Atlanta, was recommended for parole by the parole board about a month ago.

Heretofore the attorney-general has disapproved the recommendations of the parole board only on rare occasions and then on the grounds that to grant the parole would be against public policy. Mr. Sargent, however, gave no reason for disapproving the Miller parole.

The former alien property custodian, convicted in New York about two years ago, started serving his sentence last April 24.

He became eligible for parole last October and was recommended for it early in December. His sentence will expire with good behavior, on next July 7. For good behavior he gets three months off the sentence.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE IS UNCHANGED

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP)—King George had a fair day after experiencing a restless night and there was no change to report in his condition when the evening medical bulletin was issued at 8 p. m. While this was not in itself as encouraging as had been expected by the public, it was considered favorable in official circles which took into account the rather optimistic review of the case furnished to the two leading medical journals of the country for publication tomorrow.

"The king's will to live is there," said the palace physicians in this review and they added that though his improvement is slow it is definite enough to justify hope for his ultimate restoration to health.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF DEM. NATIONAL COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The democratic national committee submitted to the house today its report of contributions and expenditures during the recent campaign, listing expenditures of $5,342,349 and contributions including loans aggregating $1,660,000, of $5,444,958.43. The statement including these loans showed a balance of $102,609.

BANK ROBBER KILLED IN WRECK OF AUTO

MEXICO, Missouri, Jan. 3—(AP)—One of three men who held up the First National bank today and escaped with approximately $4,000 in cash and $10,000 to $15,000 in securities, was killed a short time later when the bandit car was wrecked after he had been wounded in a chase.

KIDNAPED GIRL RETURNED WITH HER HANDS TIED AND A GAG IN HER MOUTH

ATLANTA, Georgia, Jan. 3—(AP)—Her hands tied behind her back and a gag in her mouth, Doris Turner, 16 year old high school student for whom a city wide search has been in progress since yesterday, staggered into an outlying filling station early tonight. After informing the operator of her identity, she collapsed.

The girl, who disappeared yesterday and wrote her parents a letter saying she had been "kidnaped by a kind old man with a cane," was taken to her home where she was placed under the care of a physician. He said her condition was such that she could not reveal details of her disappearance.

The proprietor of the filling station who called the girl's father, O. M. Turner, a dairyman, said she did not give him any information concerning how she made her way to his place.

A $500 reward for information concerning the whereabouts of the girl had been posted by her father a few hours before she reappeared.

Doris later recovered sufficiently to tell her story.

She said she started for school yesterday and was in fear of being late, when "the old man with a cane" whom she and other girls had seen frequently in the neighborhood drove by and offered to give her a ride. Instead of taking her to school, she said he turned in the opposite direction and at Grant Park, on the opposite side of the city, he slapped a towel over her face and she lapsed into unconsciousness.

Several hours later she said she awakened and found herself in a little shack and that the "old man" suggested that she write the letter which was delivered to her parents last night and which he dictated. The night was spent in the room where she regained consciousness, she said, and her abductor and another man whom she did not see were in an adjoining room.

Late today she said the old man bound her hands behind her back, gagged and blindfolded her, led her to an automobile and after driving for some time permitted her to leave near the filling station where she reappeared.

Doris said she was not molested while held in the shack, but that she suffered from cold last night and from hunger as she feared to eat food offered her.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Of six prisoners who escaped from a hospital ward of the state penitentiary at Columbia, S. C., one has surrendered.

Revenue freight loadings for the week ending December 22 were reported by the American Railway association to have totaled 897,968 cars.

BRAZIL HAS DECLINED THE CONCILIATION INVITATION

Will Not Participate in the Negotiations For Settlement of the Bolivian-Paraguayan Boundary Dispute—Reasons For the Refusal Will Be Contained in a Note to Be Directed to Washington—Bolivian and Paraguayan Delegates Have Signed the Protocol.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 3—(AP)—Brazil will not participate in the negotiations for settlement of the current Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute, the foreign office announced this afternoon.

The foreign office announcement followed publication in afternoon of reports from Washington that Brazil had accepted a part in the negotiations, along with the United States and Cuba.

It was denied that the American ambassador had been handed any note at all and stated furthermore that Brazil would take no part in the propected conciliation proceeding.

Reasons for the refusal will be contained in a note to be directed to Washington today, it is said.

BOLIVIAN AND PARAGUAYAN DELEGATES SIGN PROTOCOL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 — (AP) — Bolivian and Paraguayan delegates to the Pan-American arbitration conference tonight signed the protocol to establish a commission to conciliate their boundary dispute.

The protocol was signed in the board room of the Pan-American Union building in the presence of the members of the special committee of the Pan-American conference which was appointed to draft the document. A few other delegates and newspaper correspondents were present.

Appreciation for the efforts displayed by the conference as a whole and by the United States in particular in effecting the conclusion of the protocol were expressed by the delegates of both sides.

Secretary of State Kellogg replied, praising both Bolivia and Paraguay for their willingness to settle their dispute by peaceful means.

The conciliating commission which will be composed of nine judges, two from each disputing country and five from as many American republics, will investigate and attempt to conciliate the clashes between troops of Bolivia and Paraguay which commenced with an encounter on Dec. 6 at Fort Vanguardia.

COMMANDER HEARS OF RIFT IN SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Shocked by his first information that the high council of the Salvation Army had been summoned and was likely to depose him as commander in chief, General Bramwell Booth today received the news with this exclamation:

"I have loved the Army and have done my best for my people. Whatever other people may think about the government of its affairs, they must feel that this is rather rough on me."

The general's sister, Commander Evangeline Booth of the United States, conversed with her niece Catherine today for the first time since her arrival in England. The conference took place at the international headquarters of the Army and lasted for several hours. It was intimated, however, that the American leader was given no indication that her brother knew she was here nor was she told when she might see him.

Commander Eva remained at the headquarters until a late hour tonight engaged in further conference with Army leaders to whom she is explaining her program for reform within the organization.

The headquarters staff revealed the dramatic manner in which Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her daughter broke the news of the rift in the organization to the aged and sick commander-in-chief. They announced that the doctors permitted this because of progress in the health of the general.

Despite the care with which the wife and daughter passed the word to him, the aged man, lying helpless in his lonely cottage on the Suffolk coast, immediately realized the importance of the information. He suddenly found himself faced with the probability of removal by councillors, many of whom he had himself raised to positions of authority. He also could vision the fact that the fortunes of his wife and children might pass from his own power to the control of other hands.

HOOVER PREPARING TO LEAVE BATTLESHIP

U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 3—(AP)—In home waters once more, the Hoover party today began the task of packing up in preparation for leaving the battleship Utah on Sunday to go ashore at Hampton Roads for their brief railroad journey back to Washington.

The ship's carpenters and sailmakers are literally overrun with orders for boxes and canvas bags for packing the various gifts purchased or received by the president-elect and his party in the Latin-American countries visited during the good will tour.

By mid-afternoon today the good will ship was approximately 975 miles due east of Miami, Fla., and 950 miles from Hampton Roads.

The battleship's usual speed of 15 knots an hour was being maintained and the officers definitely predict its arrival in Hampton Roads by 8 a. m. Sunday.

Mr. Hoover still is adhering to his decision against considering the affairs of his administration until he reaches Washington.

FARM LEGISLATION DEBATED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3—(AP)—President-elect Herbert Hoover's approaching return to Washington and its possible bearing on farm relief legislation was debated in the house today, following a statement by Chairman Snell of the rules committee after a visit to the white house that he saw no hope of passage of such a bill at this session.

The discussion was started by Representative McKeown, democrat, Oklahoma, who advocated enactment of a farm bill at the present session on the ground that relief was urgent. He said it was even more needed than tariff revision because a majority of the manufacturers of the country were not in a hurry to have the tariff changed.

Representative Burtness, republican, North Dakota, agreed with McKeown that legislation was needed at this session, declaring if it were postponed until a special session this year's crop would not be benefited.

BUDGET WILL YIELD STATE OF CONNECTICUT A NET PROFIT

HARTFORD, Jan. 3—(AP)—A budget for the next two fiscal years which, under the pay-as-you-go plan, will yield the state of Connecticut a net profit was indicated by the first report of the state board of finance and control as prepared by Commissioner Edward F. Hall, and made public today. This report will go to the general assembly.

The estimated expenditures for the biennium will be $73,200,000 and the estimated receipts, $74,026,000.

PROPOSAL TO INVESTIGATE PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—An investigation of prohibition enforcement by a congressional committee was proposed today by Senator Jones of Washington, who announced he intended the inquiry to be made by friends of the dry cause.

The Washington senator, a republican, proposed the investigation in a resolution which stipulated that the work be done by a senate committee but he said later that he was willing to have the inquiry conducted by a joint committee of senators and house members.

Referred to the senate judiciary committee, the resolution is in prospect of early consideration there as Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, said he had no objection to immediate discussion of the proposal.

Senator Jones believes the inquiry should be conducted by a committee composed entirely of friends of prohibition so that the investigation, would not be carried into channels calculated to lay the liquor laws open to attack. The direct aim of the inquiry would be to "determine the best means and methods for improving enforcement," and to make "a complete investigation and study of the system of enforcement."

The committee would have until January 1, 1930, to do its work.

CHICAGO PHONE QUARREL HAS REACHED DEADLOCK

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP)—The quarrel between the Illinois Bell Telephone company and downtown hotels, drugstores and cigar stores which has resulted in the closing by some of the establishments of their telephone booths today went into a deadlock.

Each side announced that its attitude would remain unchanged and the hotels and drug and cigar stores said the controversy probably would be taken before the Illinois commerce commission.

The fight started when the telephone company decided to give some of the larger establishments that have installed booths only 22 1-2 per cent of the nickels dropped into them instead of splitting fifty-fifty after the establishments had paid a flat guarantee of four calls a day.

Late in the day most of the drug stores decided to continue giving telephone service to the public for another week, until a plan of action could be determined.

FINAL EFFORT TO SAVE MRS. LEBOUF FROM EXECUTION

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3—(AP)—With their clients standing on the threshold of the gallows, defense lawyers today were making Herculean efforts to forestall the hanging, scheduled for Saturday, of Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Breher, sentenced to die for the murder of the woman's husband.

Mrs. Lebouef would be the first white woman to pay the extreme penalty in Louisiana. Last night Governor Huey P. Long formally announced that he would not interfere, overriding the state pardon board which had recommended that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Defense lawyers won their first skirmish when they persuaded Judge James D. Simon, the trial judge, to grant a hearing at Franklin, La., tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to determine whether a sanity commission should be appointed to inquire into the present mental condition of the condemned pair.

AMBASSADOR HERRICK ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3—(AP)—Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, 74-year-old statesman who has represented the United States at Paris since 1912, was well on the road to recovery tonight from an attack of asthmatic influenza.

Dr. John Phillips, who has been attending the veteran statesman since he experienced a sudden sinking spell early yesterday morning, promised Mr. Herrick he would be allowed to rise from his sick bed and move about his estate at Gates Mills by tomorrow.

The ambassador has been making steady improvement, Dr. Phillips said and has been spending his time reading, listening to the radio and eating heartily.

HARRY S. LEHR, SOCIETY MAN, DIED IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 3—(AP)—Harry S. SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES IN DEATH OF MRS. LORELLA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 3—Foul play is suspected in the death of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, aged about 58, who was found on a couch at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mazzola, 27 Arnold's Lane this forenoon. The woman had apparently been dead for two or more hours when her body was discovered. Dr. Charles A. Jenkins was called and he in turn summoned Medical Examiner Dr. Louis T. Mason. There was some belief at first that death might have been caused by asphyxiation as one of the burners on a gas stove in the adjoining kitchen was open but the presence of a coffee pot on the stove and the fact that the woman was lying in another room apparently dispelled any suspicion of suicide or from gas by accident. A closer examination of the body revealed marks on both sides of the throat which were described by County Detective William E. Jackson as possibly being the marks of fingers and thumb. Working on these theories of asphyxiation or strangulation an autopsy is to be taken under direction of Coronor A. G. Bill of Danielson who came here to conduct a preliminary inquest late this afternoon. Upon the discovery of the body the pulmotor of the fire department was sent for but was not used when it was determined that death had taken place two or three hours previously, at about 9:30 o'clock.

The body of Mrs. Lorella, who lived at 9 Arnold's Lane, and was accustomed to go to her daughter's residence a short distance away to prepare the meals and assist with housework, was found by her daughter upon returning home from work at the American Thread company plant. Further investigation by County Detective Jackson and Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley of the local police force revealed that the body bore marks about the throat, the right eye blackened and that apparently blood had been washed from the fact and hands. Her arms were folded across the chest.

Mr. and Mrs. Mazzola occupy the third story of the three story tenement at No. 27 Arnold's Lane. The two lower tenements are vacant. Mrs. Mazzola and her daughter, Mary, are employed at the American Thread company, while Mr. Mazzola is a section hand for the New Haven railroad. Mrs. Lorella is survived by her daughter and granddaughter.

WILLIMANTIC FIRE LOSS IS $33,659 FOR 152 FIRES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 3—The figures for the full year 1928 as maintained by Acting Fire Chief Michael J. English show a total of 152 alarms answered and a grand loss of $33,659, about 85 per cent of which was covered by insurance. The largest single loss from fire was one of $7,525 caused by a severe blaze in the passenger station of the New Haven railroad. The station has since been entirely repaired and renovated. The next largest losses shown are: $6,640 on a barn owned by G. E. Wilcox and $5,500 on a grand stand at Recreation park owned by the American Thread company.

With the exception of 12 false calls the responses were made to real calls. The department pulmotor was called for on 10 occasions and in connection the department received much credit in contributing or being solely responsible for saving of four lives through the use of the pulmotor. The record saving of the life of a cat which had been wedged in a tree for three days.

The number of alarms and amount of losses for each month follows:

1928	Alarms	Losses
January	20	$1,108
February	14	106
March	21	1,398
April	31	6,640
May	12	790
June	8	521
July	7	—
August	8	100
September	3	95
October	6	1,797
November	7	5,500
December	15	—
	152	$33,659

Earl J. Arnold, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce addressed the members of the Exchange club at the regular meeting held in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday evening on the topic of Possibilities of the Thread City. He stressed the necessity for an early consideration of the milk situation of this district and complimented the club members on the favorable action they had already taken in this issue. "Big community problems and projects," said the speaker, "have been put over in Willimantic largely to the coordinating efforts of service clubs. I believe the Willimantic service clubs paved the way for such community successes as the erection of this hotel and several other worthwhile forward-making projects." The purposes of the city planning commission and a composite sketch of the committees and the problems to be taken up was then given. In connection with the milk supply Secretary Arnold stated that over 96 producers bring milk into this district while only one inspector has been assigned for two entire counties. He recommended as the first step the licensing of all dealers, then the sampling of the milk. Stress was also made to the necessity of supervised playgrounds, the protection of food supplies and the adoption of the free text books for the schools. He also pointed to the crying need of improved library conditions. One of the subjects upon which Secretary Arnold dwelt with considerable emphasis was the great need for developing the friendly spirit with the agriculturalists of greater Willimantic. The talk was followed by an interesting open forum. Vice President E. Frank Bugbee presided in the absence of the president, Dixon VanZandt, and the speaker was introduced by George Elliott, chairman of the program committee.

A colorful business career of 59 years in banking will be concluded by Noah D. Webster, present secretary of the Willimantic Savings Institute, January 12. Mr. Webster is considered one of the oldest banking officials in Connecticut in both length of service and in age, having recently observed his 81st birthday. Despite this advanced age he rarely misses a day at the bank and maintains a lively interest in finances as well as current events. He began his banking career here when Willimantic was a borough and boasted but one bank which was located in a wooden structure on standing at 1958 Main street. The bank and a general store were combined until 1870 when the bank moved to the present brick structure at the corner of Main and Bank streets. Mr. Webster has served more years "behind the desk" than any other official in Windham county. He was born in Somers, August 29, 1847. He came to Willimantic January 12, 1870, to be connected with the local institution. He is a descendant of Noah Webster of historical fame. His father, Daniel Webster, Jr., was born in Longmeadow, Mass., and was a proficient mechanic, his son Noah inheriting much of his skill. Daniel Webster was well known through the state and for a time was a member of the board of directors of the state prison at Wethersfield. In March 1862 while he was serving as warden at the jail he was mortally stabbed by a prisoner named O'Toole. His son Noah was 15 years of age at that time.

Noah Webster attended school in Somers and high school in Wethersfield. He was a clerk in a grocery store in Broadbrook and later a bookkeeper in Hartford before coming here. The late John Tracy, who had been an intimate friend of Daniel Webster, placed the son in the Willimantic Savings institute of which he was a director. Mr. Webster became treasurer in June 1889, filling the position for 38 years until last June. He was married to Sarah A. Royce of Franklin in March, 1878. They have one daughter, Faith Royce Webster. Although he had taken but 42 lessons on the piano Mr. Webster displayed a natural gift for music and at one time was considered one of the best church organists in the state. He had never taken any lessons on the organ. He was organist at the Congregational church here from 1870 to 1905. He also gained fame as a violin maker, a work which was a hobby and many Webster violins are now in use in the state.

The following officers were installed for the year at the regular meeting of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 28, held in the G. A. R. hall Wednesday night: President, Lucy Champlin; senior vice president, Marjorie Duggan; junior vice president, Harriet Ladd; treasurer, Alice Easterbrooks; chaplain, Theresa Manley; guard, Mary Gavigan; secretary, Helen French; conductor, Lillian Hersant; patriotic instructor, Helen Keith; press correspondent, Lucy Blackmar; musician, Ruth James; assistant guard, Lillian Fletcher; assistant conductor, Florence Williams; color bearers, No. 1, Ida Willism; No. 2, May Russ; No. 3, Kate Woodward; No. 4, Elizabeth Clark. The installation was conducted Department Officer Mrs. Ethel C. Tourtellotte of Putnam.

"Old Faithful," an ancient and trusted work horse owned by Levi Upton of 23 1-2 Jackson Place is dead and his owner is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital suffering from a broken right leg sustained in an attempt to get the animal to its feet this forenoon. The old grey horse had been used to haul a gasoline wood sawing machine. Upon leaving the yard this morning it suddenly collapsed in the traces. Mr. Upton got the horse partly up but it fell again landing on Upton's leg and fracturing the bone. Dr. B. K. Dow, veterinarian was summoned. His examination disclosed that the horse had collapsed from shock brought on by old age. Permission was secured from the owner and Humane Society Agent Frank P. Fenton to have the horse put out of misery. Dr. Dow shot the animal with a revolver borrowed from Patrolman John Lutton. The carcass was then removed by the city street department.

For ten years, Isaac Newman, of Cleveland, has been searching for a Chinese automobile license tag to add to his collection of tags from all countries in the world which boast automobiles. He is still hoping for a Chinese tag although his friends traveling in China tell him that the Chinese still paint their license number on the rear end of the automobile.

GALES FERRY

COUSINS WERE BEARERS AT MRS. MOLTHROP'S FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Fanny Adams Molthrop of Gales Ferry, widow of Capt. William H. Molthrop, who died at the home of her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, at the Submarine base early New Year's morning, were held at Gales Ferry M. E. church, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Jerome Greer, pastor of the church, conducted the service, which was largely attended by local and out-of-town relatives and friends. Owing to illness, her brother, David Adams, of New Haven was unable to be present. The organist, Mrs. Eugene LaFontaine, played preceding and following the service, and accompanied Miss Grace A. Chapman, who sang the hymn, Face to Face. Cousins, John Latham of Noank; Frank Chapman, Groton; Courtland E. Colver, Submarine base, and Dudley C. Perkins, of the village, were bearers, burial being in the family lot in Gales Ferry cemetery.

To Attend Lay Conference

A meeting to elect a delegate and alternate to a lay conference, to be held at the time of the annual session of the New England Southern conference in April, at Brockton, Mass., was held Monday evening at Gales Ferry M. E. church. Rev. Jerome Greer was elected chairman of the meeting, in the absence of Courtland E. Colver, who had been appointed judge of election, with Dudley C. Perkins and Nelson Parker tellers. D. C. Perkins was elected delegate, with Mrs. Jerome Greer alternate.

The December business meeting of the Epworth league chapter was held the same evening at the vestry, the president, Courtland E. Colver, presiding. The session was opened with prayer by Rev. Jerome Greer. President Colver called for reports from the several departments. Rev. and Mrs. Greer were appointed a committee to arrange for special features at the league meetings.

The January social is to be in charge of the cabinet officers. Mrs Rufus W. Hurlbutt and Mrs. Greer were appointed a committee to arrange for the February event. It was voted to purchase copies of the books of Corinthians and St. Mark, for use in the league meetings.

AN EASY WAY TO LOSE FAT

Instead of abnormal exercise or diet, they combat a cause of excess fat. They supply an element Nature employs to turn food into fuel and energy. This method was discovered by research men some two decades ago. It has for 20 years been embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. Millions of boxes have been taken, and almost every circle shows the results in new beauty, new health and vitality.

The formula comes in every box, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Go learn now what Marmola does for excess fat, and why. Your druggist supplies it at $1 per box. Take four tablets daily and watch the change.

DANIELSON

OFFICERS OF McGREGOR RELIEF CORPS INSTALLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 3—Mrs. Lena Munroe of Putnam, past instituting and installing officer of the Connecticut department, W. R. C., came to Danielson last evening and installed the newly elected officers of McGregor Woman's Relief corps. These officers are: President, Mrs. Mab A. Sayles, Dayville; senior vice president, Mrs. Flora A. Kennedy, Dayville; junior vice president, Mrs. Nellie V. Moran; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie R. Bailey; chaplain, Mrs. Ida F. Thomas; conductor, Mrs. Edith L. Jordan; guard, Mrs. Laura M. Brown; assistant guard, Mrs. Fannie Brown; secretary, Miss Annie L. Page; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Cora D. Page; press correspondent, Mrs. Lettie M. James; musician, Mrs. Eva B. Shoales; color bearers, Mrs. Sarah E. Birch, Mrs. Nettie Carroll, Mrs. Grace Sheffield, Mrs. S. Estella Talbot.

In behalf of the corps, Mrs. Ida F. Thomas presented a gift to Mrs. Munroe, who expressed her appreciation of the remembrance. Mrs. Munroe also thanked the corps for the invitation and privilege of installing the new officers. Her talk to the members included the admonition that all be faithful to their oranization and urged that they assist the officers in making a success of the administration during the current year.

Various numbers were included in the program of entertainment provided for the evening, and refreshments were served.

Children Selling Chances

Danielson again is being pestered by the "take-a-chance" kids. They are about from house to house, ringing doorbells and being more or less polite in their plea for a gambling shot, about which many of them offer little or no explanation. Patently, these little tots are not to blame for the canvass they are making. Their elders have committed them to the mission, and they have nothing to do but obey.

It so happens that Danielson has been ridden to just about the limit of endurance in the past few months by one call and another to give for one cause or another. The limit has been reached, in the opinion of a great many people. A letup is due. A great many people think this, and will say so privately. It remains for a newspaper to say it right out loud. The public, it would seem, is entitled to an armistice. To give is glorious, to be solicited every week for this and that is just a plain nuisance. The people solicited have their important obligations but if they gave to everything they are now being solicited for in an organized drive that never ceases, they would not be able to pay their grocery bills, let alone building up any reserve.

FUNERALS

Chauncey Miller.

This afternoon at one o'clock at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home on Furnace street funeral services for Chauncey Miller were conducted by Rev. William Swainson of the Dayville Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Henry Miller, Everett Miller and Fred L. Miller, brothers of the deceased, Fred Miller, Jr., a nephew Irwin Miller and Harvey Horton.

Mrs. Alphonsine Bedard

From the home in Plainfield this morning the funeral of Mrs. Alphonsine Bedard was held, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. John's church at 10 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Landry, the pastor, Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Occum and Rev. Harry Charron of All Hallows church, Moosup, were officers of the mass, which was attended by many relatives and friends, including delegations from the Union St. Jean Baptist and the Ste. Anne society. Burial was in St. John's cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Bernier, Henry Mercier, Desire Vesine, Charles Lafraniere, Henry Beausolie and Joseph E. Metivier. The honorary bearers representing the Ste. Anne society were Mrs. Anna Lambert, Mrs. Philie Smith, Mrs. Diendonne Jodoin and Mrs. Isadore Mercier. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Eliza Gosselin.

The funeral of Mrs. Eliza Gosselin was held from her home in Plainfield this morning with services at St. John's church at 9.30. Rev. J. H. Landry was celebrant of the requiem mass at which some persons from Danielson were in attendance with many other relatives and friends. Burial was in St. John's cemetery. The bearers were Jule Gosselin, George Gosselin, Adrian Gosselin, Delphis Gosselin, Roger Gosselin and Edgar Jarvais. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bousquet and members of their family, Horedore Fregeau, Attorney and Mrs. Louis A. Woisard were among those who were in Taftville today to attend the funeral of Joseph Fregeau, who died at St. Francis' hospital in Hartford. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

It would appear that the 3800 residents of the town of Killingly who are liable to pay a personal tax are not greatly perturbed about it. Up to this afternoon just 1764 of these persons had paid this tax, or less than half of those who will be expected to pay it within the next ten days. At this time last year 600 persons more than have paid this year at this date had settled this account with the town. January 14 is the last day for paying this tax. After that date the tax will carry a penalty assessment of $1.00, making the cost to the individual $3.00, instead of $2.00. An assumption is that the average person who has not paid the tax knows when the time limit is, and is deferring payment as long as possible, an arrangement that is nearly certain to result in standing in line while Collector Arthur A. Dean deals as rapidly as possible with the rush that is expected.

Early Friday afternoon will bring an exodus of Danielson's wrestling fans bound for Boston to sit in at the world's champion match between Strangler Ed Lewis, holder of the title and Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg. There is a tendency among the Danielson fans to boost Sonnenberg, who has become a more or less familiar figure to them the past two seasons as a member of the Providence Steam Roller professional football team.

Men who like that fine winter pastime are bemoaning the fact that as yet they have not been able to go fishing through the ice on any body of water near here that is apt to yield a plentiful supply of pickerel.

The daily increasing number of cases of illness in Danielson and vicinity may not be indicative of the presence of influenza, but numbers who have been stricken are so ill that they are confined to their rooms.

Dr. W. H. Judson, health officer, is causing to be distributed circulars giving a set of rules for protection against contracting colds, grip and influenza.

George C. Laporte of St. Johnsbury, Vt., left today to return to his home after visiting with relatives here over the New Year's season.

Sunday will be Twelfth day, the traditional time for taking down the Christmas greens, still displayed at many homes in Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winkelman and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray are now reported in California, after motoring across the continent from Danielson. They are to remain on the coast during the winter season.

Though still confined to her home, Mrs. J. C. Witter of Broad street is recovering from an illness of about ten days duration.

PUTNAM

NEW YORKER SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN CAR SKIDS ON ICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 3—William J. Hart of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in this city today suffering from serious injuries received this noon time when his car skidded in the Thompson highway in Mechanicsville and crashed into a tree. Hart was the only passenger in the car and was enroute to Worcester. The accident was the second of a grave nature to happen within this section of the county within twenty-four hours.

The car was on what is known as "death curve" in Mechanicsville when it struck the icy pavement and went out of control of the driver. It struck out from the right of the highway to the left, striking a large tree in front of the M. J. Kinney store, throwing its driver to the embankment. The car was reduced to a mass of wreckage.

Dr. Joseph LaPalme of North Grosvernordale, who was driving near the scene saw the car begin its skid across the highway to the tree. The doctor stopped and rushed to the aid of the injured driver, later rushing him to the Day Kimball hospital, where late this afternoon Hart's recovery was extreme doubtful, since he is suffering from internal injuries.

Officer James Carmody of Danielson state police barracks and Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police left for the scene of the accident where they assisted Dr. LaPalme in treating the injured man. The officers checked up the crash and learned that Hart was a salesman for a New York concern. His car was laden with sample products, which were partially damaged when the car struck the tree. Captain Jarvis and Officer Carmody were today endeavoring to locate relatives of the man, whose condition is now considered grave, but at a late hour today were unable to release any information.

From the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon came the report that Mrs. Philip Croteau, and the eight months old infant of Adelard LaFlamme of North Grosvernordale who were injured when their car skidded on Tucker Hill yesterday, were discharged from the hospital early today in an improved condition. The mother of the infant was instantly killed in the crash. Arthur Croteau, 16 months old, sustained a fracture of the leg. The hospital officials reported him today as not serious, although he will be confined to the hospital for several weeks.

The threat of the water commissioners to delinquent users of city water proved successful and at the close of business Monday afternoon only one property owner had failed to pay up his back water bills, Commissioner Thurston, chairman of the board disclosed today. The board announced through notices and the press last week that they would disconnect service on Jan. 1, if all bills had not been paid the department at the close of business on Dec. 31. Mr. Thurston said today he had investigated the remaining case and had granted him an extension of time, in order to settle his accounts, before the department would shut off the water. This is the first time in several years, since the water department has been municipally controlled, when the water department had announced their intentions of taking such a drastic move in order to collect their outstanding service accounts.

Miss Elsie Gallant of Church street, who was in Hartford last week, where she took examinations for the Connecticut state bar association has returned to this city.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the home on Killingly avenue, for Lester H. Jospiln, who died suddenly Monday evening. The service was in charge of the Rev. J. E. Duxbury, pastor of the Methodist church of this city. Burial was in Grove street cemetery. The service was largely attended by many friends and relatives of Mr. Joplin who had been associated with him during the past half century.

Dairymen of this section of the county will gather today (Friday) in the Grange hall in Hampton where the second county quarterly meeting of the Windham County Farmers association will be held. Following is the programme as announced by the office of the association this afternoon: Control of contagious garget, A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, Storrs 11:30 a. m., Results of the cow testing association letter, by Raymond Wing, county agent. At noon a basket lunch will be served. Continuing the programme at 1:30 p. m., Mr. Merrill will address the gathering on proper cattle feeding. B. A. Brown, agronomist at Storrs will speak on the subject of Forage Crops, which will be followed by a second talk by County Agent Wing on Calf Raising. The concluding number on the programme will be the question box. All problems confronting the dairymen will be discussed by the authorities from Storrs college. The committee urges that every dairyman in the county be present to take part in the meeting.

A. G. Warner Woman's Relief corps, holds its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Ethel Tourtollette, presiding. The yearly reports were read and accepted. Mrs. Hattie Miller gave a splendid report of the work done by the welfare committee. She is chairman and distributed the gifts given by the corps for the needy children to the Salvation Army rooms on Christmas eve. A Christmas tree was laden with presents for the needy children. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those that attended.

Armand J. Lizotte of this city has been in Boston this week attending the Boston shoe show.

A well child conference will be held at the emergency hospital in North Grosvenordale on next Wednesday afternoon Jan. 9. The health association of the Connecticut state bureau of health request that all mothers of the town of Thompson bring their babies to the conference for examinations.

MISSION STUDY CLASS AND MOTHERS ENTERTAINED

The children's mission study class and their mothers were entertained in the Baptist vestry Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. B. R. Gardner, who has been teaching the class for the past six weeks. The children sang their songs and recited their memory verses on friendship. "Windows Into Alaska," a study in world-friendship by Gertrude C. Warner, has been used as a text book and each child in the class told some interesting incident in the six stories used. At the close of the program a lunch of cocoa, fancy cookies and candy was served. There were 33 present. The children who are members of the class are Virginia and Royal Pacquette, Marion and Dorothy Wilbur, Lois and Edwin Hewlitt, Marjorie and Doris MacLean, Robert, Alberta and Miriam Scates, Candace and Lillian Webster, Herman Tripp, Raymond Cathcart and Phyllis Campbell. Miss Ruth Cathcart, the assistant teacher and Miss Ruby Thornton and Mrs. Nathan Babcock assisted Mrs. Gardner in serving.

The fire loss for Jewett City during 1928 is reduced from $13,000 to $8,000 by an error in the card at the engine house. There was practically no loss at the hotel barn fire of Jan. 21. The error in tabulating made the loss appear as $5,000.

An item in The Bulletin's Jewett City news thirty-four years ago today reads as follows: The pupils of the Jewett City school decided to give some substantial proof of the thankfulness Friday. 300 shared in the giving. A small mountain of provisions was the result: 10 bushels of potatoes, 3 1-2 barrels apples, 2 bushels onions, 27 heads cabbage, 97 large rock turnips, 30 pumpkins, 7 quarts cranberries, 26 quarts beans, 20 pounds salt pork, 15 pounds sugar, 50 pounds flour, 19 loaves white bread, 11 loaves brown bread, 22 loaves cake, 2 dozen pies, canned goods, grapes, oranges and several chickens. The collections were distributed among the town's needy families.

PICKING THE CABINET.

It will be but a short time before Mr. Hoover reaches the United States and Washington and will be able to speak for himself. In the meantime it becomes more and more apparent that those who like to guess are busy picking out the members of his cabinet and making public many things which Mr. Hoover probably isn't going to do.

Of course everyone has a right to guess. It serves as a diversion and like the prediction of the weather it is something to brag about in the future in case it is right. If it isn't correct nothing is ever heard of it again.

Among the latest stories which have been set adrift is that which attributes to Dr. Hubert Work, former secretary of the department of the interior and chairman of the republican national committee, the sponsoring of Mrs. A. T. Hert as a member of the next cabinet. To Dr. Work has been attributed many things which may or may not have been so. It is significant however, that he responds to the story by disavowing it and declaring that he would be the last one to advance such advice without being requested. Furthermore he sets forth that Mr. Hoover appointed no one to pick out his cabinet members for him, or to fill any of the other appointive offices.

That of course gets us back to the place where we were before anything was said about cabinet members. It means that there has been much speculation going on and in the course of the guesswork names have been mentioned. It meant nothing, except that in the manner in which it has been handed about it was pushed from the realm of speculation to the borderland of fact and, as is almost always the case, it was necessary to put a stop to it. This Dr. Work has done and in a manner that leaves no question as to where he stands.

Mr. Hoover faces some important conferences on his return. When he gets ready, even though his mind may already be made up, he will announce his cabinet members and any other decisions of a public character. Speculation isn't going to have any influence upon them, even though there may be times when it will prove to be correct.

MR. GILBERT'S REPORT.

Because a new commission will soon be wrestling with the task of replacing the Dawes plan concerning reparations with another, there is special interest in the return of Agent General Gilbert to this country and his last report dealing with the reparation situation.

The Dawes plan has been in operation for four years and according to Mr. Gilbert it has worked out well. Germany made all the payments required of it and made them on time. The methods that were provided for obtaining the necessary funds have been satisfactory and under them Germany has been getting ahead satisfactorily. Mr. Gilbert says there is no doubt but what Germany can meet the demands.

It has been demonstrated that Germany was able to meet an increasing demand, that the plan did not impose an impossible burden and that Germany was being burdened beyond its ability. There was uncertainty concerning this when the plan was formulated, but now that the test has been applied for a period of four years there is reason for becoming definite as to the amount Germany should pay and the maximum amount that must be paid each year. This was not fixed in the Dawes plan but left for time to disclose what would be justified.

Mr. Gilbert finds conditions in Germany good and regards any depression as simply the return to normalcy. He doesn't undertake to claim that the burden on Germany is a light one but it is not so severe that Germany cannot meet it.

With the change in the situation, the opportunity for coming to a definite understanding as to what Germany must pay instead of leaving it belagged indefinitely, the visit of Mr. Gilbert and the picking of the American members of the commission to revise the Dawes agreement is only what was to be expected. That it has come at about the time it was logically due reflects all the more credit upon the Dawes plan, and if the new commission is as successful in its accomplishments as was the Dawes commission there will be cause for satisfaction.

LICENSING DRIVERS.

In view of the great number of automobile fatalities and accidents, it is surprising to learn that states do not exhibit greater efforts to prevent them. It is something when much time for such instruction is now given in the schools and many employ to make such an impression upon others that they are adopted.

For a state with as many as 3,000,000 drivers, Ohio has no law requiring the licensing of them. Such action has been sought and was defeated by a very narrow margin last year, which gives hope that provision for it may be voted this year, but Ohio seems to hesitate over the fee that may be attached to it. When it is a question of greater safety these days, the matter of a fee ought not to be allowed to stand in the way.

It doesn't mean that there is anything magic in the issuance of drivers' licenses. Accidents and fatalities occur in states where such are required, and they will continue to happen in Ohio if it passes such a law. But when it is recognized that those who drive must have a knowledge of what they are doing and face the possibility of losing the right to drive if their driving is incompetent or reckless, it is bound to have a beneficial influence.

That Ohio finds it difficult to force drivers to be more careful is easy to understand. They know that there is little restraint that can be placed upon them and as long as no more than a slap on the wrist can be anticipated they give less heed to the rules of the road and the rights of others than would be the case if they could be promptly deprived of the driving privilege.

The time will come when all states will insist upon drivers' licenses. Where they have been demanded the effect upon accidents has been to decrease them. That being the case in states where such control over drivers exists there ought to be no hesitation upon other states in getting the benefit of such a method. It is one way in which a valuable contribution to highway safety can be made. We hate to think what the automobile accidents and deaths would amount to if there were no such control in many of the states.

INAUGURAL ADDRESSES.

This is the month of many inaugurations. Some governors are succeeding themselves, others are taking office for the first time. All are setting forth a programme which they believe it would be for the welfare of their respective commonwealths if it were carried out.

It is entirely possible that there will be recommendations made which it will be impossible for various reasons to comply with, though such failure will in no way reflect adversely upon the merit of the suggestions. There are limits within which all well governed states must move. Sound and businesslike government requires it and it likewise demands that all garments should be cut out in accordance with the amount of cloth.

Thus it will be interesting a few months from now to compare the inaugural addresses with the accomplishments of the various legislatures. It will likewise be interesting to note how many of the recommendations have been complied with, how many have acted upon in part, how many have been turned down and how many have received no attention whatever.

Problems of state like those of the nation ought to get attention in accord with their merit. Some must be given attention while others which would cause no suffering through delay can be put off for a more favorable time. Certain ones call for more study than can be given within the limited time of a legislative session, while it is entirely possible that the spotlight of facts may disclose the advisability of any action at all relative to others. Nevertheless the inaugural address by a governor puts forth a programme that cannot be and seldom is disregarded. It serves as the guide for much needed general legislation.

THE AUTO HORN.

In response to the claim that the blowing of the automobile horn is a peril, the chief engineer of an automobile corporation takes exception to it and declares "I am not sure but what the horn prevents more accidents than the brakes do."

There is always bound to be a difference of opinion concerning the auto horn. That it is an important automobile accessory will have to be admitted. It serves a good purpose and unquestionably prevents many accidents by calling the attention of people to the danger into which they are heading.

The reason that the horn is opposed is because it is abused. It is no secret that many auto drivers depend upon it to clear the way whether they are entitled to it or not. They rely upon it to make blind corners, left turns and time when they would be liable to encounter plenty of trouble under similar driving without a horn. It is even employed by some at railroad crossings as if it gave them the right of way.

On the other hand the signal given by a horn is invaluable in plenty of ways for the protection of pedestrians, the drivers of other cars and the warning that is so necessary where children are unaware of the silently approaching machine.

As is true in so many other directions, the opposition to the horn has developed from the merciless manner in which some drivers employ it. It is really the volume of it rather than the reasonable use of it that causes so much objection. Too frequently it is employed in connection with unwise and chance taking driving. The idea that there would be fewer accidents if there were no horns is open to serious question. Because there ought to be caution doesn't necessarily mean that there would be.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: The fellow whose debt of gratitude is larger than he can pay never goes into bankruptcy.

It is guessing time as to what Mr. Hoover is going to advocate and whom he is going to appoint. Your guess is as good as the rest.

Italy is expecting to produce all the sugar it consumes, states a report. Probably it is depending on Mussolini to force Vesuvius to raise cane.

The fellow who takes chances at a railroad crossing may care nothing for himself or his car, but he should show a bit of consideration for those with him.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Romance, in the rather sordid world in which most of us live, is the elusive thing that always seems just around the corner. At least, that's the way it was with Susan Bliss.

Susan had been graduated with honors from a musical conservatory where those who had her interests at heart had advised her that romance, in the form of a career, lay just around the corner for her, if she would hop to it. She was still hopping, now after ten years. And in the meantime she had acquired a husband, a home and two babies, which bothered her immensely and made the hop after romance much more difficult than ever.

Way back on the day before graduation, as she had stood on the threshold of her career, Susan had had her last date with Ronald, the boy who lived across the hall and who was studying advanced chemistry at the university. It was June. They went to the movies, as they had done on several spring evenings, for Ronald was a nice boy and Susan was not blind to his charms. On the way home he had held her hand, walking through the park, and had whispered sweet things to her. And when they arrived home and were sitting on the couch Ronald had broken the silence with:

"Susan, you know with your music and my science, we could make an awfully good go of it together, don't you think?" And Susan, on her threshold, not blind to Ronald's possibilities, but deaf to his practical counsel, had answered:

"Oh, no, Ronald, I have my career." (Which had seemed then the paramount joy in life.) And Ronald had gone away forever.

Now, as she started scrubbing up her imitation silver, all this came back to Susan. Her career had been ephemeral. It had in reality assumed the form of a fattish husband and two roly-poly children who just at present were having the mumps.

"If only," she sighed. "I had listened to Ronald that night. He was so sweet. And he appreciated my music." A tear dropped into the soapsuds. "I would do anything in the world for you," she remembered Ronald saying. "We will have a dear little house and a grand piano and a car—all for you." Imagine the idiocy of having given up anything like that! But she had been blind, foolish, ignorant. She went on accusing herself as she dried the silver and wrapped it up in its red felt coverings.

All her romance, Susan reflected, lay just around the corner, as ever and she was getting old. But it lay around a corner in her past, where it could never be recovered. She had stumbled, just as her hand was outstretched to touch it. Ronald, who had gone away, whose eyes had been lit with the fire of enthusiasm for life—Ronald, who by this time would have a chair of chemistry at some university, would be a shimmering light in the world, whose wife would share his glorious career—Ronald had assumed the form of "high romance" to Susan.

In contrast, she pictured Hubert, whose mind was a formula of medical prescriptions, whose dearest acquaintances were the family doctors who patronized his drug store, whose idea of romance was chicken with dumplings on Sunday and school pageants in which his two children took part. She and Hubert were, this very night, going to some school affair or other.

So the day dragged and Hubert came home. He ate his supper, punctuating it with remarks anent the latest drug news, played with his two mumpish children and then waited around for Susan while she leisurely got ready for the meeting.

Long after time the program got under way, there were songs by the upper grades and then the president of the Parent-Teacher association pounded for silence.

"Our speaker for the evening," she announced, "will advise us on the rearing of our children." Susan was about to sink again into gloomy contemplation when a name reached her.

"I take pleasure in introducing Dr. Ronald Richardson of the state university, who will talk on 'The Parent and the Pre-School Child'." The announcement was followed by the appearance of Ronald himself.

Susan gazed at the object which for ten years had meant romance, adventure, escape from the squalid routine of her marriage. He was the same Ronald, but grown fat. His stomach pouched and he nervously fingered his mustache as he opened his remarks by saying:

"I am going to cut my speech short and hurry home, ladies and gentlemen. My youngest baby has the mumps."

"Come, Hubert," Susan said, clutching her husband's arm as the meeting closed; "let's be romantic and find a dimly lighted booth where we can eat ice cream on the way home!"—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Letters Twisted

Little Alice had been having a hard time at school learning to spell. Her worst fault was getting the letters twisted. The other day her mother found a piece of paper, a letter signed by Alice, listing the things she wanted for Christmas. The letter was addressed to "Dear Satan."

Helping Santa

"What do you want Santa to bring you for Christmas?" Mr. X asked his daughter, Ruth, age six, who had returned from a shopping trip with her mother.

"Well, I want a doll and some handkerchiefs," said Ruth, who evidently had been instructed in a request that would include something practical. "But," she added, "if Santa Claus does not have enough handkerchiefs to go around he can just bring me the doll and take the handkerchiefs to other children."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Just what part did the beard of von Tirpitz play in the World war?

Everybody remembers it. That huge, black, shovel-shaped, piratical-looking chin adornment rarely missed a week in the wartime rotogravure sections. Almost everybody had a notion there was some sort of a sinister connection between it and the business of torpedoing merchant ships without warning. Now the truth is out—officially.

It is related in a wartime cablegram from Ambassador "Jimmie" Gerard at Berlin, just published, which attracted the special notice of President Wilson and which mentioned specifically the beard of von Tirpitz. So far as this writer knows, that's the only time anybody's beard achieved such international prominence.

A Popular Beard

What Gerard was reporting was that Foreign Minister von Jagow complained to him in 1915 just after the Lusitania sinking that the great general staff and the navy folks, headed by von Tirpitz, were running over the foreign office regardless. They controlled the foreign office to a large extent, von Jagow said.

"In fact, all measures are agreed on by a sort of junta," Gerard continued, adding a list of junta members with von Tirpitz and von Falkenhayn near the head and Emperor William at the bottom. Von Tirpitz was "a popular character (largely on account of has aggressiveness and his beard)," Gerard said; with great influence; while von Falkenhayn, general staff head and a courtier, had the emperor's ear.

"The chancellor bores the emperor to death," the ambassador added.

A comment by President Wilson at the time on this message, July 29, 1915, characterized the "detailed revelation of the whole German state of mind" it gave as "little less than amazing."

Gerard said he was satisfied Germany's war methods, including the sinking of the Lusitania, had the "full approval" of the German people. He commented also on the "very effective press bureau" of the marine ministry under von Tirpitz. Now, as the Bystander recalls it, the chief work before the war of that be-whiskered leader was the organization of a popular navy league designed to make Germany ship-minded and therefore complacent toward heavily increased naval building programs. Up to 1915 at least, he was apparently entirely successful.

Influence on Navies

England's naval prestige rests on the ship-mindedness of an insular population. Japan recognized the essential value of this popular attitude when she started the naval building program treading so closely on the heels of the huge American 1916 naval expansion movement as to bring about the Washington naval limitation treaty of 1921-22.

The single post-Jutland, 16-inch gun Japanese battleship now afloat, the Mutsui, was built largely by popular subscription. It was slated for scrapping under the American limitation program, but Admiral Kato and his colleagues dared not risk popular displeasure. They saved the Mutsui by accepting the American West Virginia and Colorado and the British Nelson and Rodney.

Those five ships represent substantially a quarter of a billion in post-war construction. Possibly, also, they are a product, in a way, of von Tirpitz's beard.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Farmer Brown's Boy Has a Surprise

Surprises may be good or bad;
Make people laugh, or make them sad.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

It was a snappy cold morning. Farmer Brown's Boy went whistling out to the barn to do his morning chores there. He is very fond of whistling. He whistles as birds sing—just from habit. He fed the horses and he fed the cows. He gave them all a drink. He cleaned out the stalls. Once, as he was getting some grain in the grain bin, he thought he saw something move across the barn floor.

"I guess it was a rat," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I certainly must do something about the rats. They are getting altogether too numerous in this barn. I wish Billy Mink would come over here and make a visit, the way he did once before. I didn't see a rat for a long, long time after Billy's visit."

It was Peter of course, it was Peter

Farmer Brown's boy went on about his work. And then, glancing over his shoulder, he again saw a movement. He stood stock still. Something was coming out from under the hay. To himself he was saying, "My gracious, that's the biggest rat I ever saw! He must be the greatgrandfather of them all."

And then Farmer Brown's Boy nearly dropped the measure of oats he held in his hand. He wanted to rub his eyes to be sure that he was seeing what he seemed to see. "If that isn't Peter Rabbit, than I don't know Peter when I see him," muttered Farmer Brown's Boy. "But how can it be Peter here in the barn? How could he get in? And why would he come in, even if he could get in? It can't be Peter. No, sir, it can't be Peter. But it is! Now, how can a thing be when it can't be?"

It was Peter. Of course, it was Peter. He had come out from under the hay where he had been taking a nap, and being once more hungry, he had made straight for the carrots. Now he was quietly sitting there eating a carrot. Farmer Brown's Boy moved. Instantly Peter scurried back under the hay. Farmer Brown's Boy once more stood perfectly still. He didn't move so much as a finger. In a few minutes he saw Peter's wabbly little nose poking out from under the hay. Peter sat there for a moment or two. Then he came wholly out and hopped over to those carrots again. But the moment Farmer Brown's Boy moved he scurried back under the hay.

"So it is really you, Peter Rabbit," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "You must have been very, very hungry to venture up here. I wonder how you would like some oats? Those ought to be a change and be good for you."

So Farmer Brown's Boy went over to the oat bin and scooped out a couple of handfuls of oats. These he put in a little pile on the floor about two rods in front of the place where Peter had disappeared under the hay. Then once more he stood perfectly still. He didn't have to wait long. When Peter poked his head out from under the hay, his wabbly little nose was wabbling as only it can wabble. He smelled those oats. He hopped over to them and trashing out took a mouthful. Then he hitched a little nearer and squatting down he made a business—a happy business—of eating oats. You know Rabbits are fond of oats. My! How those little jaws of his did work! They were a treat—a very great treat. It was a long time since he had tasted any oats. He quite forgot that he was in Farmer Brown's Barn and that Farmer Brown's Boy was anywhere about.

Meanwhile, Farmer Brown's Boy was still puzzling over how Peter had entered the barn. "He must have come in sometime when the door was left open," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "You see, he hadn't thought of that little door made for Black Pussy the Cat. I wonder if little Mrs. Peter is with him," continued Farmer Brown's Boy. "If she is she ought to come out, with such a lot of good things around. If she isn't with him she must be down in the dear Old Briar-patch and be hungry. I'll go down there by and by and take something to eat. Well, this will never do for me. I have work to do, even if I have a visitor."

So Farmer Brown's Boy went on about his work. Peter, at first, ran back under the hay, but presently he came out and remained out. He had made up his mind that there was no danger from Farmer Brown's Boy.

YOUR HEALTH

DISTRESSING HEAD NOISES

By C. F. Yarger, M. D., Chicago

Head noise, or in the terminology of the physician tinnitus aurium, is but a sympton of many diseased conditions of the ear and body. It is a term employed to designate subjective sounds heard in the ears or head. It is one of the most pronounced and frequent subjective symptons, and may be very distressing.

The sounds complained of by the patient may be either musical or noisy; high, low or intermediate in pitch, continuous or intermittent, pulsating or synchronous with the heart beat, and from mild to very loud. Tinnitus aurium may assume any variety of noise or tones, which may vary in intensity and character even in the same individual. It is commonly associated and appears simultaneously with disturbances of hearing. In the great majority of cases, tinnitus is localized in the ear, but not infrequently it is referred to some other part of the head.

While it is true that tinnitus can occur independent of ear disease, the ear should in every case, first be examined carefully and thoroughly in order to exclude it as a cause, because ear disease is the most common cause of tinnitus. Beziold found tinnitus in 2.6 per cent of all ear patients. Tinnitus is frequently associated with deafness. The intensity of the tinnitus may increase with increase in deafness, or it may diminish or cease completely, while in other cases it may increase after hearing has been lost.

The intensity of the tinnitus is most marked in chronic adhesive processes of the middle ear and the formation of spongy bone in the capsule of the labyrinth of the ear. Tinnitus associated with chronic suppurative disease of the middle ear is not so marked as the former. Whether in tinnitus aurium there is a close relationship between the character of the subjective noise and its underlying cause is very doubtful, but from our clinical knowledge of diseases of the inner ear and auditory nerve, we would expect involvement here to show a high pitched whistle-like sound.

There is a form of subjective noises that must be regarded as a neurosis. It is designated as nervous tinnitus, but this diagnosis should never be made until all other causes of tinnitus have been excluded. The many causes that may produce tinnitus are legion. When due to general disease, it is likely to be bilateral. When due to some local condition affecting one ear, it is generally unilateral.

Some of the systematic diseases causing tinnitus are hypertension or high blood pressure, cardio-vascular-renal disease, anemia, syphilis, mumps, neurasthenia, quinine, salicylates, alcohol and tobacco intoxications.

The local diseases producing tinnitus affect the condition and perception apparatus of the ear. Disease of the ear is the cause of over 95 per cent of tinnitus. Some of the most common causes being impacted wax in the external auditory canal, catarrh of the eustachian tube with obstruction, acute and chronic, catarrhal or purulent middle-ear disease, and diseases of the internal ear or labyrinth. Tinnitus is one of the most frequent symptoms of irritation of the labyrinth.

The outlook for relief or a complete cure of this disagreeable sympton depends upon its causation, its duration and its severity. If we can remove the cause of this sympton, we can remove the sympton, hence the most important thing is to find the cause and to do this as early as possible and not let the condition become chronic.

Time

Another Year Poem

Our share of life is just the gift of Time:
We have a little while to laugh and weep,
To sleep a bird and learn to love a face,
And then—a stark, inevitable grave to keep.

Time, the servant, at our beck and call;
Ours to use, to waste, to compute for;
Time, the tool to win us heart's desire;
Then—Time, the master, pointing to the door.

If you keep faith with Time, and learn her ways
She is your ally—strong to vindicate,
Healer of sorrows, conqueror of pain;
Her law is patience and her keyword: "Wait."

Master the current of her mighty flow,
Catch the tide high—though terrible and swift;
For weaklings drown in the eddying swirl of Time,
And shattered dreams of men float in the drift.

Within the shadow of her circling arms
We live out our fragment of Eternity,
Till she sweeps clean—devours all at last,
Consumes the "Self" in you, the "I" in me.

Life or death—what are they in the end?
The almighty minute is the thing called Fate;
One second, more or less, makes destinies—
And, oh! the torture in the words: "Too late."

"All Life is momentary," one great teacher said;
And we, like the year, are even now reborn:
One day men choose to mark a starting point,
As each goes out anew to meet his dawn.

HAD REVOLVER THAT DISAPPEARED FROM ARMORY

Leslie A. Howard of No. 7 Potter place will be presented in the city court this (Friday) morning on a charge of having a revolver, alleged to have been stolen from the armory, in his possession. Howard is a member of Battery B, 192nd Artillery. The revolver, which he turned over to the police, is one which has been missing from the armory. He claims that it was given to him by a man in Stamford a couple of years ago. He is out on bonds of $200.

Fine For Children!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate the stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color, Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

FLU INVADES NORWICH; HEALTH OFFICER GIVES CITIZENS ADVICE

In the last 48 hours, medical men of the city have had evidence to convince them that influenza has invaded the city, said Dr. E. J. Brophy Thursday night, and while the cases here are not many it is to be expected that there will be increases in the number just as has been the case in places where influenza has cropped out. Dr. Brophy, who is city health officer, said that the cases in Norwich so far are mild in comparison with the type of the disease that appeared in the epidemic of 1918 and it is not expected that they will compare in severity with that visitation of the disease by any means.

At the same time, Dr. Brophy said it would behoove every one to take precautions against contracting the disease and one of the best ways to fortify against catching the influenza is to get plenty of sleep. It seems to be a characteristic of the disease that it readily attacks those who are in a tired out or run-down condition.

Dr. Brophy said emphatically that those who take the disease should keep away from other people and should not expect others to call upon them while they are sick. These two measures are important in preventing spread of the disease.

Another point to be observed, Dr Brophy stated, was in regard to calls for doctors. Those who want medical attention should put in their calls between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning if they want to get a doctor the same day. Those who put off till night their requests for a doctor's call may have to wait until the next day, for the doctors must get rest if they are to stay on the job, the city health officer declared.

There is nothing alarming in the present situation, said Dr. Brophy, but every precaution should be taken. Some of the chief symptoms are chills, general body aches with cough and a raw feeling throat and chest, which is made worse by coughing. The person having influenza should go to bed and stay there and not get up for at least two days after he feels well.

From State Health Department

Dr. Brophy called attention to the following pamphlet upon influenza issued by the state department of health:

Spread from Mouth and Nose

The germs of influenza and many other communicable diseases are present in the mouth and nose and leave the body with discharges from these orifices. Such diseases are spread by discharges from the mouth and nose and preventive measures are concerned largely with isolation of patients and destruction of their discharges.

Some of the diseases spread in this way are well known, such as cerebro-spinal meningitis, common colds, diphtheria, German measles, infantile paralysis, influenza, measles, mumps, pneumonia, scarlet fever, septic sore throat, tuberculosis and whooping cough. Other diseases like chickenpox, encephalitis and smallpox are also probably capable of being conveyed from one person to another in the same way.

A person ill with a disease is known as a "case." A person who harbors disease germs without being ill is a "carrier." Diseases may be spread by either cases or carriers. When spread by cases severe enough to be recognized, the source of infection may be traced. When spread by carriers, the source of infection often remains a mystery. Measures of prevention must take into account the known cases, the mild and unrecognized cases and the carriers.

Methods of Prevention

Each person should think of disease prevention from two points of view, first from the point of view of the person in danger of becoming infected, and second from the point of view of the person who may be infected without knowing it and who may thus unwittingly spread disease to others. Precautionary measures are suited to each point of view.

Protect Yourself

Certain important measures for protecting one's self from influenza and other nose and mouth diseases may be stated categorically as follows:

1. Keep away from houses where anyone is ill with a cold, influenza, pneumonia or other disease.

2. Keep away from sick people and from those who may be carriers by contact with sick people.

3. During an outbreak of disease keep away from crowds.

4. Avoid food, pencils, chewing gum, candy, horns, whistles, and other objects that have been in contact with the mouth of someone else.

5. Avoid drinking cups and eating utensils used by another until they have been properly washed and sterilized.

6. Wash your hands before eating. The hand is our greatest carrier of many disease germs.

7. Go to bed at once when symptoms first appear, and call a doctor.

Protecting Others

In many respects it is just as important to protect others as to protect yourself. You may be a carrier of disease germs and not know it. For this reason there are certain precautions you should take even though you feel perfectly well. If ill or if you know yourself to be a carrier of disease germs you should observe the requirements of your health officer for the protection of others. If not ill and not known to be a carrier of disease germs, common decency requires that you observe reasonable rules of cleanliness not only for esthetic reasons but also to prevent the spread of disease germs that may be harbored in your body without knowing it. The following health rules will illustrate the measures designed to protect others.

1. If you have a cold stay at home so as not to expose others.

2. When you have suspicious symptoms stay at home till the doctor is sure you do not have influenza.

3. Destroy all discharges from the nose and mouth. These discharges contain disease germs. Spitting on floors, street cars, sidewalks or streets may spread disease.

4. Cover each cough or sneeze with a cloth or handkerchief that will catch the expelled droplets or mouth spray.

5. If you are a "sprayer," do not stand close to people when you talk.

6. Wash your hands before handling food intended for the use of others.

7. Do not spit! Spitting spreads disease.

$25,000 FOR MAINTENANCE AT NEW LONDON HARBOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. C., Jan. 3—It is expected that under the war department appropriation bill reported to congress today New London harbor will get $25,000 for maintenance during the fiscal year of 1930 if the recommendations of the appropriation committee are carried out by congress. The bill is in lump sum but the war department has recommended for Connecticut $25,000 for New London harbor maintenance, $500 for maintenance of Connection river above Hartford, $60,000 maintenance for Connecticut river below Hartford, $9,000 for Bamford harbor and $110,000 for maintenance at New Haven harbor.

ROAD CONDITIONS AND DETOURS ARE REPORTED

Road conditions and detours in this part of the state made necessary by highway construction and repairs announced by the state highway department, as of Jan. 2nd are as follows:

Route No. 6—Brooklyn-Danielson road in the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn is under construction.

Route No. 10—Haddam road is under construction from higganum to Haddam. Short one-way traffic at bridge, Arnolds station.

Route No. 109—Mansfield-Phoenixville road is under construction. This road is impassable to traffic.

Route No. 150—Lyme-East Haddam, Hamburg-North Plains road is under construction. No delay to traffic.

Canterbury-Newent road under construction for two miles, south of Canterbury. Grade rough, travel difficult.

Farm Bureau Notes

A new home demonstration group was formed Wednesday at Geer Hill, Ledyard. Ten women in the community met at the home of Mrs. Joseph Clark and planned a programme of work for 1929. The first meeting of the group will be held January 23rd with a demonstration and work on remodelling of clothing. Other subjects to be taken up are wheel-trays, dress patterns, dress styles and vegetable cookery.

MRS. GEORGE GIBBS SHERRILL IS HONORED BY FRANCE

At Paris in recognition of her war services and works of charity in France since the war, Mrs. Charles H. Sherill of New York has been made a Chevalier of the French Legion of Honor upon nomination of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Mrs. Sherrill's citation mentions her part in creating American volunteer ambulance units and hospitals during the World war, her cooperation with hospitals in Fez during the Moroccan campaign and her generosity toward the town of Brie-Comte-Robert.

Having spent a ten-day-furlough, at his home in Hanover, Francis McShane, left Tuesday afternoon for U. S. S. Tahoe C. G., which is stationed at Boston.

Mrs. Sherrill was Miss George Barker Gibbs, only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Gibbs, whose home was "Pinehurst," 154 Washington street, Norwich. General and Mrs. Sherrill maintain a residence in Paris as well as in New York.

MICHAEL BISHOP BACK HOME AFTER ABSENCE

Michael Bishop, about 37, missing from his home on North Main street since Dec. 20, is back home, much to the relief of his anxious wife. Mrs. Bishop has been searching for him since the day he disappeared. A sum of money disappeared at the same time, but according to Mrs. Bishop, the money was found. Mrs. Bishop said that her husband evidently had the idea that she blamed him for the disappearance of the money and was keeping away from home because of that reason.

Thursday evening Mr. Bishop called her on the telephone from New London and, while he was telephoning, Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the state police found him at the phone and took him in charge. The state police had been on the lookout for him at the request of Mrs. Bishop. Bishop was taken to the state police barracks at Groton and his wife was notified that he was there.

Bishop voluntarily returned to Norwich with her.

WILL MAKE ARGUMENTS IN POND ST. EVICTION SUIT

Trial of the summary process suit of Miss Carrie Comstock of New London against John T. Harrington, proprietor of a monumental works on the triangular plot of ground between Franklin street and Pond street, occupied its fourth day Thursday before Justice of the Peace John H. Barnes and a jury of six, holding session in the common pleas courtroom.

When court adjourned late in the afternoon, both sides had rested and it was agreed that arguments would be made next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Arthur T. Libby and Judge T. J. Kelly are counsel for Miss Comstock, with Attorneys E. W. Perkins and H. H. Pettis counsel for Mr. Harrington. Miss Comstock is trying to have Mr. Harrington evicted from his occupancy of the land she claims.

According to a blue print plan shown in court and purporting to show the layout and lines of Pond street, the Harrington shop building would be partly in the street if the northerly side of the highway were carried out along the line indicated on the blueprint.

Report Palmertown Automobile Fire

It was reported about 11:15 o'clock Thursday evening that a machine in a privately-owned garage was ablaze in the town of Palmertown, Montville. Apparatus from the New London fire department responded to a call for assistance, it was said. No details of the fire could be learned.

JUDGE ORDERS MONEY PAID TO TRUSTEES

An error by the late George E. Parsons when clerk of the superior court in making an endorsement for judgment does not make the judgment collectible, according to a decision handed down by Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court and filed with Clerk John H. Walker here Thursday.

The ruling affects an alleged judgment for $6,136.76 in favor of the Westinghouse Brake Traction Co. against the Shore Line Electric Railway Co. receivership in which the judge had directed that approximately $8,000 be held by Receiver Robert W. Perkins pending the decision upon this claim.

In the memorandum of decision Judge Booth says:

The question is whether the amount remaining in the hands of the receiver shall be paid to the Old Colony Trust Co., the mortgagee, in full, or only in part, there being deducted first, the sum of $6,136.76, claimed to have been allowed The Westinghouse Traction Brake Co. as a preferred claim.

The files show that on June 28, 1920, the Brake Co. filed its application for the allowance of its claim as preferred, and on March 16, 1923, Hibberd R. Norman was appointed a committee to hear it and report the facts. Nothing further appears except an endorsement on the application signed by the clerk as follows: "Judgment for Westinghouse Traction Brake Co. by memorandum of decision filed in case No. 5775 on Sept. 22, 1927."

Case No. 5775 is an action brought by Anson T. McCook, treasurer, as trustee for the bondholders against the Groton and Stonington Street Railway Co., et al, in Nov. 1924, to foreclose the first mortgage on the defendant's railway, which railway has been taken over by the Shore Line Co., in 1916 and afterwards sold by the receiver to a new corp known as the G. & E. Traction Co. On Feb. 12, 1926, the Brake Co. was made a party to this proceeding and afterwards filed an answer and cross-complaint, the latter of which raised substantially the same issues as those under its claim for preference filed in the receivership action.

This matter came on for hearing after the issues had been closed and by agreement of counsel the claim of the Brake Co. filed in the receivership proceedings was heard at the same time by the court. That this was so and that the issues were the same appears from the briefs of counsel filed in the superior court.

The brief of the Brake Co. contains this opening statement, "The above entitled causes were by consent of all parties in interest heard jointly, and in view of the fact that the contested questions are the same in both cases all of the evidence submitted at the trial is applicable to each cause." Substantially the same statement appears in the brief filed by the receiver.

On Sept. 22, 1927, the superior court in a memorandum of decision bearing title of both the foreclosure and receivership actions, rendered judgment as follows: "In my opinion the Westinghouse Traction Brake Co., has, for foregoing reasons, clearly established its claim and it may have judgment for $6,136.76 in accordance with the stipulation filed Oct. 14, 1926 in case number 5775. I assume that in accordance with its statement contained in the brief filed in reply to that of Robert W. Perkins, receiver, it will file a satisfaction of judgmnet in the other cases."

From this judgment an appeal was taken and on July 16, 1928, the supreme court of errors handed down a decision reversing the judgment of the superior court.

It is now the contention of the Brake Co. that a judgment in its favor was rendered by the superior court not only in the foreclosure proceeding but in that of the receivership as well, and no appeal from the latter having been taken it is still a valid and outstanding judgment, for which satisfaction must be made.

I do not so construe it. The memorandum, although entitled with both cases, expressly rendered judgment in only one, directing a satisfaction of the judgment in the other, and the clerk's endorsement cannot create a judgment if none existed. It would certainly be somewhat strange if a claim could thus be collected through some technicality after having been ruled upon adversely by the supreme court.

The receiver is therefore directed to pay the funds remaining in his hands to the Old Colony Trust Co. and an order to that effect may be prepared.

EXPERTS DESCRIBE HOW WATER IS PERIL IN FIRE

NEW YORK—(AP)—A warning from the underwriters laboratories tells how water is becoming less general as a fire extinguisher as applied science developes synthetic utilities.

For wood, paper, textiles, rubbish and all ordinary combustible materials, the warning says that water still holds its quenching powers. But when oils, greases and gasolines are concerned, water adds to the peril by spreading the flames and the foam or heavy gas type of extinguisher is needed.

For fires in electrical equipment water is still more dangerous, involving risk of causing electric shock and carbon types of extinguishers are recommended.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

A three-table bridge was given by Miss Jean Peck, of Hanover, Wednesday, in compliment to the girls home from college. The prizes were won by Miss Beatrice Leonard and Miss Harriet A. Geer, of Norwich, and Miss Ruth Lee, of Hanover.

Miss Helen Tirrell has left to resume her studies at Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

When Mrs. Benjamin T. Hall, of Julian Terace entertained with a holiday bridge the prizes were won by Mrs. Charles B. Lucas, Mrs. Harry F. Powers, Iver A. Anderson and Frederick S. Crowell.

Mrs. William H. Geer and William A. Geer motored to Hartford Thursday, accompanying Miss Harriet Allyn Geer and Miss Dorothy Spencer, who were returning to Smith college following the holiday recess.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sage (Dorothy Gordon Gildersleeve) who were married Christmas day and have been in Washington, have arrived at their new home in Linwood, N. J., suburban to Atlantic City.

At Lighthouse Inn Wednesday a bridge-tea for eight was given by Miss Helene Crawford. The prizes at cards were taken by Miss Mary Berry, of Hartford and Pequot avenue, and Miss Natalie Connor, of Lincoln avenue, who is home during the vacation at Albertus Magnus college, New Haven.

Three baby storks recently were hatched at the Cincinnati zoo. The hatching is unique in that in the annals of American zoological gardens, according to Sol Stephan, manager of the zoo, it is the first time that storks have been hatched in America.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM PLAYS FAST FITCHBURG CLUB TONIGHT

The Danielson Town team's opponents for tonight's game in Town hall will be the strong Fitchburg team which comes to Danielson with a clean slate excepting one defeat in Boston last week at the hands of the Boston Whirlwinds.

This is the first appearance of the Fitchburg team in Danielson and from all reports they will live long in the memories of the local fans.

The team consists of all former college stars both from Holy Cross and Boston college and several who have seen the team in action consider them among the top notchers.

Danielson will have their regular lineup, including Williams at center, Gallup, Burbe and Armington forwards with Keach, Poirier and Longo at the guard positions.

This should be one of the most interesting games to date and plans are being made for a large crowd.

WITHEY ELECTED CAPTAIN OF KILLINGLY HIGH FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 3 — Clifford Withey was elected captain of the Killingly high schol basketball team today. Captain Withey is a three letter man having participated in basketball, baseball and football. He is the star forward on the "Red and White" quintet.

Friday night Coach Schofield will take his team to Woodstock to play Woodstock Academy which is a strong team. It has the reputation of beating a Norwich Y. M. C. A. team led by Leslie "Beans" Conklin.

BLACKHAWKS DROP THIRD STRAIGHT TO MAPLELEAFS

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks dropped their third straight National league hockey game tonight, falling before a superior brand of passing and checking by the speedy Toronto Mapleleafs. The score was 2 to 0.

For the greater part of the first two periods the Hawks equalled the Mapleleafs in checking but they finally succumbed to the Canadians powerful attack. Bill Carson counted the first Toronto score after 11 minutes of play, taking a pass across the ice from Ace Bailey, the league's leading scorer.

The third period was only two minutes old when Andy Blair, the 20 year old Toronto rookie, flashed down the center of the ice on a four-man combination, took the puck from Ace Bailey and beat Gardiner with a hard drive. Thereafter the Mapleleafs resored to an almost puncture proof defense.

RANGERS RALLY TO TIE PITTSBURGH CLUB

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)—A stirring rally in the third period gave the New York Rangers a two to two tie with Pittsburgh here tonight in one of the fastest and hardest National Hockey league games here this season. The Rangers scored both their goals in the third period after the Pirates had taken the lead with tallies in the first and second frames.

Tex White made the first tally, unassisted, just before the end of the opening session and Hal Darragh took a pass from Rogers Smith for another two minutes after the start of the second.

In the third period the Rangers sent four forwards on to the ice and netted a pair of goals only tow minutes apart. Butch Keiling and Paul Thompson scored with Bun Cook and Murdock assisting.

SYKES WINS VERDICT OVER JOHNNY BALCO

WATERBURY, Jan. 3—(AP)—Paulie Sykes, of Jersey City, won an eight round decision over Johnny Balco, in the feature bout of the Waterbury A. C. card here tonight. Sykes broke his hand in the fourth round, but continued as the aggressor for the remaining rounds. Sykes weighed 156(Balco 158 1-2.

Davey Brown, New York city, 140, won on a foul from Tex Watson, Hoboken, N. J., 137, in the first round of another six rounder. The referee disqualified Watson for hitting Brown, while the latter was on his knees.

Johnny Murray, Waterbury, 128 1-2, won a four round decision over Tony Dell, Union City, N. J., 128.

Yale Beats Holy Cross

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3—(AP)—Yale took consolation laurels in the four team Yale basketball tournament by defeating Holy Cross tonight, 34 to 20. Both quintets were put out of the running for top honors last night by New York university and Georgetown. The team work of the winners was accurate and fast with Fodder and Nassau excelling.

NURMI ASKS A. A. U. FOR A REGISTRATION CARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi filed application with the Amateur Athletic Union today for a registration card, permitting him to compete in this country, but he will be asked to appear at an official hearing before it is issued.

In thus proclaiming officially his intention to start his return American invasion as an amateur, neither Paavo nor his adviser, Hugo Quist, specified where or when the famous Finnish runner will make his competitive start. Nurmi will be interrogated as to his intentions by the registration committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U., to which his application was referred by Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary.

Nurmi's credentials were satisfactory, Ferris said, adding that no obstacle is foreseen to granting the Finn an amateur card. It is the request of the Finnish athletic governing body, according to Ferris, that the A. A. U. keep watch over Nurmi's activities and properly safeguard his appearance so that he will return home in good amateur standing.

LEWIS WILL HAVE WEIGHT ON SONNENBERG TONIGHT

BOSTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, expected to have a 35 pound weight advantage of his challenger "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, when they enter the Boston Garden ring tomorrow night to wrestle again for the former's heavyweight title.

Lewis weighed 235 pounds today, and Sonnenberg was just under 200. Gus, however, expected to put on a few pounds before going into action. Both wrestlers were fit, and Lewis claimed he was in the best physical shape of his long career.

During the past ten days, the champion has spent much time hardening his abdomen, where he expected to receive much of Sonnenberg's punishment. When the pair met here a year ago, Lewis was not as well conditioned as he could have been, and he suffered great pain when Sonnenberg took the first fall by butting him in the midriff with his vicious "flying tackle" hold.

KID CHOCOLATE RETURNS HOME FOR A VISIT

HAVANA, Cub, Jan. 3—(AP)—The dusky little Cuban fighter, "Kid" Chocolate, who took New York rings by storm after leaving here six months ago with one suit, six dollars, and a one-way ticket, is back home again, the lion of the hour among his own people.

The "keed" is the hero of the island. His clothes now are of gorgeous hue—lavender and green suits predominating—and he's the Croesus of the Negro set with a bank balance well over $20,000. All his friends got a $10 bill for Christmas—"new and crinkly" ones.

Tonight a banquet in his honor was prepared for 100 sport fans.

The island will see much of the graceful little lightweight, critics have tabbed a possible title holder, but not in the ring. The "keed," who can't speak English, has announced that he is "through" with the "ham and egg" bouts here. He will return to New York in February for a shot at real big ring game. He has won 16 straight battles in New York, 10 by knockouts.

NEW CONTRACTS BEING SENT TO BALL PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—The baseball season is just around the corner. Both New York clubs have sent out 1929 contracts and when the contracts are placed in the mails spring training can not be far behind.

The Yankees have eight players with holdover contracts, Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth, Earl Combs, Waite Hoyt, Mark Koenig, Tony Lazzeri, Herb Pennock and Wilcy Moore. Gehrig's contract has two years to run while the others expire with the close of the 1929 season. Bob Meusel will have to be signed again as his two year contract expired with 1928. The Giants have Roush as a holdover.

The Giants reduced their roster by one when Ray Foley, former Catholic university outfilder, was released to Bridgeport in the Eastern league. Foley was with the club a short time last season.

Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants will sail for Havana Saturday on his annual vacation visit to Cuba.

Jersey City Buys White.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 3—(AP)—The Jersey City International League club announced today the acquisition of James B. Wiltse pitcher from the Albany, Eastern league club. Wiltse has been the property of the New York Yankees several seasons, having been let out to Buffalo in 1927 and to Albany last year. He is a right hander.

ADAMS ADDS HIS TESTIMONY TO THAT OF FUCHS IN BRIBERY PROBE

BOSTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Boston National league baseball club, testified before the finance commission today that before the Sunday professional sports bill came before the city council for action he received a telephone call from an anonymous person warning him that "certain members of the council were trying to get $5,000 each and if they didn't get it would delay until the bill had cobwebs on it."

Adams, who is also president of the Boston Bruins hockey club, was the second witness called by the finance commission in its investigation of his charges that a member of the city council sought a bribe for obtaining passage of the order to permit Sunday professional sports, thereby making it possible for the Boston Braves and Red Sox to play games in this city seven days a week.

President Emil Fuchs of the Braves, the first witness, had told the commission that Councilman William G. Lynch informed him that a "bloc" of 13 of the councilmen could prevent passage of the order and "believe that we ought to get something out of it" if they passed the order. President Fuchs quoted Lynch as saying that it had been suggested that the members of the "bloc" ought to receive $5,000 each.

Adams said that while he could not identify the person that called him by telephone and advised him that certain members of the council were planning to block the Sunday sports measure unless they received $5,000 each, he thought the voice sounded like that of Councilman Robert G. Wilson. As soon as the conversation ended, Adams testified, he attempted to reach Wilson by telephone so that he might compare his voice with that of the mysterious caller, but every time he had called he had been told that Wilson was out or unable to answer.

The Braves vice president also testified that Myles MacSweeney, a Boston sports writer, had told him that he had evidence that "would hang at least two of the councilmen," and that MacSweeney had two witnesses to testify that these councilmen "were going to hold up the bill until the Braves paid tribute."

Adams said that MacSweeney and President Fuchs had a disagreement because MacSweeney felt that he should publish the story, while Fuchs and Adams wanted publication held up until they were satisfied that the charges were justified.

Adams also told of a conference he had with Dan Carroll, Boston boxing manager, in which he asked Carroll to tell Lynch to use his influence with several councilmen who had accused Adams of being a "bribe giver" and "fight fixer."

"Tell them to lay off or I'll tell more about what I know," Adams said he told Carroll. He denied that he had said he did not want to be asked questions by the city council.

The Braves' vice president testified that some time prior to November 28, Fuchs called him on the telephone and told him of the alleged proposal made by Lynch. He said Fuchs gave him the names of the 13 councilmen in the "bloc." Adams gave the commission the list he made at the time. Commissioner John C. Dowling, chairman of the commission, asked him why circles had been drawn around the names of Councilmen Ruby, Mahoney, Motley and Murphy, and Adams replied that he had thought those councilmen favored the bill and would not vote against it.

At the end of his direct testimony, Adams read a statement in which he said that in his 25 years experience as a business man, no public official had attempted to obtain tribute through the use of his office and that the present charges were made "with the deepest regret."

Attorney Joseph P. Walsh, who yesterday clashed with Fuchs during the cross examination, again conducted the cross examination. Before he started he said that he represented Carroll, in addition to Lynch. Both Lynch and Carroll sat at a small table in front of the commission.

Walsh quoted a newspaper statement made by Adams in which Adams said that the bribery charges were being held up because "we may have been misinformed." When asked if he meant that Fuchs might have been wrong, Adams said that he had meant that he hadn't been sure of the exact names and the number of those in the alleged "bloc."

Then Walsh resumed his questioning about Fuchs' attitude the night Lynch was said to have made his request for the bribe.

"Didn't Fuchs tell you he had apologized to Lynch?" Walsh asked Adams. "He did not," Adams replied.

"Didn't he mention anything about an apology?"

"No."

Quite suddenly, the name of Arnold Rothstein, murdered New York gambler, was brought into the hearing.

Walsh had been questioning Adams about his associates in the sport world.

"Ever know Sport Sullivan?" Walsh asked.

"Slightly," Adams replied, although he did not identify the man.

Then he mentioned the name of Abe Attell and followed it by asking if Adams knew Rothstein. Adams replied that he did not.

"Were you ever connected with the Chicago scandal?" Walsh asked suddenly, but the commission excluded the question.

Near the close of the hearing, the commission called Burt Whitman, sports editor of the Boston Herald. He testified that on the night of November 28, the night Fuchs said Lynch came to him at the Hotel Copley Plaza, he called at Fuchs' suite and that Fuchs said to him:

"Come in here Burt. This is good. It would be comical if it wasn't pathetic."

Whitman said he did not enter Fuchs' room, but remained in another room in the suite talking with Edmund Cunningham, secretary of the Boston Braves. He added that Fuchs did not tell him what was being discussed in the other room. Later he went into the other room and met Lynch and Carroll. They talked of many sport subjects, but did not mention the subject of Sunday baseball, Whitman said.

Commissioner Dowling said at the conclusion of today's session that Cunningham would be the first witness tomorrow. He also said that the commission had decided to deny the various councilmen mentioned in Fuchs' charge the privilege of questioning witnesses. It was understood that at least one had asked this privilege.

It appeared probable that Councilman Lynch would take the stand tomorrow although the programme for the session was not announced.

DEMPSEY HAS NOTHING TO SAY AT THE PRESENT TIME

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 3—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, erstwhile heavyweight champion, said here tonight that his plans for the future are more or less a matter of speculation until he confers with Tex Rickard at Miami Beach, Fla., within the next few days.

Dempsey was interviewed at Nashville today and was quoted in a dispatch from there as being "virtually certain" that he would try to regain the crown he lost to Gene Tunney at Philadelphia in 1926.

"I'll have to wait until I see Rickard," Dempsey said here, when asked if he intended to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling bout. He said: "I'm not sure yet that I want to box again."

Dempsey added that he would not referee the Miami beach bout.

Golf and road work from time to time, Dempsey said, kept him in shape. He said he probably would establish a training camp near New York some time later.

"Sharkey's a good fighter," Dempsey said speaking of the forthcoming bout, "but I haven't seen Stribling work. I understand though that he's got a powerful sock in that right hand of his now and that he has improved a lot."

Dempsey will reach Miami beach early tomorrow night.

Dempsey, the paper will say, announced his willingness to meet the winner of Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tourney at Miami, Fla., and declared that he believed George Godfrey, Giant Negro, the best of the present crop of heavyweights.

The interview with Dempsey was given on board a train en route to Miami Beach where the former heavyweight king will meet Rickard and where it has been said definite plans of Dempsey's intentions would be made known.

Neale To Coach Cards.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Billy Southworth, new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals announced here tonight that Earl "Greasy" Neale, football and baseball coach at the University of Virginia, will be head coach of the National League team next season.

Neale, who formerly played for Cincinnati and Philadelphia, was rumored today to have asked to be relieved of his duties at the university so that he might join some major league team.

BASKETBALL TALK

Local basketball fans, what few there seem to be, see in the fag end of this season some fine basketball for this city. At that time, the Y Seniors, who, despite their two defeats New Year's, still are a potent factor in the state Y title chase, will go out after the laurels. The New London Whalers, composed of the pick of the New London City league, now hold the title and to beat them will afford plenty of Norwichians a lot of delight. So far this season the local Y team has been able to defeat two of the leaders in this year's New London league and, with plenty of fine basketball weather left, may tackle the whole eight teams in the loop before entering the state title campaign.

The two defeats on New Year's should not dishearten the boys. Both the Hellers and All-Manchester bunch have played a lot of basketball together, which, compared with the seven or eight games that they had to get accustomed to one another, is quite an advantage. The Manchester team is practically a Manchester High alumni five, as nearly all of that team shone at one time or another for the high school there.

The Hellers played all during the holidays in various sections of New England, getting some healthy bookings by a Boston booking firm. That they are a good attraction no one will doubt who has ever seen them perporm, but coming to Norwich they can draw but a mere handful. The city does not take its basketball seriously.

The Academy has always been able to draw a goodly number to its basketball games and on some occasions overflow audiences. With the opening of the Wildcat season next week, it is to be expected that the court game will take on a new lease of life. Fine games by both the Y Seniors and C. F. C., have not been able to get out the fans, but the Academy has a magic way of pulling them in and it is expected that this influence will be brought to bear from Jan. 12 on. It is a tough break in the schedule for the Red and White that does not bring any Saturday home games until mid-season. Saturday is the only big night of the week.

Scholastic basketball in the state resumes operations within a few days after the holiday recess. The Eastern Connecticut angle should draw more interest this year than in some seasons. The new basketball conference of five teams gets away on its schedule next Saturday with the Academy-Putnam game at Putnam and this should be a real good opener, if the football doings of teams from these schools will be recalled.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—"Wham" the little rubber hand-ball, propelled by the swinging southpaw of a big man with a bigger waistline, smacked the end of the court and streaked back.

"Wham!" perspiration streamed down his flushed face as he lunged after a low one.

"Think I'm getting too old, hey? Or too fat and slow? Watch that one."

"Wham!" and it was another point for the big fellow.

That's a cross-section of the way Babe Ruth started off the new year today with his first workout in preparation for the 1929 baseball campaign. It is the earliest he has begun any systematic training since 1926, when he made the big comeback. But to even the most casual observer who watched the big Yankee slugger go through an hour's work under the direction of his physical adviser, Artie McGovern, it was apparent that Ruth already is close to playing condition.

He weighed 234 1-2 pounds, about 15 pounds from his best playing weight, but low enough to testify that his rounds of golf and hunting in the past few weeks have helped keep him in condition. The famous waist-line is ample but not unusual for the Babe.

Between vicious swipes at the hand-ball and growls at the trainer massaging his girth, Ruth grew a bit indignant.

"Did you see that piece in the papers about me fattening up to 250 pounds, being about through and that this would be my last year? That's hot stuff. And a fine lot of bunk.

"Say, I feel more like a kid than ever. I'm not getting any younger but I will only be 35 next month and I've got a lot of baseball left."

It was recalled to the Babe that three years ago when he actually scaled around 250 and seemed near the end of his career before staging a comeback, he predicted he still would be in the big leagues at 40.

"That gives me five more years, hey? Well, I guess I'm still good for it."

The real secret of Ruth's ability to retain good condition, in spite of a tendency to take on extra weight quickly, is that he "shows good sense now in the way he lives." At least that is the opinion of Artie McGovern, who has kept a watchful eye on the Babe's waist-line for four years.

"Ruth takes better care of himself now than he ever did," said Artie. "He doesn't fill himself up on pie and coffee anymore. He exercises the year around, and is careful about his diet. He has done it so long now he likes it. He's a physical marvel and I don't see any reason why he shouldn't be good for five years more."

Ruth doesn't think much of the ten man team proposal under which an extra man would bat for the pitcher, although it has been suggested that such an innovation would give the Babe almost a life-time job in the majors.

"That would take a real scientific feature away from the game, I think, and spoil a lot of strategy," said Ruth. "It would make it too rough for the opposing pitcher. He's entitled to at least one break in the lineup but with a regular hitter in there, he would never get a soft spot."

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3—(AP)—The New York university basketball team, nosed out in the finals last year, rolled up a commanding lead which Georgetown was unable to overcome and clinched the annual Yale basketball tournament tonight, 32 to 24. The victory was the fifth straight for the New York team and was scored in impressive fashion. Georgetown faced with a 15 point margin to make up during the last half rallied but fell short during the closing minutes.

AGGIES WINTER SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

STORRS, Jan. 3—Freshman basketball, hockey, indoor track, junior varsity basketball, junior hockey, and co-ed basketball schedules were announced here today by the athletic department at the Connecticut Aggies. Except for freshman and co-ed basketball, the remainder of the list are all new teams that have been recently started at the Aggies. Hockey will see its first year of formal advent on the campus at the Nutmeg college although the puck chasers went through a short schedule last winter under the tutelege of Coach Dole. This season the sextet will be captained by William H. Knaut, '29, of New Haven and will play a four contest schedule. Two of the games will be at home while the others will take place on the road. The games at Storrs will be played on the new rink which has been recently erected for the winter sport.

The Nutmeg yearlings will go through a ten game list that includes some very hard contests for the frosh. Yale, Holy Cross, Rhode Island, Brown and Springfield freshman quintets will afford the 1932 five some interesting battles. The freshman have been building up a strong combination under the direction of Caoch Paul E. Bilgood and have displayed rare form for a frosh team against the varsity in scrimmaging.

In former years no formal schedule was arranged for the second varsity basketball quintet but this season it was decided to draw one up. As a result the seconds will play three games all on the road and the hockey junior varsity will participate in two. The latter will play one at home and one at Pomfret.

No unusual change was made in the co-ed basketball list as arranged by Miss Dorothy Nay, '29, of Norwich, manager. The sextet will play four games which will consist of two at Storrs and two abroad. The schedules follow:

Freshman Basketball

January 11—Collegiate Prep, Storrs.
January 14—Yale, New Haven.
January 21—Amer. School for Deaf, West Hartford.
February 1—Trinity Jr. varsity, Hartford.
February 6—Assumption college, Worcester.
February 12—Rhode Island, Kingston.
February 16—Brown, Providence.
February 23—Holy Cross, Storrs.
February 26—Springfield, Storrs.
March 2—Rhode Island, Storrs.

Hockey

January 12—Middlebury, Storrs.
January 16—New Hampshire, Durham.
January 22—Brown, Providence.
February 9—Colby, Storrs.

Indoor Track

March 23—Amherst, Amherst.

Junior Varsity Basketball

February 18—New Britain Boys club, New Britain.
February 22—New London Y. M. C. A., New London.
February 28—Newport Naval Training, Newport.

Junior Hockey

February 11—Pomfret, Pomfret.
February 16—Ashton, Storrs.

Co-ed Basketball

January 12—N. Y. U., Storrs.
January 19—Dean, Franklin.
February 23—St. Lawrence, Storrs.
March 9—Maine Univ., Orono.

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

Keeping A One Stroke Lead

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

When two golfers of the championship calibre of Bobby Jones and Johnny Farrell get together in a title battle great shots fly about in rapid succession. There was no exception to this in the tussle they waged for the open crown of the United States at Olympia Fields last June.

Perhaps the way they performed at the 17th, or rather the 35th, hole of the match, revealed this mutual greatness better than any. At the time Farrell had just acquired a one stroke lead over the Georgian, with two holes to go in the play off. There were no particularly insurmountable obstacles going to the 17th green, but Johnny hooked his drive into the rough while Bobby was straight and well on the green, some 25 feet to the left of the pin, in two.

Farrell faced the loss of his slim margin but, from the thick grass, fired a beautiful No. 4 iron shot dead to the pin. The ball stopped three feet from the cup, for a certain birdie 3, and the fate of Jones appeared to be sealed. But Bobby, fighting as gallantly as he ever has done, rammed that long putt home in the pinch to match the birdie.

Here were two master shotmakers at work, neither yielding at the critical moment. Both bagged birdies again on the 18th and deciding hole, but Farrell, to win by his one stroke margin, had to make another and even greater recovery.

WEDDING

Quattromani-Fiore

Westerly's first 1929 wedding, with many guests in attendance, was held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church when Miss Theresa L. Fiore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Fiore of 50 Pierce street, was united in marriage with George L. Quattromani, son of Mrs. Carbita and the late Alfonso Quattromani of 9 Pond street. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., who also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed. Miss Flora H. Fiore, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Louis Verdi, Jennie LoPresto, and Frances Quattromani. Antonio Trombino, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Thomas Fiore, Sylvester Morrone and Alfonso Quattromani. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Salvatore Fiore. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. James McMahon, and solos during the mass were sung by Martin H. Spellman.

The bride wore white satin, trimmed with chiffon. Her veil of irish point lace was caught with orange blossoms and rhinestones, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was gowned in pink georgette, wore a chiffon velvet hat, and carried pink roses. All the bridesmaids were dressed alike in light blue georgette, frocks, with chiffon velvet hats to match, and all carried pink roses. Following the ceremony at the church, a breakfast was served at Peckham's Inn. In the afternoon and evening, a reception for several hundred relatives and friends was held at the Lorraine Community house. For over eight years the bride was an employe with the Lorraine Co. Music for dancing was furnished by the Imperial orchestra, directed by Antonio Quattromani. Guests were present from Providence, Boston, Stonington, New London and New York. Mr. and Mrs. Quattromani left late Thursday night by automobile for Detroit, where they will visit the groom's brother. Upon their return they will be at home in their new residence, 54 Pierce street.

Little Rhody council, No. 30, Sons and Daughters of Liberty Wednesday night held their annual meeting in Caledonian hall at which Deputy State Councilor Greenwell, assisted by his suite installed officers as follows:

Councilor, Ethel I. Laing; associate councilor, Edna Tate; vice councilor, Carrie Gavitt; associate vice councilor, Mary Tate; recording secretary, Clayton Tate; associate recording secretary, Ethel Tate; financial secretary, Lillian Brayman; treasurer, George Brayman; guide, Gladys Lawton; inside guard, Ethel Green; outside guard, Gladys Blackburn; trustees, Ethel Laing and Edna Tate.

Councilor Ethel I. Laing presented the deputy in behalf of the council a scarf as a token of appreciation. The appointed officers for the coming year are: Musician, Thomas Fidler; hall committee, George Brayman; cupboard committee, Lillian Brayman; press correspondent, Gladys Lawton; relief committee, Edna Tate; social committee for three months, Hattie Lawton, chairman, Carrie Gavitt, Elizabeth Green, Thomas Fidler and Elwin Greene.

Following the meeting a Christmas tree social was held.

Funeral services for Rawlinson S. Coope, 72, were held yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at his home, 2 Prospect street. Rev. Henry C. Suter, Ph. D., pastor of Grace M. E. church, was the officiating clergyman. The body was taken to Fall River, for burial at Oak Grove cemetery. Members of Unity Lodge, I. O. O. F., Manchester Unity, of Fall River, acted as bearers.

Lewis R. Greene, worshipful master of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., of Westerly, and associate officers were in Hope Valley Thursday evening to witness exemplification of degree work. They were members of the suite of the sixth district deputy grand master, James A. Tillinghast, a member of Overseas lodge, No. 40, F. and A. M., of Providence. He represented the grand lodge of Rhode Island Free and Accepted Masons, in making an inspection of the work of Charity lodge, No. 23, of Hope Valley. Worshipful Alfred C. Browning, master.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

The new year came in like a lion and the old year went out like a lamb. Hope we won't have weather like this this year.

Mr. Dawley has lost a nice horse.

Moses Hazenton and Herbert August took a load of wood to Voluntown the last day of the year and took back a load of hay for Mr. Rawley.

George Green and Lloyd Congdon called at the Pine Grove farm Monday.

John Phillips, Jr., and friend were to see his father's place recently. Mr. Phillips is from Massachusetts. The place is in Eastern Voluntown.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley and Herbert August spent the evening before New Year's with Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood. They are the new neighbors that bought the Charles Pratt farm.

Charles Rundell of Plainfield has bought the wood on the lot that Earl Davis cut and Charles Barber and he and two other men are putting up a shanty to live in while cutting the wood. Mr. Davis cut the lumber and the men have the tops to put into wood.

William Bitgood is living in the house where his father was born. His name was Elisha Bitgood. He was born Aug. 10, 1801. He died Feb. 15, 1866. He married Betsy Church, May 22, 1831. They had 10 children, four girls and six boys, all dead but one. H[illegible] of the family. If he lives to see April 30 he will be 79. There were four generations born in that house. Mr. Bitgood's father, Mr. Bitgood and his children, and two grandchildren, Floyd Barber and Raymond Remington.

EASTFORD

COLUMBIA

RECKLESS DRIVER GETS BY WITHOUT ACCIDENT

Sunday afternoon a car passed through town whose driver evidently had been looking "upon the wine when red" as it tore through at a greater rate of speed than ever witnessed here. Just before he reached the Green, a local car was proceeding toward Willimantic, and seeing the approaching car almost climbed the bank on the right to get out of the way and the other car barely missed him at that. The stranger then proceeded to climb the bank on the other side of the road, then swerved into the hedge around the Green, completely demolishing the sign pointing to Columbia Lake. This sign had a reinforced concrete post set in concrete, but the bump tore it up by the roots, the wooden sign on the top being splintered, part of it being taken completely across the road. The driver kept right-side up and narrowly escaped a telephone pole at the other side toward Hebron. The last seen of him he was careening merrily toward Hebron.

Fifty-nine now books have been added recently to Columbia library from the state fund. Of these 23 are juvenile, 13 fiction, 9 travel and the other 15 are biology, science and general literature. The books are: Adams, Red Caps and Lilies; Baker, Shasta of the Wolves; Bond, With the Men Who Do Things; Carryl, Davy and the Goblin; Crommelin, Famous Legends Adapted for Children; Collins, The Air Men; Crump, Boy's Book of Firemen; Ames, Mystery of Ram's Island; Lang, Red Fairy Book; Pyle, Pepper and Salt; Roberts, Jim; Hall, Carpentry and Mechanics for Boys; Smith, Arabella and Araminta Stories; Hunt, Little House in the Woods; Comstock, Camp Brave Pine; Austin, Basket Woman; Allen, How and Where We Live; Antin, At School in the Promised Land; Bigham, Merry Animal Tales; Brown, In the Days of Giants; Baldwin, Fifty Famous Rides and Riders; Graham, New York Nights; Gilkey, Secrets of Effective Living; Hal, Poor Gentlemen; Hughes, About England; Halliburton, Glorious Adventure; Lincoln, Secret of Mohawk Pond; Jordan, Miss Nobody from Nowhere; Merz, Great American Sand Wagon; Morrow, With Malice Toward None; Milk, Romance of Geology; Milne, The Sunny Side; Mason, Lure of the Great Smokies; Moult, Best Poems of 1927; Parsons, Streams of History; Rinehart, Two Flights Up; Rosman, The Widow; Slosson, Snapshots of Science, outline of Science volume 3; Kaye-Smith, Starbrace; Train, Ambition; Wren, Beau Ideal; Wylie, Mr. Hodge and Mr. Hazard; Bassett, Story of Lumber; Austin, Sands of the Sun; Bailey, Mr. Fortune's Trails; Bradford, Life and I; Bok, Perhaps I Am; Barton, What Can a Man Believe; Byrd, Skyward; Casey, Bagdad and Points East; Chiley, Boy's Book of Camp Fires; Crane, Red Badge of Courage; Van Dine, Green Murder Case; Douglas, Ellen for Common; Enders, Temple Bells and Silver Sails; Fosdick, Pilgrimage to Palestine; Foster, Tropical Tramp With the Tourists; Grey, Nevada.

HEAVY PROFIT-TAKING IN THE MARKET WHEN TRADERS LOST CONFIDENCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Anticipation of the huge increase in federal reserve brokers loans was an incentive to heavy profit taking on today's stock market. After the sobering effects of the drastic reaction of early December, many traders were inclined to view with misgivings the beginning of the new year with the establishment of new high records in borrowings.

Although the slackening of the year end credit squeeze definitely appeared, with a drop in the call loan rate to 7 per cent for the first time since before Christmas, the view was taken in many circles that the market was growing top-heavy. Fear that the federal reserve bank, with brokers loans again mounting, might act to stem the flow of credit into stock speculation, now that the holiday requirements for funds have been met, also prompted selling.

The market opened with a brilliant display of activity and strength but the ticker began to fall far behind trading, and without late information as to trends on the floor and uncertain of their position, traders lost confidence. The volume of trading fell off in the decline, and as the ticker began to catch up with the market in the afternoon, pools staged a rally which reduced some of the losses. Total sales were about 5,089,000 shares.

The increase of $238,876,000 in federal reserve brokers loans announced after the close, was even larger than had been expected, wiping out, as it did, about three-fourths of the declines of the past three weeks. The compilation disclosed that the loans "for others" decreased about $156,000,000 as corporations and foreign banks withdrew funds to meet the year end requirements, but that the New York banks more than offset this and a minor reduction in the account for out of town banks by putting more than $500,000,000 into the market.

The increase over Nov. 30 of $48,400,000 in the total of brokers loans as of Dec. 31, as reported by the New York stock exchange, was a disheartening development, as it established a new high record of nearly $6,440,000,000, showing that the reduction of early December had been more than offset in this compilation, which is more inclusive than the federal reserves.

The reserve bank announced an increase of 1-4 of one per cent in the buying rate for 90-day bankers acceptances in an effort to provide a better market for this form of commercial credit. Outside of developments in the credit situation, there was little in the day's news to influence the market. An increase in the export price of copper, bringing it in line with the domestic price, encouraged further sharp advances in copper shares while the beginning of argument of the St. Louis & O'Fallon case gave impetus to the upturn in the rails.

Greene Cananea Copper jumped nearly 16 points to a record price, while Kennecott, Nevada and American Smelting touched new highs for a year or more. Pennsylvania, Railroad and Boston and Maine also hold at the highest prices in years while New York Central and Union Pacific made good headway. International Nickel and National Biscuit gained about 10 and 8 points respectively.

General Electric encountered heavy profit taking after yesterday's 24-point advance, and sold off 15 points, closing 10 off. Steel gained 2 points, then lost most of the gain. Case Threshing lost about 14 points, Montgomery Ward, Canadian Pacific, Allied Chemical and Wright Aero about 8 each. Motors turned heavy, Chrysler and Packard losing 3 to 3 points and oils eased.

The commodity markets were quiet. Cotton encountered liquidation during the session, but rallied at the close. Wheat eased on increase in the visible supply, while corn improved.

LINDEN STREET HOUSE, NEW LONDON DAMAGED $3,500 IN REAR PORCH FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—Fire almost completely destroyed a three-story dwelling at 35 Linden street, owned by David Cofee, this afternoon, shortly before one o'clock. When discovered the rear porch of the building was a mass of flames. The alarm was answered by the Niagara, Ockford, Pequot and Allen Hook and Ladder companies. Three streams of water were turned against the flames, but they had gained such headway that it took almost an hour to get the blaze under control. The origin of the fire is unknown but it is thought that it started in the cellar. Damage of about $3,500 resulted.

The officers of Star of the Sea branch, No. 631, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent society, were installed at a meeting held last night in Eagle hall. After the business session a musical program, followed by refreshments, was enjoyed.

Officers of the Women of Mooseheart Legion were installed at a meeting held in Moose hall Tuesday evening. Past Regent Mary Geer was in charge of the ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ficarra, of 35 Truman street have announced the engagement of their daughter Dena, to Floyd V Twiddy of Norfolk, Va., of the U. S. C. G.

The Junior Auxiliary of Lawrence-Memorial hospital held an election this afternoon at the home of Miss Elizabeth Winship, of Lower Boulevard, with the following result: President, Mary Taney; vice president, Judy Main; secretary, Peggy David; treasurer, Norma Duboil.

TRAFFIC COP FLIRTED—NORWICH GIRL RESPONDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—Evidently determined to make an example of Patrolman George McCaskey, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, provided the facts warrant severe discipline, as a result of the accusations made by Beatrice Periatti, 17, of 133 Cedar street, Norwich, against the officer, Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney today caused Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith to go to New Haven and deliver a quantity of pills, which the girl had in her possession a few hours prior to McCaskey being suspended, at the state laboratory, for analysis. The pills, it is claimed, were given the girl during her period of pregnancy, which condition she claims was caused by her illicit relations with the officer. The police investigators also have in their possession a handkerchief which the Periatti girl claims is McCaskey's also a ring, which she says was given her by the police officer. The ring on the inside of the band carries the inscription, "G. McC. to B. P."

The additional evidence of McCaskey's acts as a result of the couple's clandestine meetings was the outgrowth of a flirtation started while he was performing traffic duty on State street. This resulted in an acquaintance being formed. Following this, McCaskey made an appointment with the girl and they met on Garfield avenue. The girl alleges that on that night the officer escorted her to a mill, obtained entrance and it was there that the first indiscreet acts of the pair occurred. These were followed by others and included parties at a cottage at Ocean beach. At the shore resort, McCaskey claims fellow-officers were in attendance and by their presence should bear a portion of the charges.

The police also have obtained the bill for the girl's treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, which it was requested that McCaskey pay and which he refused to do.

While City Manager William A. Holt has received the specific charges made against McCaskey, that official has refrained from setting a date for the hearing, deferring such action until after the police have concluded their investigation. It is apparent, now, that the hearing will be assigned for early next week.

Mrs. E. A. Henkle won first prize and Mrs. Frank A. Comstock second prize at the weekly meeting of Martha Winthrop Bridge club, held yesterday afternoon in the John Winthrop clubhouse, Montauk avenue.

The meeting of the Young People's branch, W. C. T. U. is to be held Saturday night at the home of Miss Ellen Lewis.

Banquet Follows Installation

Officers of Joynt Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus were installed at a meeting held tonight in Eagles' hall. After the installation there was a banquet at the Hotel Mohican.

George M. Cole camp, No. 7, United Spanish War Veterans and Emily J. Cole auxiliary, had a Christmas party in the armory tonight. After a short business meeting refreshments were served and an entertainment followed.

Crandall, Miss Ann Campbell and Mrs. Ralph H. Keeler.

The annual installation of Ann Rogers Lyon Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, is to take place tomorrow night.

The date set for the installation of Mohegan lodge, No. 55, I. O. O. F., is Wednesday next in Odd Fellows hall, according to the result of a meeting held last night at which about thirty members were present.

Miss Annie Wilbur, of Mystic, was dismissed today as a patient at Home Memorial hospital.

Gave Informing Talk

At the weekly meeting of the Lions club yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Mohican, City Clerk Julian D. Moran gave an address on the duties of the different departments and officials of the city. He discribed in detail all phases of the functioning of the local government and his talk was greatly appreciated.

Sale of the property in Home street owned by Julia L. Fitzgerald has been postponed by Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander until March 15. It was supposed to have been sold today for payment of back taxes.

The funeral of Thomas J. Sugrue, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Micha Sugrue, 11 Jefferson avenue, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Sarah E. Goodfellow, who died at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, Tuesday, was forwarded to her former home in Norwalk, today for the funeral and burial.

Virginia Collins, of Groton; Mrs. Arthur Beebe, Niantic; Dr. Charles Tiley, Essex; Walter Przbylski, Uncasville and Grace, Thelma and Eunice Rose, 114 Shaw street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today issued a release of tax warrant against Mrs. Myra Mincuff. Property owned by Mrs. Mincuff, Bayonet street, had been ordered sold because of nonpayment of taxes, but with payment having been made the sale will not occur.

Had Outlawed Number Plates

Patrolman George Cockell in making his rounds last night found four automobiles stored in the highways. The reason for the parking of the cars in the street undoubtedly the result of the owners failing to supply themselves with 1929 markers for each of the cars carried 1928 plates.

James P. Newman and others have sold a house and lot on Jefferson avenue to Mary Doyle Redden

Sarah, Aaron and Deborah Siegel have sold a house and lot on Potter street to Benjamin L. Armstrong and Cyrus W. Brown.

Search For Norwich Boy

C. R. Browning, Norwich, came to New London last night seeking the whereabouts of his son, Kenneth, who had run away from home and, the parent, had reason to believe, was in New London for the boy was seen headed for this city a short time after he disappeared from his home. The boy is described as being 16, about five feet in height, medium build, auburn hair, brown eyes and has a defective leg, which necessitates his walking with a limp.

DISTURBER OF DANCE FACES MORE SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—Mitchell Hyslop, colored, residing at 69 Hempstead street and employed by the Central Vermont railroad as a stevedore at the Long wharf, was in the police court this morning charged with felonious assault. The case was continued until Monday next and in default of bail of $500, Hyslop was committed to jail to await trial. Hyslop was arrested at 1:30 o'clock this morning by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty. The arrest was the aftermath of a fight which occurred at a Negro dance hall, Hempstead street New Year's night and at which Hyslop and James Reed, the latter a member of the crew of U. S. C. G. destroyer Downes, were attendants. Just before the dance was concluded, Hyslop and Reed engaged in an altercation and it is claimed the former struck the sailor a blow on the head. Reed was taken to the street and placed in a taxicab, being taken to Union street where the pair alighted, but because of Reed bleeding from the nostrils and being partially unconscious he was taken to police headquarters by Patrolmen Michael Dorsey, who happened along. Later Reed was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. He did not regain consciousness until yesterday. When the police investigated the assault none of the Negroes attending the dance would admit having knowledge of Reed's assailant, but yesterday, Patrolman Frank Linehan obtained information which tended to show that Hyslop, who has a police record, was the attacker of Reed; so that when Hyslop was spied on the street early this morning by Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman Moriarty he was taken into custody.

James M. Beraude, U. S. C. G., state pier, charged with breach of the peace, was discharged. Beraude, who was arrested last night by Patrolman Albert Iverson, fell through a window of the store of H. E. Ritt, 143 North Bank street. Today Beraude was fined $10 but execution of sentence was suspended.

William Kerr, of Quaker Hill, was charged with violation of the traffic rules in driving on the left side of a traffic signal, corner of Maine and Williams street. Judgment was suspended in his case. He was arrested last night by Patrolman George Bruhns.

Willim Prevost, charged with breach of the peace, had his case nolled. He was arrested several weeks ago upon complaint of his wife.

The case of George Bates, of Main street, also charged with breach of the peace, was continued a month. Bates was arrested two months ago when he caused a disturbance in a house on John street.

Nicholas Vetromile and Richard Gauvin, U. S. C. G., were arrested at the Union station last night charged with breach of the peace, being apprehended by Special Agent James Daly and Patrolmen Clarence Wells and Edward Riordan when the bluejackets engaged in a fight. They were not in court, having been delivered to a shore patrol and taken back to the state pier for military discipline.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beecham's Pills.

With the presentation of a new package, a new counter display carton and an improved product, the makers of Beecham's Pills are giving dealers effective merchandising assistance for getting greater profits out of the widespread sale of this famous and popular vegetable laxative.

The new package encloses a handy glass container. On one side of this bottle is an adaption of the well known Beecham box label and on the reverse is a newly designed label in gold. A convenient aluminum cap completes the container.

The boxes for the bottles carry identifying Beecham displays and are packed a dozen to the carton.

The carton is made so that the top can be raised making an attractive counter display and showing the small packages inside.

The product itself has been improved by a new sugar coating which makes the pills easy and pleasant to take and at the same time has the effect of promoting quicker action.

An advertising campaign embodying a strikingly unusual appeal is now being vigorously conducted. Outstanding in laxative advertising the new campaign is serving to increase the popularity of this famous remedy which has found such exceptional favor with millions of people throughout the world for over a half century.

This "eyes" appeal is based on the necessity of having clear, attractive eyes for maintaining at all times the best personal appearance. The series of advertisements contains an analysis of the character traits revealed by the eyes and makes an interesting serial feature for continued interest.

Beecham's Pills are the modern remedy for constipation—sugar coated, purely vegetable, safe and efficient for all ages.

LAWYERS TO TELL POLICE WHAT'S EXPECTED OF THEM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—Several weeks ago, Capt. of Police Charles A. Pinney made it known that the members of the department were to be given a series of lectures by attorneys, in the belief that the talk coming from legal minds would have a tendency to bring about greater efficiency in the department than exists at the present time. Now comes the announcement that these lectures or discourses will be started at once. This afternoon Captain Pinney had the following order read to the patrolmen, as well as the street and desk sergeants and lieutenant:

"All members of this department are ordered to report at the police station at 4:15 p. m., Friday, Jan 4, 1929.

"No ope will be excused from this formation. This also includes members of the department who are on vacation or monthly days off."

The edict of Captain Pinney is believed to have been prompted by a series of flagrant violations of the rules and regulations of the department by at least three officers.

The members will assemble in the courtroom tomorrow and there they will listen to one of four attorneys whose services have been solicited to endeavor to instill in the personnel of the department a more clear perception of the duties of an officer.

Constance Morgan Chappell and Frank V. Chappell have qualified as administrators of the estate of the late Henry C. Chappell of this city. The administrators are widow and brother, respectively, of the deceased. Mr. Chappell left no will.

MONEY TO PAY FOR EATS YET PREFERRED ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—A fellow was arrested tonight by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman George Laboue, charged with intoxication and evading payment of a restaurant charge. About two hours after he had been locked up the offender requested a lunch and produced a dollar bill with which to pay for it. Still he would rather submit to arrest for failing to pay for a meal that he had purchased.

Lillian Eaton, widow of Herbert L. Eaton, formerly of 142 Montauk avenue, who recently died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, has been appointed administratrix of her husband's estate by the probate court.

Breed Theater.

There are so many good points about "Blindfold," which opened last night at the Breed theater that it's hard to begin a review.

First, the story is by that excellent teller of contemporary crime stories, Charles Francis Coe who wrote "Me, Gangster," "The River Pirate," and others.

Second, Charles Klein, a German director comparatively new to the United States used many bits of ingenious technique when he produced the picture for Fox.

Third, the cast reads like Hollywood's bluebook. Lois Moran, who came to public attention in "Stella Dallas" and has been rising ever since, heads the list. George O'Brien, of "Sunrise" fame appears opposite.

Others are Earle Foxe, Maria Alba, Don Terry and Fritz Feld. In the chief character roles will be found Craufurt Kent, Robert Homans, John Kelly and Andy Clyde.

A new camera angle will make this picture outstanding. Klein, the director, an ace cameraman also, gives, in the picture, a visual interpretation of mental action that is highly effective.

Palace Theater.

Another Zane Grey story, featuring Jack Holt, opened to a smashing success at the Palace theater yesterday. "Avalanche," a story of the early days of the west, packed the house and pleased a large audience.

Zane Grey surpassed himself in the construction of "Avalanche" and Jack Holt is better than ever in a lead role which has power, sympathy and fine characterization to make it memorable.

The female roles are handled by two exceptionally capable women. Baclanova, the Moscow Art theater star, who played with Emil Jannings in "The Street of Sin," with much success, and Doris Hill, a clever little red-haired girl whose appeal in minor roles won for her the distinction of the important part in "Avalanche."

Of course the great climax of the story is indicated in the title. It is the great landslide, the avalanche, which threatens the two men and provides the crisis which brings them together after their disaffection. The human qualities of the story, the masterly portrayals by the cast and the intimate picture of life in an early western town all excellently well done, account for the popularity which "Avalanche" is enjoying. It is a picture which appeals to all.

In addition to the splendid feature picture a very entertaining program of vaudeville was presented to Palace patrons headed by The Five Lelands, one of the outstanding acrobatic acts on the Big Time. Dave Thursby and Company proved lots of laughter in a skit entitled A Night In Monte Carlo. Green and Austin, a clever duo in monologue and songs. Bill Casey and Co., high class entertainers, and Rogers and Dusken in Steps and Songs.

Broadway.

"Women They Talk About" is a modern commentary on the effect of woman in politics. If heart dominates head, the lady candidate for mayor is all the more charming for that fact.

Miss Rich plays the part of a wealthy young widow whose daughter is in love with the son of her opponent for the mayoralty. The mayor when younger and in poorer circumstances had been a suitor for the hand of Miss Rich. Affairs become complicated when a confederate of the mayor steals the daughter, in order to hurt the chances of the lady candidate.

Pursuit of the pair, rescue of the girl, a fight between the thug and the young lover, in which the mayor is accidentally shot, though not fatally, makes "Women They Talk About" a play of breath-taking action. There is a glamorous quality, too, which puts it rightly in the category of true romance.

All women they talk about, and what interesting woman in the world has not been talked about, should go to see "Women They Talk About."

"Women They Talk About" opened last night at the Broadway theater. The cast of this Warner Bros. production includes Irene Rich, Audrey Ferris, William Collier, Jr., Claude Gillingwater, Anders Randolf, Jack Santoro and John Miljan. The story is by Anthony Coleway. The scenario by Robert Lord. Lloyd Bacon, author and star of the phenomenally successful "Lighting," directed. All of which is rather fair assurance of a good story, intelligent acting and more than ordinary direction.

TWO WOMEN TO AFRICA ON SCIENTIFIC QUESTS

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The fact that at least two American women will make scientific quests in Africa this winter is revealed by an announcement from the Carnegie museum here.

Mrs. Rudyard Boulton, of Pittsburgh, is going to study the music of the blacks of Nyasaland, in an expedition led by her husband for the Carnegie museum. This party starts in January with Mrs. Oscar Straus of New York, as part of her expedition to Africa for bird specimens for the American Museum of Natural History.

After Mrs. Straus finishes, the Boultons will lead the Carnegie expedition into South Africa. Mr. Boulton will seek a representative collection of South African birds for the Carnegie museum.

Such collections are said at the museum to be rare in the United States. Among those sought are the secretary bird, bald ibis, sand grouse, ostriches, bustards and penguins.

GERMAN ANNOUNCES IODINE SUBSTITUTE

BERLIN—(AP)—Discovery of a therapeutic substitute for iodine that is claimed to be devoid of the detrimental effects of this drug is announced by Prof. Hans Friedenthal, physiologist at the Berlin university. (The name of the substitute is metajodin. It is oxygenized iodine.

Professor Friedenthal said it is used for the same ailments for which iodine is administered and has the same antiseptic properties as iodine, but without the latter's irritating effects.

CASPER, Wyo.—(AP)—Only one member of the bachelors' club organized here 39 years ago has been true to his promise to remain away from the altar. The other 35 members are married.

Hockey High.

APPLETON, Wis.—(AP)—Estimating the value of each college class hour at 50 cents, Dean Wilson S. Naviaux says students at Lawrence college had cut away $2,000 worth.

GREENEVILLE

THREE-CORNERED CRASH INJURES TWO MEN

Two men were hurt in a three-cornered accident that occurred at the intersection of North Main street and Second street, shortly after noon Thursday. Harry Alofsin and John Dydo, both of West Main street, suffered injuries about the [illegible] by flying glass. Mr. Dydo was a passenger in the Graham-Dodge delivery truck operated by Mr. Alofsin when it crashed head-on into a Pierce Arrow sedan, owned by O. K. Dimock of New York city, and operated by John Sullivan of the same place. It is understood that the delivery truck was travelling in a northerly direction on North Main street and that when opposite the site occupied by the Atlantic Carton company, Mr. Alofsin swung his machine to the left of a five-ton truck operated by Arthur Fontaine. Alofsin claims that the Fontaine truck was traveling towards the city and suddenly swung into the Atlantic Carton driveway in order to avoid the truck he swerved to the left into the front end of the Pierce-Arrow which also was travelling towards the city. As a result of the collision the Graham-Dodge was considerably damaged about the front end and the Pierce Arrow car sustained a damaged fender and damage to the steering apparatus. The truck escaped without damage. Flying glass from the Alofsin machine cut the drivers head and inflicted injury to Dydos face, especially his nose and head. Mr. Dydo was taken to the office of Dr. John W. Callahan for attention. Mrs. Dimock, who was riding in the rear seat of the sedan, was thrown to the floor of the car. While waiting for the local police to make an investigation of the accident Mrs. Dimock was taken to a hotel in the city. The Pierce Arrow was taken to the Scott and Clark Co. shop for repairs.

Miss May Quinn, a student nurse at St. Agnes' Home, Hartford, has returned after spending a few days recently at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Quinn on Sixth street.

Miss Marie Gadle has returned to her home on Hickory street after spending a few days at the home of Miss Elizabeth Donavon of Hartford.

THIRTY-FIVE TABLES IN PLAY AT FOURTH CARD PARTY

The fourth card party of a series to be held during the winter months was held Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of St. Mary's Memorial church with thirty-five tables in play. Wm. Mallon was awarded first prize for pinochle, while Mrs. Peter Flynn won second prize. In whist, first prize was tied between Mrs. Margaret Day and John McCarthy, with Mr. McCarthy winning on a cut, placing him first. Edward Gleason was scorer and had charge of whist while the scoring of pinochle was in charge of John Barry. Miss Josie Hartle had charge of the tickets. The proceeds from these card parties, that are to be run weekly during the winter months, are to go towards charitable work is being done in the parish.

William Higgins has returned to his studies at Yale university after spending the holiday recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Higgins on North Main street.

George Gadle has returned to Jewett City after spending a few days with relatives on Seventh street.

Edward Sullivan has resumed his studies at Tuft's Medical college, Boston, after spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sullivan of Central avenue.

Mrs. Anthony J. Bernard has returned to her home on Boswell avenue after spending a few days at Worcester.

Miss Anna Gee has returned to her home on Central avenue after spending a few days with relatives at Willimantic.

Mrs. A. J. Bernard and Mrs. William H. Taft spent Thursday as the guest of Mrs. Charles Geer at Trading Cove.

The many friends of William Erwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erwin of Central avenue, will be pleased to learn that he has been accepted as an apprentice electrician at the General Electric plant at Lynn, Mass. He was a graduate from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1928.

Mrs. John Orr has returned to Naugatuck after spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming on Tenth street.

BATTERY B MEN LEND PAY CHECKS TO BOLSTER UP COMPANY'S TREASURY

The members of Battery B., 192nd Artillery, C. N. G., at a meeting Wednesday evening at the armory voted to lend their pay checks for the last quarter to the battery to make up a deficit of between $1,400 and $1,500 in the company treasury. The guardsmen voted to lend their checks when the circus committee report showed that the three days' event held recently at the armory resulted in a loss of practically $1,500 to the battery. The checks were turned over to Captain Meredith Lee to be placed in the treasury, to cover outstanding bills.

The battery members are making decided progress in plans to replenish the treasury and are being materially assisted by O. C. Wolfe, manager of the local Ford agency.

BOY SCOUTS TO DISTRIBUTE NUMBERS FOR HOUSES

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins announced Thursday that the work of properly numbering the houses in the city will be started Saturday. Boy Scouts who will cooperate with the city officials in having the houses numbered properly will start their work in the vicinity of Chelsea parade. Members of the local troops will check up on house numbers, placing new numbers on houses wherever needed. Each will carry a copy of a letter from Mayor Robbins to Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefield. The letter reads as follows:

Dear Mr. Bielefield:—

Your kindness in permitting the Boy Scouts to co-operate with the city in placing house numbers on residences wherever the same are missing, or are not readily apparent, is greatly appreciated.

The Boy Scouts have helped the city a great many times during the past ten years, and have always done their work well. The job they have undertaken this time is fully as particular a matter as any they have ever done, but they well merit the city's confidence, and I sincerely trust that all residents will approve of the effort to number the houses, and will fully cooperate with the boys.

Thanking you for the interest you have taken in this matter, I remain

Very truly yours,
LEE R. ROBBINS,
Mayor.

SUES FOR $5,000 FOR ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS

Alleging that John Zawieja, this city, has alienated the affections of his wife, Victoria Bezdel, whose address, according to the city directory is 33 St. Regis avenue, Jacob Bezdel has brought suit against Zawieja for $5,000 damages and has had attachments placed on three lots in Prospect Manor. The suit is returnable to the superior court in February.

In his suit, Bezdel alleges that Zawieja has robbed him of the affections of his wife, who has abandoned him. According to the directory, Zawieja resides at 33 St. Regis avenue

TAFTVILLE

Harry Simino of Northampton, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Simino of Merchants avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Blanchard of North A street are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sarrasin of Woonsocket, R. I.

After spending the holiday recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington and family of South Second avenue, Raymond A. Yerrington has resumed his studies at the Y. M. C. A. college at Springfield, Mass.

With Mrs. Albert J. Aberg in charge, the weekly meeting of the members of the Basketry club was held Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

The regular monthly meeting of the members of Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste was held Thursday evening.

Devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus are to be observed this (Friday) evening at Sacred Heart church.

Superintendent Victor H. Davis of the Taftville Congregational church school has called a meeting of the teachers of the school to be held this (Friday) evening.

According to the constitution and by-laws, the annual meeting of the members of the Taftville Congregational church and members of the congregation for the purpose of electing officers to serve for the year 1929, and for the purpose of acting upon any other business which may legally come up, is to be held next Thursday.

Many of the villagers who are dismantling their Christmas trees are setting them out on their lawns where they will be ornamental for several weeks yet.

With the game laws protecting everything but foxes, the lot of that animal will be hard from now on. Many of the bird hunters harbor a grudge against foxes as they claim that they are exterminating much of the game, and they are now joining hands with the veteran fox hunters in a drive to kill off as many as possible before spring. Many sportsmen claim that in the woods of Lisbon the foxes have been on the increase and the birds have been on the decrease to the extent where only a very few pheasants have been noted there this past season. The Taftville Rod and Gun club liberated a large number of Ring necks in Lisbon but it is feared that they have fallen victim to the foxes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Grimshaw of Fall River, Mass., have been visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grimshaw and family of North Third avenue.

Joseph Dugas has been engaged this past week in moving his place of business on Merchants avenue.

FUNERALS

Dietrick Treckmann

Rev. Harvey Conklin, pastor of the Baltic Methodist Episcopal church officiated at the funeral service held for Dietrick Treckmann, at his home on Baltic road Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There were many in attendance and many beautiful floral offerings. The bearers were three sons of the deceased, Frank, Henry and William Treckmann, and a son-in-law, Carl W. Greiner. Burial was in the family lot at Maplewood cemetery where Rev. Mr. Conklin read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Joseph Fregeau

A solemn high mass of requiem for Joseph Fregeau of Hartford, formely of Taftville, was celebrated at Sacred Heart church, at his funeral services, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, by Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault, pastor of the church. Rev. Omer T. Mandier was deacon and Rev. Francis X. Chicoine was sub-deacon. The church was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The bearers who represented the St. John society and the St. Louis society, in which the deceased had held membership were Prime Dugas, Amable Deslandes, Hormidas Gladue, Louis Paquette, Noe Frechette and Hector Guertin. Burial was in the family lot in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike. Undertaker Martin Burns of Danielson had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES AT LEFFINGWELL CHURCH MERGE

The annual meeting of the Missions circle and Ladies 'Aid of the Leffingwell Baptist church was held at the parsonage Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The devotional service was in charge of Mrs. George W. Borden with Mrs. N. E. Whiting at the piano. The meeting opened with singing followed by prayer and scripture. John 1 1-17. Mrs. Charles Ellis spoke of the work of Miss Pauline Harris of Ningpo, China, and Miss Ruth Carr of El Salvador. Two letters from the Philippines were read by Mrs. Silas Leffingwell. The reading for the day, From the Latch String and selections from the Book of Remembrance were discussed. The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. The C. W. C. report was also given showing the children's work in excellent condition. The women voted to merge the two societies, thus forming one organization to carry on the women's work of the church.

The officers were chosen as follows:

President, Miss Ruth Ellis; first vice president, Mrs. John Rathbone; second vice president, Mrs. Silas Leffingwell; secretary, Mrs. Charles Ellis; treasurer, Mrs. Roy Beard. Refreshments of cake and tea were served by Mrs. Borden, assisted by Miss Carolyn Beebe.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING REPORTED BUSY YEAR

The annual meeting of the public health nursing department of the United Workers was held Wednesday afternoon at the United Workers' house on Washington street with Mrs. Charles C. Gildersleeve, chairman, presiding. Reports for the year were read, including that of the secretary, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, in which it was shown that the work is continually enlarging, that one more nurse has been added this year, making seven now engaged with the work of the department, and that more work in health educational lines is being done in teaching people how to take care of themselves. The anti-tuberculosis work is also actively pushed.

Mrs. Gildersleeve was re-elected chairman, Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond was elected vice-chairman and Mrs Philip T. Welles secretary.

Six new members are brought into membership on the committee for the current year under the rotating plan which is in effect. These are Mrs. L. O. Smith, Mrs. Charles S. Holbrook, Mrs. Elita D. Wallace, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, Mrs. Alfred P. Allen and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell.

GAIR COMPANY ABSORBS MEDFORD PAPER MILL

Announcement is made of the merger of the Warner & Childs Co., Inc., of Medford, Mass., with the Robert Gair Co., of New York, effective at once. The Gair organization, by this merger, takes in one of the pioneer concerns in the manufacture of corrupgated-board products in New England and thereby completes a chain of plants for more economical distribution, and for better service to the buyer.

It is stated that R. M. Taylor, president of the Warner & Childs Co., will continue in the management of the Massachusetts unit and will assume more extended activities under the merger. The whole personnel of the Medford unit will be kept intact and the policies of the old company will be continued.

This change links the Medford plant with a chain of factories which extend over a wide area of the country. The parent plant is at Brooklyn, N. Y., there is a plant at Uncasville, this state, and another division is established at Haverhill, Mass.

MSGR. MAY ENTERTAINED ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH WORKERS

Sixty of the church workers of St. Patrick's parish, were guests of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, pastor of the church, at a banquet and dance at the Wauregan hotel Thursday evening. It was the annual complimentary banquet and dance given by Msgr. May to the church workers. The banquet was served at 8 o'clock at which time Msgr. May, briefly addressing the gathering thanking them for their valued services the past year. From 9:30 o'clock until midnight dancing was enjoyed, Brennan's six piece orchestra furnishing the music.

STRATFORD SOPHOMORE WINS STORRS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 3—David E. Larsen of Stratford, sophomore at Connecticut Agricultural college, was awarded the E. Stevens Henry scholarship fund of $50 for having the highest scholastic rank during the freshman year. The fund was founded in 1922 by a bequest of $1,000 from E. Stevens Henry of Rockville, for many years a trustee of the college. The income is annually credited to the account of that sophomore whose marks were the highest in the first year at the college and is applied to his fees.

STOLE PUTNAM GIRLS' MONEY IN WORCESTER

Rosario Benoit, 18, of No. 217 Ward street, Hartford, was sentenced to one year in the house of correction in district court at Worcester on Wednesday after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of $82, the Christmas shopping money and savings of a Connecticut girl. Benoit appealed. He was brought to Worcester from Burlington, Vt., where he had been arrested on information supplied by Dora Collins of No. 194 Main street, Putnam, this state. Miss Collins was visiting her mother in Worcester before Christmas, when the money and Benoit, a boarder, disappeared simultaneously.

WAS IN AUTOMOBILE FATALITY AT UNCASVILLE

Miss Beatrice Perlatti, 17, of No. 132 Cedar street, this city, whose accusations made against Officer George McCaskey of New London have resulted in the suspension of the New London policeman, figured in a fatal automobile accident at Uncasville on the evening of Nov. 25th when she was one of four occupants of a Ford roadster that crashed into a pole and resulted in the death of Aubrey Goodpasture of Uncasville. Other occupants of the car were Joseph Lukegord of Uncasville and Miss Catherine Hill of New London. Miss Perlatti received cuts and bruises in the crash.

CHICAGO MAN SPEAKER BEFORE LIONS' MEETING

Mr. Rolth-Wheeler of the Mather Educational Service of Chicago was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. There was the usual large attendance at the meeting which was called to order by President Kopland K. Markoff who introduced Louis M. Crandall as the presiding officer of the day. William R. Frisbie was the song leader and Miss Mell ably assisted at the piano.

The committee in charge of the New Year's party for the children of Norwich, held last Saturday at the Palace theatre, were given a vote of thanks and the secretary was requested to send a letter of appreciation to Manager Levinson of the theatre for his cooperation, and also one to J. Robert Smith, manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for providing the moving picture, The Bugle Call. A letter from Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of the board of management of the New London County Home, thanking the club for entertaining the county home children at the party was read at the meeting.

Mr. Rolth-Wheeler, introduced as the speaker, gave a most interesting talk on Further Fields of Progress in Business.

Following Mr. Rolth-Wheeler's talk Miss Helena Crandall entertained the Lions with an educational dance, accompanied by the pianist, Miss Mell. Leon Dix was awarded the weekly attendance prize offered by Louis Fontaine. Abner W. Schwartz will have charge of the meeting next week.

TREATMENT OF EMPLOYES MADE ROTARY CLUB TOPIC

With 41 present the first meeting of 1929 of the Norwich Rotary club was held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President Edward W. Jewett presided and Joseph C. Worth, honorary member of the club, was the song-leader. President Jewett announced that the spring conference would be held in Hartford on April 18-19 and that a local committee would be appointed in the near future.

President Jewett turned the meeting over to William H. Oat, who is in charge of the program for January. Mr. Oat, after expressing wishes for continued prosperity in the community and in Rotary, turned the meeting over to F. Russell Smith, chairman of the Vocational Service committee. The topic for discussion was "How My Vocation Should Treat Its Employes." William G. Park, Charles A. Saxton and Mr. Smith were the speakers.

In discussing the subject Mr. Park spoke of the relations between employer and employe in a small manufacturing community He said that in the smaller community the employer was faced with entirely different problems than the manufacturer who is operating in the larger communities. He spoke of the much better spirit of co-operation and said that there was more loyalty on the part of employes than in places where they were not in such close relationship with the employer. The housing problem is one that the employer in the small community has to contend with. It is an item that calls for considerable investment on which there is little or no return. The selection of overseers is another feature that tends to promote content among employes. An overseer must not only be able to get production but he must be able to handle men and understand them. Group insurance, health and accident insurance are things that an employer may invest in that will give him returns in satisfied employes.

Charles A Saxton also advocated the personal touch between employer and employes which is possible only in the smaller communities and manufacturing plants In speaking of his own business Mr. Saxton said that his labor turnover during the past year had been but 2 per cent and that many of his employes had been connected with the plant for many years, some of them being employed there when he was a boy.

F. Russell Smith spoke of the problems confronting the employer where his employes were almost all women. A woman has an entirely different complex than the man and her ideas regarding work are entirely different making many problems that do not confront the employer of male labor.

The program chairman for the meeting was William H. Oat who turned the meeting over to Mr. Smith after expressing wishes for a year of continued prosperity to the Rotary club and the community.

Anderson-Brand Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Russell M. Brand announce the engagement of their daughter, Rhoda Irene, to Carl Anderson of Freeport, L. I. The wedding will take place in the near future.

NORWICH TOWN

REV. CHAS. A. NORTHROP WRITES FROM CALIFORNIA

The following letter from Rev. Chas. A. Northrop, a former pastor, to Herbert L. Yerrington was read by the latter Wednesday evening, at the close of the annual meeting of the First Congregational church:

Altadena, Cal.,
Dec. 25, 1928.

To H. L. Y. my Dear Old Pal:—

Men may come and men may go but
I go on forever.

The Brook.

Which being interpreted is—ministers may come and ministers may go, but I, the chorister and scribe are an everlasting possession. I am not certain that the First church has a minister just now, not having heard from there recently; but I am prety certain that he who represents the standing over, is still there and through him I address these few lines to my old church on the green.

"If obliged to be absent from the annual gathering I will, if possible send at least a verse of Scripture to be read in response to my name at roll call." And here it is: The lines have fallen to me in pleasant places and I have a goodly heritage.

I could have said this every year since I knew Norwich. It was true when I was privileged to visit California last year, and much truer since I have been here; for during the past year, while I have been basking in almost perpetual sunlight, my son-in-law, Geo. K. Palmer has been busy in sinking a well, oil, in San Joaquin valley, which has shown large prospects of oil and gas, and is expected to "come in" in a few days, and when it comes, there'll be "millions in it;" I have hope that some of the flow may reach me.

Or at least some of the crumbs may fall to me from the table.

Aside from this expectation, I have had during the year several birds in the hand such as pleasant drives, through mountains and desert, occasional visits to Hollywood, seeing some of the movies with which I was not greatly moved, and from which I came away without the smell of fire on my garments; listening to the radio, to the notorious Aimee McPherson, and many of the great preachers of Los Angeles and Pasadena.

I have worshiped with Baptists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Methodists and Presbyterians, and still retain my faith.

Things were so pleasant here that I decided to accept an urgent invitation to stay out here. I am not without some longing for the flesh pots of Egypt, but acting as flower gardner, hunter of limes, (dandelions) on the premises, shepherd of tender youth in the person of my beautiful grand-daughter, Betty Jane, and handy man in doors and out.

I greatly miss these late years the opportunity to talk, which has been my chief business all these years, and find great solice in thinking and living over past days. Good libraries minister to my passion for reading, and the latter days bespeak much sunshine loading up to the final glory.

I write this on a day warm, cloudless and not at all reminescent of the winter days in the east.

Naturally there are a good many I's in this letter, but I suppose that it's me that you are interested in.

It is not altogether certain that I shall continue my stay indefinitely. The faces of those who have passed on will abide with me, and I am interested in the present generation up town, for the sake of their fathers, and especially for the grand chance they have to make the world better. To the great company of the promoted the old and the young among you, I pass along my Hail and Farewell.

Always yours
CHAS. A. NORTHROP

At the January meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton of Huntington avenue, the president, Mrs. William Weaver presided. She read the 24th Psalm. Mrs. George Warren Potter, wife of the pastor, offered prayer, also accompanied at the organ for the hymns, Rock of Ages and Take It to the Lord in Prayer. There was a good number present. In the absence of Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, secretary, the assistant secretary, Mrs. Albert G. Miner, read that report, which was approved, as was also that of the treasurer, Mrs. George Manning, which was read by Mrs. Fulton. Being unable to be present, Mrs. Manning telephoned her report to the hostess. Sewing on patch work was done and during the business period it was voted to hold a super and entertainment later. Mrs. Fulton is to have charge of the supper. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

During Kellogg Treaty Debate Senators McLean and Bingham Urged Passage of the Moses Resolution to Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine—In the House Floor Leader Tilson Arranged For the Fenn Reappointment Resolution to Come Before That Body Without Delay and Fixed the Date as January 10th.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Connecticut was in the front ranks today in both house and senate. In the latter Senators Bingham and McLean took part in the debate on the Kellogg treaty. McLean insists the Moses resolution should be adopted, as he is convinced the treaty without it "is an implied renunciation of the Monroe Doctrine," and that the Moses resolution is a necessary safeguard.

Senator Bingham did not make a speech, but frequently interrupted Senator Borah with pertinent questions. Bingham stands for the treaty, but is quite ready to say he would prefer to see the Moses resolution adopted, and if it comes before the senate will vote for it.

In the house, the high light of the day was the report of the Fenn reapportionment bill made by Chairman Fenn.

Floor Leader Tilson immediately arranged that it should come before the house without delay and fixed the date as Jan. 10. It is expected that the measure will pass, then go to the senate where it will meet opposition, but is expected to weather the storm.

M'LEAN AND BINGHAM IN KELLOGG TREATY DEBATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—Before an inquiring membership, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, propelled the Kellogg peace pact on its way in the senate today in debate which became personal as well as conciliatory.

After three hours, during which he answered questioners from all sides of the chamber, the sponsor of the treaty pledging the nations of the world to renounce war summed up and answered the arguments made against the pact and called for early ratification of it in its present form.

Senator Reed, democrat, of Missouri, who is ready to lead the opposition and whose onslaught has been eagerly awaited by those wishing to see a Reed-Borah clash in debate, replied only briefly today with a reading of correspondence of the other nations. The Missourian has not yet begun his fight.

Opposition to the treaty cropped from the republican side early in the day when Senator McLean of Connecticut, a republican member of the foreign relations committee, said that Secretary Kellogg had failed to specify that this nation did not regard the treaty as infringing upon the Monroe Doctrine.

Most of the discussion centered about the note of Great Britain in accepting the treaty, in which that nation reserved the right to defend its territories. Senator Borah insisted that right was inherent in the treaty and therefore the British note could have no effect.

Senator Reed, who broke into the questioning frequently, remarked at one stage that the argument of self-defense could be carried to the point of "ridiculousness" and Senator Borah agreed that danger always existed. The Idahoan expressed doubt that this treaty could have stopped the World war.

Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, closed the day's work with a brief speech insisting that the treaty should not be the cause for any let-down in preparedness. He said the pact would not prevent the United States from using force.

TO PUSH REAPPORTIONMENT RESOLUTION IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The nearly decade-long row over the reapportionment of the membership of the house of representatives promises to reach the house floor again this session. A year ago the question was brought up in the house, only to be sent back to committee for further consideration.

The development today was a favorable vote by the census committee to report the Fenn bill proposing reapportionment of the present membership of 435 upon the basis of the forthcoming 1930 census. The committee action was close, the bill being approved 7 to 6 or by a margin of one vote.

Shortly after the committee's action, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican floor leader, announced he would seek a special rule to bring the measure to the floor next Thursday.

The Fenn measure is slightly different from that which the house rejected at the last session by a vote of 200 to 179, but opposition that developed in reporting the bill indicated another fight on the proposal.

In the committee today one republican, Thurston of Iowa, joined with five democrats, Rankin of Mississippi, Greenwood of Indiana, Lozier of Missouri, Rutherford of Georgia, and De Rouen of Louisiana, in voting against reporting the bill. Seven republicans were lined up in its support: Chairman Fenn of Connecticut, McLeod of Michigan, Magrady and Swick of Pennsylvania, Johnson of Washington, Selvig of Minnesota and Englebright of California. Two members were paired, Clancy, republican, Michigan, being for the bill, with Moorman, a Kentucky democrat, against the measure.

OFFICE OF JAIL WARDER ENTERED BY BURGLARS

PARIS, Jan. 4—(AP)—Burglars last night entered the office of the chief warder of the Fresnes jail where former Minister of Finance Klotz and several prominent men implicated in the "Gazette Du Franc" case are held.

Desks were ransacked and some commitment papers were reported missing. The visitors also took some money and some jewelry which had belonged to the warder's deceased wife. The total money loss was about $400.

Prison authorities were convinced that the burglars were looking for documents connected with the cases of some of the formerly illustrious business men who now are inmates of the jail.

The warder's house is situated within the jail walls but is separated from the prison itself.

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR TWO BANK ROBBERS

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 4—(AP)—Michael J. Tuohey, 24, Boston, Mass., was sentenced to 22 years in the Ohio penitentiary tonight after a jury convicted him of participating in the robbery of the Camargo bank at Madeira, near here November 17, when $6,000 in cash was obtained.

Walter J. Cole, 22, formerly of Napanee, Ind., was sentenced to 24 years in the penitentiary several days ago when he pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Four men went to the cashier's home about 11 o'clock the night of the robbery. One of them forced him to go to the bank and open the safe while the three others stood guard over the cashier's wife and child. The two other alleged robbers have not been apprehended.

1,035 DEATHS FROM FLU WEEK ENDING DEC. 29

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—Influenza caused 1,035 deaths in 66 cities during the week ending December 29, reports to the census bureau disclosed today, while reports for the preceding week from 67 cities showed 829 deaths.

Pneumonia also caused 1,646 deaths during the first period and 1,092 during the latter. The general death rate for the country during the week ending December 29, was 18 per 100,000, compared with 13.8 for the corresponding week of 1927.

The weekly death rate from influenza has steadily climbed to the present figure from a beginning of 51 deaths reported during the week ended November 3.

ESTIMATED FIRE LOSS OF $70,000 IN MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, Conn., Jan. 4—(AP)—Fire starting in the workshop of Lunt and Jilson, machinery and electric equipment plant this afternoon, spread to the Manchester Nursery in the same building where most of $50,000 worth of stock, stored for the winter, was destroyed. The blaze which did an estimated damage of $70,000 was fought for a time with fire equipment from the Bon Ami factory directly opposite the storehouse, and freight traffic on the main line railroad between the two buildings was held up.

WANDERLUST AGAIN CALLS CHAMPION WOMAN STOWAWAY

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 4—(AP)—The far corners and strange ports of the Betty Simpson away from home and world which have repeatedly lured husband have beckoned again. Today Betty answered the call—the old wanderlust spirit which has earned for her the title of champion woman stowaway. She left for an unannounced destination, Shanghai, London, Paris, possibly Tokio—it's all the same to her.

It was just a few months ago that Betty came home to her husband, George Brogan, after seven years traveling as a stowaway to various ports.

Betty's last trip as a stowaway ended in her arrest in England. At the time she said she was through with traveling and intended to settle down. She has said she has visited nearly all the important capitals of the world and never has paid a cent for transportation.

OVERFLOW OF THE RIVER TIBER HAS FLOODED ROME

ROME, Jan. 4—(AP)—Flood conditions in Italy have increased with recent heavy rains and the River Tiber, has overflowed its banks in some quarters of the city making Rome a temporary rival of Venice.

During the day it was necessary at one place to transport a coffin by rowboat from a marooned house to a nearby church for the funeral service.

At least 300 persons have been driven from their homes in Rome and are being accommodated in so-called "hotels for the unemployed" operated by the municipality.

"Father Tiber," has even invaded the cellars of the Farnesina palace.

RAIDING ONLY POISONOUS LIQUOR SPEAKEASIES IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen said today that he was not trying by his speakeasy raids to sponge up all the liquor in New York, but merely the poisonous or impure liquor.

The raids would continue, he said, until this purpose was accomplished, but to attempt to put all speakeasies out of business would be "like stopping the tide."

He reported that since he became commissioner on December 18, police had raided 540 speakeasies. The estimated total of such resorts is between 15,000 and 20,000.

KING GEORGE'S PROGRESS SLOW, BUT SATISFACTORY

LONDON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The two medical bulletins issued by King George's physicians today, showed that his progress, if slow, was satisfactory for the first time since December 12, when Sir Hugh Rigby performed an operation for drainage of the infected area of the chest, the surgeon's name did not appear on the evening bulletin. This announcement which was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, of Penn., was their usual one sentence pronouncement. It said: "The king had a quiet day and there is no change to report in his majesty's condition."

Multilateral Treaties Have Been Approved

Ready to Be Signed by Delegates to the Pan American Conference.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The Pan-American conference on arbitration and conciliation, representing 20 American republics, today formally approved drafts of multilateral arbitration and conciliation treaties looking to the settlement of all future international differences in the western hemisphere by peaceful means.

The treaties are expected to be signed by the various delegations and the conference will adjourn after sitting continuously since Dec. 10.

The conference today at a plenary session also approved a report from its special committee charged with promoting the conciliation of the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute. It further adopted a resolution expressing appreciation for the manner in which its good offices had been accepted by the disputing parties and voiced the hope the special conciliating commission, created under the conciliation protocol signed yesterday by delegates from Bolivia and Paraguay, would begin its labors as soon as possible.

All motions were carried unanimously, and the treaties were approved with no debate whatever.

Delegates regarded the pacts which now will have to be ratified by the legislature of the signatory governments as the most advanced steps which arbitration has ever made, inasmuch as they cover a wider field of international disputes than ever has been attempted before.

MAN, WIFE AND THREE GUESTS ASPHYXIATED

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—The bodies of a man, his wife and their three guests were found tonight in a gas-filled Brooklyn apartment.

Police said they believed the five were overcome as they were preparing to eat New Year's dinner. The table had been arranged and a roasted turkey was in the oven. Ambulance surgeons said they had been dead three or four days.

Authorities said they believed Mrs. Mary Wood, 45, had turned out the gas in the oven and later accidentally turned it on as she worked about the stove. The body of her husband, George, 50, was found near the dining table. Her body was found in a bedroom, where she was believed to have gone in an effort to open a window. One of the three guests was Wood's brother, the bodies of the other two men were not identified.

ELEVEN INSURGENTS EXECUTED IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4—(AP)—Special dispatches from Aguascalientes tonight said that the execution of 11 insurgents this morning was carried out only after a formal court-martial, in accordance with recent instructions of President Portes Gil that no one should be executed without trial.

Natalio or Meliton Espinosa and his ten followers were shot by a firing squad and then their bodies were suspended from telegraph poles along the railroad which they were alleged to have molested on frequent occasions.

FOUR YOUTHS AND GIRL MEMBERS OF HOLD-UP GANG

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Four youths and a girl were arrested in an uptown apartment tonight by police who said the men were members of a holdup gang that had been preying on the delivery trucks of large department stores for the past month. Police said they confessed to 12 holdups.

The men who gave the names of Joseph Early, John Ernst, James C. Pietz and Clifford Moore, none of them over 20, were charged with robbery and possession of firearms. The girl, Betty Tierney, 17, was charged with being a wayward minor. Police said they found three pistols, a rifle and many rounds of ammunition in the apartment.

MOTORIST HELD CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 4—(AP)—Philip Tortora, 22, was found criminally responsible today for the death of Morris Cohen, 55 year old merchant, whom he ran down while speeding at 35 miles an hour on the night of December 12. A policeman on duty at the scene noticed the speed of the automobile but the car passed him before he could give a signal. The finding was made by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan.

Plane Question Mark Returns To Coast

Motors Are Performing Flawlessly—Crew Battled With Adverse Weather Thursday.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4—(AP)—The army monoplane, Question Mark, had completed 84 hours of continuous flight in her refueling endurance test at 7:26:46 p. m., today.

The ship, which took off here on New Year's day at 7:26:46 a. m., has broken two major endurance records during four days of flight and tonight was approaching another record—that of longer sustained flight by heavier-than-air craft than by lighter-than-air craft.

The "Question Mark" appeared over the Metropolitan airport shortly after one o'clock (coast time) today, completing a leisurely journey from Imperial Valley.

A heroic and at times desperate battle by the crew of the Question Mark to keep their plane in the air during yesterday and last night was revealed today in a log dropped from the trimotored Fokker. This log disclosed that the crew had to fight fogs, clouds, nearly exhausted fuel supplies, down drafts in Imperial Valley and a motor going bad and throwing oil.

EXPERT FINDS ENGINES WORKING PERFECTLY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4—(AP)—From a point 3,000 feet above ground an expert engineer made the first official observation of the motors of the Question Mark today and landed with the information that they were "all right."

Accompanied by an Associated Press staff correspondent, W. E. Thomas, expert of the Wright Aeronautical corporation, which built the Question Mark's motors, made the inspection from another plane. His flight alongside the army ship lasted half an hour.

When he landed, Thomas said: "The engines are functioning normally and appeared as efficient as at the start of the flight. The log reports reveal a satisfactory performance which these engines should give for 400 or more hours under normal conditions."

TWO WIDOWS AT THE FUNERAL OF C. V. EKLUND

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 4—(AP)—At the funeral of Carl V. Eklund, of Rochester, held here today, two women appeared, each claiming to be the widow of Mr. Eklund. One said she was Mrs. Carl V. Eklund, of Lynn, Mass., and the other, Mrs. Carl V. Eklund of Rochester. Both wanted to be recognized as the widow.

City Judge H. M. Starr succeeded in establishing peace after Mrs. Eklund of Lynn claimed Mrs. Eklund of Rochester pushed her, and sought to place an assault charge against her.

FATALLY INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WATERBURY, Jan. 4—(AP)—Merrick Hartwell, 23, of Judd's Bridge, Roxbury, died in the Waterbury hospital at 7:30 tonight from a fractured skull received when the automobile he was driving crashed through a fence, went down a steep ten foot bank and burst into flames on the New Milford road in Southbury this afternoon. Passersby rescued Hartwell from under the burning car, but not until he had suffered second degree burns about the head, shoulders and chest. His death was caused by his head injury.

NEW ENGLAND FARMERS TO HOLD MASS MEETING

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 4—(AP)—A mass meeting of New England farmers, at which ways and means of increasing the tariff on farm products will be discussed, has been called for this city on January 14. The announcement was made today by G. C. Sevey, editor of the New England Homestead, after a conference with various agricultural leaders. Representatives of agricultural organizations with a membership of 75,000 are to be invited. Among those present at today's meeting was McLean Buckingham, commissioner of agriculture in Connecticut.

NATION WIDE SEARCH FOR WIFE THAT DIVORCED HIM

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Alden S. Condict, socially prominent New Yorker and a lineal descendant of John Alden, disclosed today that he has been carrying on a nationwide search for his wife and their baby son, following the granting in Reno, Nevada, of a decree of divorce to Mrs. Condict.

In papers filed in state supreme court in connection with his suit against her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Fenton B. Turck, for alleged alienation of her affections, he claimed that the Reno divorce was invalid in New York state and charged her with abducting their son. The Reno decree gave the mother sole custody of the boy.

WASHINGTON TO BE SCENE OF A LAW ENFORCEMENT DRIVE

A Ten Weeks' Crusade is to Be Launched Sunday by the National United Committee For Law Enforcement—Aim is to Make Washington an Example and Encouragement to the Cities of the Nation in the Cause of Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—A ten weeks campaign to "make Washington an example and encouragement to the cities of the nation" in the cause of prohibition, is to be launched Sunday by the National United Committee for Law Enforcement, composed of executive heads of 14 national organizations.

Announcement of the campaign, which was described as "nothing spectacular, but a determined effort to arouse the people of Washington to a realization of existing conditions," came coincidentally with congressional moves for investigation of the entire prohibition situation.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, a wet, introduced today an amendment to a resolution offered yesterday by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, for a congressional investigation of the matter. The Edge amendment would have the prohibition situation studied by a citizens' commission appointed by Herbert Hoover after his inauguration.

The Washington prohibition drive will be in charge of Dr. Clinton N. Howard, who said that he had been pledged the co-operation of the Washington Ministers' association, and that he would work with the police department. The campaign will open with a mass meeting Sunday at the First Congregational church, and will continue for ten weeks.

Former Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who has issued a demand that President Coolidge ask the commissioners of the District of Columbia to submit a list of speak-easies and close them on penalty of losing their jobs, will address a second mass meeting on the following Sunday.

HOOVER PLANNING TO TOUR THE WEST INDIES

U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 4—(AP)—A tour of the West Indies before his inauguration on March 4 is looked forward to by Herbert Hoover, if he can conclude his next conferences in Washington in short order.

The president-elect will commence his conferences on his cabinet selections and other matters facing his administration in the national capital on Monday and after their conclusion he plans to go to Florida for a week or ten days rest.

Afterwards, if time permits, he hopes to undertake the voyage to the West Indies, visiting Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico and possibly the Virgin Islands. The West Indies tour probably would require less than three weeks and if undertaken, the president-elect would expect to return to Florida in ample time to write his inaugural address.

Mr. Hoover particularly desires to visit Cuba. He also is anxious to get a first hand observation of what the American marines are doing in Haiti and to ascertain how Santo Domingo has progressed since the termination of the American occupation several years ago.

Mr. Hoover wishes to visit Porto Rico as one of the most important American insular possessions.

Under the present plans for the trip, the president-elect would stop at Havana, Port-au-Prince, Santo Domingo City, San Juan, and, if the Virgin Islands are included in the tour, at St. Thomas.

RADIO CORP AND VICTOR TALKING CO. MERGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Radio and phonograph were brought together today for service in one of the greatest, if not the greatest, entertainment enterprises of history by the unification of the Radio Corporation of America and the Victor Talking Machine company.

Directors of both companies approved plans which have been in preparation for nearly a year and which in effect provide for a merger of the corporations through an exchange of stock. Subject to approval of stockholders, Radio Corporation directors voted issuance of approximately 6,590,000 shares of new common stock, of which 5,777,000 shares will be exchanged for present common stock outstanding on the basis of five new shares for each old share now held. In addition, there will be created an issue of approximately $13,000 shares of cumulative B preferred stock, carrying 5 dividends, which will be junior to the $19,780,000 of 7 per cent. A preferred stock outstanding.

BISHOP AUCKLAND, Durham, Eng., Jan. 4—(AP)—Children with pinched faces and shivering in ragged clothes in the raw cold; men wandering aimlessly about city. Illy kept streets, rows of huddled houses, their broken windows stuffed with rags. It is such pictures of destitution as these one meets on every hand in the mining villages of Durham.

Bishop Auckland is a shopping center for a mining neighborhood in which destitution is probably the worst of any district in England. Close by is the village of Witton Park with a population of 2000 of whom 600 are ex-service men. Only about a dozen of those 600 are working. Like the miners of southern Wales they have been caught in the economic squeeze of no market. What with strikes and stoppages some have had scarcely any continued work since they were demobilized. There are youths of 19 who have not done a real day's work since they left school. They gradually are drifting lower and lower.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER THROWN FROM HORSE

MELTON MOWBRAY, England, Jan. 4—(AP)—The stumbling of his horse threw the duke of Gloucester, third son of King George, into a muddy brook today. He was fox hunting with the Quorn hounds.

The duke landed on his feet and escaped injury. He remounted and rejoined his hunting companions.

The duke has often been spoken of as the best rider in the royal family. He has figured in far fewer mishaps like that of today than has his eldest brother.

COUNTER CHARGES AGAINST GILDA GREY WITHDRAWN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 4—(AP)—Counter charges against Gilda Grey, screen star and dancer by Gil Boag, her husband and former manager, in circuit court at Port Washington, Wis., were ordered withdrawn today following directions wired from New York by Boag to his attorney. As a result, Boag's petition for a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, will not be opposed when her case comes up for hearing.

SALVATION ARMY GROUP ARE PLANNING STRATEGY

LONDON, Jan. 4—(AP)—Both camps of the Salvation Army were busy today planning strategy in advance of what already is being called the "Battle of Sunbury" which is to begin when the high council of the organization meets there next Tuesday.

London newspapers said the followers of General Bramwell Booth, who faces the possibility of being deposed as commander-in-chief, have prepared a bombshell to be hurled into the ranks of the reform element, led by Commander Evangeline Booth of the United States. Some interpreted this to mean that the general would resign when the council convenes, thus forestalling a vote declaring him physically unfit to continue in office. But this was not confirmed at international headquarters. One prominent official there said:

"If the general has made any such decision, we have heard nothing about it."

Against the resignation report an official of Miss Booth's party pointed out that this course would veto the general's right to choose his successor, something to which his family has clung as an inalienable prerogative of the commander-in-chief. The same commentator also argued that a resignation would throw away the general's chance of being adjudicated fit to carry on. In the latter event the council would be automatically dissolved and his nomination of a successor would stand.

VARE GRANTED INDEFINITE TIME TO PRESENT ARGUMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—William S. Vare, senator-elect from Pennsylvania, was granted an indefinite time today by the senate committee investigating his 1926 primary campaign, to present any argument in his own behalf that he or his attorneys might wish.

But the committee, in making this announcement, made clear that it had decided its investigation of the Pennsylvania primary was already a closed incident and that it desired no more information.

The decison was reached at a session attended by counsel for Mr. Vare, who told the committee that if it insisted "on Mr. Vare's presence now, he is dead." Vare now is in Florida recuperating from illness.

REPORT IN HOUSE ON REFUNDING OF TAXES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The question of illegally collected taxes and their refund by the government, drew the attention of the house today from three widely separated angles.

One was in a report of the appropriations committee telling of a compromise settlement of tax refunds, involving $26,000,000 to the United States Steel corporation.

In the same report this committee also disclosed that the treasury since 1917 had collected $4,01,769,209 in back taxes but during that period had refunded $975,012,356 which it had illegally taken from taxpayers.

MISSING BOY STOWAWAY ON FRENCH LINER FRANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—A 16-year-old school boy, who disappeared from his home yesterday is a stowaway aboard the French liner France, outbound on a Mediterranean cruise, a radiogram from the liner revealed tonight.

William Rosebro, the stowaway, came to this city from North Carolina three years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rosebro. The parents said the boy left home ostensibly for school, with no extra clothing and only $5 in cash.

The France will not return to this port for 32 days. The minimum fare for the cruise is $295.

COUPLE SENTENCED FOR PASSING WORTHLESS CHECKS

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 4—(AP)—Peggy A. Diehl, 19, of Atlanta, Ga., and her husband, George W. Diehl, were sentenced to at least a year and not more than three years in jail by Justice John Scammon in superior court today for passing worthless checks on chain stores here. The couple are wanted in several Massachusetts and Connecticut cities on similar charges. Both pleaded guilty.

WOMAN SEEKS ELECTION AS COUNTY COMMISSIONER

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 4—(AP)—Mrs. Nellie M. Dow, former vice chairman of the Women's republican town committee, today announced that she would oppose Edwin W. Schultz, seeking re-election as county commissioner. If elected she will be the first woman in Hartford county to become commissioner. It is understood that the party machine will not give her its support.

PLANS NEARLY COMPLETE FOR POULTRY EXPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 4—Working exhibits with several pieces of display apparatus in actual motion will feature some of the exhibits of the annual Exposition to be held under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association at the armory next week. Following a conference of committees it was decided to use the Company C room this year and this will be turned into displays of kitchen, living room, bed room and dining room furniture and equipment. The kitchen will be an exhibition by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and will be an electrically outfitted kitchen with some of the most modern culinary aids installed. All of the equipment will be demonstrated in actual use.

These exhibits will be so arranged that those attending the exhibition may walk from room to room and get a close view of the merchandise shown. In the main exhibition hall there will be some novel displays. Over ten makes of leading automobiles will be displayed, some of the latest models being brought to the city for the show. The Willimantic State Trade school exhibit will be the first of its kind in local history. It will display some of the handiwork of the boys learning trades. A brooder built by the youthful artizans will be shown as well as other products of their work. For the first time the public will have the opportunity of seeing the metal screen that is to be manufactured in this city. The Willimantic Metal Screen Inc., has reserved a space and will show a model of the newly invented screen. Exhibitors will begin installing their displays next Tuesday and Wednesday, these will be completed ready for the grand opening. The annual banquet this year will be held Thursday evening at the Nathan Hale hotel with many prominent poultrymen, local business men and others as guests of the poultry association.

Manager D. D. Cavanaugh announced today that one of the feature poultry exhibits would be George Lowry's champion laying pen of leghorns from Willimantic, now the main feature of the Boston Poultry show. There are ten layers in the pen.

OBITUARY

Albert B. Kenyon

Albert B. Kenyon, 66, one of Lebanon's most widely known and highly respected residents died suddenly at the home of a neighbor at 10:30 o'clock this morning from an attack of heart trouble. Mr. Kenyon had gone to his neighbor's to sign several papers but he was stricken shortly after arriving here. He was born in Rhode Island, May 24, 1862, a son of Jonathan L. and Phoebe Speer Kenyon. Besides his wife he leaves two sons, Rowland of Nanticket, Mass., and Ralph H. Kenyon of Colchester. The deceased was a member of Wooster lodge, No. 10, A. F. & A. M. of Colchester.

Miss Sarah H. Abbe of South Windham and Hartford was heard in an interesting talk on current events entitled Affairs National and International at the regular meeting of the Woman's club held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. W. Tryon acting as chairlady. Miss Abbe was introduced by Mrs. Dwight E. Abel. After reviewing the most pertinent events of the nation Miss Abbe dwelt upon the international affairs of such countries as Japan, China, Manchuria, Turkey, Russia, Roumania, Greece, Albania, Jugo-Slavakia, Italy, Australia and England.

FUNERAL

John P. Shea

The funeral services for John P. Shea were held with a high mass of requiem in St. Peter's church, Dorchester, Mass., at 7 o'clock this morning. The cortege arrived here at 11:15 o'clock, being met by a delegation from Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, who attended the funeral and acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

A man who proved to be Jeremiah Dwyer, who resided in this city 50 years ago, arrived here on the 11:17 train from Boston this forenoon. He inquired of people he met for "Policeman" James F. Twomey. It was brought to his attention that there was a James F. Twomey here but that he was not an officer. Mr. Dwyer then recalled the officer about whom he asked. He said that he had not seen Willimantic during the half century and expressed satisfaction at the growth it had enjoyed during those years. Mr. Dwyer had returned from the west several years after leaving here and for 42 years was employed by the New Haven railroad in the repair shops at Roxbury. He was retired on pension last August and used his free pass to visit Willimantic.

The town of Coventry now faces the problem of securing additional grounds for use as a cemetery. E. H. LeDoyt, caretaker of the Nathan Hale cemetery, a Protestant burial ground, has notified First Selectman William L. Higgins that no additional lots remained for sale. The matter of securing land for a cemetery will be taken up at the special town meeting in March. In 1712 when the town was incorporated the present Nathan Hale cemetery was purchased and has been used since that time. It is understood that the owners of land adjoining the present cemetery, do not care to sell and the town may have to resort to another location.

A continuance from today until January 11 has been granted in the Bolton town court in the case of Captain of Police Frank P. McLean of this city, charged with assault on Charles Pinney, proprietor of the Rainbow Inn and Constable Samuel R. Woodward of Bolton on the night of December 31. The continuance was granted at the request of Attorney W. A. King, counsel for the accused. The case is to be heard by Justice of the Peace James A. Connors of Bolton.

Officers of the Ladies' society of the First Congregational church elected this week are: Honorary president, Mrs. Herbert R. Chappell; president, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton; first vice-president, Mrs. George F. Taylor; second vice president, Mrs. C. C. Case; secretary, Mrs. George C. Moon; treasurer, Mrs. Oliver L. Willard; auditor, Mrs. Frank P. Fenton; committee chairmen, board of directresses, Mrs. Edward J. Tryon; program, Mrs. Albert B Smith; missionary, Mrs. Dwight E. Abel; membership, Mrs. George E. Hinman; house, Mrs. William S. Congdon; flower, Mrs. Fred L. Avery; social service, Miss Nettie Hall; reconstruction, Mrs. E. B. Hanna; luncheon, Mrs George Livesly; and Thimble clubs, Mrs. D. W. C. Hill.

With the removal of the proprietor, Antonio Duchesneau to new business quarters in Danielson, the smallest confectionery and cigar store in the state which had been conducted here for the past three years by Mr. Duchesneau, has been closed. Duchesneau's novel place of business here was confined to a heavily stocked show window, 50 — 24 inches. Customers bought from the sidewalk through a "slide" in the glass.

Joint installation ceremonies of the newly elected officers of A. C. Tyler Camp No. 8, U. S. W. V. and A. C. Tyler auxiliary, No. 28, will be held on the evening of January 24, preceded with a banquet in the Nathan Hale hotel. The exercises will be held in the town hall with Past State Commander Frank P. Fenton as installing officer.

Miss Jessica Fenton, who was holiday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fenton spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Caswell in Westport and Mr. and Mrs. Worthington E. Platt in Flushing, L. I., before returning to her studies at a Boston, Mass., art school.

Nathan Lahn of this city was tendered a birthday party at Windham Inn Thursday evening by about 20 friends. Mrs. George E. Challenger supervised the serving of an excellent dinner.

Mrs. Albert E. Welch will return later this week from New York where she has been with friends since New Year's. She will be accompanied by her son, Albert, who has been in Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., on a visit.

Secretary of State-elect Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry was a visitor here today. He has been in Hartford during the past week to familiarize himself with the duties that will evolve upon him upon his taking office.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kelley are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. David Beausoli of Putnam and Mrs. Florence Wright of Cleveland, Ohio.

AUTOPSY REVEALS MRS. LORELL MET DEATH BY VIOLENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 4—An autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, aged about 58, who was found dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Angelina Mazzola, of 27 Arnold Lane, indicated beyond doubt late this afternoon that the woman had ben strangled to death. The autopsy, which was performed by Medical Examiner Louis I. Mason of this city, assisted by Dr. Arthur J. Wolff, of Hartford, a chemical expert, had disclosed that the jugular vein had been broken by violence.

Apparently there was no evidence of poison nor of the fact that death had been gas asphyxiation. At the time the woman was found a gas jet, in the kitchen adjoining the room in which the body lay on a couch, was opened. The theory of death from gas was not at any time held strongly by the authorities, inasmuch as several doors in the Mazzola tenement were open and there was only one burner from which gas escaped. On the other hand, the theory of murder by strangulation became paramount with the discovery of several finger marks on the throat, scratches on the throat and side of the face and a blackened right eye, which the dead woman's daughter, Mrs. Mazzola, claims were not present when she saw her mother earlier on the morning in the house during their investigation of the fatality. In a subsequent search today, the police discovered a hand basin which contained a quantity of water highly covered with human blood and other evidence that blood had been hastily washed from the woman's face and hands. That the job of washing the blood off was hastily done was indicated in the fact that quantities of clotted blood remained about the fingernails of the dead woman and underneath a ring which she wore on her hand. The blood is believed to have originated in the bursting of arteries inside the throat, causing a flow from the mouth and possibly the nostrils.

On the woman's clothing and penetrating the outer garments to the skin, were several smirches of what appeared to be the drippings of water, containing blood. This bloody water had also dripped onto the mattress of the couch on which she lay. When found the body was in reposing position with the arms drawn across the chest. Photographs of the body before its removal from the room were taken under the direction of the police by Photographer William T. Dinneen.

Today the police removed all of the woman's belongings from the small tenement at No. 9 Arnold Lane, which she occupied alone. Indication that she was of a frugal type was shown in the finding of small sums of money in various receptacles, including a tobacco can. A rumor that she had considerable money hidden in the place was being run down by the investigating officers.

That money may have been an incentive in the alleged murder was held as a belief by the police with the discovery that the woman held at least six insurance policies, aggregating several hundred dollars, the last of which was taken out July 25, 1928.

County Detective William E. Jackson and Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley, who, with Patrolman Roderick Lariviere, were conducting the investigation went to Westerly, R. I., this morning to check up on the circumstances surrounding Mrs. Lorella's departure from that place to reside in this city about one year ago. It was learned that the woman apparently was having trouble with her step-daughter in that city and came here to live near her daughter, Mrs. Mazzola.

The deceased was the widow of Pietro Lorella and was born in Tusa, Italy, June 21, 1871, a daughter of Gaetano and Luigi Masotto Derone. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Rosarie Micell, of Westerly, R. I., Mrs. Angelina Mazzola of this city, Mrs. Luigi Christena and Mrs. Nicholina Micell of Westerly; two brothers, Rosario Derone of Hartford and Santo Derrone of Tusa, Italy; fifteen grandchildren. It is understood that she was married three times.

THREE STORES ENTERED—BURGLARS GET LITTLE LOOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 4—Sometime between one and five a. m. Friday, burglars broke into the A. T. Van Cleve drug store, the Economy grocery and the A. & P. store in the center of the village. Entrance was effected by smashing the glass in the front doors in all three of the stores. The burglary was discovered by the driver of a Hartford bread truck, who leaves bread at the Economy store every morning. Noticing the smashed door and scattered glass on the door step, he telephoned to the Economy store headquarters in Hartford and they got in touch with Constable Harold Clark and the state police department. Upon further investigation, the thefts at the A. & P. store and Van Cleve drug store were discovered. Only a box of cigars was stolen from the Van Cleve store. At the Economy store, some cigarettes were stolen. Various documents, invoices, etc., were scattered about the floor by the visitors in their search for loot. At the A. & P store, the cash register was ransacked and several dollars in small change was taken. Various store record boks, invoices and other papers were found thrown in a heap on the floor. Officials from the headquarters of the Economy and the A. & P. stores were in town all morning, investigating the thefts and checking up on the goods on the shelves to see if any had been stolen. It is thought, however, that the thieves were only looking for money and none of the stores had any great amount in the cash registers. A state policeman from the Groton barracks and Officer Roy B. Pettingill of the Hartford barracks are investigating the thefts. It is thought the robbers are probably the same who have recently broken into A. & P. and Economy stores in East Hampton, Portland and Middletown.

Undereating leads to tuberculosis and other diseases

IF THE mothers and young girls of this country could have heard the addresses before the Annual Philadelphia Tuberculosis Conference, something would be done and done quickly to stamp out the dangerous under-dieting by young girls.

The addresses of this meeting were made public through the Philadelphia Public Ledger. "The most difficult problem facing us in combating tuberculosis among high-school girls, and particularly among the young women of today, is the vicious habits they practice to retain or acquire a slim and graceful figure."

"We don't seem to be able to save them," says . . . "the problem of nutrition is the one we have to face in our examination of girls of this age. It is at this age that girls are most susceptible to tuberculosis and other diseases."

Parents must put an end to the dangerous dieting of young people. Thousands of older women have been seriously and permanently injured by extreme dieting to reduce weight. It is even more serious for growing girls to starve themselves.

Tempt the appetites of your family with deliciously sweetened cereals and fruits for breakfast, with abundant canned and fresh vegetables sweetened to taste, and with fresh, dried and canned fruits for desserts. The Sugar Institute.

DANIELSON

THREE DRIVERS ARRESTED FOR OVERLOADING TRUCKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan 4—State officers from the Danielson barracks operating in the town of Plainfield this afternoon ordered three drivers of overloaded commercial motor vehicles to make court appearances. It is understood that state officers will continue checking for overloaded trucks right through the winter season, a season when such heavy vehicles are apt to materially damage state highway surfaces because of varying weather conditions, with alternately thawing and freezing weather.

The state maintains scales at Oneco in the town of Sterling at Hopkins hill in the town of Plainfield and in the upper School street section of Putnam in the eastern part of Windham county. Motor vehicles suspected of carrying overloads are ordered to these scales for weighing.

Shot at Chicken Thief.

In this strange world there are many and strange ways of going about getting a Christmas dinner. It now develops that state officers are seeking a man believed to have been shot the Saturday night before Christmas while making a raid on coops where geese are kept by Valmore Guertin, who has a small farm place near Attawaugan.

On the night mentioned, Guertin, who came into this town from the Flat Rock district of the town of Plainfield, heard a racket around his geese coops and took his gun to go out and investigate. It will be recalled that the moon was making the nights quite bright at that time. As Guertin swung into sight of the coops he saw a tall man, probably about six feet in height, making off at top speed, and let a charge of shot go after him. There is reason to believe that some of these shot took effect, for Guertin was well within range and is quite efficient in the handling of a gun.

There appears to be little doubt that the man shot at was engaged in an attempt to steal a goose or two.

FUNERAL.

Francis X. Ducharme

This morning the funeral of Francis X. Ducharme was held from the home in South Main street with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. There was an unusually large funeral congregation at the solemn high mass of requiem, relatives and friends in attendance representing various towns and cities in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island. Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the mass, with Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., and Rev Joseph A. Demers, M. S., as deacon and sub-deacon. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Fr. Demers. There was a wealth of beautiful floral pieces. The bearers were Damase Boulais, F. X. Lemieux, Abel L. Reeves, Paul Dubuc, Philip Maynard, Alexander Dubamel. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Injured Man Was Glassblower

It develops that William J. Hart, 59, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was so seriously injured at Mechanicsville yesterday when the automobile he was operating skidded on an icy and dangerous curve, has been filling theatrical engagements as a glass blower. Much of the space in the rear of the car was occupied by equipment he used in his profession. Hart was so badly hurt, his most severe injuries being internal that he was unable to converse with Coroner Arthur G. Bill who sought to interview him at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. Papers that were in King's possession indicated that he planned to fill an engagement at a theatre in Portland, Me.

To Face Drunken Driving Charge.

A matter scheduled for consideration in the town court Saturday morning pertains to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated against Edward Reilley of Putnam. This case becomes of special interest by reason of the fact that Reilley on Wednesday of this week in the superior court at Putnam was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail, on an appealed case from the Killingly town court, where, a few weeks ago, he was up for a second time in a case charging driving while intoxicated and was given a sentence of six months in jail by Judge W. Fenner Woodward.

The case scheduled for a hearing Saturday dates back to last July, when Reilley was taken into custody by a state officer to face a charge of driving while intoxicated. The case has been continued from time to time, and during this period of continuance Reilley's second arrest came about. As a second offender, he was given the six months sentence in the local court. This week at Putnam, however, it was held that because the first case against him has not been disposed of he is technically not a second offender, as to driving while intoxicated, so escaped with the fine mentioned and the suspended jail sentence, though Judge Jennings accepted State Attorney Bradford's recommendation reluctantly and remarked that Reilley was lucky to escape so easily.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sabra Wheaton Chapman

This morning at the home on Dorrance street the death of Mrs. Sabra Wheaton Chapman occurred. Mrs. Chapman, who would have reached her 85th birthday on February 13, had been in failing health for a long time and critically ill since last Saturday. She had been a life long resident of this section.

She was born in Killingly, a daughter of David B. and Almira Pratt Wheaton and was one of the oldest families of this town. She was a member of the First Congregational church of Putnam, at Putnam Heights and attended services there when that area was known as North Killingly but was subsequently set aside as part of the town of Putnam. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Eva Chapman Tripp, who lived with her. Mr. Chapman has been dead for many years.

The Flagg instrumental quartette gave a very delightful concert of chamber music at the annual reception and musical of the Killingly Woman's club on New Year's day at the Congregational parish house. The quartet is composed of the following members: Lucile Caron, piano, Ellena Perry, viola, Dr. William Levin, violin, Henry Flagg, cello.

Mr. Flagg is director of the ensemble. The members of the Flagg quartet are all Danielson musicians and have been heard before in similar concerts and are always greeted by an appreciative audience.

The New Year's day program follows:

Overture to the "Messiah" by Handel; Allegro vivace from Quartet in C minor by Mendelssohn; theme and variations by Beethoven; minuet from string trio, B flat major, Serenade, Moment Musical, by Schubert; preambule, Walzer-Scherzo (from suite Op. 43) by Straus; Slavic Dance No. 5 by Dvorak; quartette in B flat major Op. 8, Allegro; Adagio non Troppo; Minuet Allegro; Finale-Presto by Weber.

Notes About Local People.

Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club will elect officers for the ensuing year when they meet at the Danielson inn the coming week.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said today that he had arranged to have an autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, of Willimantic, who was found dead at her home in that city yesterday. The autopsy is expected to show whether the woman died accidently from asphyxiation by gas or by violence.

Rev. and Mrs. William Swainson of Daytville, have been entertaining relatives from Cherryfield, Me.

Dr. George M. Burroughs of Broad street held a clinic this morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

Delegates from Danielson will be in attendance Sunday for a joint meeting of the Fourth District of the American legion at Moosup.

W. H. G. Herklots has been confined to his home by illness the past few days.

Various mills in communities hereabouts were represented this evening at the annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association held at Ponemah hall in Taftville.

Mrs. Margaret Bruce has announced the engagement of her daughter, Thelma, to Nathan Marshall Southwick, Jr., of Leicester, Mass.

A Child Welfare conference is to be held at the Health station in the town hall building next Tuesday afternoon.

Directresses of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church of January are: Mrs. Louis Sayles, Mrs. Oliver Downs, Miss Sarah A. Larrabee, Mrs. Charles M. Smith, Miss Sarah L. Ayer, Mrs. Oliver P. Bartlett.

Brooklyn grange has its next meeting scheduled for Monday evening, though it usually meets on Tuesday evenings.

Announcement has been made here of the marriage at Calgary, Alberta, of Henrietta H. Bradford, daughter of the late Dr. Samuel Bradford, and formerly of Brooklyn, to Clarence Walline of Ohaton, Alta.

"Do Baptists Believe in Hell?" will be the subject of an address by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong at the Sunday evening service at the Baptist church. An opportunity for questions will be given at the close of the address.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM HAD FIRE LOSS OF $13,068 IN 101 FIRES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 4—The annual report of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston shows that there has been during the year 1928 a total of 101 alarms, of which 35 calls have been box alarms and the remainder being telephone four stroke alarms. The fire loss for the year is estimated at $13,068.76 and is one of the greatest losses sustained in the city in several years.

William J. Harte of Brooklyn, N. Y., seriously injured in Mechanicsville, Thursday when his car skidded on the icy highway and crashed into a tree, was reported at the Day Kimball hospital today as somewhat improved. Hart is suffering with internal injuries, skull abrasions and other minor injuries. Hope for his recovery was enlightened today as he became able to consume food and drink.

Hart is a glass salesman. He was enroute from New York to Worcester, when the crash came. The rear of his large sedan was filled with his products, that forged to the front and severely gashed him when he was thrown to the side of the road. Hart's accident was the second of a grave nature to occur in this vicinity within 24 hours.

Captain Jarvis and officers of the Danielson state police barracks have checked up the report from New Britain, relative to the holding of three young men from Canton, O., alleged to have entered the state trade school in that city and to have cracked a safe. Capt. Jarvis felt that the description of the three men tallied somewhat with information at local police headquarters obtained when the break was committed at the State Trade school in Putnam.

The investigation of the affair failed to throw any light on the Putnam break since the men could not be identified as being in Putnam on the evening the break in the school was committed.

The annual report of the police department for the past year shows that there has been a total of the 305 arrests, the majority of which were for intoxication. The report of the police indicates there has been a considerable increase in crime in this city during the year past than during the preceding year.

DONALD JACKSON ARRESTED IN BOSTON AS FORGER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 4—Donald Jackson of Boston, formerly of Killingly was arrested in Boston today by the Boston police on a charge of passing worthless checks in Webster, Putnam and various other towns and cities between. When arrested Jackson had attempted to pass a worthless check for his board and rom at the Hotel Statler. He was then posing under the name of Dr. Murray Myers.

Officer John C. Templeman of the Webster police department who has been tracing Jackson through southern Massachusetts identified him in the Charles street jail in Boston and linked him with several bad check passing works in Webster. Officer Templeman told the Bulletin tonight that Jackson will possibly be linked with the bogus check passing in Putnam several days ago. Jackson told Officer Templeman that he had served seven years in jail in Brooklyn, N. Y., because he passed worthless checks. He also served a numbers of years in jail in Montreal, Canada for the same act. He will be brought to Webster within a few days to stand trial.

CANTERBURY GREEN

At the grange meeting Wednesday evening installation of officers took place. State Deputy John Hallowell of Preston City and his assistants, Mrs. Ida Richardson of Norwich and Mrs. Woodmansee and Miss Arline Bennett of Preston City, performed the work in an impressive manner. Several visitors from Plainfield were present. An excellent supper was served at the close of the meeting. During the term of office of the retiring master, Curtis Kinne, several improvements have been made on the grange property, including the placing of an electric light plant.

A delegation from Canterbury grange was at the Plainfield meeting Tuesday evening to install the officers of that grange. Mrs. Lillian Frink was installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Emma Appley, Mrs. Lucile Bushnell and Miss Elise Hawes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wright motored to Malden, Mass., Thursday to attend the funeral of a relative of Mr. Wright.

Miss Edith Tracy of Plainfield has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Walter Sager.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop have returned from a holiday visit in New Haven.

Rev. Harry Small and family recently visited in Torrington, Conn.

The Ladies' Aid society plans to meet Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. B. Brown.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Joseph B. Corey was elected foreman of the old Wauregan Hook and Ladder company at a meeting held 50 years ago this week. Blackstone Hose company the same week elected A. S. Barbour foreman, and M. P. Lewis was elected superintendent of the Central M. E. church.

Interesting extracts from the files of The Bulletin of the last week in December, 1878, and the first week in January, 1879, follow:

Monday, Dec. 30, 1878—An interesting Sunday school concert was held in the Universalist church last evening. After the usual voluntary, the services opened with a solo entitled There is a Green Hill Far Away, sung by Mrs. F. H. Butterfield, who rendered it very effectively. The exercises consisted of a responsive service, recitations and readings by young ladies and gentlemen and the infant class, under the direction of Miss Holt.

Prof. J. H. George was presented by Mr. C. W. Tubbs, when the Broadway choir gathered yesterday morning with an elegant baton. It is of beautifully polished California redwood, tipped on one end with ivory and the other with silver, on which is graven the words "J. H. George from C. W. Tubbs, 1878." It is the handiwork of Mr. Tubbs and will be a valuable addition to the paraphernalia of the choirmaster.

Tonight at Breed hall the Perley Comedy company from Booth's theatre present the new version of Uncle Tom's Cabin, introducing genuine Louisiana jubilee singers and a corps of local colored performers in a plantation scene. Tickets on sale at Noyes & Davis'.

Tuesday, Dec. 31, 1878—A small boy opened the season of skating accidents the other day by breaking through the ice on a pond in the neighborhood of Providence and Baltic streets. He was rescued, taken home, dried out and whipped.

The Frazier Ice company began harvesting ice from their East Great Plain pond yesterday. The ice is between six and seven inches thick and remarkably fine and solid.

The symphony in C-bass by the full band at the O. D. One watch meeting tonight and the piano solo should call out every member. All past chaplains are to be there.

The river is frozen solidly for miles below the city. Boys were skating on its surface yesterday.

Wednesday, Jan. 1, 1879—At the meeting of the Greeneville Reform club held Dec. 30th, the following officers were elected: President, Calvin Miner; first vice president, Joseph Barrett; first vice president, John Cochrane; third vice president, Horace K. Batty; chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Mills; treasurer, John M. Cox; secretary, F. L. Fuller; steward, J. W. Tomlinson.

The members of the First Baptist Sunday school met at their church Monday evening and partook of the good things that usually attend holiday festivals. After the exercises the bended boughs of the Christmas tree were stripped of their load of presents for the little ones, and now and then a "pasteboard present" for the older ones.

The Sunday school society of the Central M. E. church met in the church last evening and chose the following officers for the ensuing year: M. P. Lewis, superintendent; U. S. Gardner, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Hugh Montgomery, female superintendent; Leroy Plummer, secretary; John Trolan, treasurer; Richard M. Colt, librarian.

Thursday, Jan. 2, 1879—The grand New Year's ball given by the Germans in Steiner's hall last evening was a most pleasant entertainment and was an entire success. The hall was thronged with many figures who "rang out the old and rang in the new" to the music of tripping feet. The instrumental music was furnished by Miller's orchestra.

New Year's day passed with so little observance in this city yesterday that the transition from the "old" to the "new" was hardly marked. A few calls were made, a few extra drams sold and the usual dullness was a trifle more pronounced.

A very agreeable supper was given in the vestry of the Universalist church last evening which was largely attended. The guests were indebted for the delightful treat to Mr. D. T. Ruby.

Friday, Jan. 3, 1879—At a special meeting of the Blackstone Hose company held Thursday evening the following officers were elected to fill vacancies caused by the resignation of Foreman J. D. McDougald: A. S. Barbour, foreman; George F. McCarty, first assistant; Charles E. Rogers, second assistant; J. H. King, secretary; F. L. Burdick, treasurer.

At the annual assembly of Franklin council, No. 3, R. and S. M., held at their council chamber last evening, the following were chosen officers for the ensuing year: James Kirker, T. I. G. M.; Augustus Gould, R. I. D. M.; Robert A. France, P. C.; A. H. Brewer, C. of G.; J. W. Gilbert, treasurer; A. S. Comstock, recording secretary; W. P. Potter, Jr., conductor; D. D. Lyman, steward; H. C. Albro, sentinel; C. W. Carter, A. D. Smith, I. W. Carpenter, committee on finance.

The members of the police force were paid in gold yesterday. They looked doubtfully at the unfamiliar eagles at first, but consented to accept them as cabinet specimens.

Saturday, Jan. 5, 1879—At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company last evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Foreman, Joseph B. Corey; first assistant, Henry B. Lewis; second assistant, Irving Harveys; secretary, Henry F. Kehr; treasurer, J. B. Corey. Thomas Purdy was appointed steward.

At a meeting of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., department of Connecticut, held last evening, the following officers were installed for the year ensuing: Amos D. Allen, commander; Charles T. Barstow, S. V.-C.; Charles S. Beatty, J. V. C.; John T. Crary, adjutant; W. A. Thompson, Q M.; N. D Sevin, sergeant; Charles E. Case, chaplain; John H. Scott, O. of D.; Charles W. Rouse, O. of G.; H. M. Durfey, Q. M. S.

TARIFF REVISION.

Much was said in the last campaign about the tariff. While the republicans were pressing the need of protection and such a revision of the tariff as would meet present day conditions, the democrats were telling the people that they had nothing to fear from the treatment of the tariff if their candidates should be elected. Stress was laid upon the fact that there was nothing in the manner in which the democrats would handle the tariff that need to disturb big business.

Because this democratic attitude was so diametrically opposite to that which had been shown by the leaders among the democrats in congress, opportunity was presented to show what certain of those leaders had said and done about the tariff, and the prediction was made that in spite of the campaign talk those into whose hands the treatment of a tariff bill would fall in case of democratic success would be found strenuously attacking the republican tariff.

The voters of the country did not see fit to test out the democrats in regard to tariff treatment. They had not been convinced that it would be a wise thing to do. Perhaps they will see justification in their action, even so soon, from the statement which has been made by Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee in urging the democrats to stand together against the extravagant high rates which he is convinced the republicans are going to write into the revised tariff.

That has a characteristic, old time, democratic sound to it. It is an appeal that unquestionably comes from the heart. It is one that will be echoed by many of the other democrats of the present congress and there will be plenty of them in the next. Of course it can be claimed that this doesn't mean that there is anything for big business to fear from the democrats, but on the other hand it doesn't mean that the tariff interests of the country are going to be looked after in the same way by the democrats as they promise to be by the republicans. Campaign promises to the contrary, few probably thought they ever would be.

DOGS AND SHEEP.

Contrary to the situation in Connecticut, Pennsylvania a year ago reported an increase in the number of sheep on the farms of that state. This gain is attributed by the American Sheep Breeder and Wool Grower to the dog law that exists in that state and the effective manner in which it is enforced.

Like other states Pennsylvania suffered severely from sheep killing dogs. It was driving the industry to the wall but for the past six years there has been a change. There are less unlicensed dogs running about, a huge decrease in the number of sheep killed by dogs is recorded and sheep raising is on the gain.

This change in the Keystone state, which was once the third large sheep raising state in the country, indicates that there may be something worth copying in its method of dealing with the dog problem. A division of the bureau of animal industry of that state has charge of enforcement in the 23 law enforcement districts of that state. Each district has an agent, who is provided with an auto, and he keeps in close touch with all parts of his district, checking up unlicensed dogs, prosecuting the owners of such, investigating all cases concerning dogs and sheep and putting many of the tramp dogs out of the way. In behalf of the law it is claimed that it protects the good dogs as well as the sheep.

It is apparent that much of the effectiveness of the Pennsylvania law is due to the enforcement work, which appears to be most thorough and to deal with the protection of other animals as well as sheep. Those who have observed its operation cannot say too much for it which, combined with the fact that a yearly increase in the number of sheep is being reported in Pennsylvania, indicates that it may be the solution for the same sort of a problem in other states. It certainly would indicate that while the dog problem in Connecticut is by no means discouraging it doesn't necessarily hold that it cannot be solved. It is idle to assume that what can be done in Pennsylvania ought to be as readily accomplished in Connecticut.

THE MILLER CASE.

It was to be expected that there would be determined efforts made in Michigan to obtain leniency for Mrs. Miller, convicted for the fourth time of violating the liquor law and under the present law a felony, but they were without avail. She had been found guilty by a mixed jury. It was a fourth offense and under the law there was nothing else for the court to do but give her a sentence for life. Evidently the court took into consideration the fact that she was a deliberate violator of the law. She had had the opportunities to profit from the penalties imposed on three previous cases, and she knew that her husband was serving time in prison for similar law breaking. She has been sentenced, as others have, because she insisted upon coming into conflict with the habitual criminal law, and the fact that she is a woman has not served to gain favors in her behalf.

The case has been appealed and the final word has not been said, but this is one of several cases which have indicated to the people of Michigan that while there is merit to the habitual criminal law it was not contemplated that it would be the means of sending such violators to prison for life. Selling liquor is recognized as a violation of the law, but it hasn't been considered that such an offense called for any such penalization, even after the fourth conviction.

Whether that sentiment is strong enough to bring about a modification of the law, or the removal of liquor violation from the list of felonies, remains to be seen. It is within the power of the legislature to so change the law that liquor law violations will not be covered by the habitual criminal law. That doesn't mean that such violators would not be subject to punishment upon conviction but it would overcome the possibility of such an offender being sent to prison for life. That is looked upon as too severe, regardless of the contempt displayed for the law, but from the utter disregard for the dry law as displayed by the Millers it becomes evident that punishment for the repeating violators needs to be something more than the handing out of a deferred sentence or a tap on the wrist.

TOURIST BUSINESS.

New England has long since recognized the importance of the tourist business and laid plans to increase it, but it is by no means alone in this respect. Already Canada is figuring that there will be 300,000 automobiles from the United States that will visit the dominion this year.

For the same reason that more are coming to New England more are going to Canada. The automobile and good roads are making possible this large volume of traffic. Those who have come into this neck of the woods have told of the attractions. Those who have visited the various states of New England have sung of their delightful places and recreational advantages. It is much the same with Canada. The various provinces have not been able to produce the same network of roads that is to be found this side of the border but there are nevertheless good roads. Work upon them is constant during the period of the year when it is possible and even where gravel roads are maintained they afford comfortable driving through a region that is different.

Canada has plenty of attractions. They do not vie with New England because they are different. There are scenic attractions which are worth seeing in both and yet what is to be found in Canada is different from New England and vice versa.

The automobile is making it possible for a better appreciation of the natural beauties of every country and it is through the motor vehicle that Canada is expecting and getting this new business. From the preparations which it makes it is evident that the dominion and its people appreciate this important source of income, and it has good reason for so doing.

A NEW FLYING RECORD.

If the accomplishment of the Question Mark indicates what can be expected in aviation this year, we have started early and are destined for great headway.

Duration flights have been made before but no heavier than air machine has been able to stay in the air for as long a period as this monoplane of the army. Henceforth limitations have existed because of the amount of fuel that it was possible to carry. Engine trouble has bothered some but those who have set up new records have found it impossible to continue longer because of lack of fuel or because there is a limit to human endurance.

When, however, it is possible to carry enough in the crew of such a flying machine as to provide relief and to take on fuel, oil, food and any other of the requirements for continuous operation there is certainly an opportunity to put the machinery of an airplane to a test that has never been possible before.

The performance of the Question Mark is remarkable in that it may yet be extended to exceed even the time that a lighter than air machine has remained in the air, but the conditions under which it is accomplishing this new record make it apparent that others can be expected to go after such record as it establishes with expectations of beating it. Endurance flights are placed on a new basis by reason of the advantages gained through refueling and obtaining supplies in the air. They are of such an outstanding nature that there are certain to be put to use in many ways in connection with commercial flying.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Not all those who are completely at sea are with Mr. Hoover on the Utah.

Now the Question Mark has broken the record, what can the Exclamation Point do?

The man on the corner says: It is most unusual when there's nothing to complain about weatherwise.

From the things he is proposing, President Portes Gil of Mexico doesn't intend to be out of the spot light.

The professor who thinks there should be more cuss words must have been living a secluded life, or else he is deaf.

If for no other reason the time it is taking Mr. Hoover to get home from Brazil demonstrates the need of an airline between the two continents.

Those who have put their cars up for the winter are probably wondering as the result of the fine weather, whether they have made a mistake.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Of course we are not an inch taller, a pound heavier, or radically better or worse on January 1st, than we were on December 31st; we have not gained in good looks since we read The Bulletin last Saturday. But all the same isn't it true that when we opened our eyes on Tuesday last and slowly began to realize its status in the calendar, a strange sort of Methuselah feeling stole over us, and a sympathetic sorrow for the old bird who was reminded nearly a thousand times how near he was to eternity? I have often wondered how many times Methuselah changed his will. Do you suppose that the preferred stock of the Mount Lebanon Palm Oil Co. which he bought when he was 21 at the market price of 97 he held when he was 921? If he did and it had increased all the time he must have been the most bloated plutocrat of the age. It is to be regretted that he was not known to have kept a dairy.

It is to be hoped that nobody will flee because we are told that the flu is flying from the west toward New England. Do we not have this bit of wisdom to guide our action in such an emergency? And that is not to do any flying or fleeing while the flu is flying. If we take "the wings of the morning" and fly to "the uttermost parts of Montauk point, the flu will surely catch us fleeing, if it chances to be coming our way. The best way to flee from the flu is to fly out of doors and stay there just as long as possible. There is nothing better than fresh air, and vigorous exercise in it, to ward off all germinal diseases. Of course if the disease is contracted we must do something more heroic than fleeing or flying for that will only spread the malady. If the flu gets you while fleeing just stop at a doctor's office.

With the multitude of things that force themselves upon us these days for attention, and most of them no doubt, are worthy of attention—we ought not to let them crowd out some of the other things that have a right to be annually celebrated. I refer, of course, to Forefathers' day which we recently passed on December 20. As a meritorious occasion along national lines it stands in the same class as the Fourth of July. This latter day represents the reaping of what the Pilgrim Fathers sowed, one hundred and fifty odd years before. The Pilgrims brought over here in the Mayflower the essentials of democracy in church and state which the Revolution put into practice along practical lines, and the experiment has shown beyond all intelligent denial that a race with high moral ideals and fine mental power can rule themselves to the astonishment of the world. Let us never forget Forefathers' day.

The story of the Pilgrims shows us that great things are done only through the sweat of one's soul, or, in other words, by supreme effort. Thomas Carlyle in his blunt but vivid way, has put this more strikingly: "Any man with native power can achieve distinction if he is only willing to go through hell fire to get there." There is nothing in the history of this country to show that the early New England settlers actually went through "hell fire," even though they believed in its existence. There was too much ice and snow for "hell fire" to do much damage. Their greatest trouble at first was in getting acclimated to a land that seemingly was far removed from the internal regions. But they had great physical stamina, and though their ranks were decimated during that first awful winter, yet at length they became the progenitors of a race of men who have never been surpassed.

When these sturdy men and women left old Plymouth, they did not face the north, as the sun had begun to do, but they sailed westward with the principle of democracy in their hearts. Their main object in seeking a new land was the opportunity of working out their scheme of practical religion according to the dictates of their own consciences. Now the long journey on the Mayflower gave them the leisure time to make a more extended application of the principle of democracy. According to the knowledge that has come down to us at first they concerned themselves chiefly about democracy in religion. They sought a land where they would not be interfered with in their religion and its worship. It was democracy in religion that was the main urge of their great adventure. But on the Mayflower they began to think about democracy in political matters including the question of governing themselves, with the result that they carried this out in the Plymouth colony.

The thinking mind often asks the question: "Are the plans and purposes of man ever overruled by a Higher Power?" We have every reason to believe that this is so. The very word, "Providence" of God would seem to indicate it. The providence of God provides—among other things—for the safety and well being of his people. In specific cases it may be hard to dogmatize on the question. But it is not logical to argue the point in this way: A higher power exists in the form of personality, we call him the Absolute. Such a Being must be unconditioned, free to act not only within, but also without, the realm of law. As the Absolute he must be perfect in all his attributes, and among them is love in perfection. Now if this Absolute Love sees a child of His doing what will do him harm, is it not reasonable to believe that he will endeavor to rescue him? What would an earthly father do under the same circumstances?

The writer presumes that some—perhaps many—of his thoughtful readers spent a portion of last Monday, the final day of the old year, asking themselves the question:: "Have I measured up to any genuine success during the year of 1928, and if so in what ways?" At first thought this may seem to have been an easy thing to do. In the first place exactly what is meant by "success?" What one man would call success another might look at it as failure. It all depends on what your standard of success is. For instance if a man had made money hand over fist as a bootlegger would any man who believes in the necessity of law and order call that real success? But this is of course an extreme illustration, and a matter on which men look from opposite standpoints. Let me put the question in this way: "Have we done things in the year just closed that we would not be ashamed for the world to know; things that have made others happier and better?"

I wonder if the reading public will take kindly to one suggestion about the year on which we have now entered, and that is to move with the utmost caution in buying things on the installment plan. The writer is by no means a harsh critic of the system. He recognizes in it the possibility of those limited means getting things that otherwise they would not have, and in this matter it is a public benefaction. But does it not also carry with it the inducement to those whose wills are not very strong to work the idea overtime? That is to plunge in so far that they cannot get out, involving a loss of what has been actually paid in. In such an instance it is easy to see who is the gainer. The writer personally believes that no one is justified in going into this scheme unless the way of coming out is tolerably clear. If you plunge do it with your eyes wide open.

WORLD BOUNDARY QUESTIONS AND SETTLEMENTS IN 1928.

Major territorial, population, and language changes of the year are reported in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"In South America a boundary 'sore spot, was eliminated," continues the bulletin, "with the cession of the Putumayo region by Colombia to Peru. The area of Peru has been increased 13,000 square miles by the award of this tropic, forested upland on the east flanks of the Andes. Brazil and Bolivia adjusted their boundaries in the Gran Chaco region, Brazil, taking 3,200 square kilometers and Bolivia 400 square kilometers.

Fighting Followed Parley Failure.

"Failure of similar negotiations last July between Bolivian and Paraguayan representatives at Buenos Aires on the question of arbitrating the Gran Chaco boundary served as a prelude to the clash of military forces in December. Another unsettled South American boundary problem remains at Tacna. Bolivia presented a petition to the Havana Pan-American conference for a territorial corridor to the sea through Tacna, ownership of which is now disputed by Chile and Peru.

"In Central America Honduras and Guatemala discussed an agreement to arbitrate their 398-year old boundary contention. The United States, Nicaragua and Colombia reached an agreement on the disposition of a handful of pirate islands in the western Caribbean sea. The northern group, comprising Quita Sueno, Serrana and the Roncador banks and keys are claimed by the United States and Colombia. It was agreed that Colombia shall raise no objection to the United States maintaining lighthouses on the islands and that the Colombians might fish on the banks. The middle group goes to Nicaragua. The Corn islands command the proposed entrance to the much debated Nicaraguan canal. Colombia also gave up claims to the Mosquito coast.

Part of Europe's Problems Settled.

"In Europe, Sweden and Finland have come to an agreement on their boundary line where it reaches the Baltic sea, but two minor questions, one of them the Aland sea boundary, remain unsettled. France and Switzerland have been endeavoring to solve the issue of free trade zones in Gex and Haute-Savoie, a very important question for Switzerland because of Geneva's economic dependence on these neighboring French provinces. The question of autonomy for Croatia has been raised at Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, and the right to Vilna and its countryside, is still a subject of dissension between Poland and Lithuania. Hungary has asked the League of Nations for a slice of land on the west of its present boundary. However, definite progress toward Balkan peace seems to have been accomplished by Greece making Saloniki a free port, thus providing a much needed trade outlet to the Aegean sea for Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. The soviet government maintains that the ownership of Bessarabia, now in the possession of Rumania, is still an open question.

"To a conference among representatives of Great Britain, France, Spain and Italy on international questions relating to Morocco and the international city of Tangier, the United States government sent a note which said that it presumed the 'open door' policy would be maintained. France continued its pacification of Morocco, securing submission in 1928 of the country of the Ida-ou-Hanar tribes southwest of Marrakesh. Farther east Italy and France are reported to have reached an agreement by which certain territoral changes in the southwest boundary of Tripolitania will be made in exchange for the surrender of Italy's claims for special privileges for Italians in Tunisia territory. A government commission has recently returned to London to report its investigation of the proposal to unify Kenya Colony, Uganda, Tanganyika, and Nyasaland into a British dominion of East Africa. Portugal gave Belgium three square kilometers near Matadi at the mouth of the Congo in exchange for the Dilolo Boot' in western Angola.

Readjustments in Asia

"In Asia, Transjordan, by a new treaty with Great Britain, agreed to accept British military protection at local expense and to receive a British representative at Amman. The Transjordan capital a few months later was the scene of an assemblage of the chiefs of desert tribes of Syria, Jebel Druz and Transjordan for the purpose of signing a peace treaty. The neighboring country of Iraq, also a League of Nations mandate, has been given a new and more nearly independent status under a new pact with Great Britain. Persia's claims to Abbadan Island and Bahrein Island, both in the Persian Gulf, have been subject of diplomatic discussions between Great Britain and Persia. At the other end of Asia the South China government by its military victory over the northern forces was able to advance the boundary of China under one government to the Great Wall which separates China from Manchuria.

"Outside the continents there have been other changes. The Soviet government has reasserted its claims to Franz Josef Land. The Netherlands and the United States arbitrated a disagreement over the ownership of Palmas Island on the southeast fringe of the Philippines with the result that it was given to The Netherlands. Norway took the final step toward annexing Bouvet and Thompson Islands, two lonely specks of land in the South Atlantic ocean. Canada sustained a 'paper loss' of about 7,000 square miles of Baffin Land when an explorer's ship sailed across the area which had appeared on the maps as land.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—That language of the constitution, setting forth the "advice and consent" powers of the senate on treaties, certainly has given that august body a place all its own in the international scheme of things.

Senate importance in that respect reached its height in the days of the league of nations battle and still obtains, witness the way the world hung with bated breath on the outcome of the reaction in the senate over Kellogg anti-war pact ratification. The fact that 61 out of 64 nations had approved the proposal in one way or another seemed of much less importance than the senate's reaction to it.

Senatorial Dress Changes.

Yet with all this added prestige, senators fail utterly to dress the part as of yore. They follow the haphazard personal tastes in clothes and no unwritten law or custom compels them to don formal dress to appear on the floor.

The Bystander has not been able to find anybody who recalls seeing a senator up for a session in golf baggs. That is one touch of modernism as yet lacking. That youngest senator Lafollette of Wisconsin, however, has a habit of approaching the satorial verge at times. He appears frequently in the matched blue shirt and collar effect popular with the younger generation of sporting instincts.

Blease of South Carolina had an innovation in dress to disclose when the present session started. It was a claret colored vest, worn with a gray business suit, and rather in keeping with memories of the old cotton squiracy of the south the South Carolian sometimes recalls in other ways. Heflin of Alabama, of course, was in his usual winter ensemble of voluminous dark cutaway set off with cream colored vest and dark gray trousers; and Copeland of New York, equally of course, appeared in square cut dark blue with the invariable red carnation in his button hole.

Cutaways Remain.

A few of the senators, like Watson of Indiana, Overman of North Carolina, Bruce of Maryland, Asburst of Arizona at times and also Curtis of Kansas are often garbed in the formal cutaway. The rest, however, show preference for business suits as a rule.

Johnson of California has a weakness for dark brown square cuts; Bingham of Connecticut, possibly the tallest man in the senate, and Ashurst, who is just about as tall and wide shouldered, like gray homespun a lot. They tower enormously when thus dressed.

Warren of Wyoming, oldest of them all, is almost invariably clad in a long black of almost frock-coat appearance. The starred blue of his Congressional Medal of Honor buttons, won during the Civil war, is always in his lapel and now and then a tie of startling red relieves the grave dignity of his costume.

The latest comer to the senate, Burton of Ohio, back from the house for the second time in his career, is a recruit to the cutaway squad. You rarely see him dressed otherwise.

we perish! and our only trust and hope is in Thee.

Most of us occupy a little boat on life's voyage. At times it seems very frail and inadequate for the storms that overtake us. We may shout into the storm and it does not heed, and cry unto the waves and they do but rage the more. The only safety is in the presence of Jesus Christ. The only safety is in following the course which He has marked for His people. It was not superior seamanship which sailed the little boats that night, but the presence of the Master to whom their thoughts were continually turning. Jesus will not take the storms out of our lives, for they are necessary for our development and for the strengthening of our faith, but He will bring us through in safety after the night of storm to a more glorious morning. "There was a great calm." It reads like the story of creation in its majesty of power. One day the Master will come to us and speak peace to the tumult and turmoil of living and then will follow the calm and peace of eternity.

Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly
While the tempest still is high;
Hide me, O my Saviour, hide,
Till the storm of life is past;
Safe into the haven guide:
O, receive my soul at last!

YOUR HEALTH

GOITERS ARE OF THREE TYPES

By Frank H. Lahey, M. D., Boston

The term goiter is used to indicate an enlargement of the thyroid gland. It should not be presumed, however, that all goiters are alike, either as to appearance or as to symptoms. For practical purposes, goiters may be divided into three groups, each of which possesses possibilities of various modifications.

The first group, the endemic goiter, is strongly suspected today of being the result of an insufficient amount of iodine in the water of the goiter belt region. As the result of the practical demonstration by Marine and Kimball on the school children of Akron, O., of the beneficial effects of iodine in preventing endemic goiter, there is little question as to the value of iodine given in small doses as a preventive of goiter in the regions where endemic goiter is prevalent.

It should be realized, however, that while iodine is of value in this type of goiter, it is in all probability harmful in the second group, the tumor of the thyroid gland, or so-called adenoma. When one appreciates that these two types at times closely simulate each other in appearance, it is at once evident as all-important that iodine should not be taken except under the advice of a physician who has first determined that the type of goiter is one that will be benefited and not injured by the taking of iodine. The best treatment of the goiter that occurs in the so-called goiter belts is the preventive use of iodine in the children, under a physician's supervision, so that it does not occur.

The second group of goiters, the tumors or adenomas of the thyroid gland, are in the beginning benign, non-malignant, true tumors. They are not cancers. Frequently they exist for years without symptoms, but it is in this group that 90 per cent of cancerous goiter appears. Cancer occurs in this group probably in from 2 to 3 per cent of the cases, and since cancer here, when once developed, is frequently quite hopeless from the point of view of surgical removal, it is obvious that this type of goiter should be removed surgically, certainly in all individuals of 30 or over.

The third type of goiter, the so-called exophthalmic goiter, or poisoning or toxic goiter, is the type with which rapid action of the heart is so constantly associated. This rapid heart-beat is due to the effect of the excessive or altered secretion, which is made by the diseased or at least altered thyroid gland associated with this condition. This same poison arising in the abnormal thyroid gland of this condition also causes nervousness, tremor, and often—but not always—a prominence of the eyes, which is called exophthalmos. Associated with this poisoning frequently there is loss of weight in spite of a good food intake, muscle weakness, tremor, an increased feeling of heat, and an irritability of disposition. Such symptoms should lead one to consult a physician immediately and steps should be undertaken at once to restore the thyroid gland to such a state that it does not put forth this poisonous secretion into the circulation; or to remove enough of the thyroid gland so that an excess of secretion cannot be manufactured. The methods employed to accomplish this are rest, radium, X-ray and surgical removal of four-fifths to five-sixths of the thyroid gland. Of these methods, surgical removal is most certain today in the hands of experts, and there are many such now throughout the country. The risk of operation in such hands is quite low. It should be realized, however, that this is not an operation for those inexperienced with this condition.

IN DAY'S NEWS

NATIVE CUSTOMS DYING IN NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand, that far away group of islands of Australasia, has its sociological problems like Europe and America as is evidenced by the heated contest against prohibition that attended the recent elections there. Press dispatches relative to the election reveal that political science is a game which the New Zealanders play with the same finesse as older nations of the earth.

"Doubtless there are some Americans who still picture New Zealand as a rather primitive country with its tattooed Maoris much in evidence," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"But modern New Zealand is just as modern as Main street and as prosaic to the adventurously inclined. True the Maori is still in New Zealand but his number is sadly depleted and he is much changed. The warrior of today has forsaken his war canoe for a motorboat and his tribal wars for lawsuits. The Maori woman has replaced her ceremonial cloak of kiwi feathers with the sophisticated garb of the European and even the famous haka and poi dances threaten to disappear before the onslaught of modernity.

"It is only among the elders of the tribes who stay within the confines of their 'pas' or settlements, that the customs of the past have been retained. Even these are modified through unavoidable contact with the paheka, the white man.

"One old custom, strange to western eyes, is that of 'hongi,' nose rubbing. Among the Maoris this dispensed with kissing and handshaking. Another custom, forsworn by the youngers, is the tattooing of faces. In former days the well-dressed Maori had his face chiselled in artistic designs, and the lines filled in with blue pigment. Patches of black around his eyes gave a final touch of swagger. The young women of the past understood that tattooing of the lips and chin greatly enhanced their appeal.

"While intermarriage between whites and Polynesians is generally frowned upon no great censure attaches to the white New Zealander who takes a Maori wife or husband. The better class natives occupy much the same status as the whites. There are Maori members of parliament and Maori doctors and lawyers, plumbers and grocers.

"The Maori are gradually being assimilated into the civilization of the overwhelmingly larger white population. In the cities they drive the same kinds of cars, go to the same churches, see the same movies and receive the same radio programs as do the English-born New Zealanders."

Stories That Recall Others

Big and Little

Joyce, age three, was looking in a magazine. She came to a picture of two airplanes, one bigger than the other. Calling to her mother she said: "Oh, mother, come and look! Here is a big Lindy and a little Lindy."

Won and Lost

In the recent political campaign a business man bet profuse on the outcome of the election and consequently won an aggregate sum of approximately $400.

The man appeared at his office the day following election, smiling happily, but a few moments later was seen recklessly searching through the contents of his desk with a scowl on his face growing more intense as his efforts to find something proved futile.

It developed that he had lost nearly all of his notations on his bets and could collect only $65.

SOLDIER'S THEFT CASE CONTINUED FOR A DAY

In order that the state may summon more witnesses, the theft case against Leslie A. Howard, 34, of No. 7 Potter Place, was continued until this (Saturday) morning after Howard had entered a plea of not guilty in the city court Friday morning. Howard who is a sergeant in Battery B., 192nd. Artillery, is charged with having in his possession an army revolver alleged to have been stolen from the armory in 1924. He also faces a charge of attempting to force his way into one of the company rooms at the armory December 24th last.

Witnesses are to be summoned, it is understood, in an effort to identify Howard as the man who was attempting to enter one of the rooms at the armory Christmas eve. In addition to the revolver found at Howard's home another revolver, claimed to be the property of Sergt. George Malcolm, caretaker at the armory, was also found. There has been considerable thievery at the armory the past few years. Army supplies and in some instances, cash have been taken.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE FOR SEWAGE DISPOSAL

Recommendation of an appropriation of $65,000 for sewage disposal at Norwich state hospital is included in the estimated capital outlay program drawn up for the state board of finance and control and there is also a recommendation for $150 000 for sewage disposal facilities now inadequate for the needs of the institution and obligations which is assumed in exchange for a right of way. The report also asks $35 000 for sewage disposal for the Seaside sanatorium at Niantic.

Seaside sanatorium, focus of the McCook case in which the state seeks to condemn land as a site for a new infirmary building figure again in the budget with a recommended appropriation of $75,000 for this infirmary, it having been found that the $100 000 appropriated in 1923 and renewed in 1927 is not adequate for the construction of the proposed infirmary in the event the state succeeds in getting the land.

Other items in the report include Mansfield State Training School and Hospital, nower house and laundry additions, $177,000; State Farm for Women, industrial building, $75,000; administration building, $30,000; Long Lane Farm, three cottages and equipment, $159,100; Connecticut Agricultural college, laboratory, $46,520.

RECTOR OF GRACE CHURCH DID SERVICE OVERSEAS

Members of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, are greatly interested in the coming of their new rector, Rev. Robert H. Parkes. He is 37, is married and has three children. He was graduated in arts with a master's degree; graduated from United Theological college of Montreal, Canada, also from Cambridge Theological school, Cambridge, Mass. In 1915 he went to France with the Second Canadian division, returning in 1919 from Germany. He spent a year in college in England. Before entering the work of the church in the United States he was actively engaged in the United Church of Canada. He was ordained to the Episcopal priesthood by Bishop Slattery, Dec. 12.

He expects to take up the work at Yantic, Sunday, Jan. 13. Rev. Mr. Parkes studied for a medical missionary, but was induced by Bishop Slattery to enter the priesthood. He has been filling the pulpit at Rockport in the absence of the regular rector.

YOUNG SHARPSHOOTER IS DEPRIVED OF RIFLE

At a session of the juvenile court which was held Friday morning two East Side boys were presented for shooting at windows on Hinckley hill last Saturday with a 22 calibre rifle. One of the boys has been a persistent offender in this respect as this was the third or fourth time that he had been in trouble with his rifle.

The rifle has now been taken away from him and put in the hands of the police department and the boys are on probation, their parents having agreed to pay for the windows that were broken.

OIL BURNER EXPLODED IN PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

An oil burner in the new parochial school at Jewett City blew up with terrific force Thursday morning about 8 o'clock. The heater was reported to have been blown to pieces. Friday that part of the building where the oil burner was contained was boarded up.

For His 32nd Birthday

A birthday party was given New Year's eve for Harry Richmond of 61 Boswell avenue in observance of his 32nd birthday. About 14 guests were present. Miss Marjorie Lavarge sang many of the popular songs and danced the varsity drag and the black bottom, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Richmond at the piano. Miss Elizabeth Morrison played "Sonny Boy" on the violin and refreshments were served by Mrs. Richmond, assisted by Miss Lavarge. The party stayed to see the old year out and the new year in.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richmond, Mrs. George Richmond, Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison, Miss Ann O'Hara, Mrs. Rebecca Morrison, Mrs. Jack Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Miss Marjorie Lavarge, Miss Clara Richmond and Miss Mary McCune.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Beatrice Leonard, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William T. Leonard, of Julian street, is home from Wheaton college until Sunday.

William Allyn Geer is at his home on Washington street during the holidays at Yale.

Walter S. Camp, Frisbie Mitchell, Edmund B. and Durstan Perkins and John K. Tingley have been guests at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, during the week.

Miss Mary G. Osgood and Miss Marthat L. Osgood have been passing a fortnight at Atlantic City, guests at Haddon Hall. Miss Mabel S. Webb spent a portion of the holiday vacation with them.

Mrs. Frederick E. Godfrey, of Orlando, Florida, entertained with a dinner for fourteen, New Year's eve, in honor of her daughter's guest, Miss Elizabeth E. Johnson, of Lincoln avenue, the date being Miss Johnson's birthday. Later, all went to the Rosalind club's ball. Miss Gregory and Miss Johnson are juniors at Wheaton college.

Miss Ruth Cotter, of Hartford and Neptune park entertained for several holiday dances Miss Helene Crawford, of Norwich.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT MILL MEN ELECT OCCUM MAN PRESIDENT

The Eastern Connecticut Mill association held its sixth annual meeting Friday evening in Ponemah hall, Taftville, with an attendance of 125, opening the meeting with a business session and closing with an entertainment and refreshments.

President Roy Bennett of Moosup welcomed the gathering and introduced the speakers. The principal address was by Harold W. Horton of the Woonsocket Machine & Press company, who spoke upon the topic, Single Process Pickers, giving a very instructive and entertaining talk along practical lines in connection with this comparatively new development in cotton manufacturing, as the machine has been perfected for only about a year. Others to speak were F. B. Ricketson, agent of the Ponemah mills, Taftville, Fred L. Babcock of Boston, who is known as the father of the association, and George Doulston of Boston, who is known as the father of the association, and George Doulston of Boston, who was also song leader for the meeting.

In the election of officers A. R. Boutilier of the Totokett mill, Occum, was elected president, and five vice presidents were elected as follows: Harry E. Prentice, Taftville; James J. Brady, superintendent of the Hygienic Fibre Co., Versailles; Alfred Linderson, of the Ponemah mill, Taftville; Samuel Truesdale, of the Ninigret Co., Jewett City and Milton Duxbury, of Aldrich Bros., Moosup. Prentice W. Chase of Jewett City was re-elected secretary and treasurer for his fifth term.

It was voted to have the executive committee take into consideration the question of holding another textile products show. There are 24 mills now affiliated with the association.

In the entertainment part of the evening there were solos by James B. Jackson and Arthur R. Blackledge, with an enjoyable programme of popular music provided by the Colonials, a new local orchestra under the direction of G Herbert Rich, late violinist with the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, Baltimore, Md. This was the first appearance of the new orchestra in a programme locally.

Chowder, ice cream, cake and coffee were served under direction of the local committee of arrangements which comprised Alfred Linderson chairman, Harry E. Prentice and John D. Sharples.

FORMER NOANK MAN WRITES FROM MOBILE

A former Noank correspondent for The Norwich Morning Bulletin, Stretch Morrison, who is now working in the largest paper mill in the world, at Mobile, Ala., writes the following letter to The Bulletin, in which he tells of the southern city and of his experiences there.

Mobile, Ala.
December 31, 1928

Since I am about 1,400 miles away from the Nutmeg state, known as the good old Connecticut, way down in Mobile, I thought that the readers would like to hear from an old time writer of The Bulletin, while they are having their coffee and toast some fine winter morning. This state is called south and Mobile is a little seaport on the Gulf of Mexico with many pretty buildings and plenty of horses and all kinds of Lizzie autos made by that good old fellow Henry Ford. The trees are all green and the white roses are looking at the sun with a smile in the yards on the main street. They said that "we have all sunshine here in the winter." Several mornings one fourth inch ice was on the ponds and there were several heavy frosts. The wind blew from the south and the heavy coats were taken from the cedar bags as the men were shaking like a dog after a flea. The temperature read 14 above and if they were standing on Franklin square in the city, known as the Rose of New England, they would have four overcoats on. I did not mind the weather; only laughed at them. One old resident who saw the first ferryboat come into Mobile said the lowest he ever saw the glass was 9 above and that was when General Lee took the city hall away from the mayor and when hoop skirts were in style Three real hot days last week, but could not sleep under a palm tree in your night shirt.

Many funny stories I can tell when I reach Connecticut and could speak at the Lions club in Norwich and make a real Billy Sunday. Has not been a real newspaper here that can touch The Bulletin and I sure do miss telling about The Aunt Sarah Peabody club. Saw a Bulletin the other day and it was like a new pair of shoes for me to have it and see the good news.

I am working at a paper mill that is the largest in the world. One building is 1,400 feet long with about 1,000 men working. It is about eight miles out of the city. The milkman comes in the morning, is a fellow with a long rope on a cow and sings that song, Here I Am the Milkman From Prichard. He will milk the cow and if you have not the money, no milk. It is funny.

Saw an owl come from behind a building, going like Lindy flew to Paris at full speed and knocked a fellow's hat off and he fainted away until a water boy at the mill got a pan of water and threw it on him, chasing the owl with clubs and knives, but could not catch it. They said an owl could not see, but it had Mobile eyes and knew its onions. The owl had a wing spread of 3 1-2 feet.

Saw a fellow with a straw hat that his father used in the Civil war with Honest Abe Lincoln and would not take $100 for it.

I miss those chicken pie suppers in Ledyard and almost hear Prof. George Tinkham say at a district meeting of the American Legion, held monthly, "swing them heavy on the corners."

Was talking to a minister, who is a water boy at the paper mill until the sun shines on both sides of the fence, so he can take his banjo and claw hammer coat and go from town to town and preach to the people and sing them Alabama songs. He has been to California, in 1920, and found that over 2,000 people in one place attended his meetings. He is known as a preacher and studies by candlelight, reading his books to get a good start on the road.

The picture shows in town are six and many of the movies have been in Norwich months ago. When the people in Norwich were gathering around the Christmas trees and the children seeing what Santa left in their socks, it was Fourth of July in Mobile, where the noise was worse than the World war and skyrockets were seen by the people miles away.

It is a pretty place with everything green and in bloom, but I can see where good old Connecticut is the best place after all. They say when a fellow gets in with a crowd good times are in sight, but they never heard of the square sets where the oldtimers can lose their third wind, the women and girls use orange powder and many times it looks as if they have the yellow fever.

I hope that the readers of The Bulletin will enjoy this story from the fellow who formed the Aunt Sarah Peabody club in the fishing village of Noank. Wishing all a happy New Year.

CHRISTMAS SOCIAL FOR LOYAL CIRCLE MEMBERS

GUN PATENT OBTAINED BY JOHN J. MURPHY

John J. Murphy of 142 Broadway who has obtained a number of patents, has recently secured a patent for automatic ejector for double barrelled shot guns under which the Davis-Warner Arms corporation of this city has been and now is manufacturing the guns. The patent was granted to Mr. Murphy on Nov. 27.

A description of the invention is given in the patent papers in part as follows:

This invention relates to guns and more particularly to shot guns of either the single or double barrel type.

The object of the invention is to improve upon the construction of medium priced shot guns by rendering them more easily assembled and dismantled, more rugged in construction and more efficient in operation.

An important feature of the invention resides in a fore-end iron of novel construction and housing ejector mechanism adapted to be concealed by the fore-end wooden part which in accordance with this invention is secured to the fore-end iron by means of a convenient screw or screws which firmly secures the wood to the fore-end iron in such manner as to preclude the inadventent displacement of the wooden part.

Another feature of the invention is inherent in improved cocking bolt and lever construction, so constituted as to more efficiently operate the T-bar and to furthermore permit the gun to be fired and shells extracted should the fore-end be lost or removed from the gun.

Of particular importance, however, is the utilization of an extension of the main spring follower or followers for the purpose of operating a cam or cams in such manner that when the gun is fired ejector mechanism will be so conditioned that upon a subsequent "breaking" of the gun, the shells will be forcibly ejected and thrown free from the breeches of the barrels. As stated, the ejector mechanism is housed within the fore-end iron, and, in practice, is preferably held in retracted energized condition by means of a sear or sears, which when the gun is fired, are operated upon by the extension of the follower to release the ejector mechanism for operation, but in accordance with this invention, said mechanism is further held in restraint until the gun is broken and the barrel or barrels tilted into a predetermined angular relation with the action frame, whereupon the ejector mechanism is fully released and throws the shells free from the breech.

The gun of this invention, however, embodies the usual extractor horn. The horn is of novel construction and is mounted in a novel and efficient manner.

The present invention also embodies important improvements in the mounting of the top lever and top lever barrel, being more particularly being directed to economy in manufacture and assembly, whereby these parts may be more expeditiously and conveniently mounted and are not so apt to get out of order.

FRENCH COMPOSER TO VISIT AMERICA

PARIS—(AP)—One of France's young master composers, Arthur Honegger, has accepted an invitation to give a series of concerts in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and San Francisco. It will be Honegger's first visit to the United States, but his compositions already have been played there.

France Wants Sons Back.

PARIS—(AP)—Children of the 195,000 French people residing in countries adpoining France will be given a holiday in the homeland this year. To combat the tendency of children living abroad to forget their native land, the Union of French Nationals Abroad intends to bring them back to France at least once a year, in the hope that they will eventually return to stay.

SONNENBERG WINS HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLING TITLE WHEN LEWIS QUITS

BOSTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—"Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, a former Dartmouth football player, who took up professional wrestling less than a year ago, became the champion of the world here tonight when Ed "Strangler" Lewis was disqualified for refusing to return to the ring.

Lewis had been butted seven times in rapid succession by Sonnenberg and each time he crawled or fell outside of the ropes to escape from the challenger's "flying tackle." Referee Leon Burbank warned Lewis each time he went outside and finally started to count on him. After the seventh butt, Lewis failed to step back before the count of ten and Burbank awarded the decision to Sonnenberg.

A crowd of 20,000, which taxed the Boston Garden to its capacity, received the decision enthusiastically and tendered Sonnenberg a wild ovation when he left the ring.

Sonnenberg gained the first fall with his "flying tackle" after working on Lewis for 29 minutes and 43 seconds. He pinned the champion's shoulders to the mat after breaking four vicious headlocks which the latter applied in rapid succession.

Up to that point Lewis had carefully avoided offering his abdomen as a target for Sonnenberg's butting. When the latter broke the fourth headlock, Lewis stood upright, regained his breath, and before he had a chance to step back or aside, Sonnenberg sprang.

Sonnenberg butted his stomach viciously and, as Lewis squirmed in agony, grabbed him by both legs and spilled him to the mat. He had Lewis' shoulders touching before the champion could make a defensive move.

Previous to this fall, Lewis indicated that he intended to try to retain his title by downing the challenger with his famous headlock. He circled about Sonnenberg, stepping sideways with an arm guarding his middle, and tried to work this hold at every opportunity.

Sonnenberg tried all his other holds during the early stages of the match and set himself to launch his "flying tackle" when the champion broke the others. When his chance came he appeared in distress from the frightful pressure which Lewis had applied to his head.

His actions evidently deceived Lewis, who then gave him his first opportunity to use his butting and tripping tactics.

When the wrestlers returned to the ring after their rest period, Lewis was extremely cautious. He pawed with Sonnenberg for fully five minutes and then tripped the challenger to the mat, where he applied a headlock. Sonnenberg freed himself with a desperate squirm and got an arm lock on the champion.

Sonnenberg tried a headlock and then another armlock before starting his butting attack. The first butt, which struck Lewis in the pit of the stomach, knocked him out of the ring. As he stepped back, Sonnenberg met him with another butt and Lewis crawled out of the ropes.

This action was repeated five times more before the referee counted the champion out. After the referee raised Sonnenberg's arm as a gesture of victor, Paul Bowser, promoter of the title bout, came into the ring to present him with the bejewelled championship belt awarded to Lewis when he defeated Joe Stecher for the title two years ago and which he posted as a forfeit for his defeat.

In the other bouts on the championship card Bob McCoy, a former Holy Cross football and baseball player, downed Sam Skorsky, of Chelsea, in eight minutes and twenty seconds, with a body slam and crotch hold. Stanley Stasiak, of Poland, defeated Tommy Draak, of Holland, with a half nelson and crotch hold in 21 minutes and three seconds. Fred Myers, of Chicago, and Howard Cantowine, of the University of Iowa, struggled without a fall for thirty minutes and Dan Koloff, Sonnenberg's training partner, overcame George Walker, of Canada, in 26 minutes and 50 second with a reverse crotch hold.

BEAUREGARD KNOCKS OUT ABBOBO IN THIRD ROUND

HARTFORD, Jan. 4—(AP)—In the feature bout at Foot Guard hall tonight scheduled for ten rounds, Bat Battalino, Hartford, featherweight, knocked out Ralph Nischo, New York, in less than a minute of fighting in the first round. A left hook sent Nischo to the ropes where Bat caught him in a corner and sent him down with a right to the jaw for a count of nine. After he was up Bat sprung at him and crossed a right that finished him. Both boys weighed 126 1-4. Results of other bouts:

Homer Thibeault, Holyoke, 130 1-4, won a four round decision over Al Annone, Springfield, 129 1-2; Nick Cariaty, Bristol, 128 1-4, won a four round decision over Jimmy Couch, New Haven, 127 1-4; Joe Sawlowki, Holyoke, 163, won a four round decision over Hy Diamond, Hartford, 159 1-2; Vic Carlson, Terryville, 178 1-4, knocked out Lou Carmel, Holyoke, 177, in the third round of a four round bout. Al Beauregard, Taftville, 116 1-4, won on a technical knockout in the third round over Tommy Abbobo, New York, 112 3-4, in the semi-final bout which was scheduled for eight rounds.

WILLIAMS' LONG BASKET WINS FOR DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 4—In another one of those exciting games without a dull moment from the start, the Danielson Town team in the last minute of play defeated the Fitchburg team 39 to 38 in Town hall tonight. At the first part of the game it looked as though Danielson would have a walk-away as after the first ten minutes of play they were in the lead, 14 to 4. But Fitchburg very soon got organized and tied the score and then ended the half 18 to 16 in their favor after a spurt of wonderful passwork and shooting.

The second half opened in whirlwind style and Danielson soon tied the score at 18-all and for five minutes the teams were in a tie. For the remainder of the game the score seesawed back and forth until the last minute of play with the score 38-37, when Pop Williams came through with one of his almost impossible shots, winning the game for Danielson by one point. It is really impossible to describe the brilliant plays of the team throughout the entire game and especially during the last half, as they were playing in top-notch form and making almost impossible shots, many being three-quarters the length of the ball. Pop Williams played his usual sensational game in passing, in shooting and excelling in his all-around floor work. Gallup, former Worcester Tech star, had a big night, making 17 points, most being of the sensational type. Poirier and Armington were the other stars for Danielson, the latter playing a wonderful offensive game and the former a fine defensive game, holding his man, a former Boston college star, scoreless for the last half. The remainder played a very neat game, while the honors of the opposing team were equally divided. Brundage refereed. Next week the Clinton German five, champions of Western Massachusetts, will play here. The summary:

KILLINGLY HIGH TAKES OVER WOODSTOCK FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 4—The Killingly five won over Woodstock academy at the new Woodstock gym tonight by the score of 22 to 16. The encounter was thrilling throughout, with both teams displaying some mean passwork. Young of the Red and White aggregation, started the ball rolling with the first basket and from then on both teams played on even terms with the half ending with the score of 8 to 8.

In the third quarter Killingly opened up a barrage which set them six points ahead of their rivals in about a minute. Woodstock tried to muster a rally but Killingly continued to hold the lead until the final whistle.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

High school sports in New London are expected to take on a new lease of life when Bulkeley and Chapman Tech start playing each other again in September.

The Y gave a basketball game for nothing New Year's night and still could draw but a handful.

Outside of the Academy, there isn't a basketball team in the city that can draw even a fair crowd for its games.

It begins to look like the natives don't care for the sport, as of yore.

GREENKEEPERS HOLD AN OFFICIAL SESSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—A golf convention at which no mention was made nor thought given to awarding of championships was held today when the green section of the United States Golf association met in annual session. Greenkeepers and their assistants joined club officials in discussing the latest discoveries of turf diseases and results of experiments affecting maintenance problems.

Several papers dealing with greenkeeping were illustrated with motion pictures. As a result of today's meeting, which will be continued tomorrow, many greens will be made better if not bigger.

Findlay S. Douglas, New York, who tomorrow will be elected president of the United States Golf association, presided at two sessions held today.

TWO GAMES AT Y GYM FOR THIS EVENING

At the Y. M. C. A. gym this evening two games are slated, one at 7 o'clock and the other at 8 o'clock. The first game brings together the Taftville Whirlwinds and the Y Emps, while in the other game the C. F. C. team will clash with the Peerless Finishers of the U. S. Finishing Co.

The C. F. C. team will use its strongest lineup as the Finishers are reputed to have rounded up a fast quintet of basket-tossers with Lefty Dugas and Walter Dabrowski as the leaders. The C. F. C. will form its team from Brown, Lambert, Pingree, Leffingwell, Pitt, Ludlow, Armstrong and Neil.

JIMMY QUINN WINS ALL HIS BOUTS AT PROVIDENCE

Jimmy Quinn, local amateur featherweight, had a big night at the Arcadia arena at Providence last night when he won three bouts, two by knockouts and the third by a decision. In the first bout he flattened Tony Konaro of Taunton in the first round and in the second round he outpointed Frank Harrington of Providence. His third bout was with Johnny Sylvester of Lynn whom he sent down for the count in the second round.

MULDOON CONSIDERS DEMPSEY AS THE PRESENT HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP

By EDWARD J. NEIL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Whether or not Jack Dempsey fights again he is the heavyweight champion of the world now, so far as William Muldoon, veteran New York boxing commissioner, is concerned.

The once famous "solid man," now 83 and snowy-headed, but still a muscular mountain, is one of the sponsors of the Muldoon-Tunney trophy to be awarded the successor of the retired titleholder. He was Gene Tunney's firm friend and advisor during the difficult days when the big marine strove first to win and then to hold the heavyweight crown. Several times he stepped into Dempsey's controversies with the athletic commission to aid in disciplining the old Manassa Mauler, then king of the boxing realm.

But now Muldoon sponsors Dempsey. Today he named Jack one of the greatest athletes in the history of the ring, deplored the improper training and poor handling that had been his lot, scored the famous "long count" at Chicago, and offered his conviction that Dempsey, at 34, still has one of his greatest fights left in his system.

For the reason that he stands out above all the best of the field now, with Tunney retired, Muldoon regards Dempsey as the logical possessor now of the title he once held without the slightest dispute. In other words Dempsey must be beaten by any heavyweight who desires to reach the top.

"Dempsey," he said, "needs no long vigorous training grind to prepare him for the ring again. He needs only to build up a great reserve of nervous energy by careful training. His legs went back on him in the match with Tunney at Chicago because he had trained too long and too hard. He was prepared then as though for a finish match of the old days, rather than a ten-round bout.

"The former champion, at 34, is not too old for the ring. He has never dissipated to any great extent, has always trained lightly and kept in condition as a gentleman should, and is not overweight. He needs no long conditioning but he does need proper handling.

"Never has Dempsey been properly handled in his big matches. The day he won the championship from Jess Willard in 1919 at Toledo, Jack was wretchedly handled and ever since then has shown nervousness and excitement in his corner. Naturally he has been unable to do his best under those conditions. Still he knocked out Jack Sharkey when Sharkey, for two rounds, was a truly great fighter, and twice he stayed ten rounds with Tunney.

"Someone with foresight in Dempsey's corner at Chicago might have won the title back for him when Tunney went down in the seventh round. Before the bout ever started, one man should have told Dempsey:

"'When Tunney goes down, listen for my voice, look at me, and do only as I say.'

"If that had happened, Dempsey would have been sent to a neutral corner as Tunney was floored. He could have rested there instead of being the center of one of the most exciting moments in ring history. When the referee's count reached eight or nine Jack would have been fresh and ready to finish the fight.

"Dempsey never has had the benefit of such coaching. His seconds lost the smelling salts on him during the Firpo fight. He even stepped over Willard once to get to a corner after knocking him down. There always has been an uproar behind him.

"No one can tell, of course, what Tunney would have done at Chicago if the count over him in the seventh round had been only nine. He might have gotten up all right and he might not. There again Dempsey was the victim.

"I was the originator of the rule that said a boxer, upon scoring a knockdown, must retire to a neutral corner. The rule was picked up by the Illinois state athletic commission and incorporated in its code. Provision for the count was clear, however, and the referee's duty, after seeing that the boxer on his feet had retired properly, was to pick up the timekeeper's count, not start all over again."

MASSIE MILLER, LOCAL PRO, TIED FOR 5TH PLACE WITH FARRELL AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4—(AP)—Gene Sarazen is still leading the pack on the Miami golf courses. The brilliant little shot maker from New York, winner of the Miami and Miami Beach opens last year, turned in two cards of 73 today at the Municipal links to lead the field by two strokes in the first 36 holes of the annual Miami open.

Close behind were Jock Hutchison, who led the field at noon, and Charley Mayo, Jacksonville pro, each with 148 for the two rounds. George Christ turned in 149 and Joe Turnesa, New York pro, 150.

Johnny Farrell, national open champion, starts tomorrow morning's round five strokes back of Sarazen. Farrell's putts wouldn't drop and he had to take 151. Massie Miller, Norwich, Conn., had a card of 151 to match Farrell.

Up in the higher scores were the rest of the field, following a day of high winds, showers and fading hopes. To cap the climax of a hectic day, Willie Klein of the La Gorce course at Miami Beach, hooked a drive into the top of a palm tree and it never did come down.

The ten leading scorers:

Sarazen	36-37—73	37-36—73	—146
Hutchison	37-35—72	37-39—76	—148
Mayo	37-39—76	35-37—72	—148

Turnesa	38-35—73	40-37—77	—150
Farrell	38-38—76	37-38—75	—151
Miller	35-40—75	38-38—76	—151
Williams	36-39—75	39-39—78	—153

AGGIES OPEN TONIGHT WITH PENN STATE TEACHERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 4—Pennsylvania State Teachers' college quintet will fill one side of the bill Saturday evening when the Connecticut Aggies open the 1929 court season in the Hawley armory. Not only will the meeting be the initial contest of the year for the Nutmeggers but also the first game between the two colleges. The teachers were taken on to fill an open date after the schedule had been announced.

Very little comparative information can be had regarding the ability of the visitors here tomorrow evening but it is apparent from previous records that the Aggies are in for a strenuous opening battle. Coach Louis A. Alexander will use his first string quintet right from the start.

However bright the prospects for a banner season were at the early time of practice drills, the chances of the Nutmeggers received one severe blow recently when it was learned that Captain Schildgren would be out for the season. Besides Ray Ryan, the Nutmeg leader was the only member of last year's squad that remained for this winter. The injury has meant a complete revival of the guard positions in particular. This in turn caused some alterations on the rest of the berths. Leo Duffy of Hartford was shifted from a forward possibility to guard. Duffy showed up well in scrimmages this week and should work out well with Ostering, also of Hartford. These two men will take the floor at the start of the opening contest.

Chubbuck will play the jump position and will be the only sophomore starting the contest. He has developed rapidly with the varsity men and because of his height, makes a formidable offensive and defensive man. At the forwards, Ray Ryan and Lamoureux will receive the call. Ryan, who is the only veteran of last year's quintet, will be acting captain for the fray. He will continue in that capacity during the whole season if necessary. Lamoureux, the other forward, is a veteran of last year in which time he made his letter but did not play regular. The former Hartford high hooper has developed greatly since his advent at the state college and should perform well Saturday evening.

The Nutmeg mentor will have in reserve Dall, Matzkin and Dragat, guards; Darrow and Glennon, forwards, and McCombe, center. Dall is a member of the basketball squad for the past two years and should see a great deal of action during the course of court events at the state college.

The contest will start at 8 in the evening, as will all home games during the entire season.

CROSBY-MANCHESTER GAME OFF BECAUSE OF FLU

MANCHESTER, Jan. 4—(AP)—The basketball game scheduled tonight between Crosby high of Waterbury and Manchester high, was postponed indefinitely because of a wave of sickness in this town, which affected four regular members of the team beside the coach. The malady, described as grip and influenza, kept 112 of the 860 pupils in the high school at home today and attacked 122 workers in the silk mills.

Y SENIORS PLAY AT FISHERS ISLAND TONIGHT

The Y. M. C. A. Senior team goes to Fishers Island this evening, where the fast Pirates quintet will be met at the high school gymnasium floor. The Seniors will be minus two of their stars in Brown and Pingree, who are playing with the C. F. C. team. However, the Y team will be in good trim, as two other strong players will be added to the lineup. The members of the Seniors are urged to call the Y. M. C. A. this morning.

WINDHAM HIGH WINS EASILY FROM ROCKVILLE

At the state armory in Willimantic last night Windham high opened its interscholastic basketball season with a 40 to 19 victory over the Rockville High quintet. The star of the game was Arthur Meikle Windham forward, who registered eight field baskets and one foul goal for a total of 17 points. The second teams of the respective schools played in the preliminary with Windham winning 16 to 9.

Benton Signs Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Larry Benton, leading pitcher of the National league in games won and lost, today won the honor of being the first player on the Giants to sign for 1929. The pitcher returned his contract by return mail. The New York club officials followed the usual baseball practice of keeping contract figures secret but it was understood that the pitcher was given a substantial reward for his good work last season.

Veteran Levinsky Wins.

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 4—(AP)—Battling Levinsky, former light heavyweight champion won a ten round decision over Pietro Corri of Austria, in a fast battle here tonight, featuring the Puritan A. C. program. The 42 year old veteran of more than 200 battles which included fights with three champions, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and Georges Carpentier, was too clever for the Austrian despite a 22 pound weight advantage. Corri weighed 203 1-2 pounds as against 158 for Levinsky

BASKETBALL TALK

Arthur (Pop) Williams is playing a nice game for the New Britain Guards, claimants of the 1928 state title. The Danielson boy and former Aggie athlete has been used at a forward position with good results. Spectacular shots seem to be his forte and he has obliged Hardware City fans with a few choice ones.

The Y Emps somehow aren't playing the game this year that they showed a year ago. Probably they haven't hit their stride as yet but somehow the smoth work of last season's quintet is lacking. Probably it is the loss of the two forwards, Dave Tigar and Economous that is hurting this outfit but, to date, they haven't showed anything to get excited about.

It is to be supposed that another Eastern Conn. Intermediate basketball tournament will be held this spring. The affair last March was a success from every standpoint and it is to be hoped that the local Y can again see fit to back a tourney. Norwich situated about in the heart of Eastern Connecticut, seems to be the ideal place.

In the distance local fans can see the annual city title series. For the past two seasons it has been the C. F. C. and Academy that have done the battling for these mythical honors. This year a change in the order of things looms. The Academy has the championship by virtue of its double victory over the Baptists last spring so the Wildcats will of necessity have to be included in the arrangements. Therefore, a lively tussle is promised between the city's other teams, Y Seniors and C. F. C., for the role of challenger. The Academy has a series of games scheduled with the Y, and from the way it looks the Y will win.

It would present quite a problem for Les Pingree and Aubrey Brown should the Y Seniors and C. F. C. managers decide to have a game. These two boys do their playing for both teams and therefore would probably have to do a lot of scratching to effect a solution to this problem. Again, however, between these teams the Y looks better.

Bermuda Golf Reaches Final.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 4—(AP)—Ada MacKenzie of Toronto, former Canadian champion, and 18-year-old Helen Hicks of Hewlett, N. Y., will meet tomorrow in the final of the Bermuda Ladies' Golf championship at the Reddell's Bay club. In one of the biggest upsets golf has seen in a long time, Miss Hicks defeated Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., holder of the women's metropolitan championship and many other titles, 2 up. Miss MacKenzie defeated Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., 2 and 1. The course was rain drenched.

Belanger Regains Canadian Title

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4—(AP)—Albert (Frency) Belanger regained the Canadian flyweight boxing championship here tonight when he defeated Steve Rocco, the title-holder, in a fast ten round bout. Both men are residents of Toronto, and Belanger once was recognized by the National Boxing association as flyweight champion of the world.

Springfield Hit By Flu.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Two members of the Springfield club of the Canadian-American hockey league, "Yip" Foster and "Scotty" Cawkell were stricken with influenza tonight and were removed to a local hospital. Four other members of the team are suffering from severe colds. The Indians will be badly crippled when they take the ice tomorrow night against Providence.

SCHMELING POUNDS OUT DECISION OVER SEKYRA

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Max Schmeling, black-browed German youngster who bears a marked physical and faint fighting resemblance to Jack Dempsey, gave Joe Sekyra blonde Dayton heavyweight, a thorough ten round trouncing tonight in the main bout at the ailing Tex Rickard's fight mansion. Sekyra weighed 179; Schmeling 184 1-2.

Schmeling, fighting for just the second time in America, treated the midwesterner to a boxing lesson, out-generaled him in every round and did everything but knock him out in the last two rounds Sekyra gamely boxed into a stream of left hands that almost closed one eye, cut his lips, and finally drew a steady flow of blood from his nose. Sekyra kept his feet throughout but was reeling and badly battered at the close.

Rapidly becoming the current sensation of the heavyweights, Schmeling drew steady applause from the 13,531 persons who gathered for the show as he wove in even shiftier, more elusive style than the former heavyweight champion. His left lashed constantly in Sekyra's face and his right, thrown at rare intervals from close to the chest, rocked the Dayton blonde to his shoe tops.

Charley Phil Rosenberg, who retired two years ago as the bantamweight champion, won the decision over Johnny Dundee, former featherweight titleholder, in a slashing ten round semi-final. Dundee had sought the match in a desire to prove that despite his age and eighteen years in the ring he still was able to cope with the topnotchers. He failed, but not by much.

Jack Saunders, 194 of New York, scored a technical knockout over Jack Shaw, 194 1-2 of Union City, N. J., in the third round of a four round preliminary. Joe Oliver, 193 1-2, of New York won a four round decision over Eddie Benson, 185 1-2 of Brooklyn.

B. U. Football Slate.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The Boston university football schedule for 1929, announced today, contained nine games. Tufts, Geneva and Worcester Polytch, were the new teams on the list and Bates and Norwich were dropped.

The following schedule: September 29, Army; October 5, New Hampshire; 12, Vermont; 19, Worcester Polytech; 26, Springfield; November 2, Tufts; 9, Holy Cross; 16, Geneva; 23, Boston college. As in the past all of the B. U. games will be played away from home, the Boston college game being scheduled for Fenway park, the Eagles' home gridiron.

Shea Kayoes Mandell

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—(AP)—Eddie Shea, Worcester featherweight, scored a technical knockout over Tony Mandell, of Boston, in the third round of a 10 round bout at the Coliseum tonight.

Mrs. Fred Forster, 17, of Meriden was ordered held incommunicado by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan yesterday afternoon in connection with the stabbing of her 21-year-old husband, who is in a dying condition at the Meriden hospital.

COUNCILMAN WILSON APPEARS IN ROLE OF EXAMINER IN BRIBERY CASE

BOSTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—Councilman Robert G. Wilson stepped dramatically into the hearing today before the finance commitee, which is investigating charges that a member of the city council sought a bribe to obtain passage of an order to permit Sunday professional sports. Councilman Wilson, whose name was among the 13 which President Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves testified, were given to him as members of a "bloc" who wanted $5,000 each for passing the Sunday sports order, asked and was granted permission to question Edmund P. Cunningham, secretary of the Braves.

Wilson had also figured yesterday in the testimony of Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Braves and president of the Boston Bruins hockey club, who said that an anonymous person whose voice sounded like Wilson's, had called him by telephone and advised him that a group of the councilmen would delay the Sunday sports order "until it had cobwebs on it," unless they received $5,000 apiece. Wilson denied that he made the call.

Secretary Cunningham testified that he had talked with Councilmen Thomas H. Green, Michael Ward and Wilson about the Sunday sports bill before it came before the council and that no mention of money was made to him by any of them. He said that Wilson had declined to commit himself as to how he would vote on the order. When the commission had finished its examination of the witness, Wilson asked to be allowed to ask Cunningham some questions and the commission granted the request.

"Didn't I say that as far as the vote in the council was concerned, the worst you could get was 20 to 2 or 19 to 3?" he asked.

"Yes," Cunningham answered.

In response to further questioning by the councilman, Cuningham testified that Wilson had told him that it would be the usual procedure to table the order.

"Yes," said Cuningham.

The councilman was applauded by the directors when he concluded his questioning by asking Cunningham if he had not told him that he did not care to commit himself by announcement how he would vote on the order when it was brought before the council for final action. Cunningham answered that this was true.

Cunningham was questioned for nearly an hour by John C. L. Dowling, chairman of the commission, and by Joseph P. Walsh, counsel for Councillor William G. Lynch, concerning the Outdoor Recreation league, an organization which sponsored a campaign for the approval of the Sunday sports bill by the voters of Massachusetts.

This line of inquiry was brought into the hearing when Walsh produced a list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation league. The list, which had been filed with the secretary of state, showed contributions totalling $50,000 and when Commissioner Dowling asked him for what purpose he had introduced the list, Walsh replied that he would show that the list was false and that the expenditure of the $20,000 was made by Fuchs.

He asked Cunningham whether he knew of the subscriptions to the league and the Braves secretary replied that he did not. Then Walsh asked him if he was aware that the list was made up to cover expenditures by the Braves and Cunningham replied in the negative.

The attorney then read down the list of contributors, pausing at each name to ask Cunningham whether he knew the person. Cunningham identified a number of the names as those of friends of his or Judge Fuchs, or persons connected with the Boston National league club. Among these were the names of Jack Slattery, former manager of the Braves, Frank Stevens, who Cunningham said, owned the refreshment concession at Braves field, Fuchs himself, Weston Adams, son of Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Braves, Arthur Sheehan, of the Springfield club of the Eastern league, John J. Fahey, of Worcester, Charles F. Adams, George B. Hunt, assistant secretary of the Braves, Charles H. Innes, director of the Braves, James Cunningham, brother of the Braves secretary and Cunningham himself.

Then Walsh asked Cunningham who the president of the Outdoor Recreation league was, and Cunningham gave the name of Claude B. Davidson, who, he said, was also president of the New England league.

"Did you ever see Davidson consult with Fuchs at the Copley Plaza?" Walsh asked.

"Several times," Cuningham replied.

"About the Outdoor Recreation league?"

"No."

"Were you present when the list of contributors was made out?" Walsh asked.

Cunningham hesitated and turned to his counsel, Declan W. Corcoran who entered an objection to the question. After a conference with Corcoran, Walsh withdrew the question.

Commissioner Dowling then asked Cunningham whether he had solicited any contributions to the Outdoor league campaign and Cunningham told him he had. He said he received $500 in cash from his brother, $1,000 in cash from Oscar Horton, a friend of his, and $500 in cash from John Igoe, a business man.

He was asked why he had got the money in cash and he replied that he did not want to have any record of his connection with the league, in view of his position with the Braves. The chairman of the commission then asked him whether he knew where the money he received from these three persons came from, and he replied that he had no knowledge concerning that.

"Did Judge Fuchs ever tell you that he gave them the money?" Commissioner Dowling asked.

"No," replied Cunningham.

Cunningham's testimony took up the entire session today and the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday afternoon. It was expected that Lynch and Carroll will be questioned at that time.

SHELTER ISLAND FISHERMAN DIES AT WATCH HILL LIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 4—Charles Anderson Congdon, 71, who died at 11 o'clock Thursday night at the Watch Hill lighthouse, where he had been visiting for several months with his son and daughter had been in failing health for the past year and a half. He was born at Shelter Island, N. Y., July 4, 1857, and spent his entire life there. He was engaged in the fishing industry. In September he came to visit his son and daughter at Watch Hill. He was a member of the Shelter Island branch of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, also a member of the Presbyterian church of that place. Besides his wife, Clara Harlow Congdon, he is survived by a son, Lawrence H. Congdon, keeper of the Watch Hill Light, and a daughter, Mrs. Carl S. W. Anderson, whose husband also is a keeper of the same light. There are four grandchildren.

Services were held at the lighthouse this afternoon at 3 o'clock conducted by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church. The body will be taken by boat tomorrow from Stonington to Shelter Island and services will be held at his home there Sunday. Burial will be in Shelter Island cemetery.

FOUR SUSPECTS MAY KNOW ABOUT POULTRY THEFTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 4—Poultry keepers in and about Westerly were interested in cases which came before Judge Oliver H. Williams at the Friday morning session of Third District court. The cases were those of Frank Burgess, Joseph Burgess, George R. Smith and Maynard Caswell, who had previously been arraigned in the Third District court on charges of being idle persons and pleaded not guilty. Each changed his plea to nolo and the cases were continued to be called up again at any time at the request of the state. Attorney John Ferguson stated to the court that the four men had been arrested after complaints had been made to the local and state authorities that fowl had been stolen in several places. Although evidence collected by the police seemed to indicate that the defendants were involved, the state did not have sufficient to prove a charge of larceny.

Further investigation, Attorney Ferguson said, showed that the men had no means of employment, with the exception of Smith, who has shown more regard for his family. Counsel stated that the state feels, although the conduct and manner of living of the respondents had not been an aid to society, in consideration of the families it would be a hardship if the men were sent to jail and the town would have to pay for their support.

Judge Williams in continuing the cases warned the four young men that if their conduct is not right in the future they may be brought in on the same complaints.

Other matters were disposed of as follows:

Civil docket. Clarence E. Roche vs. William M. Champlin. Continued one week, although default had been recorded, the case was restored to active docket on statement of Mr. Champlin in court.

Charles H. Gavitt vs. J. A. Guarino. Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci. Oscar Silverman vs. Pasquale Salerano.

Frank C. Fish vs. Henry Beebe. Continued nisi.

GREATER BEAUTY

When the new Superior Whippet was presented to the American public last month, it won the enthusiastic praise of millions who thronged the 6,000 showrooms of Willys-Overland dealers.

The style creation of master designers, the new Superior Whippet introduces beauty of line and color never before associated with Fours and light Sixes. Longer bodies, higher radiator and hood, sweeping one-piece full crown fenders, all contribute to the trim, smart appearance that arouses the admiration of millions throughout the country.

Mechanically, the new Superior Whippet improves upon even its own predecessor. A higher compression engine gives considerably more speed, power and hill-climbing ability. Higher second gear speed gives faster pick-up. And the new car is well qualified to carry on Whippet's unsurpassed reputation for dependable performance and operating economy.

WHIPPET 4 COACH $535

WHIPPET 6 COACH 7-Bearing Crankshaft $695

The Superior Whippet is the only low-priced car with new "Finger-Tip Control"—a single button at the center of the steering wheel, which controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn. The illustrations at the left clearly explain the operation of this fundamental improvement!

See the new Superior Whippet today. An immediate order will aid in early delivery.

The Caraven

(A Thanksgiving Warning)

One upon a midnight breezy,
While I slumbered, quite uneasy,
From the mince pies and the unwise
Feasting of the day before—
While my dizzy brain was wobbling—
Suddenly there came a gobbling.
Then the sound of something hobbling—
Hobbling through my chamber door.
"'Tis that Turkey," thus I dreamed it,
Gobbling at my chamber door:
Only that, and nothing more."

Deep into the darkness peering,
Still I lay there, wondering, fearing:
Oh, that fowl whose fiery eyes
Now burned into my bosom's core!
Not the least obeisance made he;
Not a minute stopped or stayed he;
But, this grim, unsainly ghastly,
Gaunt, and ominous bird of yore
Perched upon my bust and sat there,
Hopping, flopping from the floor—
Perched, and weighed a ton or more.

"Pon my soul 'tis time for parting,
Bird of fiend!" I dreamed, upstarting.
"Get thee back into the ice-box
And this night haunt me no more!
Leave no wishbone as token
That to you I e'er have spoken!
Leave my slumbers all unbroken!—
Quit my chamber I implore!
Take thy beak from out my heart,
And take thy form out through my door!"
Quoth the Turkey, "Nevermore."

"I'll not leave you:—I'll not quit here,
Still I'll sit here, still I'll sit here
Till you answer to my question:—
Now just calmly think this o'er—
Will you ever eat of Turkey,
Stuffed with bread that's spiced by Duckee,
Baked in oven, hot and murky,
As you have so oft before?"
Then my soul by terror driven
From the truth that I adore
Quoth the craven, 'Nevermore!"

The New Leaf

He came to my desk with quivering lip.
The lesson was done
"Have you a new leaf for me, dear Teacher?"
I have spoiled this one!"
I took his leaf, all soiled and blotted,
And gave him a new one, all unspotted,
Then into his tired heart I smiled:
"Do better now, my Child!"

I went to the throne, with trembling heart,
The year was done,
"Have you a New Year for me, dear Master?
I have spoiled this one!"
He took my year, all soiled and blotted,
And gave me a new one, all unspotted,
Then into my tired heart he smiled:
"Do better now, my Child!"

My New Year Kit

Well, my kit is packed. To it I've brought
Worth-while things that the old year wrought;
There's a little wisdom tucked away,
To serve at need on a future day,
And a host of memories, all dear—
A few regrets crept in, I fear—
But my kit is packed, and to it I've Brought
Worth-while things that the old year wrought.

My kit is packed. O, midnight bells,
May your music weld as it throbs and swells
Faith for the days that lie before
With the gold of the hours that are no more:
For old years fade, their cycle done,
But promise lies in the one begun.
So I've packed my kit. I've only brought Worth-while things that the past has wrought.

HOPES FOR BEST YEAR YET.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I have sent in a letter for the Corner page, but have kept up the Corner spirit by reading all the fine letters and attending the meetings. Wish I could write such nice, interesting letters as the other members do. I enjoy reading them each week and do have such fine times at the meetings.

What lovely weather we are having. Seems more like spring than December. Wish it could last through the rest of the winter.

Hope you all enjoyed Christmas day. I did very much.

Juniper: Many thanks for pretty card.

Lotus: Many thanks for your pretty card.

I was well remembered with cards this year. Had 33 and I do love to get them. It is nice to know friends remember you.

Guess Who: I tried your recipe for rose roll and liked it very much. Will have another one soon; it makes a lovely supper dish.

The old year is most gone and we will soon sail out into the new year. Seems so the time just flies by so fast. I hope with luck to pilot and all sails set may we embark on the best year yet.

Wishing you one and all a very happy New Year. Fan Tan (Club No. 4)

USES FOR CAMPHOR GUM

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: A very happy New Year to you all.

I wonder how many of you know the value of camphor gum? A small piece carried upon your person will help you against catching cold from others. Two or three drops in half a glass of water is a great help toward breaking up a cold; also snuff a little up your nose. When going into a crowd where you are closed in with a great many people it is well to put a tiny bit in your mouth. It is a great preventive against disease. If, when you have a cold, you use soft tissue paper and burn it up, it helps to dry the cold up. These are simple remedies, but are a great help.

Yours for a joyous New Year.

CADY.

THANKS FOR PRETTY CALENDAR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: First I wish to thank the one who sent the very pretty calendar. My heart goes to those who at this time have lost their dear ones, especially Ethelyn. I am sure Kitty Lou will be greatly missed. I lost my only sister the 25th of December. It came so sudden as I did not know she was sick.

I wish all a happy and prosperous New Year, if not too late.

Scottie and True Blue: Hope to see you soon. NECIA.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

FAN TAN, CANTERBURY BELL: Many thanks; season's greetings in return.

LORETTA: Change has been made as suggested.

BETTY LOU: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

MY TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Social Corner Editor and Members: Perhaps some of the Corner members would like to hear about my trip to Washington. Left Norwich Nov. 12. We had the most perfect week, warm and sunshine every day. Arrived in New York at 3.45. After dinner went to Roxy theatre, which is a feast to the eyes. There is nothing lacking, even to great bowls filled with choice hothouse flowers. Tuesday morning taxied to boat dock and met our party and entrained for Philadelphia. There were buses awaiting us. That started us on our sightseeing tours, which were many. Went around the city to points of interest and stopped at the U. S. mint, where the United States coins are cast. Then to Liberty hall, where all had a chance to see the Liberty bell.

After lunch we entrained for Washington. Arrived about 5. In the evening we all went to the beautiful library of congress. The beauty of that building is beyond description. Its mural decorations are wonderful. The building consists of a great central rotunda which is the reading room, from which radiate book stacks with its galleries and pavilions, even to a reading room for the blind. One important thing I want to mention is the Declaration of Independence and Constitution enclosed in a niche covered with thick glass, well guarded. Thus these two most treasured state documents are brought to light where all may see them.

Wednesday morning, to bureau of engraving and printing, where the national currency is printed. A very large number of people are employed there, mostly women. Then to the national museums. In the old building is where Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" hangs. That we all know about. It is just inside the main entrance. In this building is where the most wonderful historical collection one could wish to see. There is the gallery of arts, the work of old masters. Especially noteworthy is the series of clay figures displaying the actual costumes of the ladies of the white house and others nationally prominent beginning with Mrs. Washington. The new museum building contains the Theodore Roosevelt collection of African animals. The collection of all groups of animals are among the largest and most valuable to be found in any museum. The Herberium comprises about 1,000,000 specimens.

After lunch we assembled for the trip to Alexandria, Va. There we visited the Masonic lodge room where George Washington presided as worshipful master. The leather covered chair he occupied is enclosed in glass and is used once a year. There are many relics of all kinds and many things of interest in this room. One I must tell you about is a colored crayon portrait of George Washington, bust size, considered the very best likeness. It is encased in a safe-like frame which closes with a thick door about five inches in thickness in the wall. The guide said an offer of $100,000 has been made for it, and the "offer still stands." The clock that was in his room when he died Mrs. Washington presented to the temple. The strings on the weights had been cut when he died at 10.20.

Then on we went to Mt. Vernon, which is on the Virginia side of the Potomac river. The most beautiful site one can imagine, overlooking the river. Went all through house. Everything is very well preserved, kept clean and made to look as if old. The paint in and on the outside of the house from many coats looks like old ivory. There are also many relics here, everything one can imagine. An old spinning wheel, loom, wearing apparel, jewelry, beautiful paintings, even to a snuffbox. We had a group photograph taken on the lawn in front of the mansion.

In the evening went to Ford's theatre. Thursday morning again we assembled for the ride to Arlington cemetery. This we can never forget. There is the beautiful tomb of the Unknown soldier, the memorial amphitheatre, a really beautiful piece of work, and the field of the unknown dead of the World war. This is where we fully realize the great number that answered the last call. The memorials to those who fought in the Civil war, of which my dear father was one of four brothers who answered the call. There, too, is the Arlington house.

On our return went through the residential district, where ex-President Taft lives, Mrs. Wilson's home, our future President Hoover's home and many others of note.

After lunch went to the Willard hotel to register for the Pomona degree and hear our grange National Master Taber speak. After we went shopping. That part was about the same as any other large city; plenty of beautiful things to see. Friday morning again all assembled for more sightseeing. To the Smithsonian museum.

The Pan-American Union ranks as one of the most beautiful public buildings in th world. The vestibule opens through three noble portals into a patio or courtyard 60 feet square. Its finely sculptored fountains and its richness of tropical plants carries an atmosphere and suggestion of Latin-America that is most pleasing. Ascending the grand stairways, the visitor finds himself in the gallery of national standards and patriots. Suspended from the ceiling are the flags of all the American republics, placed there by their governments to remain forever as historical records of the American nations that existed when the building was constructed.

Then to Lincoln memorial, with its exquisite beauty and imposing size. It has a singularly impressive effect on the mind.

The capitol, "your capitol," the guide said. There is too much one sees here to be written. I wish we all could see it and so many other buildings. Suffice to say that it is really beautiful. The rotunda canopy and rotunda frieze is wonderful, all it portrays makes it so very interesting. It took years to paint.

We saw the president's room, the supreme court room and the senate chamber. In the corridor and halls are beautiful paintings. Next was the white house. Went through the main corridor to the east room or state parlor, with its beautiful massive chandeliers. We saw an exhibit of white house china. On the lawn on the south side of the house there was a group photo taken of all the grangers assembled with the president in the foreground, which was quite an honor to have the president in the center of the group, with his usual smile.

Friday afternoon all grangers assembled at the Washington auditorium for the seventh degree. This building is wonderful in size, plan and equipment. The main auditorium seats 6,000 and may be arranged for 2,500 more. It was none too large as it was. The estimated attendance was about 8,000 patrons. The seventh degree class numbered 2,708. This session was honored by the presence of President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, with a carefully prepared address by the chief executive. We arrived to our hotel, where a late supper awaited us.

Saturday morning we again went to the auditorium for the assembly of Demeter. In the afternoon visited two churches and on a shopping tour. Sunday morning we visited the national shrine which is under construction, and later attended service in St John's church, built in 1816, and next to Christ chruch (1705). It is sometimes called the church of state. A seat is set apart for the president. After dinner visited the Botanical gardens. The conservatories contain rare plants from all parts of the world. It must be beautiful in summer. From there we went to Washington monumnt; went up the elevator, 504 feet.

Monday, to the union station. The most magnificent station I ever saw. The main waiting room is 220x130 feet in area, a height of 120 feet. The passenger concourse, 760 feet in length, is the largest in the world. About 8 a. m. we entrained for home, with more sightseeing in New York. That took us in the downtown district and from there in time for our train at 5 p. m.

METHOD OF CLEANING CURTAINS

Dear Cornerites: For a long time I have seemed to hear Rural Aunty and Twice Twenty shouting for the Corner, but the days have lengthened into weeks and the weeks into months and with the poet I can say—

Labor with what zeal we will,
Something still remains undone,
Something uncompleted still
Waits the rising of the sun.

Aries' every-member canvass seems to have set the ball rolling in Club No. 4 at least, for last Saturday I noticed that one-half the contributions to the Corner page were from members of that club. Now on the first day of 1929 I am falling in line to wish you all a happy and prosperous year. I thank the sisters who remembered me at Christmas time. The greetings I received were lovely and much enjoyed.

I must add one more link to the already long chain of regrets in the loss of our faithful sister Kitty Lou. I had some correspondence with her several years ago and have a little red velvet pinball she sent me. It would be interesting if we could know all the pen names she used. My sympathy to Ethelyn and to all other Cornerites who are ill or in sorrow. We are such a large family and so scattered we cannot know much about one another.

Now I am going to tell how to cleanse scrim and marquisette curtains, for I find the housekeeper needs to know such things in midwinter as well as at the regular spring and fall housecleanings. In the first place, avoid using washing compounds and a copper kettle. Make a suds in warm water with ivory bar soap, and in this water place the curtains. Allow them to remain long enough to soften the dirt, and have the curtains worked up and down through the water, but do not rub them. After the curtains have been allowed to remain in the water the proper length of time, remove and place in clean water in which they should be worked up and down, and if necessary when removed place them in clean water once more. After they are removed from the water, squeeze them out, but do not wring. Hang them out to dry and iron while damp. There is no need of using any starch, as it tends to ruin the drape of the curtain.

WOMEN YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Dear Editor and Members: The other day I happened to read an item about people's outlook. It said, in part, "The story of American women has been of a pioneer nature. A spirit that pushed westward through a wilderness to conquer a continent and to make a home. It is the story of that deep, insistent urge which turned crude settlements into pleasant little communities; a spirit that brought books to the fireside, gleaming silver, china and fresh linen to the dining room table, pictures on the walls, and a cottage organ in the parlor."

Men are forever seeking new horizons—wanting glory, power, wealth, adventure—while women seek to give a deper significance, a greater comfort, a spiritual quality to the places they live in.

At the present time women have achieved a high standard of living, and have many new ambitions. There is new knowledge of food and dietetics new thoughts on rearing children, and keeping them healthy; practical considerations of electrical devices; practical considerations of being the parent of a 17 year old son or daughter; the vogue of colorful rooms; clothes in the Paris mode; country club dances; sports; books; theatres, etc.

How does the young matron of today compare with the pioneer ancestor? Could she stand the hardships and handicaps of our forbears? It is to be hoped that the younger generation will still hold to those strong, virile principles which stand the test of time and are the foundation and very life of this nation. God bless the pioneers, the preparers of the way.

YOUR BEST RESOLUTION

Dear Social Corner Friends: The best New Year's resolution you can make is the one that you can keep. As Club 2 meets Tuesday, the 8th, I wish you would all resolve to come and bring good substantial food, home-made variety. Do not entertain the idea that if you bring bakers' food that we have a fairy wand to change it into home-made, which you all want. You must know it is rather embarrassing to the hostess not to be able to serve a wholesome dinner to her guests.

There was at one time a minister assigned to a new church. He took his little boy and went to look it over. As he entered by the door he saw the poor box near by, so he stopped and dropped in a dollar. At the end of the year he and his boy went again to open the box and there was the same and only dollar. The boy looked up into his father's face and said: 'Oh, pa if you had put more in the box you would have got more out.

So sisters you see if you put more into your club you are sure to get more out of it. I do hope to see many of you there next Tuesday. Also bring something for the entertainment. A good resolution is a fine remedy for disease and insures harmony and a happier New Year for everybody.

Scottie: I see you are doing your bit. Trust others will follow suit.

Necia: So sorry for you in the loss of your sister.

Catnip: Those were lovely, many thanks.

Happy New Year. ! TRUE BLUE.

GREETINGS FROM SWEET WILLIAM

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I realize it is a long time since I have written to the Social Corner but I have not lost interest. I have read the Social Corner page with pleasure. I have attended Club No. 2 meetings with pleasure and would like to have gone more often but have been awful busy. Can hardly realize that it is so near the beginning of another year. To the sick members I am sending good cheer and to those that have lost dear one's I send sympathy. To all new members I bid cordial welcome to our corner and club. To the family of Kitty Lou I send my sympathy. Wishing you all a happy New Year.

SWEET WILLIAM.

LORETTA'S EXPERIENCE

Dear Corner Sisters: A happy New Year to editor and all the sisters.

I am going to start the new year right and try to write often to the Corner page for that has been my only entertainment for over a year and I am in hopes to write something that will help some sister to not do as I did. Invest money in stock. I sit here alone reading a cotton company's pamphlet reading what they promised with their 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock and listening to a smooth tongued agent. I invested $800 and for four years never a dividend. Yes, it is fine to let some one use your money for nothing. Every time I would send a letter of protest to the officers, they would reply "so much depression in the textile trade we can't pay a dividend." Now in the Transcript last week I think, the truth was published. "The company had no depression but on the contrary has operated day and night which I know to be a fact for the last four years." The control of the company recently passed into new hands and as a consequence a man called one day and gave only a two days' notice to sell your stock for $35 a share or let it lay there without a dividend, so I took $35 for what I had paid $98 and it was supposed to be worth $100. Now I read the new company expects to expend $1,000,000. That is what the company raised at first. The new company is building an addition 180x140 feet. Now sisters I felt it my duty to tell you how I fared and hope it will be a warning to others. If you have any surplus money put it in the savings bank, where you can go and draw a little interest if you want it.

I want to thank Primrose, Pisces, Aries and Theoda for the pretty Christmas cards sent me.

LORETTA (Club 4).

A BEAUTIFUL CHRISTMAS

Dear Social Cornerites and Editor: Now we must say good bye to the old year and welcome in the new. What a beautiful Christmas day it was! Also a very quiet one here. Nearly 100 greeting cards from near and distant friends came to us, together with the usual amount of gifts which consisted of checks, money, and lots of other things too numerous to mention. We had a small decorated tree in the center of a table. Around it we placed our unopened packages to be opened Christmas eve. When it was dark we took a drive around town to see the outside decorations here, then went down to Wauregan to see them there. Arrived in time to hear the music and Christmas carols at the community tree which we enjoyed. But of all the beautiful things to admire—the moon was the loveliest of all. It certainly was a ride long to be remembered and a sight I had never seen before.

We have all of us here been entertaining good colds (if I may be allowed to call it that). We had always heard that lemon juice and honey was a good remedy and as no honey was to be had when we wanted it we took equal parts of lemon juice and Karo and found by using it freely and often, we were soon on the road to recovery. Hope every one will try this simple remedy.

With all kind wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year to each and everybody I will sign off.

"If there's something to do that needs doing,
Put your hand to the plow;
If a difficult duty you're viewing,
Get busy right now."

ANN TENNA.

A NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION

Dear Social Corner Sisters: My! My! My! Only 13 letters last week. Has the prop fallen from the Social Corner in the passing of Kitty Lou? The other sisters write such good letters I am much pleased to read them. I like the editor's page, too. I have made one New Year's resolution and will try to keep it. Resolved: That every time there are but 13 or less letters in the Social Corner I will write one.

I laughed out loud when I read Bricktop's letter. Can you do as well as Mary, Bricktop? I think you must have a general antipathy against husbands. What a good solid letter was Rural Aunty's.

I suppose we ought to write something helpful if we can. If a child has a cold and you are afraid of croup, give a drink of warm water sweetened with sugar at bedtime.

For a burn, apply molasses and cover with flour. If it rubs off apply again. Magical. Was it Shakespeare who said that brevity is the soul of wit? I don't want my letter to be too long. Here is an infallible cure for almost anything:

Pick a handkerchief from the pocket of a maid of fifty years who has never had a wish to change her condition.
Wash it in an honest miller's pond,
Dry it on a parson's hedge who was never covetous.
Take it to a doctor who never killed a patient.
Mark it with a lawyer's ink who never cheated a client.
Apply to the part afflicted and a cure will speedily follow.

OPTIMIST.

NOT LIKE THE OTHER DAYS

Dear Social Corner Friends: A happy New Year to all. It has been quite a while since I have written a letter to the Social Corner. But now the holidays are most over will try and do my bit. Will say, like Sis that people are not as social as they were when I was a girl. How well I remember, when a child, going out with my parents to spend an evening at Silverlock's home. That is more than 30 years ago. Yellow Daisy and I were playmates at that time in the dear old historic town of Lebanon. But I have been told that it is so changed that I would never know the house that I was born in or the town either.

Have often wished I could go there and see where I used to play around the school house and brick church.

Those were the happy days, gone never to return.

Best wishes for the NeNw NYear.

RIVER-VIEW. (Club NoN. 1)

A BUSY YEAR

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I think that it is about time that I appeared on the scene. I do not know as it makes any difference whether it is the first day or the last day of the year as long as I get the letter in. I have been bobbing around like a kernel of corn in a popper. I spent seven months of this year with Aunty No. 1, and I deem it a great honor to be in such a home as hers and to associate with such a lovely woman as she is. Have felt sorry that I could not be at some of the gatherings. Am very sorry about the loss of Kitty Lou. The family have my sympathy. I wish to thank all sisters who remembered me with cards.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year I remain as ever

SISTER READY.

READS INTERESTING BOOK

Dear Social Corner Friends: It really was not creditable to our large membership that the last Corner page for 1928 should have been scarcely half filled. I intended to send in my b.t. but just before I had put my thoughts on paper my old enemy, neuritis gripped my right arm so firmly that I had to go down to defeat. For weeks I had tried to ward off the foe by thinking health thoughts and endeavoring to believe myself when I mumbled "every day in every way I am getting better and better," knowing all the time that my arm was growing worse and worse. I painfully realized that the right arm is concerned in most of the movements that a housekeeper needs to make, just as I realized the same fact about my thumb some months ago when I caught a foot in the portiere fringe and immediately went into a nose-dive and entangled my thumb in a chair on my downward trip, greatly to the disadvantage of said thumb, so when my neuritis pain became so acute last week that I could no longer remain inarticulate about it, I took Coue down from the pedestal on which I had placed him and phoned my tried and true M. D. to please come at once, and well ballasted with pills and tablets of the quick-cure kind. He came, he saw and his white tablets and cannonlike black pills are surely conquering, so I hope to be at the B. M. Wednesday.

Our community library has a few new books. One of these which I have read is The Cavalier of Tennessee, by Meredith Nicholson, which appeared as a serial in the Cosmopolitan magazine. The hero of this book, as you know, is Andrew Jackson, so appropriately dubbed "Old Hickory." Among other historical characters quite prominent in the story is Aaron Burr, whom Gamaliel Bradford has included among his "Damaged Souls." Dueling was quite the fashion and makes us rejoice that it is a thing of the past, at least in this country. The character in the book which made the strongest appeal to me was the hero's wife, Rachel Donelson Jackson. A wonderful helpmeet was she and adored by her husband. However rough he might be with others, he was always gentleness itself to her. I do not wish to disparage the Cavalier in the slightest degree nor take one leaf from his laurel wreath, but I can appreciate something of what the gentle Rachel endured, for her spouse seemed ever to move about with the proverbial chip on his shoulder. Often while taking a few drinks at a tavern bar the chip would grow almost as rapidly as did a certain famous beanstalk and a challenge to a duel was liable to be the result. It wasn't all fun, I am sure, for a gentle, peace-loving woman like Rachel Jackson to watch her lord depart for the so-called field of honor. During his many absences from home, whether on business of his own or in the public service, she looked after the plantation and kept the home fires burning and everything in order ready for his homecoming. She was at the capital with him for a time when he was in the senate, although she would have been far happier back in her home in Tennessee. When the people elected her beloved general their president, Rachel made preparations to accompany him to the seat of government, expecting to assume the onerous duties that fall to our First Lady. But it was not to be. Worn with the burdens and anxieties of many troubled years, the gracious hostess of The Hermitage broke beneath the extra strain now put upon her and could not rally. Gently as she had lived, she passed on, leaving the Cavalier of Tennessee to take up his new duties without her loving care and valued counsel to cheer and aid him. Their domestic life was ideal, for they were lovers to the end. The book is well worth a careful reading.

When this letter appears in print we shall already have greeted the new year. As Social Corner members let us be alert to profit by the opportunities it brings us, being careful not to overlook the obligations it places upon us. May we feel that one of these is to see that our page is filled each week with a variety of good things. With greetings to all, not forgetting our new members.

EVELINE BURR.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It was with the same shock of surprise and sorrow and heart depression that we feel at the news of the sudden going of one of our own that we read of the notice that Kitty Lou had gone. Somehow it had never occurred to us that we could lose her.

Her letters were so full of life and cheer and helpfulness and sunshine. She really had become as she had wished when a child, to be "a fairy godmother to help everybody in the world." She was the sun and the moon of the Corner, always shining for all us lesser stars. She did more for the Corner page than anyone ever did or probably ever will do.

So why not, for a Corner memorial to her, have a reprint of one of her letters or an extract from some of her writings in the first paper of each month? She certainly deserves that in some way her influence and personality shall continue to help everybody and live long years yet.

Many years ago when a dear friend lost her husband suddenly, I expected to find her prostrated and perhaps unable to attend funeral services and burial. For I knew what an unusual devoted husband he had been; every minute he could spare from his exacting business he spent with and for his family—no other interests but them.

To my surprise, she was the calmest person at the services and never showed in any way that she cared.

Long years afterwards she told me "it has always troubled me that I could never realize that my husband is gone—he seems just as much with me as he ever did, and I can't make it seem right that I should feel so."

She said: I finally told my daughter about it, and she said "if the Heavenly Father has shielded you from the bitter loneliness that overwhelms so many when separation comes, I think you ought to be just thankful and never question why."

We do live in our thoughts and memories much more than we realize. Play and school, work and business take the men and the boys out of the home the most of the time. So it is easier for us to learn to live with only the happy memories to comfort us when memories are all we have left of them.

Our sincerest sympathy to Ethelyn in her double sorrow, and may the happy memories of the two lives so very dear to her comfort and uphold her, and may she be given courage and strength to carry on—doing something, some uncompleted work or wish that her dear ones would be pleased to know was being done.

"This do in remembrance."
With love to each one.

MARJORY.

TTY LOU JOINS CORNER

Dear Editor: I read your little note in The Norwich Bulletin that we already have a Lois in the Social Corner, so I will take the name of BETTY LOU.

SUGGESTS MORE WRITERS CONTRIBUTE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: We are just entering the new year of 1929. This is the morning of the second day, which is bright and clear. Yesterday so stormy and cheerless it did not appeal to us as a good beginning, at least for outdoor conditions. However, we are assured this year will be to us, each and every one, as those gone by; with its storms and sunshine, and we must meet those conditions as they come. It will take courage, it will require patience, but we can do again what we have done in the past. The New Year greetings are numerous, and we are all hoping for prosperity and health, and that we may avoid failures and illness. We are trusting our nation shall maintain peace and good will within our own country and with those of foreign lands. Very soon a new president will be inaugurated, which means much responsibility and honor in this era of his life. We hope for his success and co-operate with unity.

Our Social Corner has suffered a great loss in the passing of sister Kitty Lou. She was ever faithful and her letters were both helpful and interesting and we shall miss them with much regret. If our Corner page is to be continued, more of our members must contribute. This is the season for new resolutions and I think it is a good suggestion that we make the effort to support the Social Corner and not let it go down. If it has been helpful and interesting in the past year, it may be the same in the future.

Hope the sick and sorrowing may find new hope and relief, and best wishes to all.

VISITED WITH SON AND DAUGHTER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish all a very happy and a prosperous New Year. Another Christmas has passed and a new year begun. I want to thank all who so kindly remembered me with cards and gifts. I found that some had neglected to put their name on some of the cards, but we all had so much to think of during the holidays that it is not to be wondered at.

On Sunday, the 16th of December, my daughter, S. A. B., went with me to Hartford, where I visited with another daughter until Friday, the 21st, when we went to the depot to meet my son from Bristol. We had some wait, as the train was just one hour late. When my son came he found us waiting for him at the depot and as we had to wait two hours we went back to my daughter's, but in two hours' time we were on the train for my son's home. As he had telephoned, of course they waited dinner for us. We barely had time to eat our dinner when it was time to go the First Congregational church to see the Christmas pageant of The Holy Grail. It was lovely and both of my grandsons took part, one of them taking the part of King Arthur. An elocutionist read from the choir directly back of the pulpit, describing the different acts, which made it very enteresting, although I realize I am giving a poor description of it.

My son and daughter from Willimantic closed the store early and going to Hartford spent Christmas eve with their sister, all coming to Bristol Christmas morning. In the front room was a lovely tree and loaded with gifts. Santa sure remembered us all. My son and daughter had to return home Christmas night so as to open up the store in the morning. I remained until the 28th, as my son just would not let me go before.

Well, I hope all enjoyed the holidays as we did. My sympathy goes out to all afflicted in any way through sickness or sorrow. I hope the Social Corner page will be full this week, as I do enjoy reading the letters. Well, I think I have written enough for this time. Best wishes to all.

LAVENDER.

SCOTTIE'S SUGGESTION A GOOD ONE

Dear Editor: We find ourselves safely launched on a brand new year, and we wish to thank all the members who have written letters for the Corner during 1928. All the letters have been of interest to me, especially those by Quid Nunc. We shall miss Kitty Lou's letters and we miss other writers, too. I think Scottie struck the nail on the head when she wrote "let each one of us do a little for the Social Corner page."

Sometimes a letter of ours that seems dry and unprofitable to us will appeal greatly to someone else. I have written letters that seemed to me to be very good and they barely escaped the editor's waste basket, while another I wrote and wondered if the editor would print it took a prize. So let your letters come to the Corner page free and frequent, long or short, just as the muse happens to dictate.

I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip which came as a complete surprise, and I shall purchase postage stamps, as I dearly love to write letters and must have the stamps to decorate the envelopes. It is said we should consider the postage stamp; it sticks to one thing until it gets there. For which we are thankful.

We have other sayings, but they confuse us more than we wish to admit. For instance:

Dead men tell no tales. Murder will out.

Variety is the spice of life. Shoemaker, stick to your last.

Manners make the man. Fine feathers do not make plump birds.

Haste makes waste. He who hesitates is lost.

Great oaks from little acorns grow. The mountains labored and brought forth a mouse.

What's in a name? Give a dog a bad name, and hang him.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Out of sight, out of mind.

Count the cost. Obey that impulse.

Well, anyway, I'll ring off and let you think it over. Maybe someone will give us the answer.

Twice Twenty: Will be very glad to give you a slip of the lemon-scented geranium when a slip grows large enough to cut.

K. Doolittle: I hope we shall soon drink six cups of coffee at a Social Corner gathering.

None-so-pretty: Your gift is much appreciated.

L. T. H.: I was not acquainted with the lady you mentioned.

The Cheerful Cherub says:
Christmas comes and fills my heart
Full of love and thrills—
New Year's comes and fills my mail
Full of Christmas bills.
With best wishes, from ARIES.

EXPECT GOOD CROWD JAN. 15.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here we are starting a brand new year and as my birthday is Dec. 31st I have two new years all at the same time. Now of course there are a great many of you who have planned to turn over a new leaf and made grand resolutions for new year, but it is no use for me to try. Two years are too much all at once. It would take two leaves to turn and such a lot of good resolutions that I get them all mixed and I have made up my mind that the best time to turn a new leaf is just as soon as you find the old one has something on it that shouldn't be there. Then I say turn it quick if it be the hottest day in August or the coldest day in winter and then watch your step.

Our page looked rather empty last week so let's all help to keep it full. I know there are scores of Club No 6 people who haven't written in ages as well as myself.

We are looking for a good crowd on Jan. 15th at Mechanics hall and lots of good things to eat, too. I am to be hostess and it looks like a pretty big job for me, but everyone is willing to help so I hope we will have our dinner on time and some kind of a program to finish the day. January is a bad time to undertake much of a program after we have seen all the Christmas pageants and entertainments, but we will do the best we can for you, so everyone come and bring your dishes and something good to put on them.

So many of the sisters have such good recipes and suggestions and here is one for water spots on silk. To take water spots from new silk wash a silver quarter or half dollar to make sure the black won't rub off, then with the edge rub lightly with quick strokes over the spot with the silk held over you hand and the spot disappears like magic. Rub with the weave of the silk and very lightly. Perspiration spots will come out of some silk this way, too. Try this on your silk hat after a sprinkle has made it look as though it had the measles and you think it is ruined forever.

Dorothy Bradford: I hope you had a nice Christmas and don't get sick again.

Topsy: You must get rid of that cold and not be coughing and sniffling around for Jan. 15th, because I shall expect you to work real hard.

Skipper: Where are you? Haven't seen you since before Christmas and Sumac seems to have disappeared.

Happy New Year to you all.

Tisil.

SPENDS ENJOYABLE CHRISTMAS

Dear Editor and Friends: Well, Christmas has been and gone until another year. The New Year is here with a storm, but we had some fine winter weather.

I was asked why I did not write last week. I did not get home in time. Providence Rose, Mr. Rose and Rosebud came after me Sunday to go home with them for an old fashioned Christmas, so I went with them. The next morning who should walk in but Icavilla. Well, now there was some hustling. Icie fixing the big turkey and a monster big rooster. Then Mr. Rose came home and he and she had to go and do a lot of shopping, of course, to get ready for the next day.

That evening they made wreaths and then we had callers. They laughed, sprung jokes and then they started to play a game I never saw before so I sat back and watched them. I never saw time go so fast. I asked Icie if it was ten o'clock. She looked at her watch and it was a quarter to one. They were all surprised as well as I. I said it is now Christmas and I wished them all a merry one and good luck and then they went home. We were all glad to flit with the blankets.

Next morning we were up early. After breakfast Rose and Bobby carried the wreaths up to the cemetery. Icie and I stayed home. There was plenty to do. About noon our Bachelor Friend came and then the fun began. About one we had dinnner. After all were done Rose looked at the table said, My, that has got to be cleared. Bachelor Friend says that is easy, you take hold of that end and I will this and dump it out of the window. She said I guess not, so they took hold and it was soon cleared. Then came dish washing. When Icie went to put some things in the cabinet she gave a shout. We thought she had seen a poor little mouse, so we ran to help her, but no mouse. There was our Christmas fruit cake not even cut. Our hostess had fogotten all about it and I guess the rest did, there was so much fun. We had fruit, nuts and candy. Talk about sport and fun with the piano, victrola and singing of all the old time songs. It seemed that we had just begun when Bachelor said it is half past ten and I must get the bus for home. Rose said, No, we will take you home, so in a little while we put on our coats and hats and went out. The big boat wouldn't hold all, so the small one took part of the party. Arriving at his house Bachelor said we must all go in. So he started in with us following in Indian file. He lit the gas. We only had 60 minutes to drop anchor. The time went all too soon. We all got on shipboard again and set sail for home. Everyone of the party said they never spent so happy a Christmas. I did not get home until Wednesday about four, so I had no time to get a letter in.

I thank one and all who sent me cards and gifts. I appreciate them very much.

L. T. H.: I am sorry the little fellow was disappointed about the poem. I sent it as I said I would. There were a number of others that wanted it. Maybe the good editor will put it in now the Christmas rush is over. I hope he does so the little fellow can learn it.

Sis: You hit it all right about the old times. Not only candy pulls, kitchen dances, but pond parties, and surprise parties. If we were to do such a thing now they would be horrified. Not only Mr. Cddy but Uncle Haye Martin was with us. The dear old days are gone.

I wish the editor and all the friends a Happy New Year. Hope the sick ones are better. May God bless and be with them all, is my heart's best wishes.

NONESOPRETTY (Club No. 4)

CLUB NO. 1 MEETS JAN 9.

Dear Social Corner Members: Everybody come! Where? Why to the chamber of commerce rooms, Willimantic, Wednesday, January 9, for club No. 1's meeting.

Bring dishes as usual, and something good to eat.

Also a ten cent present for a New Year's basket to exchange among members.

We hope to see a good crowd out on that day.

ROSE MARIE AND LOUBELLE.

MEMBERS MUST COOPERATE

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: New Year's greetings. To all who sent the Christmas cards I want to thank you, especially Olga. How did you know that was the kind I liked? Thank you. I will think of you many times. And Scottie. It sure was a pleasant surprise.

Now if some of the sisters will tell me what will take out mildew stains I would like to know very much and will thank them.

Now to all the sisters of the Corner, especially Club No. 2, please remember that a few cannot carry on the club or Corner. It depends on every one to make it a success. Now if any of you have anything that will help with the program please bring it along or if any one of you has or knows of a dialogue, play or anything that we can put on for the program, "dont be backward about coming forward." Just go ahead with it and in that way we can all help. Don't criticise but help even if it is only a little and remember two or three cannot make it a success, but it depends on every one. And again if we do not bring anything to eat how can we expect to have anything? We can eat only what is brought, and everybody must help. Then we will have some Corner. Success to the Corner in the coming year or 1929. RED ROSE.

SEASONS HAVE CHANGED

Dear Social Corner, Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Hope that all have had a happy time during the holidays. The weather was just ideal, as well as unusual without snow or ice. How the seasons have changed!

I can remember when sleds and skates that Santa Claus left could be tested out on Christmas day, which gave great happiness to the youth of that decade.

Now the season for such sports is very short.

Congratulate those who received the yellow slips. All were fine letters.

Now that the holidays are over and all are less busy, we are sure there will be more letters in the Corner page each week to show that we appreciate the privilege accorded to us by our Social Corner editor.

Maine Lover: Greetings for the New Year and glad to hear that you are better and taking life easy. I thank you for the Christmas greeting and hope that you will soon be in your usual health, and take up the thread of life where you dropped it.

Greetings to all who are shut-ins and deepest sympathy to all who are in trouble.

I will close wishing all a happy and most prosperous New Year.

ECLIPSE.

RIDDING PLANTS OF FLIES.

Dear Editor: Many thanks for the yellow slip. I hope you and the Cornerites all had a pleasant Christmas. I'm sure the weatherman did his part.

Plant lovers here are some more helps for you. I have been bothered with mealy bugs. I picked them off with a tooth pick and gave them a good washing in whale oil soap suds (the plants I mean), also little flies, black ones. I tried lime water, tobacco water and ammonia; none of these hurt the flies. Then I thought I'd spray them and I made a solution of a teaspoon of nicotine sulphate in a gallon of slightly soapy water. When my sprayer wouldn't work I just made up my mind I would use the solution anyhow. So I turned it into my handy watering can with a long spout and soaked the soil with it. Oh, joy! I haven't seen any flies since.

Now I'll tell you how you can have healthy plants and you can enjoy caring for them. If you have an inch board that is a foot wide and four feet long saw it in two and cleat it together on the bottom. Then take a half inch board three inches wide and nail on the four sides of your two foot square foundation. Line this with table oilcloth. Now saw four pieces of one inch quarter round moulding three feet long and fasten or nail at the four corners of your foundation and also nail a piece of the moulding along the top on three sides. Then carefully tack table oilcloth on three sides, leaving one side open to set your plant in. I recommend half inch board and moulding, so it will be light to carry back and forth from the closet.

This flower bath will be handy and clean to use at the plant stand and you take no chances on chilling the plants or yourself. To have plants healthy they must be sprayed once in two weeks at least, once a week is better. I try to suit my chums rather than to have something artistic. Now if you sprayer doesn't spray make an investigation, it probably needs a new washer. After you get it to working all right be sure to keep it in a cool place as that will keep the washer from shriveling.

Now come on old writers. Your pen will corrode if you don't use it oftener.

I. J. B.: Many thanks also True Blue. With best wishes from CANTERBURY BELL.

ALL MUST BRING FOOD

Dear Corner People: As our New Year has come in we each and every one should try and do our very best by writing often and fill up the space Kitty Lou and the other pen names she used in keeping our page full. I surely felt my heart drop lower in my body when I saw such a few letters Saturday, and the balance of our page taken up in other items. If we swamp our editor with letters and they have to lay over for another week or two, don't get peeved and say "I won't write any more," but keep it up and we will surely keep a full page all the time.

On last Saturday I was phoned by a few who asked if our day was changed. No, it is the second Tuesday of each month and comes Jan. 8. I have asked it be corrected.

Now I think Alta's letter was right to the point in regard to coming to dinner and bringing one or more with a member and only one donating toward dinner. If you ask a friend, tell her to bring one article of food or go to the hostess and ask what she needs for the dinner. Give her money to buy if she did not have time to get it herself. Everybody is expected to furnish something larger than a bottle of olives or jelly. It's food they all look for if there is any more at dinner. I, myself, and our hostess, too, have seen one with two or three grown-ups come and only one give food for the four people. As our last hostess' helper said: Hereafter check up on food handed in at each meeting. Very little is left over to sell, and that was where the extra money came to help pay expenses; also to add to the reserve fund from which we have had to take from at every meeting we have had since the fall ones started. Let us try each and every one to do our best in every way toward the page and Social Corner meetings and thank Alta for putting in her letter and trust mine helps both Club No. 5 as well as No. 2 or any of the other clubs that this will fit in. Trusting I will be with you on Jan. 8 and see a good crowd. Have something for the entertainment. All stay and enjoy the afternoon and not leave so early. Make it our visiting day through the year at Buckingham Memorial. I close by saying—

It's the everyday friends that are true,
So I'm wishing you plenty of everyday joys,
May they come every day to you.

New Year greetings to each and every one who reads our Corner page, speedy recovery to all sick, sympathy to all those in sorrow, is the wish of CALLA LILY (Club No. 2).

TIME FLIES QUICKLY

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Have just finished a couple of letters, so will write a few lines to the Corner folks to wish you all a happy New Year, and hope that you all had as nice a Christmas as we had.

How swiftly the time flies. To me it seems only a short while ago that we were tending our gardens, watching them grow, and enjoying them so much. Now we have entered another year and soon will be looking forward to spring and our garden again. The time flies, flies for us older folks, anyway.

How everybody will miss Kitty Lou! Only twelve letters in our last Corner page!

Mary France: Hope to see you at our next gathering, and will try and call Saturday, as that is my library day, also calling day.

Bob White: I hear you had a fine Christmas and a lovely tree; also some time during the week a gentleman for dinner.

Double Fuschia: How are you getting along? Hope to see you at one of the meetings.

Miranda: Hope you are at home by this time and gaining every day.

Conawah: Thank you very much for the Christmas greeting.

Best wishes to all.

MARIGOLD.

STARTS NEW YEAR RIGHT.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am taking time this morning to wish everyone a Happy New Year. Rural Aunty wrote a good letter about starting the year right, so I can hardly add anything more except part of Edgar Guest's Creed:

"To live each day as though I may never see the morning come; to be strict with myself, but patient and leninet with others; to give the advantage, but never ask for it, to be kindly to all, but kindlier to the les fortunate; to respect all honest employment; to remember always that my life is made easier and better by the service of others, and to be grateful."—From "What My Religion Means to Me."

We had lovely weather for Christmas, so that the winter cannot seem so very long now that the days are getting longer. Santa was very good to us.

Each member of the Corner will miss the excellent letters sent by Kitty Lou.

I hope that Cretia is well now. There is nothing like a good mother as you said on your card. Your mother made a pleasant home for us and took a great interest in our work.

The letters have interested me very much during the past year and I have often thought of writing to the Corner to let the sisters know that I am in the land of the living, but I have been very busy most of the time.

I rather envied the sister who had her presents all done up so long before Christmas. I think each year that I will start making things the first of the year so as to have enough ready at the right time, but something prevents each year. My cousin carried out the plan, but got so tired out knitting before the holidays that she never tried that again. I hope I can find the happy medium this new year.

Best wishes for the Corner in 1929.

ROSARY.

POSTPONED NEW YEAR CALLING.

Dear Social Corner Members: A happy New Year to one and all. Now the holidays are over, we will have to settle down to the winter's work as it comes to use in various types. What wonderful weather we have had, all except on New Year's day. A few of us planned to go together and make New Year's calls, but had to postpone it until today.

Y. Y.: How about another cup of tea?.

Skipper: They were asking for ... I thought of Club No. 5 having a good time today. Club 6 will have its next meeting January 15 in Mechanics' hall, Westerly, with Tish as hostess.

Wheeler: Do you remember that 25 years ago last week you were making my wedding dress and the night I came for it you discovered after I had left your house that the sash of one of the dresses was still there and you sent some one down the back way with it? Well that's quite a while ago, isn't it.

Eva G.: Why don't you plan to go to the next meeting? E. L. M.

HULDY'S TRIP TO FLORIDA.

Dear Corner Friends: Greetings from the sunny south.

Brother and I left home Dec. 4 by auto, going through New York and across the Hudson river on the Lykeman street ferry to the New Jersey side, then passing through many towns to Newark, N. J., which is the largest city in the state and has a population of about 500,000. It has many fine buildings. In the center is a small park where there is a wonderful soldiers' monument, which was designed by Broghium, the celebrated sculptor.

It consists of a group of soldiers, all representing prominent men of the place, who gave their lives for our country. There are also two life size horses, which look very real.

Back of the mountain is a lagoon and in summer time a number of alligators are placed in it and one can almost imagine themselves in Florida, while watching the "gators" crawling about.

The next day we drove to Baltimore which is one of our largest seaports and has about 800,000 people.

It is a beautiful city and has many points of interest.

The first Washington monument was erected in Mt. Vernon square and is 180 feet high and has a fine view from its top.

Near by is the cathedral, which is over 100 years old and one of the finest in the country. It is filled with beautiful paintings and statuary.

Other interesting places to visit are the Peabody institute, the Johns Hopkins hospital, the grave of Edgar Allen Poe, the Francis Scott Key monument and at South Baltimore is Fort McHenry where Key composed the "Star Spangled Banner" during the bombardment.

We went to Jacksonville by boat, which was 362 feet long and had three decks. Besides the kitchen and dining room there was a music room, social hall, smoking and writing rooms and a dance hall and staterooms for over 400 people, with all modern conveniences. Two hired musicians entertained us nicely during the three days on board.

After landing we drove to St. Augustine which is the oldest city in this country and was settled by Ponce de Leon in the 15th century. The oldest house has been preserved and is now a museum of antiques. In the center of the place the governor's palace was built in the 16th century, but it is now used as a post office. Near by is the old slave market, now used for a pavilion.

At the other end of the town are the old city gates and Fort Marion. The latter was built coquina by slaves in the 16th century. It has a moat which in times of war, was filled with water and had a drawbridge.

At the entrance are the guard rooms and opening from a court yard are the barracks, court room, cells and the dungeons. Of one end is a watch tower, facing the water and there are lookouts and mounted cannon on all sides.

Just outside of the city is an alligator farm where there are 6000 of all sizes and ages. The skins are made into bags and purses and sold from a little shop at the front of the building.

We stopped at Deland and had a very pleasant visit with "Helper" and her hubby in their pretty bungalow.

We reached Lakeland Dec. 12 and have a small apartment opposite the new park where I invite all the members to meet with. HULDY.

WELL REMEMBERED ON CHRISTMAS.

Dear Editor and Sisters: Well, Christmas is over and no snow either. As long as it didn't come before Christmas I hope it will stay away after. I hope Santa Claus used all you Cornerites as well as well as he did me. My kiddies also were well remembered receiving between the four 11 automobiles of various makes and models. I was very much tempted to do as Louey did in the Sunday funny sheet last week. And I want to thank all those who sent me cards, too.

Soma: I received your letter and it helped a lot. I think I have one of those things you call an inferiority complex. I hope I get the best of it this coming year.

Cousin Clarie: I meant to have told you about the jelly but there was so much commotion I forgot it. Sorry I didn't have any this year.

Francis L.: See you had a fire. I hope it didn't do much damage.

Beers: Thank you for the call; come again.

Wish you all a happy New Year.

SUMAC.

ENGLISH PUDDING AND SAUCE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I want to thank the one that sent me the yellow check, as I received it this noon. I sure was surprised Saturday evening when I read the Corner page and noticed myself as a prize winner. It's the only prize I've ever won and I shall put it towards my Christmas club.

I too hall miss Kitty Lou's letters as well as her writings for the Boston Post. I got so I would always look for her name before looking at any of the other recipes. I did not know her but it was seeing her name and Ethelyn's so often in the Social Corner page that really got me interested in it.

We certainly had wonderful weather for the Christmas shopping and for Christmas. New Year's has brought us the real winter weather. I have just finished packing away our Christmas decorations for another year.

Here's the recipe for the English pudding I made for Christmas which was lovely with a foamy sauce.

English Pudding: 1 cup grated raw carrots, 1 cup chopped suet, 1-2 lb raisins chopped, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup grated raw potatoes, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 1-2 cups pastry flour, 2 tablespoon water, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teapsoon allspice.

Mix thoroughly in order given, dissolving soda in water before adding. Pour into well greased mould 2-3 full cover, and steam 5 hours. Serve hot with Foamy Sauce.

Foamy Sauce: 1 egg, 1-2 cup powdered sugar, 1-3 teapsoon vanilla, 1-2 cup whipped cream, 1 1-2 tablespoons milk. Beat egg white stiff, gradually beat in powdered sugar, when smooth and light add vanilla and well beaten egg yolk. Then stir in the whipped cream or milk and serve as soon as possible. If pudding is made several days before serving reheat when used by steaming or wrapping in a damp cloth and setting in a hot oven.

Wishing all a very bright and happy New Year to all.

LADY SLIPPER.

AN OMEN OF GOOD LUCK

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It was a very great surprise to me when I saw in the paper Saturday that I was entitled to a prize. I never expected to ever receive one for I am not much at writing. But it helps to fill up the page, and it certainly didn't take long last Saturday to read the page.

I do hope our members have turned over a new leaf.

I want to thank the editor for my yellow slip.

The day before when I was washing a floor I found a penny with a pin pointing right towards it. I said then I was going to get some money but this is the last place I would have looked for it.

E. L. M. and American Girl: I thank you for your pretty cards.

Rural Aunty: I tried your sponge cake and found it very good.

I wanted to go to Norwich today very much but am waiting for my phone to be installed.

I want to wish everyone a most prosperous and happy New Year.

JUST A NUT

MORE HOME DECORATIONS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: I hope you all enjoyed Christmas. I did very much and hope to have many more. It was such a beautiful day, too. I said to my friends we will get all the snow we want before spring, we always do.

It seems so, this year that there were more Christmas decorations in the homes than ever. They are so pleasant and cheerful to look at by those who pass by. I am thankful for good health and am sorry for all who are sick or in trouble. Wishing you all a happy New Year.

TECOMA, (Club No. 5).

ANOTHER NEW YEAR

Dear Social Corner Friends: Another year has passed by and we have said goodbye to many that we will never see again. Gone with the old year, but never to be forgotten.

As we start the new year let us turn over to a clean page and try to be a help to others as well as ourselves.

Rural Aunty: Am going to try your sponge cake. Have tried other recipes you have sent in and liked them.

Haven't heard many complain about the cold winter so far. It has been a great help to the poor people, but guess we will soon be using plenty of fuel.

A happy New Year to all.

WEEPING WILLOW.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner: Just a few lines to wish every member a happy New Year. We have enjoyed the privilege of exchanging messages and sent heartiest sympathy in grief. Now we will start a new year, looking forward to pleasant letters from Aris, who seems to find happiness everywhere and all the busy sisters who devote a few moments to kindly messages.

Hope that each and every member will "carry on." THE BANSHEE.

BARGAIN HUNTERS OVERCAME FLOOD OF SELLING ORDERS IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Speculative sentiment was sharply split today by the new high total of stock exchange member loans, and stock prices fluttered about uncertainly. The market opened with a flood of overnight selling orders, which carried price off sharply in the first hour, but pools and bargain hunters gave the market strong support later, and prices were fairly steady at the close.

A drop in the call money rate to 6 per cent. for the first time since Dec. 13 was seized upon in some trading circles as indicating that the tremendous increase in borrowings gave little cause for worry. Continued high rates for time money and increases in the bankers acceptance rates caused considerable uncertainty as to the actual state of credit, however, and gave rise to more talk that the federal reserve banks may raise its rediscount rates.

Eastern rail shares made good progress on unconfirmed reports from Washington that such progress has been made in the merger projects that the Van Sweringen and Baltimore & Ohio interests are preparing to submit their plans to the interstate commerce commission. Coppers were given further impetus by an increase from $1.50 to $2 in the annual dividend rate of Miami Copper Co. Pennsylvania Crude Oil went up 25 cents a barrel, but this failed to affect the oil shares. Total sales were 5,532,000 shares. Price indices for all groups lagged slightly.

The outstanding news development of the day was the announcement of the unification plan for Radio Corp. and Victor Talking Machine This plan however had long been expected and discounted as a market factor. It provides for a 5-for-1 split up of radio common Columbia Gas and Electric directors also recommended a stock splitup of 2 1-2 for 1.

Motor shares were again heavy, which was attributed to rather widespread disappointment that the expected pre-automobile show bull movement has failed to make headway. General Motors, old stock fell more than 6 points and Chrysler more than 2. Pierce Arrow shares broke into new high ground, however, on announcement of a new straight-eight.

International Nickel certificates shot up 40 points to a record price at 326, and the New Nickel, Ltd., shares reached new high ground. Kennecott Copper Miami and Anaconda made new highs, while Calumet and Arizona jumped more than 6 points. National Lead again was a strong point. American Radiator made an extreme gain of 15 points, and Case Threshing closed about 15 higher.

In the rails, New Haven mounted more than 4 points, influenced rather by its revived earning power than by merger prospects. Chesapeake & Ohio and Pennsylvania broke into new high ground, and New York Central forged ahead nearly 4 points.

Columbia Gas advanced 2 points to a new high, and Philadelphia Co. jumped 10 points. After selling down more than five points, General Electric rebounded 10 to new top. Radio fluctuated wildly, selling off 9 points, up nearly 3, and closing down 2. Victor pushed up 6 points.

Among soft spots were Abraham & Straus, Goodyear, Johns-Manville, Macy & Co., and Western Union, which closed about 4 to 5 points down. Several of the blue line favorites such as U. S. Steel and American Telephone sagged about a point.

Commodities were generally heavy, cotton closing 50 cents to $1 a bale lower and grain receding slightly.

In the foreign exchanges, European currencies firmed up under the leadership of sterling, while the Canadian dollar again sagged.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING IS TO COST ABOUT $10,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Jan. 4—The contract for the new building to be erected by the Southern New England Telephone company on High street has been let to Benjamin Campo, of Stafford Springs. It is estimated that the building will cost $10,000 and will be finished within a few months. New equipment consisting of a new switchboard and a common battery board, having eight operators' positions, will be installed in the new building.

Mr. and Mrs. Alwyn Rees of Portland, Maine have returned home, after spending several days with relatives in town.

Frank Newton is recovering at Johnson Memorial hospital from injuries received when his car overturned on the state highway in Forestville, several days ago.

Frank Ricci sailed on S. S. Augustus from New York Thursday for Europe. John Right, of Springfield, a relative of Mr Ricci sailed with him and they will spend several months touring European countries.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA

Lady Buckingham Council, No. 14, held an installation supper Thursday evening at Odd Fellows hall. There were about fifty members and officers present. The regular meeting was called to order at eight o'clock. There were sisters present from Liberty Council of Noank. Deputy Ancraft and her officers installed the officers as follows. Inside sentinel, John Peckham; trustee, Phylis Erwin; assistant recording secretary, Eva Friese; warden, Mrs. Faulkner; conductor, Arlene Friese; associate vice councilor, Mrs. Howard; past councilor, Phylis Erwin; associate past councilor, Mrs. Whitney; vice councilor, Mrs. Fulton; councilor, Mrs. Rogers. The councilor has as chairman of the supper committee Mrs. Bradford, Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Howard have charge of the degree team.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

Court City of Norwich, No. 63, elected the following officers at its meeting Tuesday evening in Foresters hall: Chief ranger, Elroy J. Bolduc; sub chief ranger, Joseph Riley; recording secretary, Henry J. Clement; financial secretary, William H. Ryan; treasurer, William H. Callahan; senior woodward, Louis Sauter; junior woodward, Stanley Staub; senior beadle, Walter Kohanski; junior beadle, John Cousins; lecturer, Joseph Cormier; trustee, three years, George B Fox; physicians, William T. Driscoll, Clarence Thompson.

Installation ceremonies will be conducted at the next meeting and will be in charge of Deputy Chief Ranger James H. Casey.

Eight applications for membership were received and referred to the investigating committee. It is now planned to hold a class initiation at the last meeting in January.

In response to a suggestion made in a letter from Grand Chief Ranger Frank J. Barrett, a committee of five was appointed to confer with committees from the courts in Taftville, Baltic and Jewett City regarding a joint meeting in the Norwich district.

The by-laws committee made a report and read all of the changes which are recommended end upon which action will be taken at the next meeting.

The welfare committee reported that 50 baskets had been distributed for the Christmas holiday containing food enough for 250 people. This work was inaugurated this year and it is expected that the organization will carry it out at each Christmas season.

GROTTO

Nemrod Grotto officers have announced the Grand Monarch's ceremonial for Saturday, Feb. 16, when Grand Monarch John A Derthick will be present, with other grand officers and the ceremonial work will be put on by the famed cast of Hejaz Grotto of New Haven.

The Grotto's first meeting in January, which is on the 7th, will be for election of officers and annual reports and the second meeting in the month will be followed by a smoker.

The delays which have occurred have made it impossible to hold the January meetings in the new home, but by February it is probable that the Grotto will be meeting there.

REBEKAHS

The regular meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 31, was called to order by the nobel grand, Caroline Howard. After the regular routine of business the officers for the year 1929 were installed by District Deputy President Sadie E. Curley of Willimantic and suite, Minnie Matthieu, district deputy grand marshall; Mary Lovett, district deputy grand warden and treasurer; Margaret Sears, district deputy grand secretary and financial secretary; Mrs. Cohen, district deputy grand chaplain; and Clara Beebe, district deputy grand pianist.

The following officers were installed: Mary Dow, noble grand; Alice Metcalf, vice grand; Alice Brayman, recording secretary; Bertha Collins, financial secretary; Ella Smith, treasurer; Lila Smith, warden; Eliza Walker, conductor; Mabel Wheeler, right supporter, noble grand; Stella Whitmarsh, left supporter noble grand; Arline Peckham, right supporter vice grand; Gladys Bowers, left supporter vice grand; Grace Willey, chaplain; Mary Green, drill mistress; Mary Mills, inside guardian; John O. Peckham, outside guardian; Faith Ryan, pianist.

The following committees were appointed for the year 1929: Relief, Alice Metcalf, chairman, Florence Gibbs, Elizabeth Donahue, Minnie Amburn and Arline Peckham; entertainment; Helena Church, chairman, Amy Coles, Edna Browning, D. Edward Smith and Lee Coles; supper, Mary J. Smith, chairman, Marry Harris, Eliza Walker, Mary Adams, and Ivy Peckham; paraphernalia, Eva O. Wilson chairman, and Lillian Tuttle; finance, Ora Spencer, chairman, Mary Green and Clarence Amburn.

The district deputy president, Sadie E. Curley with a gift as a token of love and esteem in which she is held by Hope Rebekah lodge.

Preceding the meeting a delicious supper of salads, baked beans, relishes, cold meats, rolls, cake and coffee was served by the 1928 supper committee of which Grace E. Fowler was chairman.

There will be a class of candidates to be initiated at the next regular meeting, January 16.

Remarks were heard from the district deputy president and all of her suite as well as from Mrs. Willey, past president of the Rebekah state assembly.

The meeting then closed in regular form.

ODD FELLOWS.

A good number were present at the regular meeting of Shetucket lodge on Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows hall in spite of the holiday. Vice Grand Gene Wood presided over the gathering, and the routine business was quickly disposed of. Final plans were announced for the installation of the new officers next Tuesday evening by District Deputy Irving Thornton and staff of Jewett City. Charles Browning, genial chairman of the entertainment committee, also announced that his committee had made all plans for supplying the wants of the inner man at the supper to be held at 7 o'clock and that he hoped that there would be a large turnout of the brothers, in order to prevent any of the committee from loafing. After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and pinochle and pool were indulged in by the members. Bros Smith and Waters endeavored to show a few of the fine points of pool to Bros. Gulle and Bishop with but fair success. The pinochle committee also announced that the pinochle tournament which has lapsed on account of the holidays, is to be resumed in the near future.

LADIES AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., 34, was held Wednesday evening with the president, Miss Nellie McCarthy presiding. Mrs. Julia Brock, chairman of the recent bea nand salad supper, read a fine report showing that approximately $100 was realized.

An outline of the social activities for the coming season was planned and it was decided to set aside each Friday night as "Hibernian night." Whist and pinochle parties with an occasional dance and social will be held on these nights. Mrs F. Bundy will be chairman of the first whist and pinochle of the year assisted by a committee comprising Mrs. Julia Breen, Mrs. Mary McCarthy, Mrs Annie Brooks and the Misses Margaret Dwyer, Catherine Coughlin, Catherine Toomey and Dolly Tobin.

JEWETT CITY

JOHN COOLIDGE RODE THROUGH IN BIG NEW FREIGHTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 4—John Coolidge, the president's son, now in the employ of the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad passed through the borough today at 12:30 p. m., riding on the fireman's seat in one of the big new freighters recently purchased by the New Haven company. The train was the regular midday southbound freight from Worcester. The son of the chief executive got a fleeting sight at some of the regular natives, who stood at the state highway crossing and gave him a greeting cheer, which he pleasantly acknowledged with a friendly wave of his hand.

A bad grass fire away out beyond the borough line on the Voluntown road just before noon Friday, looked as though it was going to give trouble. Men from nearby residences put up a stiff fight and won, just as help arrived.

State Master Minor Ives, installed the officers of Pachaug grange at a largely attended meeting Thursday. He was assisted by Mrs. Ives, marshal; Mrs. Esther Hyde, emblem bearer; Mrs. Merton H. Bartlett, regalia bearer

The officers for the new year are: Master, George Frink; overseer, Albert Bradlaw; lecturer, Mrs Harriet Weaver; steward, Kenneth Griswold; assistant steward, Edwin Thornton; gatekeeper, Robert Bitgood; chaplain, Rev. G. F. Goodenough; treasurer, Mrs. Lena Chesboro; secretary, C. F. Morgan; Ceres, Miss Estella Brand; Pomona, Miss Hortense Philips; Flora, Miss Frances Montgomery; lady assistant steward, Miss Clara Hyde. Other state officers present were State Deputy John Holloway of Preston and Mrs. Ida Richardson, of Norwich, representing the state home economic committee. Visitors were present from granges at Norwich, Plainfield, Preston City, Lyme, Ledyard and Franklin.

The Jewett City news in The Bulletin of Jan. 5, 1896 noted that:

"Col. John P. German is not intending to "carve dat possum" just yet, but he has received this week a fine specimen of the opossum direct from a friend in Henderson, S. C., and has it on exhibition at his office. John informs those who come every day to see the new arrival, that it is an arboreal marsupial quadruped."

Flinn's Sun. eve. 7 and 8:45. Richard Barthelmess in Scarlet Seas, on the Phototone.—Adv.

Miss M. A. Burdick entertained the Harmony club Friday afternoon.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Otto Opperman and Mrs. Dewey Shippee were in New London Wednesday.

Mrs. Althonsine Bedard, 60, wife of Pierre Bedard of North Plainfield died Monday. Mrs. Bedard was born in Canada but has lived most of her life in this country. She leaves besides her husband several children.. Adelard Bedard of Stafford, N. H., Mrs. Joseph Charbonneau and Mrs. Wilfred Roberts of Attleboro, Mass., Mrs. Alfred Brodeur, Mrs. Arthur Piche and Miss Bella Bedard of Plainfield. The funeral services were held Thursday morning at St. John's church In the solemn requiem mass, Rev. J H. Laudry was celebrant, Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Occum was deacon and Rev. Harry Chagnon of All Hallows' church, Moosup, was sub deacon, which was atteended by many relatives and friends including delegations from the Union St. John Baptist and Ste. Anne society. Burial was in St. John's cemetery, the bearers being Joseph Bernier, Henry Mercier, Desire Vezina, Charles Lajaniere, Henry Beausolle and Joseph I. Metivier. The honorary bearers, representing the Ste Anne society, were Mrs. Anna Lambert, Mrs. Philip Smith, Mrs. Dieudonne Jodoin and Mrs. Isadore Mercier.

At St. Paul's Episcopal church there was a well attended watch night service New Year's eve, lasting from 11:10 to shortly after midnight There was congregational singing and the rector, Rev. G. L. Drowne gave a short talk on making use of spare moments Ten minutes of silent prayer was held just before the midnight hour, after which Mr. Drowne read several stanzas from Tennyson's In Memoriam, beginning, "Ring Out Wild Bells." The meeting which had been a helpful and inspiring one closed with singing of Onward Christian Soldiers.

Read what these leading automobile editors said after seeing and riding in the new Chevrolet Six—

"One of the greatest automobiles I have ever seen. In performance, construction and beauty it is phenomenal. Never saw so much car for the money."
—NORTH BIGBEE
Dallas News

"In appearance, performance and mechanical nicety the new Chevrolet Six presents actual values far beyond its price range."
—HAZEN CONKLIN
New York World

"The new Chevrolet is a triumph for volume production. The car at its price is one of the greatest achievements ever recorded in the automobile industry. Its beauty is a treat; its riding comfort a new delight and its performance a real sensation."
—KAY PICKRELL
Detroit Times

"Aside from beauty in body lines and attractiveness in finish, the astounding feature of the new Chevrolet Six is its powerful and flexible motor. One will have to go far to equal the high performance of this new Chevrolet in general road and traffic use."
—LEON J. PINKSON
San Francisco Chronicle

"In speed and acceleration, the new Chevrolet will more than satisfy the average person. In design, Fisher offers costly car appearance. In short, the new car is by far Chevrolet's outstanding achievement."
—EDWARD M. MILLER
Portland Oregonian

"Introducing new style, beauty and smoothness, the new Chevrolet Six certainly meets the requirements of the most exacting buyer."

BOXING COM. DONOHUE, NEW LONDON, TO BECOME SUPT. OF HILLSIDE HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—Thomas E. Donohue, state boxing commissioner has been appointed superintendent of Hillside home, the appointment to date from Feb. 1. Mr. Donohue, if he accepts, which he probably will, returns to the place he held for several years and which he resigned July 1, 1927. It is also understood that Mr. Donohue will conclude his relations with the boxing commission on his appointment to the city employ becoming operative. Mr. Donohue was employed as special agent by the New Haven railroad prior to being appointed to the superintendency of the city's home for the poor.

RADIO STORE ROBBERY CONSIDERED INSIDE JOB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—The radio store of Cutler, 232 State street, was reported to the police today as having been entered by a thief last night, but the investigation of Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh brought the report that if the store had really been entered the thieving was perpetrated by an employe of the store, for the robbery was of the type known as an inside job.

H. E. Marks, manager of the store made the report of the burglary following the opening of the store. Sergeant Cavanaugh went to the store and discovered that the glass in a rear basement door had been broken, the intruder using a jack from an automobile parked nearby. The door is safeguarded by a bolt close to the top, also by a Yale lock, but the break in the glass would not permit a hand being thrust through the opening to either slip the bolt or unlock the lock. The plunder claimed to have been taken was a 38 calibre revolver and about $20. Patrolman George Bruhns reported that he tried all doors of the store at 9:15 and 10:15 o'clock and that at that time there was no evidence of the rear door having been tampered with.

George Law, 115 Broad street, was ordered to present himself in the police court Monday next, by Traffic Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh this afternoon when Law violated the city's laws in passing a traffic signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets that was set at danger.

Patrolmen John Clifford and Henry Sylvia, who have been off duty several days because of illness, have returned to their beats.

The first in a series of lectures tending to result in an improvement of the work of the New London police department was given this afternoon when at 1:15 all members of the department gathered in the police court room and listened to a half hour's discourse by Attorney Morris Lubchansky. The attorney spoke on matters of general history and the creation of the declaration of independence, together with the gradual improvement of laws on the statute books of the nation. Another lecture will be given at a early date and at that time the members of the department will be expected to take notes and submit their interpretation to Captain of Police Pinney for the purpose of determining whether the listeners fully understood the meaning of the words of the lecturer.

ACCUSED OFFICER CLAIMS INNOCENCE OF WRONG-DOING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—Patrolman George McCaskey, against whom charges of conduct unbecoming an officer have been made by Captain Charles A. Pinney, as the result of accusations being made against the officer by Beatrice Perlatti, 17, of 133 Cedar street, Norwich, intends to fight the charges to the bitter end, according to a statement made today by the accused police officer. McCaskey declares that he is not guilty of any wrong-doing and that he is not guilty of the charges alleged, also that he can introduce evidence and witnesses whose testimony will be most damaging to those who are responsible for the charges. Not only does the officer promise to do this, but he further declares that he will cause other members of the force to bear a share of the alleged misconduct that the accused is held responsible of. With all the facts connected with the case in the hands of City Manager William A. Holt, it is expected the latter official will set a date for the hearing of McCaskey not later than Saturday or next Monday.

At the annual meeting of Union circle of the Methodist church last night, Mrs. Melvin E. Smith was elected president. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Mrs. William H. Cadman; secretary, Mrs. Oliver Woodworth; treasurer, Mrs. Charles N. Butler; parsonage committee, Mrs. John Kennedy and Mrs. J. B. Collins. Preceding the meeting supper was served by the men's Bible class. About 70 members were present.

At the opening of Connecticut college yesterday afternoon there were many surprises. Gifts which the students brought back after the holidays included fur coats, portable phonographs and engagement rings.

To Wed New York Girl

Harold A. Rockwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Rockwell of Summit avenue, will marry, tomorrow, Miss Elizabeth Platt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Platt of New York. The ceremony will be performed in the First Presbyterian church of that city. Following the wedding, a reception will be held which over 150 guests are expected to attend. The affair will be held in a Fifth avenue hotel.

Members of Circle No. 10 of the First Baptist church held a Christmas party last night at the home of Mrs. Harold Reynolds at Cohanzie. Stockings filled with candy and gifts were found on the tree for everyone. Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Mrs. Harold Reynolds, Mrs. George O. Gadbois and Mrs. G. E. Lougee. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Miss Helen Caley of 14 Colver street was hostess last night to members of Kwarterante club. Two tables of bridge were in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. John J. Doyle and Mrs. Ella Manion.

Women members of the Fairs Harbour club defeated members of the parent organization at a card contest held last night in the clubrooms. The fourth in the winter series will be held Feb. 7.

Richard W. Mansfield, probation officer, delivered an interesting address at a meeting of the members of the Learned Mission held last night at the Y. W. C. A. After the business meeting refreshments were served by a committee.

Miss Catherine Sullivan of 8 Grand street entertained friends last night at her home, with music and dancing, after which refreshments were served. The date was Miss Sullivan's 14th birthday.

At a meeting of St. Joseph's Woman's club held in St. Joseph's hall last night, Mrs. Patrick J. Lynch was elected president. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Mrs. Julia Londegan; financial secretary, Mrs. Daniel Hill; treasurer, Mrs. David Sheehan; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Condon; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Katherine May; recording secretary, Mrs. Julius Koch. After the business meeting a lunch was served.

Members of various churches of this section held a meeting at the Y. W. C. A., Wednesday afternoon, for the purpose of arranging a program for the World Day of Prayer, to be held in Huntington Street Baptist church on the afternoon of Feb. 15. At the meeting, Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood presided.

At a meeting of Orient Rebekah lodge, last night in Odd Fellows' hall, one application for membership was received. Preceding the business meeting members had a supper at 6:30.

OLD-FASHIONED RUNAWAY STOPPED BY PATROLMEN

Patrolmen Harry Watterson and Dennis Murphy this morning stopped a horse drawing a heavy delivery wagon in front of Starr Brothers' store, State street. The horse had been stopped in Main street while being hitched to a milk wagon. An auto truck passed by, frightened it and the animal started on a furious run. The officers were standing at the corner of Main and State streets and when they saw the horse tearing by both started to halt him. The horse turned the corner so fast that it fell and after scrambling up began to speed toward the courthouse. The officers rushed out and seized it and after several minutes the animal was subdued.

FUNERAL

Charles E. Rogers

Funeral services of Charles E. Rogers, who died Tuesday night in this city, were held this morning from his residence on 142 Montauk avenue. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiated and burial was in Jordan cemetery.

MONTVILLE PAPER MILL FIRE CAUSED DAMAGE OF $1,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—Shortly after 10 o'clock last night fire broke out in the Robertson Paper Mill at Montville and before it was extinguished damage amounting to more than $1,000 was sustained. The blaze started in a small garage adjoining the structure. Employes of the mill strove to combat the flames and when the Niagara Engine company from this city arrived the fire was almost under control.

A supper, dance and bridge for the benefit of the League of Coast Guard Women is to be held at the academy. More than 300 are expected to be present and elaborate plans are being made for their entertainment. From 6 to 8 o'clock a supper will be served.

Plan Mardi Gras Ball

Plans are being formulated for the annual Mardi Gras ball of the Italian Ladies' Aid society. The affair will take place in the ballroom of the Hotel Mohican. Mrs. John Gentilella has been appointed chairman of the committee which will arrange the affair.

OBITUARY

William R. Appleby

William R. Appleby, 72, died this morning at his residence at Poquonoc Bridge. He is survived by two sons. Mr. Appleby was born in Portsmouth, R. I., June 13, 1856, the son of George H. and Harriet Gardner Thompson.

FUNERALS

Howson E. Willmore

The body of Howson E. Willmore, of 172 Broad street, was forwarded today to Bridgeport for the funeral and burial. Mr. Willmore died suddenly at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, Wednesday, of apoplexy, having been stricken while walking along Huntington street.

Mrs. Alvinah E. Wackel

The funeral of Mrs. Alvinah E. Wackel, who died at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The body was sent to East Haven where burial was in Green Farms cemetery.

Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today issued releases of warrants against Henry M. Specht and Shirley Hendel. The properties of Specht and Mrs. Hendel were recently ordered sold because of non-payment of taxes, but payment has since been made.

John Griffin of 40 West Pleasant street; William Warren, Jordan; Theodore Peltier, Taftville, and Miss Marian Chapman, Blackhall, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

An automobile owned by Russell N. Putnam, 87 Squire street, was stolen from Cottage street last night. Putnam discovered his loss about 11 o'clock and notified the police. The state police, Groton and Centerbrook barracks, and the police of Willimantic, Norwich and New Haven were requested to be on the lookout for the car. It is an Essex coach, 1923 model, and carries Connecticut markers, N-4670.

Mrs. Amelia Jennen, aged resident of 27 Greenmanville avenue, Mystic, attacked by three young men several weeks ago, when they forced an entrance to the woman's home late at night and after pulling her from bed, inflicted severe head injuries by striking her with a bottle in an attempt to steal Mrs. Jennen's approximately $5,000, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today and returned home. The thieves obtained but $350 of the savings of Mrs. Jennen. This money was secreted in a trunk which the crooks carried away, but $5,665 which the woman had hid in another place was not secured, the crooks believing that all of the money had been deposited in the trunk. The crooks were never captured.

It Is Now Lieut. Albright

Henry J. Albright, sergeant in charge of Groton state police barracks for several months, yesterday was promoted to lieutenant, the appointment being made at the January meeting of the state police board at Hartford. Sergeant Albright's promotion is well deserved, because of his very efficient work as head of the Groton barracks during his term. Since Sergeant Albright had been in charge of the Groton barracks, his record has been conspicuous for arrests of violators of the liquor law, together with his untiring efforts to reduce the number of fatal automobile accidents and bring about the enforcement of the state motor vehicle laws, and has merited the promotion which comes as a result of faithful and conscientious service. Since Sergeant Albright was appointed a trooper eight years ago, his record of efficiency and capability has been outstanding and the promotion comes in proper recognition of his services. Sergeant Albright had been in charge of the barracks since the illness and death of Lieut. Edward V. Streaman.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Carl Plimpton, 76 Truman street. Plimpton was convicted recently in the police court of driving an auto without the permission of the owner. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the license of Frank Pollard, 30 Eastern avenue.

Paul Shea was in court today charged with intoxication and refusing to pay for a restaurant meal. He was sentenced to ten days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

The only other case tried was that of a Groton young man, who was found intoxicated on North Bank street last night. Today he was discharged, that he might return to his employment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MOVING PICTURES AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

"So Big" is the title of the specially attractive and impressive feature moving picture at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday at 3.30 o'clock.

This is the intensely interesting story of American life a generation ago, by Edna Ferber, the participants being Colleen Moore, Wallace Beery, Ben Lyons, John Bowers, Rosemary Theby and Gladys Brockwell. It is the story of a girl whom life could not down. How great she made the life that was hers to live! It depicts the struggles of a mother who raises the child above the sordid narrowness of a Dutch farm settlement near Chicago. Colleen Moore as Selina gives a very interesting portrayal. It is a picture of the right sort and all who see it may count on being helped by it.

The public fourteen and over is invited, and boys and girls eleven to thirteen inclusive will be admitted on condition that they are accompanied by parents, but children under eleven are not expected. A free will offering will be taken.

Breed Theatre

Alice White and Jack Mulhall are co-featured in First National's spicy, high stepping comedy drama, "Naughty Baby," which is to be presented at the Breed theatre tomorrow night.

This is the initial film in which they have appeared together. Miss White had just been made a First National star, completing her first vehicle, "Show Girl," and Mulhall had just finished "Waterfront" with Dorothy Mackaill, when "Naughty Baby" was launched. A notable supporting cast figures in the picture.

In "Naughty Baby," along with representative and coloring glimpses of New Yory city life, is a long and interesting beach sequence. There the fifty-odd beautiful extras "figure." A delectable variety of figures, in fact!

Music Association Round Table

The round table of the music department of the Women's City club, the next date of which is next Tuesday evening at 7.30 in club room, promises to be an outstanding one, as Charles J. Dyer, well known to all and every one here, has promised to give a talk on opera oratorio, and other subjects allied to these, assisted by Henry La Fontaine.

The programme of the year is the second part of the course on music understanding, the name of which is From Song to Symphony. The special chapter is called Opera and Oratorio. Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham has charge of the evening and Miss Trumbull with the Misses Bennett have charge of the musical current events.

Norwich Music Association

The Norwich Music association will hold its January meeting on Monday evening, the 7th, in Slater Hall Annex at 8 p. m.

This meeting promises to be one of unusual interest, due to the appearance on the program of two local artists whose work and progress in their chosen field is being closely followed by Norwich friends.

Mrs. Josephine Stewart, soprano, will sing two groups of songs during the evening, and Mr. Henry Brynan, violinist, will present three numbers on this interesting program. With little doubt, the attendance at this January meeting will be a large one.

Willys Overland

TOLEDO, Dec. 28—Completing the year with a total production exceeding 315,000 cars, and with the company's plants now turning out new Whippets at the rate of 1,000 every day, the Willys-Overland company is entering the new year with the most aggressive production schedule in the history of the company.

December shipments of the new models exceeded 15,000 while January schedules call for more than 35,000, with the daily production gradually increasing to more than 1,500 by the middle of January, President John N. Willys said. The company's plants are employing 23,000 workers and 10,000 more skilled laborers will be added during the next thirty days. A total of 968 of the new Whippets were produced on Thursday, December 27th.

This is the first time in Willys-Overland history that the company has begun a new year with employment near the previous peak and with production and unfilled orders anything near the volume of the present. The company's new body plant in Toledo is in full operation and is making possible several important economies as well as greatly improved quality, Mr Willys pointed out.

Willys-Overland's planned production for the first six months of 1929 is 300,000 cars. The highest previous six months' records was 200,000 cars, record reached in June, 1928.

Farmer Brown's Boy Understands

Say not a thing can never be;
Still stranger things you'll live to see.
—Old Mother Nature.

Farmer Brown's Boy kept an eye on Peter Rabbit, taking care not to make any sudden movements to alarm Peter. He was delighted to have this visit in the barn, but how Peter got in there continued to puzzle him. You see, in such cold weather, the doors of the barn were kept closed. That is what made it all such a mystery. He was still thinking about this when his attention was called to a scurrying of feet. He turned just in time to see Peter disappear under the hay and Black Pussy the Cat stop just outside. Black Pussy's yellow eyes gleamed with excitement as she crouched with long, black tail twitching back and forth, back and forth.

"Hello, Puss!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Where did you come from? I thought I left you at the house. Now you just get away from there. That isn't a rat. That was Peter Rabbit and I can't have you scaring Peter."

Black Pussy didn't even so much as look at Farmer Brown's Boy. He finally had to go over and drive her away. She ran up into the haymow and there she disappeared.

"I shall have to keep an eye out for Black Pussy," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "I don't think she would undertake to kill a full-grown Rabbit, but she might. I wouldn't have anything happen to Peter for the world."

Farmer Brown's Boy tried to find Black Pussy and put her out of the barn, but finally had to give it up. He had a lot of work to do that morning out there in the barn. There were two or three barrels of apples to be picked over. He just couldn't waste time. After a while he became so absorbed in his work that he forgot all about Peter Rabbit and Black Pussy. He forgot all about them until the sound of scurrying feet caught his attention again. He looked up just in time to see Black Pussy chasing Peter across the barn floor. This time Peter didn't head for that hole under the hay. Black Pussy had managed to steal down from the haymow and get between Peter and the hay. She was stealing up on Peter a step at a time when Peter discovered her. Away he went, lippety-lippety-lip across the barn floor. It was then that Farmer Brown's Boy looked up. Black Pussy was hard after Peter.

Farmer Brown's Boy yelled. It was just as he yelled that Peter reached the little swinging door that closed the hole that had been made for Black Pussy to go in and out. Without hesitating a second, Peter knocked open that little door and disappeared outside. Black Pussy followed him. Once outside, Peter no longer had any fear of Black Pussy. Away he went, lippety-lippety-lip, straight for the Long Lane, down the Long Lane and out across the snow-covered Green Meadows, heading straight for the dear old Briar Patch. Black Pussy didn't follow him. She knew very well that she had no chance once Peter had started to run.

Black Pussy was hard after Peter

Meanwhile, Farmer Brown's Boy was staring at that little door. "So that's it!" he exclaimed. "Peter must have found that little door on the outside, pushed it open and entered in that way. I never should have thought of that. That solves the mystery. But even now I do not understand how Peter happened to come in. It isn't like him to come into a strange place like this. I wonder if he'll come back again?"

Peter had no adventure in getting back to the dear Old Briar Patch. He found little Mrs. Peter anxiously looking out across the snow-covered Green Meadows. "Oh, Peter," she cried, "where have you been? I've been worried nearly to death."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Peter. "You should never worry about me. You remember what Reddy Fox told us about the good things up at Farmer Brown's barn? Well, it was all true. I've had the most wonderful feast, my dear. You must go up there with me."

"I'll do nothing of the kind," declared little Mrs. Peter crossly. "I have a little sense, which is more than you have, Peter Rabbit. One of these days you'll take one too many chances and not come back."

GREENEVILLE

"SOME LITTLE FIXER" PRESENTED SUCCESSFULLY

A drama "Some Little Fixer", in three acts, was cleverly put on at the St. Andrew's Episcopal church Guild, Friday evening, by the German Luther League, under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Andrew's church with a large attendance taxing the seating capacity of the Guild room. The proceeds of the successful affair were divided between the Luther League and the Girls' Friendly society of St. Andrew's church. The parts were filled admirably.

Miss Elizabeth Stelzner is the director of the cast which is as follows: Madge Turner, Elizabeth Thumm; Alice Redden, Grace Sabrowski; Elleanor Allen, Irene Werth; Henry Topper, Albert Werth; Harry Thomas, Frank Decker; Ernest Slater, George Jones; Charles Young, Robert Gross; Jane King, Alice Berry; Francis Long, Frieda Phillips; Richard Timberlain, Walter Hoefer; Dannie, Otto Thumm; Martha, Anna Retkovske.

The action of the three-act play takes place in one of those apartments where everything but the cooking and the bathing is done in the living room. Miss Edna Prodell, president of the Girl's Friendly society, was general chairman of the committee on arrangements while Miss Ruth Tilford and Miss Maud Woolley had charge of the distribution of tickets and Miss Elizabeth Haden sold tickets at the door. After the show, candy was sold, in charge of the Misses Maud and Mildred Woolley.

FUNERAL

Humphrey P. Brennan

The funeral of Humphrey P. Brennan, prominent Greeneville farmer, who passed away Wednesday morning at his home on Boswell avenue, was held from the parlors of Undertakers Shea and Burke, Friday morning at 8.15 o'clock, and was followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock with Rev. William A. Keefe celebrant. Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist, had charge of the musical program. Chopin's Funeral March was played as the body was borne into the church and at the offertory Mrs. Farrell rendered Pie Jesu, while as a waiting she sang Priceless Love of Jesus. The bearers were: Timothy, John and Humphrey Brennan, Patrick Munford, Charles Gay and Anthony Gromko. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan. Attending the funeral services was a large gathering of family friends and relatives. The floral tributes were both beautiful and numerous speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which Mr. Brennan was held by his many friends and acquaintances in this vicinity.

C. H. Shaw has returned to his home at Passaic, N. J., after visiting relatives recently in Greeneville.

REGULAR MEETING OF LADIES' AID SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Greeneville Congregational church was held in the church parlors on Wednesday evening with about 35 members attending. Mrs. Samuel S. Lathrop, the president, who had been spending several months with relatives at Portland, Maine, presided at the meeting. The reports were read by the secretary and treasurer. During the meeting the president presented the following seven members with plants as reward for their regular attendance during the past year. Mrs. James W. Semple, Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Jabez West, Mrs. John McNeely, Mrs. George Drescher, Mrs. Charles F. Sears and Mrs. James Service. A social hour followed the business meeting with refreshments of wafers and coffee served by the social committee, which consists of Mrs. Samuel S. Lathrop, Miss Mary McConnell, Mrs. William Brown, Miss Elizabeth Brown and Miss Nellie Hayes.

Miss Mary Mallon has returned to her studies at the Baltic academy after spending the holiday recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mallon on Convent avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Webber and daughter, Miss Elaine Webber, have returned to their home at Brooklyn, N. Y., after spending ten days at the home of Mrs. Webber's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Casey on Prospect street.

SALEM WOMEN GOES INSANE AND IS TAKEN TO STATE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Harry Buborwick of Salem went violently insane about 11 o'clock Friday morning while in the store of Abe Simonowitz at Salem and had to be taken to the Norwich state hospital.

Mrs. Buborwick resides with her husband and five children on a farm in an outlying section of Salem and had driven to the store in a wagon Friday morning. She had entered the store in her usual quiet manner, but almost immediately had the insanity attack, when she suddenly demanded a cup of coffee, but when it was handed to her she threw it violently to the floor and opened a tirade of abuse upon those around her and at the same time threatening them with bodily violence.

State Policeman George Webber answered a call that was put in to the Groton barracks and the woman's husband and Dr. E. J. Howland of Colchester also came to the store. Her husband was first to arrive but when his first attempt to pacify her were without result it was found necessary to tie her hands and feet in order to prevent her from doing herself harm.

Dr. Howland's examination showed that the woman was in a serious condition mentally and he directed that she be taken to the state hospital for observation. This was done by Officer Webber and Mr. Buborwick who held his wife securely in his lap on the trip to the hospital.

Mrs. Buborwick had always been of a quiet disposition and no reason can be advanced for the sudden turn in the condition of her mind. According to her husband, he had observed no indications that she was becoming mentally unbalanced.

FORMER BALTIC CURATE DEAD AT NEW CANAAN

Clergymen from this vicinity will go to New Canaan today (Saturday) for the funeral of Rev. Pliny F. Cooney, 48, pastor of St. Aloysius' church, New Canaan, who died suddenly Wednesday morning. Father Cooney had not been in any too rugged health for some time, but he was active and well enough to fulfill all his parish duties. He had been around as usual Tuesday. He was stricken during the night and died early Wednesday morning.

Father Cooney was born January 17, 1880, at Palmyra, N. Y. His family moved to New Britain when he was young and he received his early education in St. Mary's parochial school. He later attended St. Charles college, Ellicott City, Maryland. He made his philosophy and theological studies at Grand Seminary, Montreal. He was ordained December 21, 1907, at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, by Rt. Rev. Michael Tierney, D. D.

Father Cooney was first assigned to the Immaculate Conception church, Baltic. Two years later he was appointed to St. Joseph's church, Meriden. In 1911, he went to St. Peter's, New Haven, where he remained for three years. He then was assigned to St. Mary's church, Greenwich. He was appointed pastor of St. Catherine's parish, Broad Brook, in 1924. November 15 last year, he assumed the pastorship of St. Aloysius' parish, New Canaan. He had only been in his new charge a few weeks before his death.

CONTINUES HEARING IN ALOFSIN AUTOMOBILE CASE

Trial of the case against Henry W. Alofsin of West Main street, charged with reckless driving and operating a machine with faulty brakes, was continued until next Tuesday, when it came up in the city court Friday morning. Alofsin was arrested Thursday following a collision between his machine and a sedan owned by Mrs. O. K. Dimock, New York city, and driven by her chauffeur, John Sullivan, also of New York.

Alofsin's machine, a delivery truck, ran head on into the New York sedan at North Main and Second street. When the case was called for trial Friday morning, Mr. Sullivan testified that he was driving down North Main street, towards the city, following a truck. At the corner of Second street, he turned into the private driveway leading to the Atlantic Carton company's plant when Mr. Alofsin's machine suddenly appeared and swung to the left to avoid the truck ahead of the machine. The result was that Alofsin ran head on into the sedan. After hearing Mr. Sullivan's testimony the court continued the case until next Tuesday.

Party for Seventeenth Birthday.

A party was held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Skein of Hickory street in honor of the 17th birthday of their son, Joseph. At 8.30 o'clock a delicious supper was served to about 30 guests by the hostess. Toasts were offered by Harold Ceccolini and Frank Jacaruso. Music, dancing, singing and games were enjoyed throughout the remainder of the evening.

N. M. SEWING CIRCLE HAS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

The Greeneville N. M. Sewing Circle held their regular weekly meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Helgo Erickson on Seventh street with one hundred per cent membership attending. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles. A social hour followed in which radio and victrola selections were rendered along with piano and vocal selections. Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, fancy cakes, cookies, fruits, candies, ice cream and hot chocolate were served by Mrs. Erickson, assisted by Mrs. Harold Wickham and Mrs. Harry Richmond. The dining room was very prettily decorated for the occasion, with the color scheme of pink and white being used. The circle will hold its next meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas Harrington on Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mulkins and son, Paul, of Holyoke, Mass., spent a few days with Mr. Mulkins parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mulkins of Boswell avenue recently.

Messrs. Frederick and Dennis Haydon of Readville, Mass., were recent visitors at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Alice Cousins of Boswell avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wolff and family of Westfield, Mass., were guests at the home of Mrs. Katherine Wolff of Prospect street on New Year's day.

Harold Kinney of Fourth street was a recent visitor at the home of his sister in New London.

The Home Department of the Third Baptist church met at the home of Miss Ida L. Baker on Twelfth street, Wednesday afternoon, with ten members present. Mrs. Elmer Mulkins, leader of the department, conducted a study of the December Sunday school lessons, after which a short business session was held. The ladies voted to have a chicken pie supper at the home of one of the members in the near future. Mrs. Harry Conklin and Mrs. Elmer Mulkin were selected as the committee to make the necessary arrangements for the affair. It was announced that the ladies have several bed quilts on hand to tie and a meeting will be held in the chapel soon to complete them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan have returned to their home on Central avenue after spending a few days with relatives at Providence.

DECLARES CHORAL SOCIETY IS NORWICH ASSET

Among the gifts which the year 1928 has brought to this city, the Norwich Choral society should be remembered, says a Norwich resident who has a great interest in things musical.

"Since this organization has come before the public a week ago with the presentation of Handel's immortal oratorio, "The Messiah," it was fully proved its raison d'etre. There was unanimous praise in all respects.

Such an organization shows the ambition of Norwich people to keep step with the aims of larger communities, in furnishing not only a great educational opportunity for those who are active members and those who listen to the results of the leader's and the singers' work, it also is a truly democratic proposition, of the people, for the people, by the people. Any music lover who has a voice to carry a melody and ability to read music intelligently, is welcome to join the chorus. The members find themselves looking forward to the regular practice evenings, which are made pleasant, profitable and popular by the spirit of one and all, by the enthusiastic leaders, the fine accompanist, by the common desire to do something worth while along the line of music.

"The educational importance of this enterprise cannot possibly be overestimated. It is the great desire of all who at present make up this society to have their organization become a permanent asset to their home town, to grow, to help, to enjoy and to be one of the drawing cards of the Rose of New England.

"The Norwich Choral society was made possible in the beginning by the musical department of the Women's City club. A committee whose high ideals, untiring efforts, a love of music which is a ruling passion, and the desire to increase its educational influence, first came before the members of the club with a woman's chorus and presently merged with the mixed chorus, which takes the name Norwich Choral society. This chorus boasts not only of an unusually large number of fine voices and good musicians, but also of the best leader in far around, Dr. Lawrence Erb of New London, who has unlimited experience and the true musicians' enthusiasm and love for his work, thus calling out the best there is from his interest. Let Norwich do its share to further this enterprise."

NORWICH TOWN

COMMUNION SERVICE ANNOUNCED FOR SUNDAY

There is to be a communion service at the First Congregational church Sunday morning.

BOYS SORRY TO PART WITH SCOUTMASTER HILL

The Boy Scouts of Sacred Heart church met Wednesday evening in the basement of the church from 7:30 until 9. The boys learned with regret that Scoutmaster John Hill is soon to resign, his duties being too numerous to permit him to keep the office permanently. Mr. Hill is well liked by the boys who appreciate his help in getting their troop started. The boys realize that he has been a very efficient worker for their progress, since the troop was formed, eight weeks ago. Mr. Hill gave them many excellent ideas and plans for carrying on their scouting. William Burns has been chosen by Mr. Hill to succeed him. The boys were pleased with his choice.

The Scouts planned for a 14-mile hike today (Saturday). They expect to pass various tests on the way, and to cook their dinner in the open.

The following tests were successfully taken: Francis Driscoll passed The Use of the Knife and Hatchet; Points of the Compass and Signaling; Edward Connell passed Use of the Knife and Hatchet; Richard Cormier passed Living the Scout Oath and Law, Rules of Safety; Charles Ryan passed Thrift Deposit and Living the Scout Oath and Law.

Several new and amusing games were played during the game period. The boys gave Mr. Hill a rousing cheer when he left the meeting and Mr. Burns another hearty cheer when the meeting adjourned.

WOMAN'S DEPT. ELECTS OFFICERS FOR NEW YEAR

The Woman's Department of the League of Service, held its first program meeting of the new year, in the Congregational chapel, Friday afternoon, a good number being present. The meeting was led by Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, chairman of the woman's department. After the devotional exercises and report by the secretary, new officers were chosen for the coming year, as follows: Miss Jennie M. Case, secretary; Mrs. Charles W. Chapin, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, chairman of the work committee; Miss Susan C. Hyde, chairman of the program committee; Mrs. John L. Browning, chairman of the supper committee. Each is to choose her own committees.

After discussion as to ways of improving meetings for the coming year, Mrs. Clyde Beebe, gave the latest news from Miss Ruth Beebe, and Mrs. Avery read some very interesting letters from Miss Gertrude Avery. Mrs. Avery also told of some of her experiences at the American Board meeting, which she attended in Bridgeport. Miss Louise Sterry played for the hymns. During the social hour, refreshments were served by Misses Rose Durr, Grace Wheeler, Lucile Browning and Louise Sterry. Little Shirley Nylen, four years old, entertained with selections on the accordion, which those who heard her thought remarkable.

At a recent meeting of Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters, the following officers were elected: Leader, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley; vice leader, Mrs. Walter Heath; secretary, Mrs. Charles Learned; treasurer, Miss Mary Wattles.

HENRY HASKELL IN PARIS FOR CARNEGIE PEACE ENDOWMENT

Henry S. Haskell and his wife, Juliana Shields Haskell, of New York, sail today (Saturday) from that city for Paris by steamer Ausonia, Cunard line, for an absence of three months. Both were former residents of Norwich and graduates of the Free Academy. Mrs. Haskell lived in Germany four years prior to her marriage and the World war, and there in Berlin attained a high education in Germanic languages under the famous teacher and philologist, Frau Dr. Hemple. Mrs. Haskell is at present a student at Columbia university of New York city. Mr. Haskell is and for years has been assistant director to Dr. Nichola Murray Butler, president and director of the Carnegie many million endowment fund for international peace. Mr. Haskell in his official relation is to call and visit at France, England, Germany and other parts of Europe in the service and exploitation of the Carnegie endowment organization. This will be the first visit of Mrs. Haskell to Germany since her graduation in the schools of that nation and the breaking out of war there.

The foreign address of Mr. and Mrs. Haskell during their stay abroad is Care of Carnegie Endowment, 173 Boulevard St. Germain, Paris, France.

QUARRY WITHDRAWS MOTION TO SET ASIDE VERDICT

Counsel for Capt. Edward F. Quarry of New London, against whom a jury in the superior court recently rendered a verdict of $3,500; $2,500 for Raymond Wysowski and $1,000 for his mother, Mrs. Catherine Wysowski, of 18 Kinney avenue, this city, filed a motion Friday withdrawing his former motion that the verdict be set aside on the grounds that the jury was prejudiced and the verdict was against the evidence and the law.

It was understood the defendant, in addition to paying up the verdict, will also pay $800 to the plaintiffs for medical and hospital care and attention to the boy who was injured when alleged to have been struck by the Quarry automobile while they were crossing West Thames street, near Dunham street, last August.

Attorneys Thomas M. Shields and Charles W. Cassidy were counsel for the plaintiffs in the case.

INCORPORATION PAPERS FOR NORWICH INN PREPARED

Incorporation papers for the Norwich Inn proposition have been prepared and have been forwarded to the office of the secretary of state in Hartford. The committee on incorporation consists of Arthur M. Brown, Robert W. Perkins and Charles R. Butts. As soon as the papers have bee received back from Hartford, officers and directors will be chosen and the corporation will be prepared to proceed with securing plans for the Inn and the other necessary business.

Since the campaign was formally closed a number of further stock subscriptions have been received.

STATE WANTS TO BUY FRED STONE'S STAR RANCH

That Connecticut wants to purchase the Star Ranch in East Lyme, belonging to Fred Stone, famous musical comedy star, is revealed in the first biennial report of the board of finance and control, a part of which has been made public. The board recommends that the legislature appropriate $60,000 for this purpose.

The property if acquired would be used as an adjunct to the state military camp at Niantic, the inadequacy of which for field maneuvers has long been a source of complaint for military officers.

The Star Ranch is an extensive place upon which are many acres of wooded land, which the famous actor has made into riding woods.

The actor has two houses upon the place, a large cement barn for horses, a blacksmith shop and other buildings. On the ranch are some 40 or 50 thoroughbred horses, which are used in connection with the riding school there.

To Sing Christmas Hymns

Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church, there will be a Community sing of Christmas hymns. This will be the last use of the Christmas hymns in this church this season. The beautiful Christmas anthems of last Sunday morning will be repeated by request: "There Were Shepherds," by Birch, and "Nazareth," by Gounod. "The Christian Secret of a Happy New Year" will be the pastor's topic.

At the morning service the Lord's supper will be observed and new members will receive the hand of fellowship. The pastor will speak on "The Pastor's Hopes for 1929."

Health Lecture in Montville

Parents and high school pupils in the town of Montville are to hear a lecture upon "Social Hygiene," which will be given next Tuesday evening at the Uncasville school by Dr. H. P. Talbot of the state department of health. The meeting has been arranged for in co-operation with the school committee and the National Council of Jewish Women, department of farm and rural work.

Spent Holidays in Hanover

Miss Gertrude Huntsman Ladd, a student at Teachers' college, Columbia university, New York, accompanied by her room-mate, Miss Ellen Swanson of Minnesota, spent the holidays at her home, Ashlawn, Hanover. Miss Swanson had passed a few days in Boston before returning to college.

Miss Ladd returned Wednesday to resume her duties as assistant teacher in the Nursery school at Forest Hills, L. I. She spends her mornings at the Nursery school and has classes at the college in the afternoon.

Returns to Virginia

William M. Ringland, who spent the Christmas holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ringland of 186 Hickory street, has returned to resume his work in the George Mason High school of Alexandria, Va., where he is teaching chemistry and biology. On his way south he will visit his sister, Mrs. Edith Dee of Bridgeport, Conn.

Marooned

Do you remember when the last great snow
Came, blocking all the roads for miles around,
And drifted all night long about our house,
Covering the fences, and made a solid mound
Over each post? Up to the window sills
The snow was piled, and when you went at night
To milk the cows, you had to cut a way
Through the great walls. Your lantern's swinging light,
Vanished within a snowy arch. Next day
The great storm ceased, and we were there alone
Together, remote upon our hilltop farm,
Shut in a silence that had hourly grown.
The world seemed nebulous, and far away.
Since all the wires were down, and every road
Was blotted out.

The second morning came—
Upon the unbroken fields a black speck showed
That larger grew—men and their great machine
That whirled the snow before them in a cloud.
They hewed a pathway true and straight and clean
And came up to our hilltop with a shout.

Speechless we stood, as very long ago
Crusoe and Friday, on their desert isle,
Reluctant, now that rescue was at hand,
Looked at each other with a rueful smile!

Ruth Aughltree, in Christian Science Monitor.

A Sea Lyric

There is no music that man has heard
Like the voice of the minstrel sea,
Whose major and minor chords are fraught
With infinite mystery—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no passion that man has sung,
Like the love of deep-souled Sea,
Whose tide responds to the Moon's soft light
With marvelous melody—
For the Sea is a harp, and the wings of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no sorrow that man has known,
Like the grief of the wordless Main,
Whose Titan bosom forever throbs
With an untranslated pain—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vague unrest.

—William Hamilton Hayne.

Amiable victim (bowled over by auto)—I'm perfectly all right, thank you. I'm not a bit hurt.

Motorist—I say, you're behaving jolly well about it. It is a real pleasure to knock down a thorough sportsman like you.—Punch.

A New York writer relates this anecdote of Thoreau. He probably made it up: Ralph Waldo Emerson knocked at Thoreau's door one afternoon and the latter called out, "Who's there?"

"It's me," answered R. W.

"Liar!" called Thoreau. "If it were you, you would say, 'It is I.'"

A young man walked into a baker's shop and asked for two dozen loaves. The shopkeeper looked surprised.

"Have you a tea party on?" he enquired.

"No," said the man, "I'm working at the menagerie, and the kangaroo has kicked the elephant, so I want to make a bread poultice."—Vancouver Province.

DEATH OF TEX RICKARD, 59, ENDS SPECTACULAR CAREER

Famous Sports Promoter, Died at a Hospital in Miami Yesterday at 8.37 a. m.—Is Believed to Have Amassed a Fortune of Several Million Dollars—In Rickard's Death Boxing, Hockey, Bicycle Racing and Other Sports Have Lost a Guiding Genius—Had Lifted Boxing Into the Field of Big Business—Had Figured in Adventures From the Plains of Texas to the Gold Fields of Alaska and Back to the Gambling Halls of Nevada.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Death today claimed George L. (Tex) Rickard, New York sports promoter.

He succumbed in a hospital here at 8.37 o'clock this morning to complications which set in after an operation for the removal of his appendix New Year's night.

Mrs. Rickard, Jack Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Field of New York, Dr. E. T. Adkins and two nurses were at the bedside when the maker of champions passed away.

Rickard, accompanied by his wife and child, came to Miami Beach recently as head of the Madison Square Garden corporation to superintend the opening of a Greyhound race track and to arrange for a heavyweight match between Young Stribling and Jack Sharkey.

He was stricken Tuesday at his home, but was not removed to a hospital until that night when physicians diagnosed his illness as acute appendicitis. An immediate operation was performed.

Rickard showed improvement and was pronounced on the road to recovery until Friday night when he suffered a relapse and peritonic infection developed. The promoter fought against the inroads of the disease and yesterday told Jack Dempsey, his friend, "Jack, I'm going to win this fight."

Throughout the day his condition was considered grave and his strength, physicians said, was being sapped; but at midnight last night Dr. Adkins announced the promoter's resistance was better, and left the hospital.

At 6.10 this morning Rickard suddenly lapsed into unconsciousness from which he never recovered.

Throughout the night, Mrs. Rickard kept vigil beside the bed of her husband, as she had done almost constantly since he was stricken. With her was Mrs. Fields. Dempsey and Mr. Fields left the hospital at 2 a. m. after remaining there through most of yesterday.

Dr. Adkins, Dr. Seubert, house physician, Dempsey and Fields were summoned when Rickard became unconscious, and a few minutes later were at the dying promoter's bedside.

An official bulletin issued by Dr. Adkins at 9.30 a. m. said:

"Mr. Rickard's death resulted from an overwhelming infection following acute gangerenous appendicitis."

Mrs. Rickard was nearly prostrated at the death of her husband.

Dempsey, gravely concerned over Rickard's condition since he heard of his friend's relapse Friday night, came from the third floor sick room to the reception hall after the end.

He was pale through a two days' growth of beard.

"It must come to every one, but its mighty hard to see Tex go," he said. "We can only carry on as he would have done. I have lost the best pal I ever had and not only myself but the whole sporting world has lost its best friend."

Later Dempsey said:

"We plan to go through with Rickard's plan and ideas for the future as he had created them. So far as we know now, the fight between Stribling and Sharkey will be held on February 27, in Miami Beach, as originally planned."

Funeral plans announced today contemplated that the body of the fight impresario will be sent to New York at 11.10 o'clock tonight.

$15,000 Casket Weighs 2,200 Pounds.

The body was placed in a $15,000 casket ordered by Dempsey and Mr. Field. It weighed 2,200 pounds and was of solid bronze. Twelve policemen and six firemen, were required to carry it from the funeral home to the hearse. As the casket lay open in the funeral home, a blanket of roses was placed beside it, bearing the words "To Our Pal" It was sent by Dempsey and Field.

Mrs. Rickard was confined to her bed all morning, and up to a few minutes before the time to leave the home for brief funeral services, at the funeral establishment.

A telegram from Rickard's mother, Mrs. L. J. Adams, 81 years old, of Seattle, Wash., was received late Saturday night. She offered to come to Miami Beach and do whatever was possible to aid her son to recover. Late today a telegram was sent informing her of Rickard's death.

RICKARD WITHOUT A RIVAL IN THE FIELD OF PROMOTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—The death of George L. "Tex" Rickard in Miami Beach today removed from boxing a figure more powerful than champions, a character unique and without a rival in the field of promotion, and the most important single figure in the lifting of the sport from the "ham and egg" class into the field of big business.

Boasting little or no experience in sport promotion, probably without ever having lifted his own hands to a position of offense or defense, Rickard revolutionized the staging of boxing bouts. Forced into boxing by "home town" pride in 1903, he staged a lightweight championship match between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans at Goldfield, Nevada, and ran a stake of $30,000 saved from gold mining days in Alaska into a personal fortune of several million dollars.

His death robbed the Madison Square Garden corporation for which he has made millions of dollars in profits through the promotion of boxing extravaganzas, hockey, bicycle racing, and other sports, of its guiding genius. He left no man in the organization capable of taking the seat at his two-ton bronze desk and dealing with the modern problems of fisticuffs with the sagacity color and business ability Tex possessed.

The details of important matches, from the battles of contenders in the lightest classes right down to the staging of the $2,000,000 heavyweight spectacle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in Chicago, were kept mostly in his own brain. He bothered little with records and notations, kept no accurate track of expenditures necessary for promotion, and worked on the principle that when the receipts were finally counted and the expenses totalled, there always would be left a fine margin of profit.

Two Financial Failures

Twice in his career the maker of champions was wrong. Both his financial failures came last summer when he staged a lightweight title bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell at a loss of $100,000 and dropped $300,000 in the promotion of Gene Tunney's final battle with Tom Heeney. He made millionaires of two Heavyweight champions, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, and set up astonishing purses for fighters in every other division.

Although no one can be expected successfully to replace Rickard at the head of the fight business, management of Madison Square Garden probably will revert to William F. Carey, treasurer and vice-president of the corporation, who with Richard Hoyt, Wall street banker, controls a majority of the stock. Contrary to general belief, Rickard himself owned little stock in the Garden and received only $50,000 a year as president of the corporation.

Rickard's death came as he was gradually divorcing himself from the major duties about the Garden. While he intended to hold his post as long as he lived, Tex sought more and more to retire from the active picture, staying on more in an advisory capacity while some younger man did most of the work. He had large property holdings in Miami Beach and had just completed erection of a dog racing establishment there. He intended to spend a majority of his time in the south.

Rickard left at Madison Square Garden a suite of offices that for sentimental reasons probably will never be occupied again. About the walls, of his main office, an immence, high-ceilinged room with luxurious furnishings, were crowded the signed photographs of several presidents, leading sport figures, and many of the "600 millionaires" he proudly boasted were drawn to the boxing game through his efforts.

The huge bronze desk, made originally for President McKinley, is locked tight but opened, on top, is a box of the nicotineless cigars Tex smoked all day long. On a hatrack in one corner hangs one of Tex's walking sticks, forgotten in the rush to get away to the southland for fishing, golf and fight promotion.

Had Adventurous Career

Before Tex Rickard ever thought of promoting a boxing match his career had stretched through a string of story-book adventures from the plains of Texas to the gold fields of Alaska and back to the gambling halls of Nevada.

He was born in Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 2, 1870, but his father moved to Sherman, Texas, when the only son, George L., was 4 years old. The youngster grew up on a cattle ranch at Cambridge, Tex., and was riding herd in Henrietta after his father died when Rickard was 10.

Cowboy and Town Marshal

After several years as a cowboy and later town marshall of Henrietta, young Rickard joined the rush to the Klondike in Alaska in 1895. He landed with another cowboy at Juneau, lugged his sleds through the Chilkoot Pass and 300 miles across lakes to the head of the Yukon, and promptly "struck it rich" in the famous bonanza strike.

With a profit of $60,000 Rickard set up a gambling hall and saloon at Dawson. In one night, a band of lucky miners wiped him out playing roulette and faro and he was forced to cut wood for five months at $15 a cord for a living. He swung his axe at the side of Rex Beach, noted novelist, until 1899, when he hiked to Nome and set up another saloon and gambling hall with only $35 capital.
